Mother Will Come to Peterborough to Investigate Tragedy

Mrs. Knox Coming Here

Grief-Stricken Woman Declares Her Belief That Son Was Slain.

PETITIONS CIRCULATE.

Says Ontario Police Now Lean To Same Opinion of Shooting

(Special to The Examiner)

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 10. — Despite the opposition and influence being brought to bear against such a plan, Mrs. Josephine May Knox, mother of George Frederick Knox, 19 year old student of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute whose body was found lying beside that of Mrs. Lottie Pacey, his landlady, aged 35, in the latter's Peterborough home by the latter's husband, is going to the Ontario city to personally investigate the mysterious double killings and prove, if physically possible, that the foul accusations, as she terms them, against her dead son are false.

Furthermore the heart-broken and discouraged little mother will attempt in her own way to convince the Ontario authorities that both Mrs. Pacey and her son were murdered and that the murderer, whatever his motive may have been, deliberately forged her son's name to a note, making it appear that he killed his landlady and then killed himself, because of an unholy love and jealousy of her husband, Thomas D. Pacey.

Mrs. Knox is still at the Lynn home for aged women at 37 Breed street where her sister, Mrs. Cora Green is matron. She is on the verge, physicians state, of a nervous prostration, and should have absolute rest and quiet with no thought of going to Ontario. Nevertheless Mrs. Knox is determined to go and in all probability, if illness or some serious mental trouble does not develop, she will entrain the latter part of this week.

"Do you suppose," she asked The Examiner correspondent when interviewed yesterday evening, "that I would be any worse physically or mentally there in Ontario where this terrible thing happened than I will be here thinking about it.

Satisfied With Police.

"There are those who have wanted me to secure legal help or to ask an investigation through our Senator Walsh of the officials at Ottawa. I am satisfied with what the Ontario police are doing at the present time.

"It is with no desire to handicap them in any way that I wish to go to Peterborough," she explained. "You must remember that my son has been accused through a forged note of killing Mrs. Pacey and then himself. I have disbelieved that from the very start and I am now advised that the Ontario police officials are beginning to disbelieve it too.

"George could never do the things the newspaper reports credited him with doing," she continued. "He was a clean youth, he had no such thoughts toward Mrs. Pacey. He admired Mr. Pacey, his letters told me so. He thought a lot of him. He thought a lot of Mrs. Pacey, too, but she was like a mother to him. I know how Mr. Pacey feels about it.

Victorian Government Offers Reward For Arrest Of Melbourne Bomb Throwers

MELBOURNE, Australia, October 10 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters). — Bomb outrages perpetrated in the State of Victoria by militant dock strikers resulted yesterday in the Victorian Government offering a reward of $1,250 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons who have thrown bombs.

The police, learning of a plot to blow up a train carrying volunteer workers to Port Melbourne to work on the night shift, ordered railway traffic suspended for an hour last night.

The Central Strike Committee, which is directing its efforts towards extending the strike of waterside workers, yesterday decided to recommend that members of the Carters' and Drivers' Union and the Engine Drivers' and Firemen's Association cease working with non-unionists.

Following the example of trade unionists at Newcastle, N.S.W., twelve hundred lumpers—men employed in loading and unloading cargoes—decided by a small majority to resume work.

Churchill Gets Card In Building Union

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who made quite a reputation as a bricklayer while handling the trowel in building operations at his home in Kent last summer, has made himself one with his fellow craftsmen by joining the Amalgamated Union of Building Trades Workers. He paid his entrance fee and will soon receive a union card, entitling him to the regular wage if employed as a bricklayer

FIREMEN FIGHT FIRE IN PIPES

Are Forced To Climb Through Window To Get At Blazing Soot.

LONG LINE OF PIPES.

The day shift of the city fire department encountered a formidable proposition at 2:03 yesterday afternoon when they were called to an apartment on the corner of King and George streets. No one one at home, and the doors locked, made it necessary for the firemen to make their way in through a window where they found a line of stove pipes running through no less than four walls. The pipes were heavily laden with soot that had taken fire and it was necessary to take them all apart before the danger could be eliminated.

Fire Chief Gimlett this morning stated to The Examiner that another instance of this neglect will certainly lead to a $50.00 fine as provided in the new by-law. It is up to the citizens to co-operate with the department in reducing the fire hazard locally.

At 6:28 last evening, another chimney fire occurred, this time at 327 Bethune street. The fire was soon extinguished.

Windsor Castle is one of several great houses in England, the windows of which have never been counted.

CAMPAIGNERS SIGN 328 MEN

New and Renewal Memberships Far Ahead of Association's Objective.

DIVISION "B" WINS.

The Y.M.C.A. membership drive made a whirlwind finish last night, and after all reports were in, a total of 328 memb... (new and renewals) was shown to be the result of the four days' effort. Several surprises were sprung, and the proverbial dark horse appeared in the person of C. McInnis, a member who was signed up in the early stages of the campaign and who worked so effectively to secure new members that he was able to report 180 points at last night's meeting and finished as high individual with 225 points.

Team No. 1, captained by A. E. Dryland, retained their leadership, and the tricolor team, under their leader, J. H. Vernor, came through with a flying finish, and the blue and white colors were lowered after maintaining the lead throughout the campaign.

It was a splendid meeting, with almost every worker on hand, and was also attended by a large number of the directors. President W. A. Richardson presided and expressed his appreciation on behalf of the Board for the way in which the members had taken hold of the campaign and carried it through to a successful finish. He urged the older members to make a real effort to see that the new members were brought into the activities and made to feel that they were really a part of the Association.

E. D. Otter, of the National Council staff, received the reports and also congratulated the workers. Mr. Otter urged that the effort be continued, and that other fellows who are still considering membership sought after.

Mr. Cummer and Mr. Vernor, the leaders of the two divisions, were called on and both expressed their appreciation of the hearty support rendered by their respective divisions.

The president presented the different awards to three high-point workers, and thanked those who had so kindly donated special awards, which had stimulated interest in the campaign. The president stated after the meeting that he was going to present a pair of skiis for the individual securing the highest point in a post-campaign effort continuing until October 31.

The general secretary, who was called on, and the honorary president, G. A. Gillespie, urged that the same splendid support be given to the present as has been shown in the past few days and predicted that ten years immediately ahead would prove to be the finest in the history of the association.

Mr. Vernor proposed a vote of thanks to the Ladies' Auxiliary, which provided the suppers for the campaign and there was a unanimous and hearty response to his vote of thanks.

The final stand of the campaign was as follows:

Division A—

C. F. Cummer	105
Team. No. 1	390
Team No. 3	125

Local Council Of Women

Appeal to the Citizens of Peterborough. Desire to Raise $1,000.00 as Share of National Foundation Fund.

The record of the National Council of Women of Canada is one of progressive achievement in all that makes for better living and a better and happier Canada.

In the short thirty five years of its life it can boast the establishment of the Victorian Order of Nurses, while revised Federal divorce laws, The Mothers' Allowance Act and many others stand to its credit in the field of constructive legislation.

Throughout its full and useful career this public-spirited organization has been entirely self-supporting. It has worked for the good of others and for Canada as a whole, at the expense of its own membership.

Its imposing record in federal, provincial and local community fields has been accomplished without cost to the numberless, beneficiaries of its far-sighted efforts.

This work has grown to such proportions as to be beyond the power of an organization of this type, to finance single handed. So, it is, that a Foundation Fund is sought to put council activities on a sound financial basis to enable the National Council of Women of Canada to carry on, and expand their efforts.

And Canadians, serious-minded and public-spirited, will arise to this need and meet it, realising how vital to Canada's welfare is the work of the National Council and how imperative it is that this work should not be curtailed.

CIVIL WARFARE FOLLOWS RISING IN WEST CHINA

Moslem Bandits Repel Army Corps Sent By General Feng.

MILLIONS STARVING.

Ravages of War Aggravate Famine Already Rampant in Kansu Province.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Following the Mohammedan uprising in Kansu province which is stated to have claimed more than 200,000 lives, civil warfare was continuing to-day in the western China province, it was believed. In addition to the ravages of war the area was said to be suffering from intense famine. This was aggravated by the fighting and advices were that half the population of the province totalling 5,000,000 people, was liable to die during the coming winter unless drastic relief measures were applied.

Serious conflicts between the Kansu Mohammedans and the troops of general Feng Yu Hsiang, who claims the overlorship of the province, caused chaotic conditions. A letter from the China Inland Mission headquarters said acute trouble started as far back as last spring when armed Mohammedan bands began raiding villages, robbing and slaying inhabitants who were unable to offer resistance. This caused General Feng to dispatch an army corps from Honan in an attempt to repel the Mohammedans, but these forces were defeated and more soldiers sent, which resulted in civil warfare, which is believed to be continuing, although there have been no later reports.

LEGION HOLDS EUCHRE PARTY

First of Series of Socials For Members Follows Monthly Meeting.

GAMES PLANNED.

The monthly meeting of the Canadian Legion was held on Monday night, with Comrade J. Abraham, president, presiding.

A large amount of routine business was disposed of, and a number of new members joined.

It was announced a new flag was being donated by the 2nd Vice-President, Rev. Paul Costello, which was much appreciated by the members. It was also announced that there will be a parade on Monday, October 15, on the Market Square at 7.30 p.m. for all returned men to cooperate with Warriors' Day at opening of Made-in-Canada Exhibition being held by the Kiwanis Club. It is hoped that every returned man possible will turn out. The parade will be headed by the Peterborough Rangers' Band.

After the business session there was a happy gathering of the members, who engaged in a freeze-out game of euchre. About forty members occupied ten tables and eventually Comrades Everitt and Chapman were the victors. This is only the commencement of an active and busy season, as it was decided that a feature this season should be a members' night on Thursday night of each week. Billiard tournaments and euchre and indoor quoits will also be introduced.

The chairmen of the different leagues were appointed that night.

Past President R. E. Layfield promised to donate the indoor quoits.

Irey was fined $100.00, and costs, and his boat and cargo confiscated

Slang-Writer's Body Buried In Home Town

TROY, N.Y., Oct. 10 (United Press).—John White Conway, one of the country's best writers of slang, who died at Hamilton, Bermuda, last week, was buried at St. Agnes Cemetery here yesterday afternoon. Conway, although reared in Harlem, was a native of this city. After a mass in St. Malachy's Church, in New York, Conway's body, accompanied by an automobile cortege, was brought here for burial. First, as a baseball player with the New York Giants, later as a sports writer and theatrical critic on the staff of Variety, "Con," as he was known the country over, earned the title of "king of slang."

Y.W.C.A. WORK IS PROGRESSING

Board Hears Encouraging Reports of Various Activities of Association.

CAMP CONFERENCE HELD.

The regular meeting of the Y.W.C.A. board of directors was held at the Association on Monday afternoon. Mrs. W. D. Scott presided for the devotional period and election of president and vice presidents. Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner was unanimously elected president; Mrs. E. E. Harvey, first vice president; Miss M. Dickson, second; and Mrs. R. Harstone, third.

The general secretary was asked to represent Peterborough Y.W.C.A. at a meeting in Hamilton, at which Miss Dingman, one of the outstanding speakers at the World's "Y" Conference, Budapest, and the World's Missionary Convention, Jerusalem, will talk on advancement in the Y.W.C.A. industrial work.

The executive reported two new members for the advisory board, Dr. W. D. Scott and Mr. H. Morrow.

Department reports all showed a most encouraging month with many new members in the residence, gymnasium and swimming classes and clubs. The rally, girls', leaders', and board conferences had successfully started the fall and winter activities.

Miss Musa Cox, secretary of the leaders' and girls' conference, gave a very interesting report of ... gram, and during the tea hour a question box proved an ... and helpful discussion.

The fourth annual conference of the Y.W.C.A. leaders and girls was held at Stoney Lake, October 6 and 7. Eighteen members representing the various departments attended and together, taking as the theme "Farther, farther, farther, farther sail," discussed the Y.W.C.A. program for the coming year.

On the arrival at camp a business session was held, when camp duties were assigned and the general program outlined. After supper a meeting around the fireplace was held, and with conference theme and the following outline as a guide, the discussion was very helpful:

Under "Early Association Sailors," a review of the Y.W.C.A. history was told.

"Our Ship—the Y.W.C.A." brought out our friendships, new passengers and work and pleasures as "Y" members.

"Our Course" served as a beginning for the discussion of this year's program, which includes gymnasium and swimming classes, clubs for all-round programs, educational classes, in handicraft, literature, music, travel and home nursing, and interesting Bible study, also a varied program which aims to touch every interest of every girl.

"Our Port" outlined the Y.W.C.A. purpose.

An interesting dialogue by Miss Brownscombe, Gertrude Gimblett and Viola Harvey brought out the true ideals of the Y.W.C.A. membership. Viola Harvey told the girls in attendance in an interesting way of the Canadian Y.W.C.A. conference, held at Camperdown this summer.

Stunts, a marshmallow roast and sing-song brought the evening to a close.

Flag raising, setting-up exercises, and camp inspection opened the second day's program. Morning devotional period was held by the lake shore, and followed the theme under the headings "My Ship," "My Course," "My Guide." A discussion of the religious and foreign work program of the Y.W.C.A. followed and the morning service closed with a song service.

A sail across the lake in the afternoon followed by tea brought the conference to a close. New friendships were formed, Y.W.C.A. ideas strengthened, and a happy camp week enjoyed.

Grand Jury Returns No Bill

Manslaughter Charge Arose Out of Death of Graeme McMillan.

WITNESSES HEARD.

Grand Jury Asked To Hasten With Work in Order to Submit Early Report.

Wesley Devall, held on a charge of manslaughter, was liberated by the grand jury at the fall sessions of the Supreme Court of the County of Peterborough yesterday afternoon, when "A No Bill" was returned by that body after hearing Crown witnesses for almost three hours. At 2.40, the Honorable Mr. Justice Rose had completed his charge to the grand jury and they were marshalled by Sergeant John Deannard and Constable Gordon Puffer to the grand jury room. There, along with Crown Prosecutor Irwin Hilliard, K.C., of Morrisburg, they interrogated five Crown witnesses. When Mr. Hilliard retired, they considered the evidence submitted to them for almost half an hour, and then returned to their seats in the court room, with their verdict of "No Bill."

V. J. McElderry, K.C., who for the first time was wearing his silk gown which denotes the honor bestowed upon him this summer, was the first man to shake hands with Mr. Devall. Mr. McElderry was the counsel for the defence, and when he entered the court yesterday, he was quite hopeful of the result of the grand jury's deliberations. He immediately moved that the charge against Mr. Devall be dismissed.

The grand jury was then asked by His Lordship to hasten with the remainder of its work, so that it might submit a report before the sessions were over.

TWO WIN HAM.

William Hutchinson and E. J. Cullen Tie For S. E. Mahood's Prize.

The guessing on the weight of the big ham in S. E. Mahood's window last Friday and Saturday resulted in a tie. R. M. Glover weighed the ham at 10 o'clock Saturday evening, and it was found to tip the scales at 39 lbs., 1 oz. Two estimates of 39 lbs. had been made, one by William Hutchison, of South Monaghan, and the other by E. J. Cullen, 306 Louis street. By the consent of the two winners, the 15lb. ham was equally divided between them, giving both homes a most acceptable roast of prime pork at no expense.

Eggs That Are Eggs Laid By Local Ducks

Out on the farm of Frank Bissonnett, River Road, the ducks do not consider it a duty to lay eggs. They esteem it a privilege! No doubt about it, the "Bigger and Better" slogan is in effect seven days of the week

Mr. Bissonnett appeared in The Examiner office this morning with two examples of the duck fruit de luxe. One weighed six ounces, was seven inches in circumference, nine and three-eighths inches round measured lengthwise and three and a half inches in length. The other egg, also weighing six ounces, was of the same dimensions save that it was only nine and a quarter inches round measured lengthwise.

ENGINEER DIES IN TRAIN CRASH

Several Passengers Injured in Wreck Near Niagara Falls.

FREIGHT CAR IN WAY.

NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 10. — (Canadian Press).—John McGregor, an engineer, was killed and several passengers injured to-day in a collision between a Wabash passenger train and a freight car near Stevensville, eighteen miles from here. The injured were taken to Buffalo. The freight train was on the siding but it is understood the rear end did not clear the main line and the passenger train ploughed through. The passenger train was from Detroit to Buffalo and most of the passengers were in the berths at the time of the accident. Scenes of indescribable confusion followed in the darkness.

Investigation Planned.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., October 10. — (Canadian Press). — Superintendent Matthews, of the C.N.R., said the Canadian National coal train of 79 cars was taking the siding at Robbins and sixty cars filled the siding to its entire length, leaving other cars on the main line. The trainmen had signals out, but the Wabash train, running slowly, struck them. An investigation will be held by Wabash officials.

GEORGE STREET MEN HEAR TALK

J. F. H. Wallace Gives Interesting Address On Irish Wit and Humor.

MUCH APPRECIATED.

The October meeting of the George Street Men's Organization was held on Monday evening at 6.45 o'clock in the assembly hall of the Sunday School. It took the form of a luncheon, which was provided by the ladies under the supervision of Sam. Oke. The men greatly assisted in waiting on the tables by each table in turn, at the command of Colonel Miller, rising and going to the kitchenette for their plates.

Between courses, the usual sing-song was held. The president, Stan. Thompson, with Arnold Lillow, rendered a very delightful duet, which was greatly appreciated by all present. J. E. Smith, the vice-president of the organization, humorously introduced J. F. H. Wallace, the speaker of the evening, who gave a talk on "Irish Wit and Humor." Mr. Wallace's pleasant, sincere and polished manner gained the attention of his audience, before he had even introduced his talk. He pointed out how witty the Irish people as a whole are, and then by illustrations, consisting of many humorous and witty stories and puns, showed without a doubt, that the Irish are the most witty people in the world.

He read some very humorous Irish poems, and before he had finished the Irish wits in the audience were thinking of other humorous stories which they thought he might add to his list.

Charles Saunders and Thomas Mark, who tendered a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker, suggested some of these and J. E. Smith, who now occupied the chair, was guilty of the same offence.

The meeting closed with a word of prayer, led by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Todd.

Asphodel Man Is Blamed

Forgets Oath and Expresses Opinion On Case At Norwood Fair.

FIRST ON RECORD.

Mr. Justice Rose Continues Hearing of Case Without Aid of Jury.

Never before in the memory of the present court officials has a petit jury been discharged by the trial judge under such unfavorable circumstances as took place at the Sessions of the Supreme Court of the County of Peterborough this morning before the Honorable Mr. Justice Rose.

Before His Lorship ascended the bench at the opening of court he had been informed by one of the counsel in the Rattan-O'Conor-Fenton civil case that one of the members of the jury had been heard to express views on the case at Norwood fair last night. His Lordship then reminded the juryman of the oath they had taken and the charge he had given them last night at adjournment to discuss the case with no person. He asked them if they had anything to say and all sat in silence. He then suggested that they might be closeted with him in one of the anti chambers and tell if the information he had was true. Again there was a long drawn out silence and at last one juryman arose and suggested to the Bench that each be questioned in private. This suggestion His Lordship would not countenance.

Percy Beavis, a farmer in the township of Asphodel, who was sitting in the rear row of seats, stood up and said he had been at the Norwood fair last night.

"Did you take part in any discussion, Mr. Justice Rose asked.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Did you give an opinion and express yourself?"

"Yes," again was the reply.

"I must, then, use my perogative and discharge this jury and continue the case without one," His Lordship ruled.

The jury then filed out of their chests and went down to the County treasurer's office to collect their fees.

Evidence Given

The plaintiff had practically closed his case at the noon time adjournment to-day and an effort will be made this afternoon to hear all the defence evidence. H. Wilkins, land surveyor and civil engineer, was the first witness called. He gave a great deal of evidence as to the measurements around the scene of the accident, and the distances from the corner. He was subjected to a very stiff cross-examination by W. F. Huycke, counsel for the defendants.

Mrs. H. Rattan, the plaintiff, who is seeking $4,000 from Nigel O'Conor-Fenton and his mother, was then put in the witness box. Mrs. Rattan gave her age as 71 years. On the night of the accident, she said, she was returning from Mr. Campbell's home and nearing the corner of Victoria and Welling streets she was struck by a car. Witness was unable to say how the accident happened, but maintained that she was walking on the grass alongside the roadway.

Grand Jury Report

The grand jury empanelled at the Fall Sessions of the Supreme Court of the County of Peterborough reported back to the trial judge, the Honorable Mr. Justice Rose, this morning. Two recommendations were made; one for better bathing facilities in the jail, and the other that the court room be redecorated. The one concerning the jail had been made by a former grand jury at the sessions of the Couty Court in June. The jury reported visiting the House of Refuge, where they found everything in first-class condition and all the inmates happy. The superintendent and his wife were found to be away on their holidays, and the jurors highly commended the way everything was being kept and the satisfied appearance of the inmates. At the Shelter they found the nine children happy and well looked after, with those of school age attending public school. Conditions in the jail were found to be very satisfactory except for the inadequate bathing facilities.

McInnis, a member who was signed up in the early stages of the campaign and who worked so effectively to secure new members that he was able to report 180 points at last night's meeting and finished as high individual with 295 points.

Team No. 1, captained by A. E. Dryland, retained their leadership, and the tricolor team, under their leader, J. H. Vernor, came through with a flying finish, and the blue and white colors were lowered after maintaining the lead throughout the campaign.

It was a splendid meeting, with almost every worker on hand, and was also attended by a large number of the directors. President W. A. Richardson presided and expressed his appreciation on behalf of the Board for the way in which the members had taken hold of the campaign and carried it through to a successful finish. He urged the older members to make a real effort to see that the new members were brought into the activities and made to feel that they were really a part of the Association.

E. D. Otter, of the National Council staff, received the reports and also congratulated the workers. Mr. Otter urged that the effort be continued, and that other fellows who are still considering membership be sought after.

Mr. Cummer and Mr. Vernor, the leaders of the two divisions, were called on and both expressed their appreciation of the hearty support rendered by their respective divisions.

The president presented the different awards to three high-point workers, and thanked those who had so kindly donated special awards, which had stimulated interest in the campaign. The president stated after the meeting that he was going to present a pair of skiis for the individual securing the highest point in a post-campaign effort continuing until October 31.

The general secretary, who was called on, and the honorary president, G. A. Gillespie, urged that the same splendid support be given to the president as has been shown in the past few days and predicted that ten years immediately ahead would prove to be the finest in the history of the association.

Mr. Vernor proposed a vote of thanks to the Ladies' Auxiliary, which provided the suppers for the campaign and there was a unanimous and hearty response to his vote of thanks.

The final stand of the campaign was as follows:

CIVIL WARFARE FOLLOWS RISING IN WEST CHINA

Moslem Bandits Repel Army Corps Sent By General Feng.

MILLIONS STARVING.

Ravages of War Aggravate Famine Already Ramp in Kansu Province.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Following the Mohammedan uprising in Kansu province which is stated to have claimed more than 200,000 lives, civil warfare was continuing to-day in the western China province, it was believed. In addition to the ravages of war the area was said to be suffering from intense famine. This was aggravated by the fighting and advices were that half the population of the province totalling 5,000,000 people, was liable to die during the coming winter unless drastic relief measures were applied.

Serious conflicts between the Kansu Mohammedans and the troops of general Feng Yu Hsiang, who claims the overlorship of the province, caused chaotic conditions. A letter from the China Inland Mission headquarters said acute trouble started as far back as last spring when armed Mohammedan bands began raiding villages, robbing and slaying inhabitants who were unable to offer resistance. This caused General Feng to dispatch an army corps from Honan in an attempt to repel the Mohammedans, but these forces were defeated and more soldiers sent, which resulted in civil warfare which is believed to be continuing, although there have been no later reports.

LEGION HOLDS EUCHRE PARTY

First of Series of Socials For Members Follows Monthly Meeting.

GAMES PLANNED.

The monthly meeting of the Canadian Legion was held on Monday night, with Comrade J. Abraham, president, presiding.

A large amount of routine business was disposed of, and a number of new members joined.

It was announced a new flag was being donated by the 2nd Vice-President, Rev. Paul Costello, which was much appreciated by the members. It was also announced that there will be a parade on Monday, October 15, on the Market Square at 7.30 p.m. for all returned men to co-operate with Warriors' Day at opening of Made-in-Canada Exhibition being held by the Kiwanis Club. It is hoped that every returned man possible will turn out. The parade will be headed by the Peterborough Rangers' Band.

After the business session there was a happy gathering of the members, who engaged in a freeze-out game of euchre. About forty members occupied ten tables and eventually Comrades Everitt and Chapman were the victors. This is only the commencement of an active and busy season, as it was decided that a feature this season should be a members' night on Thursday night of each week. Billiard tournaments and euchre and indoor quoits will also be introduced.

The chairmen of the different leagues were appointed that night.

Past President R. E. Layfield promised to donate the indoor quoits.

Slang-Writer's Body Buried In Home Town

TROY, N.Y., Oct. 10 (United Press).—John White Conway, one of the country's best writers of slang, who died at Hamilton, Bermuda, last week, was buried at St. Agnes Cemetery here yesterday afternoon. Conway, although reared in Harlem, was a native of this city. After a mass in St. Malachy's Church, in New York, Conway's body, accompanied by an automobile cortege, was brought here for burial. First, as a baseball player with the New York Giants, later as a sports writer and theatrical critic on the staff of Variety, "Con," as he was known the country over, earned the title of "king of slang."

Y.W.C.A. WORK IS PROGRESSING

Board Hears Encouraging Reports of Various Activities of Association.

CAMP CONFERENCE HELD.

The regular meeting of the Y.W.C.A. board of directors was held at the Association on Monday afternoon. Mrs. W. D. Scott presided for the devotional period and election of president and vice presidents. Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner was unanimously elected president; Mrs. E. E. Harvey, first vice president; Miss M. Dickson, second; and Mrs. R. Harstone, third.

The general secretary was asked to represent Peterborough Y.W.C.A. at a meeting in Hamilton, at which Miss Dingman, one of the outstanding speakers at the World's "Y" Conference, Budapest, and the World's Missionary Convention, Jerusalem, will talk on advancement in the Y.W.C.A. industrial work.

The executive reported two new members for the advisory board, Dr. W. D. Scott and Mr. H. Morrow.

Department reports all showed a most encouraging month with many new members in the residence, gymnasium and swimming classes and clubs. The rally, girls', leaders', and board conferences had successfully started the fall and winter activities.

Miss Muse Cox, secretary of the leaders' and girls' conference, gave a very interesting report of the program, and during the tea hour a question box proved an and helpful discussion.

The fourth annual conference of the Y.W.C.A. leaders and girls was held at Stoney Lake, October 6 and 7. Eighteen members representing the various departments attended and together, taking as the theme "Farther, farther, farther, farther sail," discussed the Y.W.C.A. program for the coming year.

On the arrival at camp a business session was held, when camp duties were assigned and the general program outlined. After supper a meeting around the fireplace was held, and with conference theme and the following outline as a guide, the discussion was very helpful:

Under "Early Association Sailors," a review of the Y.W.C.A. history was told.

"Our Ship—the Y.W.C.A." brought out our friendships, new passengers and work and pleasures as "Y" members.

"Our Course" served as a beginning for the discussion of this year's program, which includes gymnasium and swimming classes, clubs for all-round programs, educational classes, in handicraft, literature, music, travel and home nursing, and interesting Bible study, also a varied program which aims to touch every interest of every girl.

"Our Port" outlined the Y.W.C.A. purpose.

An interesting dialogue by Miss Brownscombe, Gertrude Gimblett and Viola Harvey brought out the true ideals of the Y.W.C.A. membership. Viola Harvey told the girls in attendance in an interesting way of the Canadian Y.W.C.A. conference, held at Camperdown this summer.

Stunts, a marshmallow roast and sing-song brought the evening to a close.

Flag raising, setting-up exercises, and camp inspection opened the second day's program. Morning devotional period was held by the lake shore, and followed the theme under the headings "My Ship," "My Course," "My Guide." A discussion of the religious and foreign work program of the Y.W.C.A. followed and the morning service closed with a song service.

A sail across the lake in the afternoon followed by tea brought the conference to a close. New friendships were formed, Y.W.C.A. ideas strengthened, and a happy camp week enjoyed.

Grand Jury Returns No Bill

Manslaughter Charge Arose Out of Death of Graeme McMillan.

WITNESSES HEARD.

Grand Jury Asked To Hasten With Work in Order to Submit Early Report.

Wesley Devall, held on a charge of manslaughter, was liberated by the grand jury at the fall sessions of the Supreme Court of the County of Peterborough yesterday afternoon, when "A No Bill" was returned by that body after hearing Crown witnesses for almost three hours. At 2.40, the Honorable Mr. Justice Rose had completed his charge to the grand jury and they were marshalled by Sergeant John Deannard and Constable Gordon Puffer to the grand jury room. There, along with Crown Prosecutor Irwin Hilliard, K.C., of Morrisburg, they interrogated five Crown witnesses. When Mr. Hilliard retired, they considered the evidence submitted to them for almost half an hour, and then returned to their seats in the court room, with their verdict of "No Bill."

V. J. McElderry, K.C., who for the first time was wearing his silk gown which denotes the honor bestowed upon him this summer, was the first man to shake hands with Mr. Devall. Mr. McElderry was the counsel for the defence, and when he entered the court yesterday, he was quite hopeful of the result of the grand jury's deliberations. He immediately moved that the charge against Mr. Devall be dismissed.

The grand jury was then asked by His Lordship to hasten with the remainder of its work, so that it might submit a report before the sessions were over.

TWO WIN HAM.

William Hutchinson and E. J. Cullen Tie For S. E. Mahood's Prize.

The guessing on the weight of the big ham in S. E. Mahood's window last Friday and Saturday resulted in a tie. R. M. Carter weighed the ham at 10 o'clock Saturday evening, and it was found to tip the scales at 39 lbs., 1 oz. Two estimates of 39 lbs. had been made, one by William Hutchison, of South Monaghan, and the other by E. J. Cullen, 306 Louis street. By the consent of the two winners, the 15lb. ham was equally divided between them, giving both homes a most acceptable roast of prime pork at no expense.

Eggs That Are Eggs Laid By Local Ducks

Out on the farm of Frank Bissonnett, River Road, the ducks do not consider it a duty to lay eggs. They esteem it a privilege! No doubt about it, the "Bigger and Better" slogan is in effect seven days of the week

Mr. Bissonnett appeared in The Examiner office this morning with two examples of the duck fruit de luxe. One weighed six ounces, was seven inches in circumference, nine and three-eighths inches round measured lengthwise and three and a half inches in length. The other egg, also weighing six ounces, was of the same dimensions save that it was only nine and a quarter inches round measured lengthwise.

The university will also be the recipient of a complete set of Cathleen Shackleton's paintings of the Blackfeet Indians. The collection, which consists of 18 pictures, was donated by E. R. Peacock, a trustee of the college. Miss Shackleton is a sister of the late Sir Ernest Shackleton, the noted explorer.

ENGINEER DIES IN TRAIN CRASH

Several Passengers Injured in Wreck Near Niagara Falls.

FREIGHT CAR IN WAY.

NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 10. — (Canadian Press).—John McGregor, an engineer, was killed and several passengers injured to-day in a collision between a Wabash passenger train and a freight car near Stevensville, eighteen miles from here. The injured were taken to Buffalo. The freight train was on the siding but it is understood the rear end did not clear the main line and the passenger train ploughed through. The passenger train was from Detroit to Buffalo and most of the passengers were in the berths at the time of the accident. Scenes of indescribable confusion followed in the darkness.

Investigation Planned.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., October 10. — (Canadian Press). — Superintendent Matthews, of the C.N.R., said the Canadian National coal train of 79 cars was taking the siding at Robbins and sixty cars filled the siding to its entire length, leaving other cars on the main line. The trainmen had signals out, but the Wabash train, running slowly, struck them. An investigation will be held by Wabash officials.

GEORGE STREET MEN HEAR TALK

J. F. H. Wallace Gives Interesting Address On Irish Wit and Humor.

MUCH APPRECIATED.

The October meeting of the George Street Men's Organization was held on Monday evening at 6.45 o'clock in the assembly hall of the Sunday School. It took the form of a luncheon, which was provided by the ladies under the supervision of Sam. Oke. The men greatly assisted in waiting on the tables by each table in turn, at the command of Colonel Miller, rising and going to the kitchenette for their plates.

Between courses, the usual sing-song was held. The president, Stan. Thompson, with Arnold Lillow, rendered a very delightful duet, which was greatly appreciated by all present. J. E. Smith, the vice-president of the organization, humorously introduced J. F. H. Wallace, the speaker of the evening, who gave a talk on "Irish Wit and Humor." Mr. Wallace's pleasant, sincere and polished manner gained the attention of his audience, before he had even introduced his talk. He pointed out how witty the Irish people as a whole are, and then by illustrations, consisting of many humorous and witty stories and puns, showed without a doubt, that the Irish are the most witty people in the world.

He read some very humorous Irish poems, and before he had finished the Irish wits in the audience were thinking of other humorous stories which they thought he might add to his list.

Charles Saunders and Thomas Mark, who tendered a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker, suggested some of these and J. E. Smith, who now occupied the chair, was guilty of the same offence.

The meeting closed with a word of prayer, led by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Todd.

Asphodel Man Is Blamed

Forgets Oath and Expresses Opinion On Case At Norwood Fair.

FIRST ON RECORD.

Mr. Justice Rose Continues Hearing of Case Without Aid of Jury.

Never before in the memory of the present court officials has a petit jury been discharged by the trial judge under such unfavorable circumstances as took place at the Sessions of the Supreme Court of the County of Peterborough this morning before the Honorable Mr. Justice Rose.

Before His Lorship ascended the bench at the opening of court he had been informed by one of the counsel in the Rattan-O'Conor-Fenton civil case that one of the members of the jury had been heard to express views on the case at Norwood fair last night. His Lordship then reminded the juryman of the oath they had taken and the charge he had given them last night at adjournment to discuss the case with no person. He asked them if they had anything to say and all sat in silence. He then suggested that they might be closeted with him in one of the anti chambers and tell if the information he had was true. Again there was a long drawn out silence and at last one juryman arose and suggested to the Bench that each be questioned in private. This suggestion His Lordship would not countenance.

Percy Beavis, a farmer in the township of Asphodel, who was sitting in the rear row of seats, stood up and said he had been at the Norwood fair last night.

"Did you take part in any discussion, Mr. Justice Rose asked.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Did you give an opinion and express yourself?

"Yes," again was the reply.

"I must, then, use my perogative and discharge this jury and continue the case without one." His Lordship ruled.

The jury then filed out of their sheets and went down to the County treasurer's office to collect their fees.

Evidence Given

The plaintiff had practically closed his case at the noon time adjournment to-day and an effort will be made this afternoon to hear all the defence evidence. H. Wilkins, land surveyor and civil engineer, was the first witness called. He gave a great deal of evidence as to the measurements around the scene of the accident, and the distances from the corner. He was subjected to a very stiff cross-examination by W. F. Huycke, counsel for the defendants.

Mrs. H. Rattan, the plaintiff, who is seeking $4,000 from Nigel O'Conor-Fenton and his mother, was then put in the witness box. Mrs. Rattan gave her age as 71 years. On the night of the accident, she said, she was returning from Mr. Campbell's home and nearing the corner of Victoria and Welling streets she was struck by a car. Witness was unable to say how the accident happened, but maintained that she was walking on the grass alongside the roadway.

Grand Jury Report

The grand jury empanelled at the Fall Sessions of the Supreme Court of the County of Peterborough reported back to the trial judge, the Honorable Mr. Justice Rose, this morning. Two recommendations were made; one for better bathing facilities in the jail, and the other that the court room be redecorated. The one concerning the jail had been made by a former grand jury at the sessions of the County Court in June. The jury reported visiting the House of Refuge, where they found everything in first-class condition and all the inmates happy. The superintendent and his wife were found to be away on their holidays, and the jurors highly commended the way everything was being kept and the satisfied appearance of the inmates. At the Shelter they found the nine children happy and well looked after, with those of school age attending public school. Conditions in the jail were found to be very satisfactory except for the inadequate bathing facilities.

A TOBACCO PUMP

Local Council Of Women

Appeal to the Citizens of Peterborough. Desire to Raise $1,000.00 as Share of National Foundation Fund.

The record of the National Council of Women of Canada is one of progressive achievement in all that makes for better living and a better and happier Canada.

In the short thirty five years of its life it can boast the establishment of the Victorian Order of Nurses, while revised Federal divorce laws, The Mothers' Allowance Act and many others stand to its credit in the field of constructive legislation.

Throughout its full and useful career this public-spirited organization has been entirely self-supporting. It has worked for the good of others and for Canada as a whole, at the expense of its own membership.

Its imposing record in federal, provincial and local community fields has been accomplished without cost to the numberless, beneficiaries of its far-sighted efforts.

This work has grown to such proportions as to be beyond the power of an organization of this type, to finance single handed. So, it is, that a Foundation Fund is sought to put council activities on a sound financial basis to enable the National Council of Women of Canada to carry on, and expand their efforts.

And Canadians, serious-minded and public-spirited, will arise to this need and meet it, realizing how vital to Canada's welfare is the work of the National Council and how imperative it is that this work should not be curtailed.

Four Witnesses Heard In Rattan Action

NORWOOD WOMAN ASKS $4,000 FOR INJURIES RECEIVED IN CAR ACCIDENT LAST OCTOBER

Action Brought Against Nigel O'Connor-Fenton and His Mother.

SUFFERED SEVERE INJURIES.

Plaintitff Forced To Spend Several Weeks in Nicholls' Hospital.

Four witnesses gave evidence yesterday afternoon at the fall sessions of the Supreme Court of the County of Peterborough before the Honorable Mr. Justice Rose, in support of Mrs. H. Rattan, the plaintiff in the civil action for $4,000 brought against Nigel O'Conor Fenton and his mother, Mrs. Annie Sophia O'Conor-Fenton of Norwood. The action arises out of an accident in the village of Norwood on the night of October 29, 1927, when it is alleged by the plaintiff that she was knocked down by a car driven by Nigel O'Conor-Fenton and owned by his mother. F. D. Kerr, K.C., and V. J. McElderry, K.C., are acting for the plaintiff, and W. F. Huycke and G. O'Shea of Norwood are representing the defendants.

The accident occurred near the intersection of Victoria and Wellington streets in that village about 9.00 p.m. Mrs. Rattan was in the hospital for several weeks suffering from a dislocated knee-cap and two broken ribs and to-day she has to use a crutch in walking.

Hugh Alexander McIntyre, resident engineer of the town of Campbellford, was the first witness called by Mr. Kerr. He submitted a plan showing the intersection of the two streets and where the accident took place. On the plan was also marked a footpath alongside the roadway on Wellington street. It is alleged that Mrs. Rattan was on the path when knocked down by the car. In cross-examination by Mr. Huycke, the witness said that the plan had been drawn a year after the accident, and the points marked on it were shown him by people interested in the case.

Reginald Farthing of Peterborough submitted photos which he had recently taken, showing the intersections and the footpath and other points of interest near where the accident was alleged to have occurred.

Was Near Scene of Accident

Miss Myrtle Viola Brown was the first witness called who was near the scene of the accident that night. Mrs. Brown had been returning from the station when she said a car went byy her at a fast rate of speed. Just as the car turned the corner of Wellington and Victoria street, she said she heard the screaching of brakes and then a moan as if someone had been struck and hurt. Witness did not go to the scene of the accident, but estimated that it took place about sixty-six feet from the intersection.

Frederick Gardner, a farmer residing in the township of Asphodel and a brother of Mrs. Rattan, viewed the scene of the accident the following morning, along with William Murphy. He said he could see the skid marks of the car where it had swerved around the corner and ruts in the grass where the tires had cut in.

Knee-Cap Dislocated

Dr. Sutton was the last witness called during the afternoon. He visited Mrs. Rattan the night of the accident and found that the skin was bruised on the left side of her face, she was complaining of soreness in the right shoulder and chest; her second and third ribs on her right side were broken, and right knee-cap was dislocated. She was suffering a great deal of pain according to the witness and he treated her from October 29 until November 2, when she was removed to Nicholls Hospital in Peterborough. There she remained until December 14, and after that had to spend four months in bed. In March he discovered two ruptures, but he would not say that they were the result of the accident.

EX-MINE LAYER IS SEIZED AS RUM-RUNNER

HELSINGFORD, Finland, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press via Reuters).—A large sized Esthonian ship, the Martha, an ex-mine layer, which is alleged to have been engaged in rum-running, was daringly seized yesterday by a Finnish sheriff and two constables who boarded the vessel in darkness, surprised and handcuffed the alleged smugglers on the deck, and then overcame the rest of the crew before the latter were able to use their hand grenades. A large quantity of liquor was found aboard the vessel.

FALLIS LINE ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Mr. Carpenter Special Preacher at United Church.

CHURCH FILLED.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 10.—The anniversary services of the Fallis Line United Church were held on Sunday, October 7, afternoon and evening, the seating capacity of the church being fully occupied at both services.

Fall flowers and foliage beautified the interior of the sacred building, and the fine weather was also a factor contributing to the success of the anniversary occasion.

The choir from the Millbrook church furnished the music, the selections at the afternoon service including an anthem: "For a Closer Walk With God" and a solo, "Christ Will Hold Me Fast", by Mr. E. Hansam, of Port Hope. At night, in addition to the anthem, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, of Toronto, sang, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say", and the male quartette, Messrs. H. W. Johnston, W. H. Coombe, M. McDowell, and V. C. Lambert, contributed a selection, "Beautiful River of Life."

Rev. Mr. Carpenter, who recently exchanged from the British Columbia Conference to the Bay of Quinte in Ontario, was the preacher for the day, exchanging with the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, who took the work on the Cavan circuit.

The story for the boys and girls of the congregation in the afternoon, was "Saint Giles, the Patron Saint of Edinburgh", and the text for the sermon was chosen from Luke 5:4, "He said unto Simon, Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught", and the latter part of the tenth verse, "Fear not; from henceforth thou shalt catch men."

Developing his theme, the speaker condemned "hugging the shoreline too closely; vessels have gone this on our Pacific coast, and have gone to pieces on the rocks; spiritually, disaster will follow anyone choosing this course, because the best opportunities of life will neither be seen nor the opened door entered, if your Christian experience and vision are limited to the shallows along the shore."

"'Safety First' may be a good motto for the engineers of trains and the drivers of motor cars, but it is poor business for a Christian; get out into the centre of God's will for there, and there only, is concentrated the fulness of power and blessing of God for His children. It is like the centre of a swiftly-flowing stream; you will catch little of the flow and momentum if you hug the shore; but if you want the full power of the current back of you, you must get out into mid-stream. No one ever knows the wealth of life that comes in God's service until he has forever cut loose from the shore, and let the full omnipotence of God drive him. Launch out, and I will make you fishers of men."

"The church, and the nation, have made great strides in the past twenty-five years, but God has still some rays of light to break from His divine Word; the end of progress is not yet, and He has still many things to say to His people. This life is not big enough to portray the high possibilities of our natures, hence we press onward here, with a firm belief in a richer, wider, more satisfying life beyond."

Commenting on the fact of progress everywhere, and insisting that the church must not remain static, because her possibilities are beyond question, and her opportunities without limit, 'and the influence of a single church in the community is beyond the power of computation, the speaker concluded his discourse with an inspiring eulogy of Christ as the Life, the Unconquerable Man, and the Inexhaustible Saviour.

The special thankoffering was taken up at both services, the ushers being Messrs. W. Fallis and N. Belch; the amount asked for was on hundred dollars.

Next Sunday, October 14, the anniversary services will be at the Zion appointment, Rev. J. F. Mears, of Port Hope, being the preacher at 2.30 and at 7 o'clock.

Belgrade Hears Zogu Has Become Catholic; Rumor Says Albanian To Marry Christian

VIENNA, October 10 (Associated Press). — A despatch to the newspaper Tageblat from Belgrade yesterday said a rumor had reached the Yugoslav capital to the effect that King Zogu of Albania had secretly embraced the Roman Catholic religion, in anticipation of his possible marriage to a Christian princess.

The despatch added that the conversion ceremony was performed by the Papal Nuncio to Albania.

Rumors that King Zogu would seek an alliance with the Italian royal house through marriage with Princess Giovanna, 21-year-old daughter of King Victor Emmanuel, have been current for some time. They have been circulated coincidentally with reports that the Princess might become the bride of King Boris of Bulgaria.

King Zogu is a Mohammedan. The discussion of a possible change in his religion was given as the cause of a riot between Christians and Mohammedans in Albania recently. The northern part of Albania in general is Roman Catholic and the southern section is predominantly Greek Orthodox. In between these sections is a broad belt of Mohammedanism.

LARGE CONGREGATIONS.

(Examiner Correspondence)

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 10.—Rev. Mr. Brethen of Trenton conducted anniversary services at 2.30 and 7.30 in Trent River United Church. In the afternoon the minister took for his text Matt. 5:20. The male quartette from Norwood was present and sang two numbers, "Is He Yours?" and "I've Heard Of A Land" which was much enjoyed by the large congregation present.

There was a large congregation at the evening service. The choir sang two appropriate numbers.

The text for the evening was taken from Mark 1:5, "Stretch forth thine hand". In the multitudes who followed Jesus there were always the Pharisees asking questons, trying to make less effective His work among the people. They asked: "How could He do these things on the Sabbath Day and eat with publicans and sinners. What is lawful to do? Good or evil?" He gave them a practical answer. The man's arm was healed. Jesus was concerned very little in theories and doctrines, He knew God and took Him for granted. When we begin to live the Christ life we will begin to know the way. Not to have some fine spun creed. The more creeds and doctrines we have about God the less we know Him. The Christ like life has a wonderful appeal. When men see others living that life they are won by the very beauty of that life. The Scripture is the experience of humanity through the ages. "We can never know the Christ like life until we venture or try it out. The only way to understand all about Christ is to actually stretch forth our hand—live it out in our own life. "If we are really sincere in our desire to have our religious perplexities cleared up we are to stretch forth our hands. Our young people's societies and organizations help us and make it easier for us to begin the new life. Both young and old the one thing we must do to deepen spiritual life is to plunge out with hearts that are daring. Trust God as the birds of the air. Some people will never get anywhere because they won't dare.

"Bring yourselves in touch with the Great Physician. We learn to walk by trying, learn to swim, not by reading books but by trusting ourselves. The same thing applies to the Christ like life. Joy is only experienced when we plunge out into it."

The minister brought his address to a close quoting: "There are depths of love I cannot know till I cross the narrow sea. There are heights of joy I may not reach till I rest in peace with Thee."

WAR MEMORIAL FOR LAKEFIELD

Movement Started To Erect Fitting Memorial To War Heroes.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 10. — A movement has been started to erect a suitable war memorial in the village, and after ten years' peace, surely it is time to put some outward visible sign of our perpetual remembrance of the sacrifice of Lakefield's sons. "They gave their to-day for our to-morrow," and as we enjoy an era of greater prosperity than ever in our history, surely it is time to look backward to the days, only ten years distant, when we as a community stood in the village square and publicly thanked God for delivering us from a cruel and relentless foe. Have we forgotten those who made the sacrifice? After waiting for ten years for a move to be made in this regard, the veterans themselves have taken

HARVEST FESTIVAL HELD AT DUNSFORD

Rev. Mr. Patterson, of Oshawa, Preaches—Church Prettily Decorated.

(Examiner Correspondence)

DUNSFORD, Oct. 10—Harvest Festival services were held in the Anglican Church here on Sunday morning and evening and a special children's service was conducted in the afternoon. The church chancel and windows were beautifully decorated for the occasion with fruit, flowers, house plants, vines and cedars. Rev. Mr. Patterson, of Oshawa, conducted the morning service and spoke from Psalm 36, verses 6 and 7. The rich blessing of God, the speaker stated, had rested upon the people of Ontario and of Canada and had occasioned much reason for gratitude.

The afternoon service was conducted by Rev. W. G. Dryer of Bobcaygeon, who drew many helpful lessons for the children from the story of the life of David. Mr. Dryer also preached in the evening from 1 Thess. 5 and 18. Special music was furnished by the local choir. In the morning Stanley Doyle sang, "Face to Face." The anthem was "What Shall I Render Unto the Lord." In the evening Roy Robertson sang "Abide With Us" and the choir sang, "Son of My Soul."

THREE CHILDREN STRUCK BY CARS

One Hamilton Boy Killed Instantly, Others May Die.

ONE DRIVER ARRESTED.

HAMILTON, Oct. 10.—Motor vehicles claimed one young life here yesterday afternoon, and are believed to have injured fatally two other young persons.

Leslie Irving, aged 15, who was a messenger boy in the employ of the Canadian National Telegraphs, was killed at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon on Paradise Road, between King and Main streets, when a Highway King bus, plying between Hamilton and Dundas, is said to have struck him.

The only witness to the accident, so police were informed, was Lorne Surerus, 555 King Street, Dundas, driver of the bus, which carried no passenger. Surerus said the boy was riding a bicycle and hanging with one hand to the rear of a motor truck. The boy Surerus said, suddenly let go of the truck and crashed into the bus. Young Irving was killed almost instantly.

Fred Dixon, aged 9, of 42 Kenilworth avenue north, is in the General Hospital suffering from a fractured skull, and with little chance of recovery, it is said, as a result of being struck by an automobile at the intersection of McNaulty Boulevard and Benson avenue. The car was driven by Bolton Falby of Beamsville, who was arrested on a charge of criminal negligence, and later was admitted to bail in the sum of $1,000.

Falby is alleged to have driven on the wrong side of the road to pass another vehicle, and in so doing to have struck young Dixon. The boy's condition was reported to be critical last night.

Irene Yeomans, 4-year-old daughter of Joseph and Mrs. Yeomans, 3 Henry street, is in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from a fractured skull. She was struck, her father said, by a man who gave his name as R. McBride, Kenilworth avenue north. The accident, police state, was not reported to them by the driver.

The child, whose condition is said to be critical, was crossing Main street, near her home, when she was knocked down by McBride's automobile. He took her home and her condition was not believed to be serious until yesterday afternoon, when it was discovered her skull was fractured and she was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD.

The following hints are prescribed by the American Motorists' Association for motorists who desire to keep from growing old. These paradoxical hints will perhaps catch the attention of imprudent drivers:

Always drive fast out of alleys.

Always race with locomotives to crossings. Engineers like it; it breaks the monotony of their jobs.

Always pass the car ahead on curves or hills.

Demand half the road—the middle half. Insist on your rights.

Always speed; it shows people you are a man of pep even though an amateur driver.

Never stop, look or listen at a railroad crossing. It consumes time.

Always lock your brakes when skidding. It makes the job more artistic.

Never look around when you back up. There is never anything behind you.

Drive confidently, just as though there were not twenty-three million other cars in service.

THE KIWANIS FAIR.

It is not surprising to learn that the advance sale of tickets for the Kiwanis Produced-in-Canada Fair is brisk.

The splendid exhibition held under the same auspices last year and the knowledge that the event has been materially enlarged in every respect for next week's fair, combine to create a demand for tickets, and there is every reason to expect a record-breaking attendance.

The exhibits to be made by manufacturers and merchants are likely to surpass any previous showing in this respect, while the other departments of the Kiwanis Fair, the musical competitions, the cat show, the midway and the dozen other entertainment features, are sure to please and interest the thousands of patrons expected during the week.

The expansion of the fair itself and the manner in which the event is supported by the whole community are gratifying in view of the social service work done here by the Kiwanis Club, whose record of achievement indicates that the organization is always ready to serve.

ONLY ONE BABE RUTH.

Although his own teammate, Lou Gehrig, has been pressing him close, there is only one Babe Ruth after all.

His feat yesterday in driving three home runs over the right field pavilion in St. Louis was the second performance of that nature the famous Yankee slugger has contributed to World's Series history.

Ruth, more than that, has made more home runs in World's Series games than any other player, and his batting average for the four games just completed was higher than any other World's Series regular has compiled.

A hundred years from now people, perchance, will smile at the thought that because a man could drive a ball further than his rivals he received a salary as large as that of the President of the United States, but the continent over at the present time baseball reigns supreme, and the player who stands out as Ruth does over the common herd earns his huge salary because of the money he brings in at the box-office.

The Babe cannot keep on hitting them forever, but just now in the parlance of the sporting page he's "sitting on top of the world."

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

The Peterborough Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a resolution before the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce calling for a Province-wide system of daylight saving.

It is not very probable that the Provincial Government would take any action on the request were the local resolution to be favored by the Ontario association.

While the adoption of daylight saving as a provincial measure would do away with the confusion caused by the present system under which some sections have summer time and others follow standard time, it must be remembered that daylight saving is unpopular not only in almost every rural community but in some towns and cities as well, and the provincial administration is not at all likely to force something upon the people of the Province that is opposed by many of them.

The same thing applies, of course, to the Federal administration and to the United States Government.

Were it not for the antagonism of the farmers of both countries to daylight saving the whole continent would in all probability have adopted the plan long ago, following the example of European countries.

But there are a lot of votes in the rural sections of Canada and the United States, and the politicians of both countries take the line of least resistance.

"TAY PAY" O'CONNOR.

Age does not wither nor custom stale Thomas Power ("Tay Pay") O'Connor. Sixty-one years a journalist, forty-eight years a member of the British House of Commons; founder of half a dozen newspapers and periodicals; maker and loser of a fortune; author, orator and politician, this grand old Celt, who reached his eightieth birthday yesterday, has crowded more of interest and adventure into his life than would be necessary for fifty novels. Nearly fifty years ago Galway, "the City of the Tribes," sent him to Westminster as a Parnellite. He was a penniless newspaperman, eking out an existence in the then precarious world of journalism, and one of his devices to keep himself in bread was to write a brilliant life of Disraeli on brown wrapping paper, which was all he could afford.

Charles A. Dana used to say that "not even journalism can keep a good man down;" and it didn't imprison O'Connor. He started newspapers in Fleet street and riots in the House of Commons; called Chamberlain "Judas," precipitating a battle; discovered Bernard Shaw; became a chief lieutenant for Parnell, and took a mortgage on a constituency in Liverpool. In the old passionate Home Rule days, days when names like Gladstone and Bright and Morley and Parnell moved men to either prayers or curses, O'Connor was a figure in St. Stephens. He had not Parnell's cold passion, nor Healy's diabolical invective, nor Dillon's poetry of patriotism; but there was a rollicking good humor in his eloquence, mingled sometimes with pathos, that both moved and persuaded the House.

He rarely or never made enemies. Addison once said he always voted with the Tories but invariably dined with the Radicals. It was so with O'Connor. Carson and Saunderson and Craig and the rest of the fierce Ulstermen were his foes in the Commons chamber, but in the smoking rooms they were his companions and brother Irishmen. And so with the Saxons. T. P. O'Connor was always too broad-gauged and too well read in history to believe that any one race in the world has a monopoly of either good or evil, and he could always see the Englishman's point of view. He could see it so clearly and so reasonably, that some of his compatriots sometimes thought that he fraternized too much with the enemy; he was often suspect in Dublin.

But to-day, in Ireland and in England, all over the British Empire, in the United States and Europe (he has a street named after him in Athens) everybody loves "Tay Pay." The broth-of-a-boy who came over from Athlone in far-off days to declaim against England has lived to become the "Father" of England's House of Commons; to be the chief censor of England's plays; to be one of His Majesty's Privy Councillors; to be felicitated by King George on his eightieth birthday.

And T. P. O'Connor proves the truth that age is compatible with youth. In his eightieth year he can write of love and romance with a fresh wholesomeness and an enchantment that his younger contemporaries envy; he mixes recollections of the far past with a buoyant optimism about the present and future; turns out his daily column or two for the newspapers; edits a periodical of his own; censors plays; turns up at banquets to make brilliant after-dinner speeches; and has just published his "Memories." Long live "Tay Pay!"—Ottawa Journal.

A FARM SURVEY.

No more valuable and practical work could have been attempted by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce than its proposed study of how business can co-operate with agriculture to raise the level of prosperity and enhance the degree of unity in the country. Under the leadership of W. M. Birks, its president, the association is planning a national survey of agriculture, its problems, its needs and its opportunities in this country. The first practical step will be a conference of the national councillors of the association with the deputy ministers of agriculture of each of the Provinces, to be held in Toronto at the time of the Royal Winter Fair in November. At this conference, the business men on the board of the association will attempt to solve the enigma of the discord that apparently seems to exist between trade business and agriculture in Canada.

The association might go further and invite one of the national farm leaders to sit on its executive as a national councillor.

The ugly spectre of class antagonism too often raises its head in Canada and attempts to separate agriculture from industry and commerce. Understanding between these groups has not been quickened by frequent ill-tempered remarks passed at agricultural meetings or conventions of certain industrial organizations.

Recently the Dominion Mortgage and Investments Association representing Canada's large mortgage loaning institutions devoted their annual meeting to a serious study of farm problems in Western Canada. This gesture immediately commanded respect in Western Canada and won the appreciation of farm leaders. At the same time it gave the financial leaders present at the conference intimate contact with agriculture's needs, and it will enable them to frame the policies of their institutions to serve agriculture well.

One of the best reports on agricultural problems in the United States and ways to solve them was prepared by a committee of business men. These men, representing the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the National Industrial Conference Board, published their findings in book form, and it may be accepted as a text book of undoubted authority on the farm problems across the border.

Besides being an important half of our national life, agriculture is a great market for industry and trade. When business men study agriculture's needs they are studying one of their own problems. If the Canadian Chamber of Commerce approaches its task with an appreciation of the importance of agriculture as a source of prosperity for all, and with a desire to effect understanding between agriculture and industry, it can perform valuable work for all Canada as well as for the business groups it represents.—Financial Post.

RETURNS FROM WESTERN TOUR

Campbellford Lady Enjoys Visit To Her Daughter in Alberta.

FINE SCENERY.

Campbellford, October 10.—Mrs. J. H. Lisle, Oak street, has just returned from an extended tour of the West, where she visited her two daughters, Mrs. J. P. Innes, Acadia Valley, and Mrs. H. Clark of Edmonton, and many other relatives.

This is Mrs. Lisle's seventh trip through the golden granaries of the West and she viewed the prolific harvest now being garnered. The Alberta farmers show speed in the harvesting of their abundant crop, by modern farming methods, when with the use of combines, 1,600 bushels are cut and threshed simultaneously a day. The truck system of hauling, speeding along the roads at fifty miles an hour, quickly lands the grain at the elevators.

During her sojourn she motored through the Rockies, enjoying the splendors of the Windermere Highway, stopping en route at Calgary for the Wild West Stampede, then on to Banff, with its majestic mountains, green tree-clad valleys, sloping down to the blue waters of the Bow River, with the terminus on the triangle tour at Golden, B. C.

Gorgeous scenery marked the view in Sinclair Canyon, Yoko Park, and Kootenay Park, with precipitous waterfalls and the natural bridge, innumerable lakes of sapphire hue and rugged mountain contour. Snow falling in July was a real novelty to an Ontario resident at Takakan Falls.

On the homeward journey, Mrs. Lisle, accompanied by a party of four from Campbellford, also stopped at Brandon, and Toronto, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rosebush and Mrs. E. Small in the latter city. Mrs. Lisle's trip was one of benefit, education and real enjoyment.

WHY NOT PETERBOROUGH?

The Peterborough Examiner.

The Editor: Enclose find an article I cut out of The Billboard magazine that may be news to The Examiner.

Why can't Peterborough have something like this to take care of Peterborough and 50 miles around. There is not a park 100 miles from Peterborough. The nearest is Toronto.

When smaller cities than Peterborough can have it, what is wrong with Peterborough?

Yours truly,
A PETERBOROUGH CITIZEN.

The clipping reads:

MILLION-DOLLAR PARK FOR PUSCHLYNCH LAKE

New York, Sept. 8.—A million-dollar amusement park, to be known as Lando Park, Ltd., will be constructed on Puschlynch Lake, now a bathing beach, which serves Hamilton, Toronto, Galt and other towns in Ontario. The board of directors connected for the project was scheduled to meet in New York this week and unfold their plans. Lando Park has already been chartered by the Government of Ontario, and the property has been leased for a period of 99 years. Unusually good transportation facilities connect Puschlynch Lake with the network of cities and towns adjacent. At present crowds estimated at 25,000 are attending the lake on week-ends and holidays. Projectors expect to make the lake a summer resort with cottages and transform it into an up-to-date amusement resort. Fifty-seven acres will be given over to the plan, and cottages and 20 acres for the amusement park, which will contain the latest rides, shows and concessions. It is the intention of the promoters to make it both a summer and winter resort. Work will be rushed in order to have the park ready for opening on May 24, 1929. All amusement features in the park will be put in on a percentage basis.

Harry Lando, New York vaudeville producer, while on vacation in Canada this summer, discovered Puschlynch Lake, and went into ecstasies over the place. Immediately he became busy and assigned engineers and architects to thoroughly inspect the lake and ascertain if it would be suitable for a park. Their official reports inspired him to proceed and Lando has the following associated with him in the undertaking: Bert Gummers, owner of the Gummers Press; Jack Cartlydge, elastic hosiery manufacturer, and Dunbars, lawyers, all of whom reside in Guelph.

Lando Park, Ltd., has established offices in New York.

THREE ORDERS.

"He have," says Ruskin, "among mankind in general three orders of being—the lowest, sordid and selfish, which neither sees nor feels; the second, noble and sympathetic, but which neither sees nor feels without concluding; and the third and highest, which loses sight in resolution and feeling in work.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., October 10 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday was much quieter owing to the limited demand from foreign buyers and the volume of business was small.

The only business of importance in the local cash grain market was the sale of a few loads of Manitoba No. 6 what at 11¼c per buhel under the Winnipeg October option, c.i.f. Montreal. The car lot market was weaker and prices generally were lower. Manitoba No. 6 wheat sold at $1.05, feed wheat at $1.00, and Argentine corn at $1.06.

The local and foreign demand for spring wheat flour was fair and the values were steady. The tone of the market for winter wheat grades was firm owing to the limited supplies available.

A fairly active trade was done in all lines of millfeed and values were unchanged. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was good and prices were firm.

The undertone to the egg market continued firm owing to the good demand and the small receipts. The receipts were 2,462 cases.

The trade in imported beans was moderately active and prices were firmly maintained. Sales of small lots of choice hand-picked were made at $4.50 to $4.60 per bushel, ex-store, and car lots to arrive were quoted at $4.40 to $4.50 per bushel, ex-track.

Extreme dullness marked the butter trade and the undertone to the market was inclined to be easier. The receipts were 90 packages.

A firmer feeling prevailed in the cheese market under an improved demand from spot buyers. There was also some demand from English importers. The receipts were 10,039 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, October 10 (Canadian Press). — Lower prices for wheat prevailed yesterday owing a great deal to the general belief that the Government crop report yesterday afternoon would prove bearish.

The official estimates, instead of confirming recent predictions, of about 9,000,000 bushels reduction in the 1928 yield of domestic wheat, are practically identical with the totals indicated a month ago. On the other hand the Government report as to corn is construed as bullish, being 86,000,000 bushels under the average of recent private returns.

Closing quotations on wheat were weak, ¾ cent to ⅞ cent net lower, corn ⅝ cent to ¾ cent off, oats ⅛ cent to ¼ cent down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 25 cents.

Supplementing the effect of anticipating that the U.S. Government crop report concerning wheat would turn out to favor the selling side of the market were figures from the North-Western Grain Dealers' Association indicating 94,000,000 bushels. Larger Canadian wheat yield than the September official forecast. Under the circumstances, weakness of the Winnipeg market yesterday acted as more than a counterbalance here for comparative firmness of wheat quotations at Liverpool, and for word that the Liverpool trend was due more or less to buying orders from America.

Some buying support at times was given to the Chicago wheat market because of liberal domestic clearances of breadstuffs last week to other countries, the total being 4,728,000 bushels of wheat and flour, but price downturns at Winnipeg increased the selling pressure here as the day drew to an end. Meanwhile, export demand yesterday for wheat from North America was only of fair volume, although some domestic No. 2 hard winter wheat and some amber wheat was said to have been disposed of to Europe.

Weather favorable for the conditioning of the new corn crop tended to ease down the corn market, despite corn export business yesterday totalling 100,000 bushels or more.

Besides, arrivals of corn yesterday in Chicago were a little larger than of late and official figures to arrive were somewhat increased. Oats sympathized with the declines in other grain.

Provisions were responsive to a decided setback in hog values.

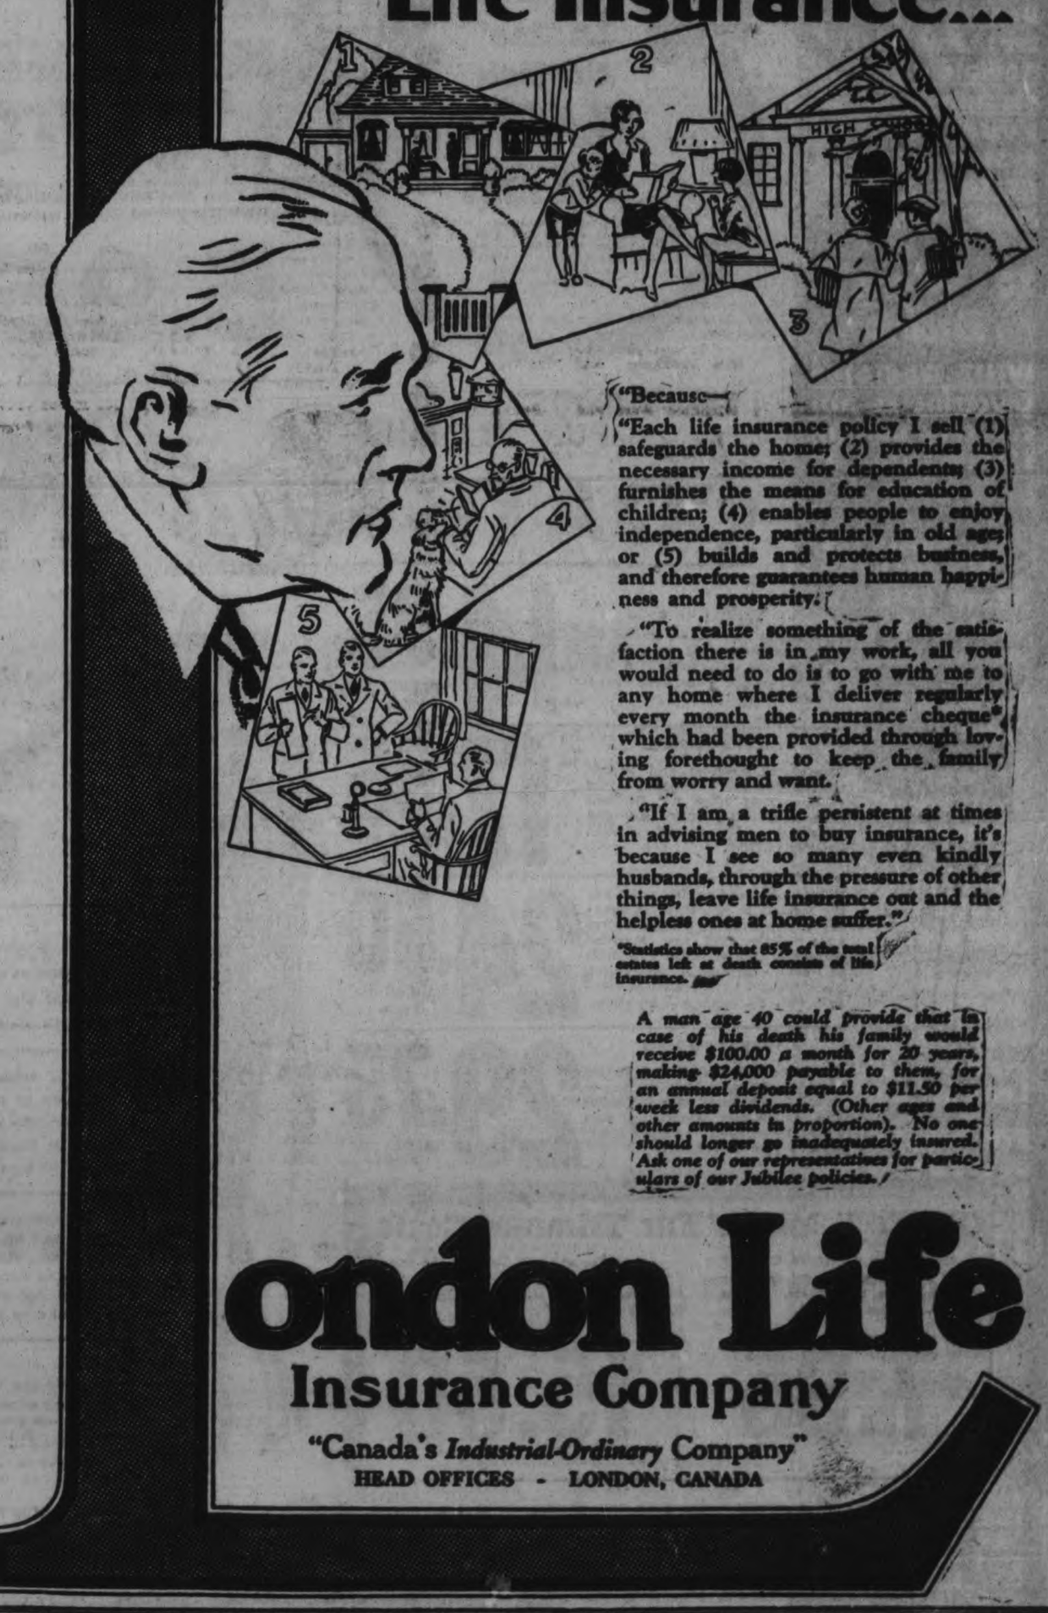
Why I Like Selling Life Insurance...



"Because—

"Each life insurance policy I sell (1) safeguards the home; (2) provides the necessary income for dependents; (3) furnishes the means for education of children; (4) enables people to enjoy independence, particularly in old age; or (5) builds and protects business, and therefore guarantees human happiness and prosperity.

"To realize something of the satisfaction there is in my work, all you would need to do is to go with me to any home where I deliver regularly every month the insurance cheque which had been provided through loving forethought to keep the family from worry and want.

"If I am a trifle persistent at times in advising men to buy insurance, it's because I see so many even kindly husbands, through the pressure of other things, leave life insurance out and the helpless ones at home suffer."

"Statistics show that 85% of the small estates left at death consists of life insurance."

A man age 40 could provide that in case of his death his family would receive $100.00 a month for 20 years, making $24,000 payable to them, for an annual deposit equal to $11.50 per week less dividends. (Other ages and other amounts in proportion). No one should longer go inadequately insured. Ask one of our representatives for particulars of our Jubilee policies.

Wedding Bells

HUBBEL--MORGAN.

(Examiner Correspondence).

NORWOOD, Oct. 9.—A very pretty wedding was held on Tuesday evening, October 2nd, at 7 o'clock, in Church Street Baptist Church, Toronto, when Elenor Emily, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Morgan, of Mount Forest, became the bride of Walter Laird, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hubbel of Norwood. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. B. Lawrence.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, and wore a becoming dress of rose beige and lace, with hat and shoes to match. The bride's bouquet was a pretty corsage of butterfly roses and lily of the valley. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Dorothy Phillips, who wore a dress of grey and blue georgette, with shoes and hat to match. Her bouquet was a corsage of blue cornflower and pink roses. The groom was attended by Mr. Ray Ackerman and Mr. Herbert Steele played the Wedding March.

After the ceremony the young ladies of the church provided a reception for the bride and groom and their immediate friends and relatives. The bride and groom left later for a short trip, the bride wearing a beige coat trimmed with seal. On their return they will reside in Norwood.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Mrs. Emmerson, Miss Mary Padfield and Mr. Edgar Padfield of Mount Forest, Miss Minnie Hubbel and Mr. George Hubbel of Norwood, and Charles Morgan of Winnipeg.

ABBOTT—AVERY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Friday, October 5, at 2.30 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Avery, 175 Park street, when their youngest daughter, Lillian May, was united in marriage to Mr. Wilbert George Abbott, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Abbott of Lakefield. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Wedding March played by her sister, Mrs. John King. Her gown was of coral crepe romaine, with stockings to match and wearing black satin shoes. She carried a bouquet of pink ophelia roses and maiden-hair fern.

Her only ornament was a string of pearls. Miss Birdie Abbott, sister of the bridegroom, acted as bridesmaid. She wore a dainty little gown of sky blue flat crepe, with beige trimmings, beige stockings and black satin shoes. She carried a bouquet of red ophelia roses and maiden-hair fern.

Mr. John King acted as best man.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a black leather purse; to the bridesmaid, a string of French pearl beads; to the pianist, a sterling silver brooch set with pearls, and to the best man, a fountain pen.

The ceremony was performed under an arch of Autumn leaves and sinnias, by Rev. D. Wren of Trinity Church, after which a sumptuous supper was served to about eighty relatives and friends.

After an enjoyable evening spent in music and dancing, the happy couple left by motor for Toronto, Hamilton, and Rochester. The bride's travelling costume was a blue crepe dress, beige coat, shoes and stockings, gloves, and little felt hat to match, and she wore a black fox fur. On their return they will reside in Lakefield. They were recipients of many beautiful gifts.

COLE—CURTIS.

Miss Eunice Mable Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Curtis and Mr. George Lewis Cole, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis Cole, of Leamington, Ont., were married at St. Matthew's Church, Toronto, on Saturday, October 6, at 7.30 p.m., the Rev. Canon Sawers officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Helen Curtis, while Mr. Stanley Curtis, brother of the bride, supported the groom. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Cole left on a motor trip and after November 1 they will be at home at Leamington, Ont.

ATTRACTIVE WINDOW.

Kingan Hardware Company Co-operates in Fire Prevention Week.

In keeping with the spirit of Fire Prevention Week, the Kingan Hardware Store, corner of George and Simcoe streets, has in its window a display that is attracting much attention though it is most simple in design.

With a background of fire-resisting roofing and building materials, the window contains two large fire extinguishers and a large toy fire truck, which, by virtue of its bright red color, catches the eye immediately. Then there are pictures of recent Peterborough fires, illustrating the possible results of carelessness regarding fire hazards.

Last Rose of Summer Has Friend This Year; At Home of Mrs. H. E. Dunford, Brock St.

The last Rose of Summer stands not alone in the front lawn of Mrs. H. E. Dunford, 167 Brock Street, for two beautiful flowers of the Madam Heriot variety are blooming with all the cheerfulness of summer while two more healthy-looking buds are developing rapidly.

Mrs. Dunford, who is a great lover of flowers, is quite proud of the roses, for when she planted the bush over a year ago, it was predicted that the winter would be fatally severe. But the roses bloomed until the snow fell and early this season there was a profusion of bloom. All indications point to a repetition of last year's achievement.

KILLED BY FALL.

Workman Drops Forty Feet From Niagara Falls Scaffolding.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., October 10 (Canadian Press). — Robert McRae was almost instantly killed when he fell forty feet from the scaffold he was working on at the plant of the American Cyanamid Company. James Bell was injured.

IN POLICE COURT

He had been driving a motor car for four years in Detroit, and according to his counsel, had never had an accident, but when Kenneth Williams appeared in Police Court this morning, he was fined $10.00 and costs, for failure to observe a stop sign before entering a through street. His offence was made more serious by the fact that he had taken a left turn, which, while within the law, had increased the traffic hazard considerably.

FINED FOR CRUELTY.

Blacksmith Said To Have Struck Horse With Iron Pincers.

Yesterday in Police Court, Mr. O'Dette, a local blacksmith, was prosecuted on a charge of cruelty to animals. It was alleged by the prosecution, which was instituted by Robert Smith, local inspector for the Humane Society, that Mr. O'Dette had struck, with a pair of iron pincers, about a foot in length, a horse, the property of Frank Peters, on September 28, when the horse was taken to his place for shoeing.

After hearing the evidence of Wilfrid Davis, Mr. Peters' driver, Kenneth Warman, who accompanied Davis to O'Dette's shop, Dr. Thomas Johnston, who told of the injuries the animal had sustained, and Robert Smith, the humane inspector, for the prosecution, and Mr. Peters and the accused himself for the defence, His Worship decided that the charge had been proven, and imposed a fine of $10.00 and costs, pointing out at the same time, that those who had charge of dumb animals, or who otherwise dealt with them, must treat them humanely and with proper kindness.

J. A. O'Brien prosecuted for the local Humane Society and Emmett Sheehy acted for Mr. O'Dette.

TRAPPED WORKERS' CRIES ARE WEAKER

Twenty Bodies Recovered From Collapsed Building—May Be Eighty More.

PRAGUE, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press)—Only twenty bodies had been extricated to-day from the mass of soft cement, twisted girders and broken masonry which marked the collapse yesterday of an eight storey building under construction here. Government officials estimated the dead would total from sixty to a hundred. Some of the four score workmen who were caught in the disaster were still alive to-day but appeals for help were growing fewer and weaker and it was feared none could be saved.

PROVINCES OWN POWERS.

Is Contention of Ontario in Water Rights Case To-day.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—Water powers in rivers remain vested in the provinces under the Canadian constitution. This was the main submission of Ontario when the water powers case resumed before the Supreme Court to-day. W. N. Tilley, K.C., for Ontario, claimed these rivers undoubtedly belonged to the provinces before the passing of the British North America Act, and there was no express enactment in the Act transferring the water powers to the Dominion. The Dominion might use provincial property for purposes of construction work and for operating a canal, but subject to that they have not the right to use any other provincial crown property, he claimed. The Dominion right should be limited to Provincial rights necessary for navigation only.

HONORARY PRESIDENT.

J. J. Duffus Is Elected To High Position in Board of Trade.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Oct. 10 (Canadian Press).—Honorary Presidents of the Associated Boards of Trade and Commerce of Ontario elected yesterday included J. G. Elliott of Kingston and J. J. Duffus of Peterborough. Cecil Bethune, of Ottawa, was elected President.

LASCELLES IS MERCIFUL.

BELFAST, October 10 (Canadian Press). — Viscount Lascelles has written to the Irish Free State Government asking that some way be found so that no punishment will be inflicted upon the men who were arrested at Loughre in connection with the inendiary fire at Portumna Castle. He said that both he and Princess Mary would regret if they were, even indirectly, the cause of suffering to anyone in Ireland.

TRAVELLER DIES.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—Albert Fogel, 23, of Montreal, died in hospital to-day of injuries received when the car in which he and another commercial traveller, Samuel Bacher, were riding, was side-swiped by a motor truck. Bacher escaped with slight injuries. The truck driver, Mackie, was arrested for reckless driving and remanded on bail of $3,000.

THE MARKETS

Nickel on the stock exchanges, Lord Melchett's visit to the Mond property, the completion of the new railway into the Flin Flon copper property in Northern Manitoba, and President Murdock's progress report on developments at the Horne mine of the Noranda company have in the past few days served to focus atetntion on the important developments that have been occurring in Canada's mining industry in the past year.

The Dominion's production of nickel and copper for 1928 should exceed by substantial margins the high records achieved during the war period. In nickel the total for the first six months of the year was more than 46,000,000 pounds, an increase of 33 per cent over the corresponding period of 1927. Total production for the year, with smelter operation still continuing active, should approximate 10,00,000,000 pounds, which would compare with 66,789,000 pounds in 1927 and a peak production of 92,500,000 pounds in 1918. In copper the total should exceed 200,000,000 pounds against a previous high of 140,000,000.

When it is borne in mind that, as a result of the cessation of armament demands and the accumulation of large stocks during the war period, production of nickel fell in 1922 to less than 18,000,000 pounds, the current high rate of consumption of the metal can be conceded to mark one of the most spectacular recoveries ever recorded in an important Canadian industry. Few industries have had more difficult problems to solve than had nickel. With the limitation of armaments, the principal market of the industry became critically restricted almost overnight. The successful efforts of the two principal factors in the industry, namely, the International and the Mond companies, to develop new markets by widening the commercial uses of the metal as an alloy constitute one of the most interesting industrial achievements of the recent past.

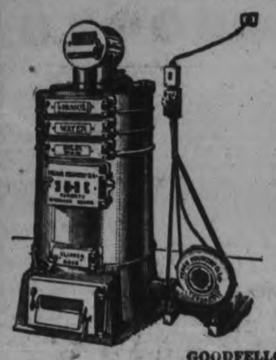
Along with the foregoing there are other considerations which go far to explain why in important quarters in Canada an optimistic attitude is being held towards the future of the nickel producers. For example, it is understood that in the recent past International has been producing at the rate of approximately one pound of copper for every two pounds of nickel. When the ore supply is presently drawn from the Frood mine probably not less than four pounds of copper will be produced to every two pounds of nickel. As the company's scale of operations as a producer of copper will to a considerable degree be limited by the extent to which a market for the nickel content can be developed, the indications of expanding demands for nickel have more important bearing on the company's future than might appear on the surface. The Sudbury district as a whole has in the past been producing only about two-thirds of a pound of copper for every one of nickel. When both the International and Mond companies are operating in the Frood ore body the district's output of copper should be not less than double its output of nickel. The conditions of a restricted market which exists in nickel do not exist in copper and it is already apparent that with the low costs of operation that favor large Canadian producers, Canadian production of the metal is going to reach strikingly high proportions in the near future.

With the prospective sharp increase in output of copper from the Sudbury field lying still a year or so ahead, Canadian production of the metal for the first half of the current year amounted to 93,000,000 pounds, or an increase of close to 30 per cent as compared with 1927. The previous high level of production for a full year was 140,000,000 pounds in 1927. This year's figures may considerbly exceed 200,000,000 pounds. The Province of Quebec, which hitherto has been a negligible factor in copper, accounted for 15 per cent of Canada's production in the first half of the current year as a result of the operations of Noranda's new smelter.

"Even Temperature With Low Priced Fuel"

Pease

Electric Coal Burner



Heating economy so great as to be almost beyond belief has been achieved by thousands through the use of the Pease Electric Coal Burner. One of the many convincing letters of testimony we have received follows:

"I had a blower outfit attached to a No. 5½ boiler last year. It will do everything claimed for it, gives even temperature with low priced fuel. My coal bill for 1926-7 was $244.00, and coal for 1927-8 is $96.00.

This blower system enables you to burn buckwheat coal at a saving of 50 per cent. It can be installed in your present heating plant. This winter enjoy the comforts of a well heated home at half the cost. Ask us to tender.

BROKEN

A Story of Revenged Love, by Ruby M. Ayres.

CHAPTER I.

Extensive travelling had taught Giles Chittenham how small a place the world really is, but even he was amazed when fate decreed that he and Julie Farrow—the one woman in the world in whom he was deeply and bitterly interested—should meet on the sunny deck of a small steamer plying between Lausanne and Montreux.

His first impression was that she was not in the very least as he had pictured her. She was so much less artificial than gossip and Rodney's last letter had led him to believe, so much younger and fresher, with hardly any make-up to spoil the undeniable attraction of her face.

There was a tinge of color on her lips perhaps, and a dust of powder over her cheeks and proud little nose, but none of the blatantly darkened lashes and enamelled skin to which the women of Chittenham's set had so wearily accustomed him.

And this was Julie Farrow—a woman whose love affairs were notorious although she was said to be only eight-and-twenty, a woman for whose worthless sake, only six months ago, a young fool had, in a moment of hysterical disillusionment, taken his life.

Chittenham put down his iced drink and shifted his position a little in order to get a better view of her.

She was very plainly dressed in a frock of some white washable material with short sleeves and a green girdle which matched a jade bracelet clasping one sun-tanned arm, and a small white hat pulled closely down over her eyes.

Except for the bracelet she was entirely without jewelry of any kind, without even a wedding ring.

Chittenham knew that it was no longer the fashion to exhibit the outward sign of one's bondage to a disinterested world; his own wife had discarded hers almost from the beginning, as hopelessly "n.c.," as she expressed it, and even Rodney had complained that Julie Farrow was not interested in diamonds.

"She won't let me give her anything. She says she hates diamonds. She won't take anything from me. I only wish to God she would!"

Chittenham had been sceptical at the time, but now with Julie's unadorned beauty before him, he realized that after all it had probably been the truth. In her own way this woman was certainly unique; there was nothing of the stereotyped adventuress about her, and possibly therein lay her chief attraction.

Rodney at any rate had adored her, adored her so madly that one night, convinced at last that she would have nothing to do with him, he had upset a skiff near the weir at Maidenhead and put an end to his life.

Rodney was a powerful swimmer, but a coroner's jury had brought in a verdict of accidental death, and only Chittenham knew the truth; only Chittenham ever saw a letter which the boy had posted to him in America an hour before his death, declaring his intention.

"She's done with me. She's forbidden me to go near her again. She says I weary her, and so I've done with life. They'll think it's an accident, but I want you to know the truth, old man, so that if ever you get the chance to pay her out for what she's done to me, you can take it. I'd like to think you were making her pay. I believe I could even manage to laugh in hell, or wherever I shall go, if I knew that you were making her suffer as she's made me suffer. You've always said that women are a rotten lot, but I didn't believe it. I wish I had, now, but it's too late for regrets."

An hysterical, boyish letter, but Rodney was like that. As a child he had always made himself ill with rage if he found it impossible to get the thing he desired. The unattainable was always Rodney's goal.

Chittenham destroyed the letter as soon as he had read it. Of what use was it to stir up muddy water when Rodney was gone?

But Chittenham had remembered, and the promptings of that letter had been vaguely at the back of his mind when, in reply to a frantic cable from his mother, he decided to come home and settle up Rodney's affairs.

There was another woman with Julie Farrow on the boat whom, in spite of her unusual appearance, Chittenham found himself reluctantly admiring.

She wore her hair in an ultra-Eton crop, and she had strong, handsome features, and rather a bored smile.

She was smoking a cigarette in a slim black holder, regardless of the interest she was exciting amongst her fellow passengers, and now and then answering Julie with a casual word or a shrug of her shoulders.

She gave one the impression of being thoroughly disinterested in life and in her surroundings, except once, when she fixed an absurd monocle in her eye and stared across at Chittenham.

Chittenham returned the gaze coolly. He was used to being stared at by women, and after a moment she looked away again with a slightly amused smile.

Chittenham wondered who she was. She was one of the modern type to which he strongly objected, and yet he was interested in her. She appeared to be so cool and self-reliant, such an admirable foil for the entirely feminine Julie.

Chittenham had been out of England for nearly two years, looking after interests in South America, and he had only returned on account of Rodney's death, and in order to wind up his affairs.

Rodney and he were half-brothers. Giles had been ten years old at the time of his mother's second marriage, and he had found Rodney a welcome playmate.

"Giles adores Rodney!" so their mother, who was a silly, if very affectionate little woman, boasted to everyone. "I really expected Giles to be jealous, you know. He is such a strong character! But as I say, he adores Rodney, and darling Rodney adores him. Nobody would ever dream that they are only half-brothers."

She was a woman who always talked in italics, and she had china-blue, rather expressionless eyes, like Rodney's which she always opened to their widest extent, as if she found life increasingly amazing.

Giles knew that he would be treated to a week of hysterics when he and his mother met.

Her cable to him had been almost as long as a letter, and must have cost a small fortune. He was cynically sure that she had underlined every other word she wrote, expecting it to be transmitted in the same fashion.

Giles was sorry for his mother, but in his heart he was amazed that she had ever managed to find two husbands, and both of them fine, manly men of whom any woman would have been proud.

But perhaps like many fine, manly men, they had imagined that the weak, clinging type of woman is easy to live with, and on discovering their mistake, retired into their respective graves like gentlemen, rather than allow the world to see their defeat.

Giles took after his father, a reserved, rather saturnine type of man whose affections were not easily touched, and who despised people who openly gave vent to emotion.

Rodney had been like his mother. He was exceedingly handsome in a blue-eyed, wavy-haired way, violent and precipitate in all his love affairs, which were many and varied, and with a passion for playing to life's gallery.

Giles could well believe that the picturesque side of his suicide had made a tremendous appeal to him; he had not been surprised to learn that it had been a warm, moonlight night, which, so the coroner's jury had agreed, made it remarkable that nobody had either seen

Rodney had upset a skiff near the weir at Maidenhead and put an end to his life.

Giles

Julie

the accident or heard cries of distress, as at the time there were many people on the river.

"Damned young fool!" had been Giles's first bitter comment, but the boy's tragic death had been a severe blow to him, and he had subconsciously determined that if ever he met Julie Farrow she would not be allowed to go unpunished.

He knew that she was a divorced woman; he knew that there were many unsavory stories told of her, although Rodney had always been her loyal champion and had declared that she was more sinned against than sinning.

"She was married to a pig of a man who drank and knocked her about. She couldn't go on living with him. She was quite right to get rid of him, and if she had to do it in the only way the law allows, who can blame her?"

So Rodney had written in one of his many letters to his brother. Rodney was a great letter writer. In this, also, he took after his mother; they both always had to pour out their woes, as well as their happiness, on paper. Giles had grown sick to death of the pages of rhapsodies alternating between hope and fear which Rodney had showered upon him; his replies had been curt and to the point.

"Don't make an ass of yourself. Leave the woman alone. What's become of the other man, and why doesn't she marry him as he helped to get her freedom?"

Rodney's reply came by return.

"If you saw her, you'd understand. She's so wonderful! Wait till you come home. All women are not as rotten as you think they are. You've probably been unlucky, but we don't all have the same experience."

Giles had certainly been unlucky, but Rodney had not known in what way. Rodney had not known of his brother's marriage at all, and neither had anybody else in England.

His wife was a girl named Sadie Barrow, a common little American with money, whom he had married because she had amused him, and because she had seemed to expect him to marry her.

That was a year ago, and they had lived more or less of a detached life since.

"I didn't marry you to be a white slave," so Sadie told him before their honeymoon was over. "I'm not English, thank God, and I'm keeping my freedom. You're a nigger-driver, Giles, that's what you are."

Her frankness had amused him at the time, but later it had grown to be an acute irritation. She did not want home-life, she wanted to be here, there and everywhere, and when Giles objected, she reminded him that she was independent of him and meant to do as she chose.

She refused to wear her wedding ring, and she laughed when he protested against the number of her men friends.

So after six months' bickering, Giles gave in and let her go her own way.

They met occasionally, and then always by Sadie's own request. She was in New York when the news came of Rodney's death, and Giles had cabled to her that he was going to England.

"Your funeral, not mine. Not coming."

Chittenham did not care; as a matter of fact her refusal to accompany him was a relief. He realized that his marriage had been a mistake, and he felt glad that the people at home knew nothing about it.

CHAPTER II.

Sadie had expressed herself as glad that Rodney's family in England knew nothing of their unfortunate marriage. She declared it was always so much easier to clear up a mess without a crowd; even at first she was not in the least offended when Giles told her that at any rate for the present he wished to keep his marriage a secret.

It was on his way across the Atlantic that a sudden distaste for the reason of his journey seized upon Giles.

Manlike, he loathed scenes, and he knew that his mother was storing up a great many for him.

He knew that he would be harrowed with exaggerated pictures of Rodney's death, that he would be forced to listen to many details of his last days upon earth until he would be driven to feel almost like suicide himself.

So he left the ship at Cherbourg, wandered up to Paris and ran into Harry Lombard, whom he had not seen for five years.

Lombard had a business in Paris, and although he had not met Rodney for some time, he apparently knew all the details of the tragedy and a great deal about Julie Farrow.

"Do you know the woman herself?" Giles asked, and Lombard nodded.

"Yes, but not well. I've met her once or twice."

"And is she as wonderful as they say?" Chittenham asked cynically.

Lombard hesitated.

"She's very attractive, certainly," he admitted at last. "You might not think so, but then no woman attracts you."

Chittenham thought of Sadie; he supposed that she had attracted him at one time; she must have done, otherwise he would never have married her.

"So you're on your way home?" Lombard asked.

"Yes. Rodney's affairs to see to."

"I haven't been to London for months," Lombard said.

Chittenham suggested that they went along together. He rather liked Lombard.

"I shall stay at the club," he said. "Better come along with me for a few days."

Lombard shook his head.

"Sorry, but I'm off to Switzerland to-morrow on business for the firm. Geneva and Lausanne and Montreux." A sudden bright idea came to him. "You come along with me. I shall only be gone a few days. There's no hurry to get home, is there?"

"None. They don't know when I sailed. A few days one way or the other can make no difference."

And that was how late bent Giles Chittenham to her will.

He went off to Switzerland with Lombard the same night, and a day or two later met Julie Farrow on the steamboat between Lausanne and Montreux.

It was Lombard who recognized her and pointed her out.

The two men were drinking iced cocktails at one of the small tables on the upper deck when Lombard said abruptly:

"By Gad! If this isn't an extraordinary coincidence!"

"What is?" Chittenham was half asleep in the sun, and he was conscious of a slight irritation at being aroused from his pleasant contentment.

Lombard explained in an excited undertone.

"See those two women opposite—one with an eyeglass? Well, the other is Julie Farrow."

She was so different from anything Chittenham had pictured. He could not see anything so wonderful about her. Her features or as much as he could see of them beneath her small white hat, were rather irregular—he could not find the color of her eyes at all—but she had a pretty mouth and a pretty smile, and there was a sort of

The two women looked at one another and smiled.

"If Julie's afraid to tell you I will," Bim Lennox said in her calm, unruffled voice. "We're out here to settle a mad wager. Julie's got a car—oh, nothing at all exciting in the way of a car!" she explained crushingly. "Just an ordinary two-seater; but she's terribly in love with it, and in a moment of mental conceit she made a bet with me that she would drive it from Villeneuve over there——" she waved a white hand across the blue lake simmering in the heat and sunshine with its wonderful background of towering Alps and floating clouds—"from Villeneuve—right up through the St. Bernard Pass and back again. She's never done the road before, mind you; she's never been that way at all, which makes it all the more foolhardy, but her trust and confidence in Charon is so great—Charon being the two-seater," she explained dryly, "that she very unwisely bet me a larger sum of money than I can afford to lose that she will do it."

"I've been through the Pass twice," Lombard said. "And there's nothing very alarming about it if the weather's all right. It's a steep road and a rough road, and as a rule it's as well to go with an experienced driver, but for the rest—well, I should say that you will lose your bet, Miss Lennox."

Bim shrugged her slim shoulders.

"Very well! We shall see." She turned to Chittenham. "You take no part in our very interesting discussion," she said lightly. "Have you been through the Pass too?"

"Once, but on foot—and that time I was caught in a storm and had to stay at the hospice. I have never been so cold in my life, and that was in June."

Bim shivered.

"How horrible! Do you hear that, Julie?"

"I hear, but I'm not at all afraid. Besides, there's quite a good hotel up there now, I'm told, and the days of Excelsior are over. I believe even the St. Bernard dogs have been out of work and on the dole for years," she added laughingly.

She took off her hat, letting the cool breeze from the lake blow through her hair, and Chittenham saw that she had beautiful hair, a queer mixture of brown and golden and coppery shades that changed in the sunlight as a waving field of corn changes.

"Dyed, of course!" he told himself, and knew that he lied.

"I'm thirsty," Julie announced. "I should like a drink with ice in it."

Lombard called to a passing waiter and ordered.

"Are you staying in Villeneuve?" Chittenham asked of Bim Lennox.

"No, at Montreux. I've friends there and I shall stay with them while Julie loses her bet."

"She is to go alone, then?"

"I don't think we made that stipulation, did we, Julie?" Bim asked hesitatingly. "I think the sole condition was that she is to drive the car the whole way herself."

"Yes, that was the only condition," Julie said cheerily. She took her iced drink from Lombard, and stirred it round, rattling the little loose bits of ice against the glass. "I've told Charon all about it," she went on. "And already in our mind's eye, so to speak, we've spent the money which Bim will have to pay us when we return."

She moved her chair back a little and spoke to Chittenham. "Isn't it a perfectly glorious day?" she asked. "And don't you love this sort of place, and the blue sky and bluer lake and the sunshine? They all make me feel so excited and happy." She turned her sparkling eyes upon him, and now he saw that they were a steely grey, like the lake on a wintry afternoon.

Chittenham shrugged his shoulders.

"I should prefer a less crowded boat," he admitted.

"Oh, that" she laughed. "I think the people are all so interesting, and most of them seem so shocked at Bim," she added, lowering her voice.

"Are you surprised?" Chittenham asked, then hurriedly apologized. "I beg your pardon. I should not have said that."

But Julie was not at all offended.

"You don't like her?" she accused him, amused.

"Perhaps it would be more true to say that I don't quite approve of her," she answered. Bim and Lombard had strolled away to the end of the boat.

"Is it rude to be so frank?" Chittenham asked. "No? Well, then, I like a woman to be womanly."

COURIER REPLACED AFTER 15 YEARS

Feeling Runs High in Otterville Over Change in Mail Drivers.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 10.—After 15 years as a rural mail courier, Luther Hessey has lost his appointment. His tender of $900 for the work of carrying the mails daily out of Otterville has been rejected in favor of another man, who, it is said, presented a tender of the same amount.

Considerable feeling is reported in the village over the matter and a strong protest is being framed.

It is claimed that Hessey's services were entirely satisfactory. It is argued that his years of experience should have given him the preference.

WAR MEMORIAL FOR LAKEFIELD

the matter up, and plans to erect a proper and fitting memorial to those whose names are on our community roll of honor are in the making. The Town Hall was presumed to be a memorial hall, but few, if any, regard it as such. And so after a long waiting the campaign has opened to erect a memorial worthy of the great cause and of our community. The contributions will, like the sacrifice itself, be voluntary, as any other means would seem unworthy, and one can hope that before many months have elapsed that a dignified monument will grace our village square and silently proclaim the fact that "Lakefield remembers."

Fire Prevention Week.

This is Fire Prevention Week and is an excellent time to burn rubbish, clean pipes and chimneys and put one's premises in first-class shape. Most of the fires which have devastated our land have been caused by neglect of some simple precaution, and while the causes have been simple, the results have meant widespread disaster. Let us as individuals and as a community clean up and by present-day preparedness avoid future destruction.

News Briefs.

Rev. J. G. Waller, the senior missionary in the Canadian diocese of mid-Japan, will be the guest of Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Creighton on Thursday. Mr. Waller will give an address on his work in the St. John's Church on Thursday evening. This is Mr. Waller's second visit to the parish, as he was here in the early spring of 1906, during Mr. Creighton's former incumbency.

At the sale held last week at the farm of Orr Sage in Dummer the horses brought $200 each and the cows $80 each, with other stock bringing correspondingly good prices, Mr. R. H. Alford was the auctioneer.

The first of the series of euchre parties given under the auspices of the Sodality of St. Paul's Church was held on Thursday evening. Nine tables were played and all present had a pleasant time. Prizes were won by Miss Margaret Sullivan and Mr. Martin Sullivan; the consolation awards went to Mrs. M. Allen and Mr. Eric Morin.

OBITUARY

FRANCES PETTIFER

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 10. — Friends both old and young paid their last respects to the late Frances Pettifer when her remains were laid in their last resting place in Mount Pleasant Cemetery yesterday afternoon. In order that her many friends and class mates might be afforded the desired opportunity, the public school was dismissed at noon. The Girl Guides attended the services in uniform and marched in a body at the head of the cortege. They also furnished the flower bearers from their number. The service at the home of the deceased child's parents was held at half past two, and the officiating clergymen were the Rev. R. C. Tait and the Rev. L. M. Smith. The pall bearers were teen-age boys who had been friends of the deceased. They were Aden Lowe; Max Lloyd; William Mason; Ralph Nutthal; Gerald Kellogg and Neil Pettifer. There were a great many floral tributes to the memory of the deceased child.

The late Frances Pettifer was the second child of Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Pettifer, River Road. Her death occured about three o'clock Sunday afternoon and terminated an illness of many weeks. The child had not been enjoying the best of health since writing her examinations for the entrance class last June. She was a successful candidate but was unable through failing health to return to her classes. She was in her fourteenth year and was a mmber of the United Church. She is survived by her parents, one sister, Evelyn, fifteen years, and one brother, Fred, eleven years.

STEPHEN HOARD.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

STIRLING, October 10. — A sudden death occurred on Tuesday morning at the residence of S. J. Hatton, John Street, when his brother-in-law Stephen Hoard, of Madoc, passed away. Mr. Hoard and his wife had been visiting at Mr. Hatton's during Sunday, and had started for their home in Madoc on Monday. When about a mile out the Ridge Road, Mr. Hoard was stricken, but had the presence of mind to stop the car which he was driving. Assistance was rendered by those near by, and he was taken to Mr. Hatton's, from whence he had gone only a short time. Medical aid was summoned, and all done that could be, but without avail.

Mr. Hoard was formerly a resident of Stirling, but resided in Madoc for a number of years, following his business as a shoemaker. His wife was Miss Frankie McDonald, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McDonald, who is left to mourn, as well as three brothers and six sisters. The deceased was in his sixtieth year.

The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, service being held in St. Paul's United Church, interment to be in Stirling Cemetery.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1928

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syn.)

Good fortune attends this day, according to astrology, which reads in the stars many signs of promise.

Benefic aspects govern business which will prosper all through the winter, despite the predictions of pessimists who foresee too much inclination to speculate.

Lawyers are now under a direction of the stars that usually assures activities attended with honors.

Merchants and manufacturers are well directed and they will profit greatly through demands due to novel inventions, it is foretold.

This is a beneficial sway for those who deal with banks and bankers. It should be easier to borrow money than it has been in recent months.

Under the benefic rule of the stars there is a sign that is supposed to make men and women rather deceitful, or at least changeable.

Public sentiment is fickle while this sway prevails and for this reason the fall elections may bring sensational surprises.

Again some sort of excitement regarding oil and its output is presaged. Either new discoveries or substitutes for gasoline may affect the prices of by-products.

Hospitals are to benefit through increased demands for their services in safeguarding health and improving physical conditions, the seers prophesy.

Smart society is to become discreet, astrologers predict, for it is to be fashionable to be quiet in one's amusements and intelligent in modes of entertainment.

Reversals in many customs are presaged by the stars which give promise of great attainments in American art and literature.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year in which money and friends increase. Writers born on this day should meet extraordinary success in the next few months. These subjects of Virgo are so often so critical by nature that they discourage even themselves.

Children born on this day may have distinct talent for mathematics. Many bankers belong to this sign which rules men and women who enjoy financial success.

BRAKEMAN HAS THUMB CUT OFF

Leo Houlihan, of Lindsay, Suffers Injury at Corbyville.

CAUGHT IN COUPLING.

LINDSAY, October 10 (Special to the Examiner). — Leo Houlihan, of Lindsay, brakeman on the Lindsay-Belleville way freight, suffered the loss of his right thumb at Corbyville yesterday afternoon. He was in the act of lifting the stopping block on a coupling when the digit was caught and amputated. The injured man was removed to Belleville Hospital.

More Attention to Your Coal Now, Means Less Attention to Your Heater Later On

IF, instead of buying just any coal, just anywhere, you will order Old Company's Lehigh from your local Old Company's dealer, you will save time and effort later on.

For this coal is of an exceptional density and purity that makes it burn long and steadily—with a minimum of attention to the heater.

In fact, when a household heater is properly fired with Old Company's Lehigh, one helping of coal in the morning and another at night is usually all that is required.

Old Company's Lehigh is still mined from the same great vein that gave America her first commercial supply of anthracite back in 1820. This coal, never surpassed in purity, continues uniformly high in heat and low in ash.

Your local Old Company's dealer is interested in giving you satisfactory heating service. Let him advise you how to use your coal most efficiently and economically.

WOMAN DIES FROM INJURIES

Mrs. Kathleen Ward Dies in Hamilton Hospital After Railway Collision.

OTHERS RECOVERING.

HAMILTON, October 9. — Mrs. Kathleen Ward, 35 Harrowly Avenue, Winnipeg, died in St. Joseph's Hospital at 4.30 yesterday afternoon from injuries sustained early on Thursday morning. Mrs. Ward was a passenger on the International Limited, crack C.N.R. flier, which was sideswiped by a derailed C.P.R. freight train near Aldershot. She sustained a fracture of the skull and was in an unconscious condition from the time of the crash. William Ward, her husband, was also seriously injured, and is still confined to the institution, but will recover, it is expected. Her four-year-old daughter, Geraldine, also in St. Joseph's Hospital, is recovering.

Mrs. Ward was middle-aged and resided in the West all her life. With her husband and daughter she had been spending several weeks with relatives in the state of Maine, U.S.A., and they were homeward bound when the wreck occurred.

Mrs. Ward and her daughter were in the women's compartment at the head of the car when the crash came. Mr. Ward was sitting alone in the seat and was thrown across the aisle against the seats on the opposite side. He hurried to the other end of the car and found his wife in a serious condition, but just how she sustained her terrible head injuries will probably never be known. News of the accident was flashed to Mrs. Ward's brother and sister in Winnipeg, and they came here this week-end. They were at her bedside yesterday afternoon when she quietly passed beyond.

Authorities reported last night that Miss Hazel Thompson, Toronto, nurse, and Rev. Dr. MacGregor, London, are still in a serious condition. They were resting comfortably, but are not yet out of danger.

Coroner Dr. Rennie stated that he will conduct an inquest into the death of Mrs. Ward. He has not yet arranged the date of the probe. "There will be a thorough inquiry into the fatality," Coroner Rennie said last night.

Perspiration Odour so unpardonable so easy to banish

What quality is so attractive as personal charm . . . . and what social fault so obnoxious as perspiration odour.

Every person perspires, of course. It's natural, it's healthful. Physicians say the perspiration of the average person measures between one and two pints daily. Nature takes this way of ridding the body of impurities through the millions of tiny pores of the skin.

But perspiration need not be objectionable. Lifebuoy Soap, used in the bath, banishes the odour. Lifebuoy's creamy, mild lather not only cleanses, but also purifies the pores—antiseptically—and keeps them sweet, open and breathing.

To Keep Well

Drink plenty of water, perspire freely and banish perspiration odour with Lifebuoy Soap.

Make sure of avoiding the needless social error of perspiration odour. Use Lifebuoy Soap, for hands, face and bath.

Low in price—wonderful in results.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

Travel ensemble consisting of plaid flannel pajamas, and a coat with silk lining showing pockets to hold toilet accessories.

Quite typical of the modes and manners of the present day is the important place accorded to negligees. There are as many sorts of negligees as there are of the more formal type of costume and any association of laziness or untidiness with the woman who wears a negligee is a thing of the past.

I sometimes wonder what the matchless Eugenie, when she was Empress of France, would have thought if she had visited the negligee department of one of our fashionable American stores and had seen the rack and racks of tea gowns and boudoir robes as lovely and as expensive as dinner gowns and dance frocks, the richly embroidered quilted lounging robes, the mode sedate looking bath robes, the breakfast coats and all the lavish outlay of garments designed for women's hours of leisure indoors. It was the boast of Eugenie—the best-dressed and most fashionable woman of her day—that she never owned a negligee garment but once. That was when her son had the measles and she wanted to sit by his bed side at night and her negligee or wrapper was of red flannel!

With Eugenie dressing was a serious affair. To be fashionable meant to be tightly laced and crinolined. And once awake and able to rise she insisted on being correctly and perfectly dressed. No halfway measure for this woman who had been chosen to be the pattern of feminine virtues to the French.

The sketch shows a negligee ensemble I recently saw—designed for travel. It consists of pajamas made of light-weight woolen material—and a coat also of the material lined with silk. Inside the coat are pockets for comb, brush, and other dressing accessories. Just the thing for the girl who doesn't want to bother with a dressing case when she takes a trip in the sleeping-car.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

WHEN I started the competition on "After Five Years" I did not think I would receive so many splendid letters in response. And when I write I "splendid" I mean it literally. From all over the district have come these expressions of opinion as to what the parties to the marriage contract can contribute so as to make married life as happy five years after the wedding day as five months after.

* * * * * * *

The letters will, of course, be published, and on Saturday I will tell the winner. It was difficult to choose, because of the high standard set by all the contestants. It was strange, too, to see the similarities and differences. Some writers believe in one or two things that both parties can do, and then differ fundamentally on other duties.

* * * * * * *

Two, for instance, agree that women are, by nature, custodians of the home and therefore responsible for a large share of the peace and comfort in it, but one declares that the husband should be equally interested in the welfare of the children as his wife while the other is insistent that a woman should not bother hubby with details of the children's lives!

* * * * * * *

On one thing I am convinced: no reader of the letters, woman or man, can fail to learn points that will help toward the ideal of being as happy in marriage five or fifty years after as on the day of the wedding.

* * * * * * *

The whole competition bears out an idea I have had for some time, and on which I hope one of these days to write a Whatnot. I believe many of women's troubles have come about because she has been so inarticulate. Men cannot talk for women, and women have failed to talk for themselves. Who, after all, knows the secret of a women's thoughts? Men have printed books examining one another's mentalities, they have dissected brains and psycho-analysed thought. Women have been content to cover up their real thoughts behind a smoke screen of words, thereby earning the name "gossip."

* * * * * * *

It seems to me that letters such as these afford the opportunity for Peterborough district women a least to become articulate. If we know what our neighbors are thinking on subjects such as these—vital to our everyday life—can we help but be brought closer together 'and into a greater harmony of thought.

* * * * * * *

If any men read these articles, as I am sure they do, the progress goes a step farther. They will realize that the women who wrote these letters were no empty-headed gossips, but women with real thoughts, real ability, and a deeper sense of logic than the men frequently credit to the sex.

And if the men take some of the hints contained in these letters, then, indeed, married life in this district will be happier.

Then, again, the self-analysis necessary to the writing of so intelligently-composed letters must have benefitted the writers. I am indeed glad that Bobby and the other writers were the means of starting this most interesting series.

Besides the letters there came to me a most beautiful poem, written by one of the contestants. I will print it on Saturday in the "Songs of Love" column. It has, indeed, been a week rich in thought, in pleasure — and poignant, too, with the idea of so many striving for happiness in divers ways.

May the reading of these letters help many to achieve happiness!

In the room where I am working, a little brass buddha is pouring fragrance into the air through his wide-open mouth, ears and eyes. I find many more women using the incense burners in their homes, and, personally, I lean toward the "pine" scent.

Many women like to see a touch of color on the fall and winter coat, and often this can be achieved without much cost or trouble by making little bouquets of wool flowers. The flowers are particularly effective, I think, on sweaters or coats worn by little girls. I will gladly send full instructions for making on request.

It has now been announced that Mrs. Forbes-Allan will speak at the Kiwanis Club Fair on Saturday week on "Victorian Women versus Modern Women." This should be a very interesting topic for all of us; all the more interesting because handled by a Peterborough woman.

AFTER FIVE YEARS

Views of Examiner Readers on How to Make Married Life as Happy After Five Years as After Five Months.

"Dear Marion:

Man and wife should be more to each other at the end of five years than at the end of five months. If they are not there has surely been friction or heartache borne silently and alone, and what a terrible loneliness it must be, to be daily with one and carry a heartache which is unheeded. Have you ever been the one stranger in a crowd? Even though you are noticed and feel that people take particular pains to look after you, the homesickness may become unbearable; so I fancy, would domestic relations be if joys and sorrows are born above. In the home, man naturally is the main provider, woman the spender and user of that which is provided, and a man should see to it that in material things he does provide as far as in him lies. He should also be thoughtful in the house, keep his own things picked up or in their place. He should not consider himself a king to be waited upon by his wife, when he is in the house. If there be a set salary, his wife should have a set amount of that for housekeeping and clothes. He must remember that the children are his as much as his wife's and it is his name they bear, and he has just as good a right to bear with them and care for them as she. It seems too bad that so many men in business see so little of their children.

A man should remember that his wife appreciates courtesies, general good manners and well-groomed man as much as his sweetheart did. The man should be the leader in the religious life of his household, and remember that his wife is bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh. If for any reason he is unhappy he can always flee away from it more easily than his wife. He has some kind of companions, she often has none, unless a crying baby.

What is done—the main things in the home should be discussed, business included. Woman should do all she can to spend wisely, and make the home, and all pertaining to it as pleasant as possible. The earning and spending are but a small part, a necessary part, but really a small part in the happiness of a home. If there be not love in both sides, all the means provided and all the best housekeeping in the world will not make for happiness, rather for bitterness. A man appreciates a pleasant-cheerful, pretty wife, as much as he did the girl he wished to be his wife. Meals, no matter how plain, should be nicely served, and worries banished at meal time. Children should be taught good manners and reverence. Because the wife is more with the children than is her husband, she has more chance to mould their characters and train them in the way they should go. Neither father nor mother should ever object to what the other does before a child—it surely makes discord.

Of the two, woman generally does bear the more, but I cannot see but what one is fully as responsible as the other, though perhaps in different ways.

'Quid Est.'"

A TIP OR TWO

When cleaning brass never use vinegar and salt or other acids as they increase the tendency of the metal to tarnish.

To make smelling salts—buy an ounce of ammonia, or rock volatile, break it into small pieces, put it in a bottle and cover with eau-de-cologne; let stand a few days and it is ready for use.

If your alarm clock rings too loudly slip an elastic band around the bell to diminish noise. The wider the band used, the greater will be the suppression.

To sprinkle clothes quickly turn nozzle of the garden hose to a fine spray and sprinkle them while on the line. Plain pieces can then be rolled up and laid in the basket as taken down. Starched pieces may need further sprinkling.

An empty perfume bottle with patent top is fine for sprinkling clothes. A very satisfactory sprinkler may be made by punching holes in the metal top of a vaseline bottle or any bottle having a screw top.

Grated cheese does not keep well. The least damp affects it. Keep it in a tightly corked bottle in a cool dry cupboard.

CIRCULAR PEPLUM

Fine apseric, in a delicate green checked pattern, makes a junior frock that uses a circular peplum and three bow-knots to give it individuality. The bows appear on the left shoulder, midway between the waist and the shoulder and at the waistline.

FORMAL JERSEY

A cardigan suit of red jersey has a small collar of black Persian lamb and a stunning, fitted basque of black velvet. Worn with a black turban and smart black shoes and gloves, it becomes a strikingly formal little outfit.

A boy's voice "breaks" because his voicebox increases in size and the vocal chords are lengthened. That brings the deeper tone.

FAMOUS STYLIST

"Every woman cannot look beautiful on the street, but, ah! every woman can look beautiful in her own home surrounded by beauty and charm," declares Mlle. Marceline D'Alroy, famous French stylist, now visiting Canada, who urges women to develop the "friendly" touch in arranging furniture. The first thing to do in furnishing a room is the same as in bridge, to discard, she says.

Mrs Muldrew will speak in the women's section of the Produced in Canada Exhibition.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE ARE LAWLESS.

Everyone is law-abiding in so far as the law coincides with his moral ideals and does not run counter to a strong impulse or a fixed habit.

We are all lawless in some respects.

In every catastrophe such as a railroad accident, a big fire, a flood or earthquake, thieves spring up from nowhere. While one man is pinned under the wreckage and his life blood is oozing another man goes through his pockets. During a widespread fire there are those who go in for looting. Martial law is inevitable in disasters because of the human proclivity to lawlessness the moment responsibility is lifted.

Seemingly honest people—fellow passengers and neighbors—so quickly transformed into lawless brutes indicates how thin in spots is the veneer of civilization. Under emotional stress and excitement aided by the momentary breakdown of law and order, the latent criminal tendencies in human beings come to light.

A great many people, perhaps the vast majority, have sufficient moral integration and character to overcome this impulse. Some, evidently, have not. From time to time we have startling illustrations of this fact in the scandalous disclosures of names socially prominent among the smugglers of foreign valuables.

There are other motives for lawlessness, such as desire for freedom and self-expression in ways that are contrary to the law, the impulse to take justice into one's own hands, selfishness in seeking short cuts and personal exemptions in getting what we want, and the temptation to cheat in the game of social living.

"Keep out! This means you!" read a large sign on desirable hunting grounds that were privately owned. The owner evidently recognized the common frailty of mankind to exempt himself from obeying laws which he heartily endorses for others.

This trait accounts for most of the petty lawlessness such as you and I display on occasion.

This Modern External Treatment is best

Mothers prefer the external treatment, Vicks VapoRub, for children's colds, because it avoids the constant "dosing" so disturbing to delicate little stomachs. You just rub it on the throat and chest at bedtime.

Other members of the family prefer Vicks for their own colds, because it is convenient, and quick in bringing relief.

CANARY DECALOGUE

The bird cage should be cleaned daily and fresh sand, water and seed put in the cage.

Be sure the cage is the right size for your bird. A cage which is too small will irritate the tail feathers and destroy the health of the bird.

Protect your canaries from all draughts.

Give your canary plenty of sunlight without sunstroke.

A canary should be bathed at least three times a week.

If your canary is ailing, do not meddle. Take him to an authorized pet dealer.

Do not keep your canary in a wooden cage. Use wire or pyralin, for vermin get in the wooden bars.

Do not worry about a canary not singing at first. They have to become accustomed to their surroundings before they will sing.

Never tease or frighten a canary as they are very nervous and can easily be frightened to death.

Cover your canary's cage every night. It will insure protection from any sudden change in temperature.

PLEATED PANEL

A midnight blue ensemble, with brick red flat crepe blouse, has six deep pleats forming a panel introduced into the left side at yoke height. Another novel note is a brick red linen vest stitched into the long coat, intricately embroidered in shades of blue.

DUTCH CAPS

Paris hats now simulate the tight little Dutch cap with its starched ends flaring out behind. A dusk-grey hatters' plush turban turns its brim back against the crown and catches it at both sides with brilliants. Then the brim is slashed down the middle back and at the sides and the two wings protrude in flaring fashion at the nape of the neck.

STOP INDIGESTION BEFORE IT BEGINS

Don't wait for sourness, gas and the gnawing, griping pains of indigestion to attack you before you seek relief. Stop these things before they start. Even the worst stomach sufferers avoid indigestion by forming the safe and pleasant practice of taking a little Bisurated Magnesia, either tablets or powder immediately after every meal. This instantly neutralizes excess acid in the stomach, prevents its further formation and really makes indigestion impossible. Food digests naturally, healthfully, just as Nature intended, giving the body the full benefit of its nourishing qualities. That is why Bisurated Magnesia is used every day, the world over, by many thousands of former sufferers who now eat what they want with no more fear of indigestion. Druggists everywhere sell and recommend Bisurated Magnesia, and a good time to start its use would be today. m

XLVIII—AT THE LAST

Some while later Sanderson went out of the room, shutting the door tightly behind him, and into the kitchen where Mrs. Kiff was making her coffee. She looked up smilingly when she heard his step, then her face changed.

"Oh, sir——"

Sanderson motioned her into silence. "Sometimes—my dog——" Several times he tried to tell her before he could master his voice. "He's gone to the Happy Hunting Ground," he said at last. "Miss Sally mustn't know, of course. You'll see that she doesn't know—help me to keep it from her. Wedding-day—mustn't be made sad, you know——"

Mrs. Kiff tried to speak, but she could not find her voice, and Sanderson went away.

* * * * * *

The entire village turned out to stand at the church gates, as the vicar had prophesied, and the sun shone, and everyone agreed that Sally was the prettiest bride they had ever seen in Ash Hall.

"And ain't he tall!" they whispered as she went up the aisle on Philip's arm. "Lor, ain't he a real giant, now!"

"Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"

Only three people in the little church realized the tragedy of it all as Philip Sanderson stepped forward.

Yes, he was giving her to be married to Garry Nairn—as he had always given her everything he had.

Afterwards they went back to the vicarage for coffee and cakes.

"Not that I can eat a thing," Sally declared. "I'm so excited, and so happy, Philip darling!"

"Are you, my dear? I'm glad."

She was Mrs. Garry Nairn then, and it was all over.

She had changed her white frock for a little brown travelling-suit, and her golden hair was tucked away under a little blue hat that matched her eyes.

Suddenly she looked round.

"Philip, where's Sometimes?"

Not a muscle of Philip's face betrayed him.

"He seemed a bit lame this morning, so I left him on guard at the cottage."

Sally's face fell.

"Oh, but I wanted to say goodbye to him."

But in a few moments she had forgotten, and was smiling again.

Then presently she and Garry drove away in a car which Philip had insisted upon hiring from London; but just as it was starting Sally stood up in her seat and called to Philip:

"Come here; I want you."

So often in the old days, when she was ill and helpless, she had called to him in just those same words, and Sanderson's face grew white as he went forward to obey.

And then, before them all, she put her arms round his neck, holding him tightly as she kissed him again and again with all her heart.

"I do love you, Philip—I do. Better than anyone in the world except Garry, and in every way except the way I can only love him."

Sanderson made no answer, and the next moment they had gone.

He stood bareheaded in the sunshine, looking dazedly after them. It was as if the end of the world had come.

The vicar touched his arm.

"Stay and have lunch with me, Philip." It was the first time he had ever used his Christian name, but it seemed quite a natural thing to do. Sanderson shook his head.

"Thanks, but I'll get home. You see—there's Sometimes——"

He and Mrs. Kiff walked back along the country road together. Outside the church there were a few flowers which had fallen from Sally's bouquet.

Sanderson looked at them and quickly away again.

She had gone, and Sometimes had gone—everything had gone.

He was a lonely man in an empty world, with but one aim and object left in life—to find Josh Akers and pay him as he deserved to be paid.

His heart beat fast and his pulses throbbed at the thought of that encounter. He would thrash him within an inch of his life; he would make him pay a thousand times over for those lying words he had spoken to Garry Nairn.

The only trouble was that he felt tired—astonishingly tired. Mrs. Kiff looked up at him with concern.

"Tired, sir?" And with an effort Sanderson pulled himself together and answered:

"No, not at all."

Mrs. Kiff's heart was bursting with sympathy and sorrow, but she dared say nothing.

When they go to the cottage gate she stood aside to let Philip enter, and he stopped in the garden for a moment and pointed to the little bare apple tree under which Sally had so often lain.

"After all, the fruit did not fall to the planter, you see, Mrs. Kiff," he said.

Mrs. Kiff did not understand what he meant, but she answered:

"No, sir, there wasn't no apples at all this year—not none to speak of, as you might say."

Philip went on into the cottage and to his room.

Then he picked Sometimes up in his arms (all cold and stiff, with his blurit nose resting on a funny paw, and his long, whip-like tail hanging limply down), and sat down on the side of the bed, still holding him. Everything was finished. The summer of life had gone, and there was only winter.

For a long time Sanderson sat there, with the dog clasped in his arms; then Mrs. Kiff roused him, tapping at the door.

"If you'd just try and eat something, sir——"

And once again the power of self-repression rose in Sanderson's heart.

He had got all the rest of his life in which to grieve; for the moment, although Sally had gone, he still owed some sort of duty to Mrs. Kiff. He laid the dog gently down on the bed, and with an effort dragged himself to his feet.

He was sure that Mrs. Kiff had cooked something especially good for him, in order to show her sympathy. Not that he wanted food, or sympathy, either, for that matter; all he wanted was to be left alone. He was so tired—so annoyingly tired. There seemed to be leaden weights on his feet, but he forced himself up, holding to the bedpost, and stood swaying a little, his eyes closed.

He had been doing too much, that's what it was. He had been living at a greater strain than he realized, and now that the necessity for pretence was at an end the reaction was more than he could bear. He had been warned about his heart before; the doctor had said that his rackety life and excessive drinking—not that he had drunk anything worth mentioning for the past many weeks. Anyway, they had warned him about his heart. That's where the pain was now, like a knife stabbing him.

His heart! Sanderson laughed. How could the pain be in his heart when he had no heart? Doctors were fools; they had to say something, because they were paid to say something.

Not that he cared if his heart was wrong—not that he cared about anything. There was nothing to live for any longer—not even the dog! Dear old Sometimes, his most faithful friend.

Something like a sob escaped Sanderson's white lips.

Sometimes was away in the Happy Hunting Ground where all faithful dogs go to await the coming of their masters.

Mrs. Kiff, lingering anxiously outside the door, heard the old familiar whistle with which Sanderson had always summoned the dog to him. It rent the silence of the cottage as clearly and shrilly as if Sometimes was still there to thump his old tail against any available furniture to show his appreciation as he hurried to his master's side.

Sudden panic seized her, and she called once more pleadingly:

"Mr. Sanderson—sir——"

Sanderson heard her and tried to answer, but the pain in his side would not let him breathe or find his voice.

Mrs. Kiff broke open the door just as he swayed like a giant tree struck down in a storm, and fell.

She was on her knees beside him in a second.

"Mr. Sanderson—oh, my dear Mr. Sanderson——"

His face was grey like parchment, but he tried to smile up into her terrified eyes as he found his voice weakly for the last time.

"It's all right. The Guards—never retire——" said Philip Sanderson, and died.

THE END.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

2-Days Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SILLY 'GATOR.

(Copyright, 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Johnnie and Billie Bushytail were beginning to wish the Police Dog would come along. And the reason they wished that was this.

They had gone to the woods after hickory nuts and Uncle Wiggily had gone with them. While the squirrel boys gathered some of the hard, rough, white nuts, Uncle Wiggily picked up a lot of hard, round white stones, thinking they were hickory nuts.

"It was because I didn't have on my glasses," Mr. Longears told his wife, reaching home after the exciting adventure which happened to him.

And while Johnnie, Billie and Uncle Wiggily were in the woods, laughing over the bunny gentleman's funny mistake, along came waddling the Skillery Scallery Alligator with the double-jointed tail. The 'Gator said he had come to play a joke on Uncle Wiggily and nibble him. And it was because of the 'Gator that Johnnie and Billie wished the Police Dog would come rushing up to bite the Bad Chap.

But Uncle Wiggily had a joke of his own he was going to play on the proud Alligator, for I want to tell you that 'Gator was at first proud though later he was made to look very silly.

He bit down hard on them.

"Are your teeth strong enough to bite me?" asked Uncle Wiggily, though well he knew the 'Gator's teeth were quite strong enough for that. But the 'Gator, being proud, as I have told you, bellowed loudly and said:

"I have the strongest teeth in the world!"

"Oh, have you?" asked Uncle Wiggily, as he picked up a piece of bark from the ground. "Well, can you bite this in two pieces?"

"Of course!" answered the 'Gator, sneering like, and with one crunch of his jaws he bit the bark in two.

"So far so good!" said Uncle Wiggily with a smile under his pink, twinkling nose. "But can you bite this?"

The rabbit gentleman now picked up a stick and held it out.

"Of course I can bite that," growled the Alligator switching his double-jointed tail around as though he wanted to knock poor Uncle Wiggily's legs from under him. "Look here!"

With that the Alligator snapped the thick stick in two parts as easily as you can bite a stick of candy.

"My! My!! You certainly have strong teeth!" said the rabbit gentleman, pretending to be surprised, though well he knew the 'Gator could bite the stick. "But you aren't the only one who has strong teeth, Mr. 'Gator!" went on the bunny uncle.

"Do you mean you have?" asked the bad chap.

"No, I mean these two little squirrel boys have," said Mr. Longears. "Show the 'Gator," he said to Johnnie and Billie, "how you can break those," and he pointed to some hickory nuts that were very close to the pile of white stones which, themselves, looked just like nuts.

So Johnnie and Billie each picked up a hickory nut in their paws, which were almost like hands, and the squirrel boys quickly gnawed through the hard nut shell and then cracked it as easily as an elephant can crack a peanut by stepping on it.

"Pooh! That's nothing!" sneered the Alligator as he saw Johnnie and Billie crack the hickory nuts.

"Can you do as well?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Of course I can," said the proud Alligator, and now he showed how silly he was, for he let Uncle Wiggily fool him.

"Then crack some of those nuts!" quickly said the rabbit, but instead of pointing to the hickories, Uncle Wiggily pointed to the pile of round, hard, white stones which the rabbit gentleman had gathered in mistake. "Let's see you crack them!"

"Pooh! That's easy!" said the silly Alligator. And in his pride, not stopping to look carefully, he scooped up a pawful of the stones, clapped them in his mouth, bit down hard on them and then—

"Oh, wow! Oh, what have I done? Oh, my teeth! I've broken a lot of my teeth!" howled the Bad Chap. "Never did I bite such hard nuts!"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily as the 'Gator waddled off to see if he could find a dentist. "You bit on stones—not nuts!"

So everything happened for the best.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— by John Hix

THE DIET FOR DIABETES MELLITUS.

In curing this disease it is necessary that the patient conserve the nervous energy, as this disease is often brought on by nervous strains, shocks, worry and overwork. Sleep and periods of rest are essential to a cure.

In spite of the seriousness of this disease, under ordinary methods of treatment I have found that it is easily curable in most cases. Those cases that are most serious have destructive areas in the liver, pancreas or kidney. When diabetes occurs in young people it is usually most serious because it is often accompanied by destructive processes in some of these organs.

The proper way to begin treating diabetes is to use a citrus fruit fast, employing either orange or grapefruit juice, using a glassful every two or three hours. Warm enemas must be used regularly every morning, and a whole body massage should be given occasionally. Vigorous skin friction is advisable after a cold shower bath morning and evening.

The citrus fruit fast should be continued until all traces of sugar have disappeared from the urine and even a few days longer. In severe cases it may be advisable to use shorter periods of fasting at intervals of one or two months. After the fast the diabetic patient may use a well balanced diet, but he should be careful to avoid the use of starches and sugar for some time to come. This is a model of the diet after the fast that I usually recommend for my patients:

Breakfast: Choice of one kind of protein, such as eggs, nuts or cheese. Only one egg should be used, or two ounces of nuts, or two ounces of cheese. Three or four slices of Melba toast. (This is toast dextrinized completely through, which changes the starch.) A small dish of stewed fruit, such as prunes, figs, raisins, applesauce or baked apples—no sugar being added. Between breakfast and lunch at least one quart of distilled water should be taken.

Lunch: Choice of one or more as desired of the following vegetables: celery, spinach, small string beans, asparagus, cucumbers, egg plant, small beets and tops, summer squash, small turnips and tops, small carrots and parsnips, lettuce, okra, chayotes, oyster plant (salsify), mallow, kale, zucchini, parsley, endive, avocado (alligator pear), or ripe olives. These may be used both cooked and raw. In the afternoon at least one quart of distilled water should be again used.

Dinner: Choice of one of the following proteins; beef, mutton, turkey, rabbit, chicken, fish (except salmon), cottage or cream cheese, gelatin, frog's legs or turtle. Not over a quarter of a pound of meat should be used or a corresponding amount of any of the other proteins. Choice of one or more vegetables from the list used for lunch. No desserts.

This diet should be taken for at least several weeks before any attempt is made to use any of the carbohydrate foods. If sugar does not disappear from the urine with this diet, it is sometimes advisable to take a milk diet for several weeks, but this is usually not necessary, and the diet I have just given will be sufficient to adequately nourish the body without the addition of any other kind of food.

Questions and Answers.

Question: O. J. writes: "About ten years ago I fell and landed on my knees and since then they give way at times and I almost fall. They make a gritting sound, and I wonder if you could tell me something to use as a massage."

Answer: Massage will be of little use to you in correcting the trouble with your knees. Go to a physical culture instructor and have him give you some exercises which will strengthen your leg muscles. Sometimes the diathermy electrical treatment will help in the correction of such troubles caused by accidents. The action of the diathermy current is to warm the tissues of the knees including the bones. Metabolism in these parts is increased and the effect is far deeper than anything which can be obtained by massage.

Question: O. B. asks: "Will you please tell me in your health column the cause, symptoms and cure of a floating or wandering kidney?"

Answer: The kidneys are not definitely anchored in an exact position, but change their position slightly with the movements of the body. Those who have a general prolapsus of abdominal organs will find that the kidneys are always lower down than is considered normal. There are seldom any definite symptoms except those which go with the general prolapsus. The backache and bearing-down feelings associated with prolapsus are seldom caused by the floating kidney alone, but come from the general weakness of abdominal and back muscles which the prolapsus to exist. The only cure is in raising these organs through strengthening the abdominal and back muscles by taking suitable setting-up exercises.

LYRICS OF LIFE

WHEN FATHER FRETS

I don't know which the greater bother,
The baby often, or the father.
A baby isn't always well,
The baby has a little spell,
Some simple matter, quickly righted—
But Father always gets excited,
And gets the house too hot, or cold,
Too much whatever he is told.

I don't know which the greater trouble,
The baby or the baby's double.
He runs around so scared and wild
He acts exactly like the child.
Yes, if he holds the basin, slops it,
Or, if he holds the baby, drops it,
And needs as much (so much he frets)
Attention as the baby gets.

But I know this at least about him,
I don't know what I'd do without him.
For telling him there's not a thing
To start a person worrying,
When Baby's temper'ture increases,
Keeps me from getting scared to pieces.
I don't know if it's so or not,
But what I tell him helps a lot.

FIVE CIRCUITS CLOUTED AS HUGMEN WIN FOURTH STRAIGHT TO SET NEW SERIES RECORD

Sulton of Swat Leads Batting Attack With Three Home Runs.

EQUAL RECORDS.

Make Second Successive Sweep Over National Leaguers For Championship.

By ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. Louis, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press)—The Yankees said it with home runs yesterday and brought the 1928 World's Series to a crashing, record-busting conclusion with their fourth straight triumph over the Cardinals.

Five crackling circuit clouts, three of them by the one and only Babe Ruth, four of them in two successive innings and all of them sounding taps for the Redbirds, enabled the Yankees to win by the decisive count of 7 to 3 and record a new world's series achievement by making their second successive clean sweep over National League champions.

The central and dominating figure in the most smashing triumph of world's series history was the mighty Ruth. The Babe's first two home runs twice tied the score, his second started the downfall of Willie Sherdel, game little southpaw of the Cardinals, and his third equalled the record for long range clouting that he set himself in the same park two years ago.

Features in Seventh.

The tide and drama of the whole game turned upon Ruth in the seventh inning, in remarkable fashion, at a time when the Yankee punch was conspicuous by its absence and when the Cardinals were holding tenaciously to a one-run lead. Behind the clever pitching of Sherdel, gamely seeking to break the Yankee jinx, the Cardinals revamped their lineup in this last ditch fight and they seemed in a fair way to succeed until the Bambino lumbered into the picture in the seventh.

Ruth had driven one ball out of the park, a drive that cleared the roof of the right field stand, in the fourth, and Sherdel was pitching cautiously. One strike was called, then a second on a floater that the Babe let go by. Ruth shifted his stance, looked up at the scoreboard and as he did so Sherdel whipped another ball that cut the heart of the plate. It was a smart play but Umpire Pfirman, behind the plate, had raised his palms to indicate suspension of play for the moment as Ruth, though still in the box, was obviously not in batting position.

Sherdel, incensed to high pitch, rushed into protest, followed by Captain Frisch and the rest of the Cardinals, arguing that Ruth, by remaining in the box, had been fanned. It was an angry debate, cheered on by by Ruth fans' handclapping, but also to the accompaniment of wild boos and jeers from the crowd as Sherdel went back finally to the box.

The southpaw, mad and upset, threw two balls, then grooved one that the Babe caught and lifted again over the entire right field barrier.

Gehrig Gets Another.

Sherdel, unable to settle down, was hit for another home run by Lou Gehrig, putting the Yankees into the lead. Sherdel walked dejectedly from the box when Bob Meusel laced a single to left.

One pitched ball thus had turned the whole complexion of the game, swiftly and surely.

Aided by it, the Yankees, after playing in slip-shod fashion behind Hoyt for the first six innings, got their famous attack functioning once more. Old Pete Alexander tried to check the tide but it was too late. The Yankees, with Earle Combs figuring in the attack as a pinch-hitter for the first time and driving in a run, ran up four runs altogether in the seventh, then capped the climax with two more home run thrusts, one by Cedric Durst and the other by Ruth, in the eighth.

So aroused had become the bleacher crowd after that fatal seventh and Umpire Pfirman's ruling that Ruth was the target for a mild shower of pop bottles when he went out to his position in left field in the Cardinal half of the inning. Three of the missiles landed within a short distance of the Babe, who threw them from the field. There were wild jeers again when Ruth came to bat in the eighth, but, as suddenly, they turned to cheers as the Bambino hoisted his third homer to the roof of the right field stands.

Fitting Climax.

To cap the climax of one of his greatest days, Ruth ended the game and the series with a remarkable one-hand running catch of Frisch's foul along the left field boxes in the ninth inning, dashing on to the dugout as the crowd surged out on the field.

The Babe's triumphant dash to cover ended a series in which the great slugger had shattered all world's series hitting records, added to his long range laurels and finished with a batting mark of .625 that eclipses anything previously on record. The highest mark before was .545 made by Sergeant Hank Gowdy in the 1915 series with the Boston Braves.

Equals Another Record.

In the crowning of the Yankees as world's champions for the second successive year, the tremendous hitting feats of Ruth as well as Lou Gehrig, who equalled one of the Babe's own marks by gathering four homers, shared the spotlight with the pitching of Waite Hoyt. The sturdy young righthander of the Yankees won his second game of the series and his sixth in championship conflict, thereby equalling the record of Old Chief Bender of the Athletics for the most triumphs any pitcher has gained in the classic.

Hoyt, until the seventh, was hit harder than he had been in the whole first game, when he left the Cardinals down with three hits and beat them 4 to 1. He was wilder, too, and unsteady as the Yankees gave him poor support, but he grew better as the game went along. Once feeling the reviving influence of the slugging Ruth and his other mates, Hoyt turned to form and baffled the Cards, the only run tallied after the fourth being a gift in the ninth inning.

Hoyt, the young Brooklyn undertaker, had a big hand in burying the last of the Cardinals hopes but the big bats of Ruth and Gehrig were the factors that broke the heart of Sherdel and battered down the last defence of the home club.

Never before has any world's series game witnessed such an orgy of long-range firing as the Babe led. Not than any two clubs let alone one, has severe hammering but by getting five circuit clouts the Yankees did more than any two club, let alone one, has accomplished in the way of home run hitting in a single series game. The best that had ever been done before was three homers by one club and four by two teams.

All told the Yankees collected 15 safe blows off the pitching of Sherdel and Alexander but they wasted nearly all of them except the homers.

In fact it was a fielder's choice and a sacrifice fly by Combs that produced the only two tallies not accounted for by homers.

The Cardinals, starting out gaily enough, got 11 safe hits off Hoyt, six of them in the first four innings but they again failed to exhibit anything like a cleanup punch, even with a revised lineup that had young Ernest Orsatti in center field for Douthit and Earl Smith behind the plate instead of Jimmy Wilson. These two did their part, getting five hits between them, but Bottomley, Hafey and the rest of the Cardinal sluggers failed to snap out of their slump.

Sherdel had lost three previous games to the Yankees and there was high hopes that he would break the jinx, for he had pitched good ball in every setback. But the law of averages failed to work and Willie took it on the chin for the fourth time in two years at the hands of the American League clubbers.

What happened prior to the fatal seventh paled into insignificance as the big barrage was put over but it was noteworthy that the Cardinals again failed to take advantage of the openings given them by loopholes in the Yankee defense. The Redbirds got five hits before they were able to score their first run, in the third, on Orsatti's double, a bunt by High that went for a hit and a sacrifice fly by Frisch. They got their next tally in the fourth on a brace of two-base errors—a wild throw by Koenig on an attempted double play that let Maranville go to second and another weird toss by Hoyt to center that permitted the Rabbit to romp home.

Up to the seventh the Yankees also were impotent in the pitches Ruth's homer in the fourth was their only score in the first six innings but they filled the bases once and had runners on first and third another time without getting results.

After the main firing had ceased the Cardinals put on a mild flurry in the ninth, when Martin, pinch running for Smith, who singled, was permitted to go to second unmolested and scored on an infield out. Orsatti and High followed with successive hits but Ruth bagged Frisch's foul for the finishing touch.

It was the finale to one of the most one-sided series on record and as big an upset as the Pope has ever known. The Cardinals sailed into the battle strong favorites against a Yankee crew that was supposed to be seasick and crippled from a stormy pennant fight. The American Leaguers not only made a decisive cleanup but did it with two of their best pitchers, Pennock and Moore, out of action, their regular center fielder, Combs, also on the bench; and other stars such as Lazzeri and Ruth in damaged condition.

SPARRING PARTNERS DODGING BELANGER

Toronto Flyweight Hits Too Hard For Rank and File.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—"Frenchy" Belanger, Toronto flyweight, who meets Frankie Genaro of New York, the flyweight champion up in Toronto next Monday night for the title, is having a hard job getting sparring partners this trip. On his last visit here "Frenchy" made the inhabitants of Stillman's gymnasium sit up and take notice. He hit his partners so hard that they want no part of him.

Sunday afternoon a newcomer stepped in against Genaro's next opponent and when Dave Garrity tried to get him to repeat he refused, saying, "Say, mister, that baby hit me so hard in the stomach yesterday that I've hardly got my breath back yet. You don't get me making a punching bag out of myself again."

The result was that Belanger went in against a greenhorn for three rounds. Garrity has offered good money to some of the best around New York, and three have accepted. So Frenchy should have lots to do between now and Friday when he will leave for home.

YANKEE PLAYERS IN BIG MONEY CLASS

Tremendous Salaries Paid Out Annually To Manager Huggins' Henchmen.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10 (U.P.).—If you accept the reasonably sound theory that the more money you pay ball players, the better ball players you get, and therefore the more games you win; then it is easy to explain the decisive edge the Yankees have established over the Cardinals in the 1928 world series.

Colonel Ruppert's payroll for his hired hands is said to average around a quarter of a million dollars a year. The total paid this year to the Cardinal performers will not be half that sum and probably not much more than one-third.

The Yankee prima donna, Babe Ruth, is on a three-year contract paying him $70,000 a year. Top man on the Cardinal club is Captain Frank Frisch, who probably receives little more than $15,000 annually.

Lou Gehrig is playing under a three-year contract which awarded him $20,000 in the year just ended, will pay him $25,000 next year, and $30,000 the third year. Waite Hoyt is said to receive around $17,000 and this year received an extra bonus of $2,000 for winning 23 games. Herb Pennock probably gets better than $15,000. Bob Meusel may be credited with almost that amount and Tony Lazzeri rates around $10,000.

After Frisch, Grover Cleveland Alexander is the highest paid employe in the Card line-up and it is doubtful if his income exceeds $12,000. Thus there are at least five Yankees who receive bigger pay envelopes than the second highest paid among the National league leaders. Bottomley and Haines, who receive about $10,000 each rank next to Alexander in Cardinal income.

The explanation of the difference in payrolls is simple. The Yankees are the most profitable club in either league and at home or on the road are the best drawing card. They bring their owners more money than any other team and thereby enable him to pay higher salaries. Whether Ruppert pays such fancy salaries because his club makes so much money or whether the club makes so much money because he pays such good salaries is a question to be figured out during the winter months.

DE LAVAL GO TO DELORO IN PECK SOCCER CUP

To Be Played On Saturday Afternoon—Important Boys' Games On Thursday and Monday.

A special meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association was held in the Chamber of Commerce last evening. The only important business transacted was the draw for the Peck Trophy which resulted in De Laval coming out first, then followed Deloro. Canadian General got a bye.

The De Laval representative intimated to the executive that they would go to Deloro and play the game instead of at home. No doubt their action will be appreciated by the outside team. The match will be played in Deloro next Saturday afternoon and the kick-off must not take place later than three-thirty because darkness may prevent the match from being finished.

Arrangements will be made so that a local referee will accompany the team from the city, in fact, they may be successful in obtaining the services of Alex McKinley for this important cup tie.

Players associated with the De Laval are requested to note that they will leave the works at the same hour as last week.

Two Important School Games.

On Thursday afternoon, at King Edward Park, King Edward school will meet the Queen Mary school team in a school league fixture. Both elevens will have to fight it out to a finish because a win either way practically settles the winner to play against section 'A.' Then on Monday afternoon on the same grounds Prince of Wales meet the King Edward eleven in the concluding league match. The public are requested to turn out and see a real game between two well balanced soccer teams. The defence is excellent, more especially the Prince of Wales half back line that works with precision, that is backed up with stalwart full-backs; while the King Edward eleven is composed of a defence to be reckoned with at any time and a fast moving forward line.

The game starts at 4.30 and there is always a good crowd present watching the boys play the soccer code.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

Oshawa meet the local senior Collegiate team here on Saturday in interscholastic fixture.

After their defeat in the Motor City on Saturday last, C. S. Browne, the team coach, has had the boys out every night for a little practice work. The team is well balanced and only need a little more polish to enable them to stand up with the best of them.

* * * * * *

Meanwhile would it not be better to call Mr. Browne's attention to the fact that a little practice in the art of catching the ball after a drop kick is sorely needed.

* * * *

Al. Heidman, who has been out of the game so far this season, will play middle in the senior tilt.

* * * * * *

There may have been a lot of aches and pains in the Yankee outfit, but it did not stop them from setting new records and equalling previous ones in the World Series play just completed.

* * * * * *

Battling through a hard fought schedule for the National League championship and favorites on Wall Street to win the championship up until the first game, we cannot help but feel that it was a stroke of hard luck that followed the Cardinals throughout the Series.

* * * * * *

Led by the great hitting of Ruth and Gehrig, the New Yorkers again won the professional baseball championship of the world for the second successive year by taking their fourth straight game from the Cardinals, making it a total of eight straight games in two World Series.

* * * * * *

The central and dominating figure of the Series was the mighty Ruth. Leading the batting attacks of his teammates in the first three games with a series of singles and doubles, the Sultan of the Swat stepped out yesterday in the fourth game to connect with three circuits that shattered all his former records.

* * * * * *

He finished with a batting mark of .625, a mark that eclipsed any previous record. The highest before was .545 made by Sergeant Hanky Gowdy in the 1915 Series with the Boston Braves.

* * * * * *

Lou Gehrig also shared in the honors with the Bambino King, making a world record for the baseball classic when he drove in his ninth run of the Series with a homer in the seventh frame.

* * * * * *

Two important Big Four fixtures are slated for the coming Saturday. The Argonauts go to Montreal and the Hamilton Tigers play at Ottawa.

* * * * * *

The Tigers should give the Senators a tidy argument in the Capital City, enouraged by their victory over the Toronto Argos last Saturday. They have the experience and team behind them to play a fast game at Ottawa.

Jockey Club Has Successful Year

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 10 (Canadian Press).—At the annual meeting of the Connaught Park Jockey Club yesterday, the financial statement showed that the two 1928 race meetings held at the club's plant on the Aylmer Road, near here, numbered among the most successful in the organization's history. It was only through the financial assistance granted by the Quebec Government, however, that Connaught Park had been enabled to continue operations, according to the statement.

His Excellency Viscount Willingdon will retain the post of honorary president of the club for the ensuing year. In his presidential address, Hon. Senator N. A. Belcourt extended thanks to the Governor-General for the presentation of the Willingdon Cup, and for other kindnesses which Viscount and Lady Willingdon had extended to Connaught Park.

The 1928 officers were all returned for another year.

Law's Minions Halt Border Elopement

WINDSOR, Oct. 9.—Romance ended suddenly here yesterday, when Willimont O'Dell, 20-year-old Sandwich youth, and Miss Geneva Edden, 16 years old, of 60 Walnut Street, St. Thomas, were prevented by the law from carrying out their intention of being married at Sandwich.

O'Dell and his sweetheart, who police stated, was assisted down a ladder from her bedroom window in the early hours of this morning, were jogging along Wellington Avenue, Windsor, in an antiquated automobile, shortly after 7 o'clock this morning, when Constable Arthur Hill, of Sandwich, who had been assigned to be on the lookout for the eloping youngsters, stepped into the centre of the pavement and ordered them to stop.

Despite tearful pleadings of the girl, Constable Hill took charge of her and ordered O'Dell to his home on St. Antoine Street, where other officers were waiting. Miss Edden was taken back to St. Thomas by her parents, and for the time being, at least, the romance is dead.

YANKEES SPEED HAPPILY HOME

World's Champions For Second Season Stand at Head of Class.

HOME RUNS WON.

EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK WITH YANKEE SPECIAL, Oct. 10. —(Canadian Press).—Enjoying poor health to an extent never approached by any other club, the New York Yankees, speeding home to-day, stood at the head of baseball class and more. They were established as the first team to win two world series in eight games. Disposing of the St. Louis Cardinals of 1928 as they disposed of Pittsburg last year in four straight games. To make the sensational performance extraordinary the American League champions went into the autumn classic carrying the unrestrained sympathy of friends on account of poor physical condition.

The supreme test again demonstrated there are baseball players and Babe Ruth. Babe dominated the play and like the great showman he is he brought the performanle to a climax with a hair raising one handed catch. Coming to the fourth game without a home run, but with a batting average of over 600, he crashed three balls out of the ball park. The Cardinals were routed because the pitchers could not prevent home run hits ringing from the Yankee bats. Sherdel was nicked for four, old Alexander for three, and Jesse Haines for two.

Contrasted with Ruth's triumph in the last game was the tragedy for Sherdel, who was chased out after 6 2-3 innings and thust again failed to win a world series game Comedy was furnished by the fielding of both teams and the individual clowning of the big Babe. Waite Hoyt, Yankee pitcher bracketed himself with Chief Bender as a leading world series pitcher, now having six victories.

4,000 FARMERS ATTEND MATCH

Ontario Plowmen's Association Annual Meet Opens at London.

J. J. DUFFUS JUDGE.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 10. — Four thousand farmers from various parts of Ontario yesterday saw the opening events of the four-day match and farm machinery demonstrations of the Ontario Plowmen's Association. The day was ideal, and the Carmichael farm, eight miles north of London, in the Township of London, assumed the aspect of a fair, with its myriads of tents, hundreds of horses, scores of tractors and various farm institute booths, where meals and refreshments were served to the guests and contestants, the proceeds to be devoted to church and social work.

Among the distinguished persons were: Hon. John C. Elliott, Minister of Public Works of Canada; J. J. Tierney of Brockville, President of the Ontario Plowmen's Association; J. Lockie Wilson of Toronto, Secretary; J. W. Freeborn, former member of the Legislature for East Middlesex, and others. The judges were: James McLean of Richmond Hill; W. C. Barrie of Galt and D. D. Gray of Ottawa Experimental Farms and J. J. Duffus of Peterborough.

The oldest contestant present was J. A. Poole of Westminster, a retired farmer. Eighty-one years of age, he contested in the sod and stubble events and was the only man to compete in the class for those over 65.

Willie John, a boy from the Muncey Indian Reserve, and Graydon Hudson, each 12 years of age, were the youngest entrants in the plowing events.

At a meeting of the officers last night in the London Chamber of Commerce, in Hotel London, it was stated that the opening day of the great matches was one of the most successful in the history of the association, both in regard to numbers present and entries.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

THE BUTTERFLY KIDDIES, FIVE OF THE CUTEST, SWEETEST, CLEVERFST KIDDIES YOU EVER SAW, ON THE STAGE AT THE CAPITOL THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY. RICHARD DIX IN "WARMING UP" AND OUR GANG IN "GROWING PAINS" ON THE SCREEN.

As an added attraction for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, Manager Stewart of the Capitol has arranged for the appearance of "The Butterfly Kiddies" Musical Revue, a company of five clever children, who will be seen in some clean, clever, wholesome entertainment that will linger long in your memory.

Tutor Instructs Them.

While travelling, the children are accompanied by a tutor who looks after the brains of the children. This is in connection with the many things that the children learn while travelling from city to city, gives them educational advantages which would place them in higher classes than most children of their age were they placed in school.

Richard Dix in "Warming Up" and the old favorites "Our Gang" will be the screen features.

If you are, in any sense, a baseball fan, don't miss Richard Dix in "Warming Up."

If you like your entertainment in the form of romance, the same tip holds good.

Dix comes to the Capitol Theatre in a screen story which, from all appearances, will be ranked alongside of "The Quarterback," one of his best. In "Warming Up," he is the same athletic, lovable Dix but this time his toe is in the pitcher's box.

The story concerns a young rookie whose troubles are not confined to the diamond and particularly to a jinx which seems to have settled on his trail for good. There is also a delicate and charming little love theme which runs through the production.

Jean Arthur, playing opposite Mr. Dix for the first time has a chance to prove why the star cannot be blamed for loving her. She is quite pretty and capable.

"Growing Pains" is the name of "Our Gang" offering.

AT THE REGENT.

"ROSE MARIE"

Owing to Public Popular Demand There Will Be Two Performances of "Rose Marie" This Evening at 7 and 9 O'clock.

At last film producers have succeeded in translating to the screen a stage musical play without losing its beauty and charm in the transplanting.

I am speaking of "Rose-Marie," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen version of Arthur Hammerstein's famous stage presentation now playing at the Regent Theatre.

Joan Crawford, heroine of half a dozen big screen successes within the last few months, makes an ideal Rose-Marie, the little French Canadian north woods girl about whom this melodramatic episode revolves.

That Miss Crawford has carried off honors in pictures requiring a flavor of sophistication, has not deterred her in the least to dropping easily into character as the naive girl of the north. In fact, it is doubtful whether her work in John Gilbert's "Twelve Miles Out" and the William Haines' pictures: "Spring Fever" and "West Point," show up Joan in as charming a role as she has in her new production.

Added to the excellency of Miss Crawford's performance, is the portrayal of Jim Kenyon by James Murray. Young Murray has been widely heralded as a great "find" from the ranks of the extras. Why Murray was ever permitted to remain an extra when dozens of directors must have seen flashes of his brilliance, even in mob scenes of other film productions, passes all understanding.

James Murray is a "discovery" and he proves it in "Rose-Marie," the best screen version of a musical play since Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer filmed "The Merry Widow" with John Gilbert and Mae Murray.

Lucien Hubbard, who produced the screen version of "Rose Marie" from his own film adaptation, has done a great bit of work. There is much original material in the picture story which, of course, is necessary in adapting a stage show of this type to the screen.

Miss Crawford and Murray are supported by a very excellent cast, including House Peters, Gibson Gowland, Creighton Hale, Polly Moran, Lionel Belmore, William Orlamond, Gertrude Astor and others.

Nebraska is the central state of the United States.

COMMISSION OPENS INQUIRY INTO POLICE

English Investigation Is Expected To Take Year—Rises From Scandal.

LONDON, Oct. 10. — (Canadian Press).—A royal commission under the chairmanship of Lord Lee of Fareham to-day began an inquiry into the police administration of England and Wales. It is expected the task will occupy a year. The inquiry is the outcome of the Hyde Park case involving Irene Savidge and Sir Leo Money, which caused a sensation last July.

EXPRESS WORKERS GO OUT ON STRIKE

Several Thousand Men Quit in New York—Recognition Refused.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Between twelve and fifteen thousand employees of the American Railway Express Company, members of the Brotherhood of Railroad and Express Clerks, went on strike shortly before midnight last night. Mystery surrounded the reason for the strike, which was called by the grand president of the Brotherhood after the vice-president of the company had refused to abide by agreements entered into previously or to recognize the union. The strike affected Greater New York and vicinity.

Paints Pigs With Oil To Stop Them Fighting

HAMILTON, Oct. 10.—If Hamiltonians taste coal oil with their roast pork they must blame Inspector Berlinghoff of the S.P.C.A., for he ordered yesterday that hogs be painted with the liquid to stop them from fighting.

The officer states that strange porkers are about as friendly as wildcats and when shipments are gathered in local packing plants a rough-and-tumble results and the animals suffer. Slashed bodies, torn ears and other injuries are not uncommon, and the packer and the public suffer through bruised meat.

By the smell the pigs detect strange mates and coal oil liberally applied to the backs of the animals with a sponge will cause the scene to disappear, and the fighting spirit thus departs, he said.

GRAIN HAULAGE HEAVY JUST NOW

More Grain Passes City in Past Few Weeks Than in All 1927.

LINDSAY, October 10 (Special to The Examiner). — More grain has passed over the C.N.R. through Lindsay and Peterborough for Montreal during the past several weeks than during the whole of the year 1927. This was the statement made by a railway official yesterday in discussing the record shipments of wheat from the northern terminal.

The haulage of last year's grain and this year's supply in the northern elevators has been so heavy as to cause a congestion at Montreal. This has resulted in a temporary slump in activities on the railway, but very heavy freights have been passing through Peterborough from Depot Harbor with loadings for export.

CLUB SCORES NEW TRIUMPH

Kiwanians Bring Famous Canadian Singers' Organization To Peterborough.

FOR EXHIBITION.

"Canadian singers have been lauded in many cities over the North American continent, and their visit to Peterborough will be widely appreciated. The obtaining of this famed organization is probably Kiwanis Club's greatest contribution to the musical tastes of Peterborough people since the visit of the Australian band.

Canadian Singers will appear in recital every evening of the Exhibition, affording a rare treat. Newspapers say of them:

"First honours from the point of view of mass popularity, and also of critical acclaim, undeniably went to Charles Marchland, and J. Campbell McInnes' group of Toronto girls, the Canadian Singers. The last gave us sources of modern French Canadian Folk Songs in Bergyties and chansons of Old France. One after another stepped forward, beautifully bound music in hand, to sing solos of a delicacy that moved me as I have not been moved in many a day."—H. Addington Bruce, Pres. Boston Branch American Folk Lore Society.—Boston Transcript.

"The madrigals and part songs sung by the Canadian Singers were delightfully presented." — Musical America, May 26th, 1927.

"By far the most artistic of the scenic offerings was a group of Bergerettes, harmonized and conducted by Dr. Ernest MacMillan and presented by the Canadian Singers of Toronto. It was a lovely vision of Versailles under the Grand Monarque, in the silken charm of its atmosphere, costume, stage setting, action and music."—Lawrence Mason, The Globe, Toronto, May 26, 1928.

"Among the most important contributions to several concerts were the Canadian Singers of Toronto under the direction of J. Campbell McInnes. They wore Watteau and Fragonard costumes against a decorative background by Arthur Lismer and their finesse in the matter of diction and blending of tone gave their appearance exceptional distinction. Among their numbers were Bergerettes arranged by Dr. Ernest MacMillan and Canadian Folk Songs arranged by Mrs. Wood-Hall."—Hector Charlesworth, Toronto Saturday Night, re Canadian Folk Song Festival, Quebec, May, 1928.

DOUBLE MURDER CASE IS OPENED

Grand Jury Considering Charges Against George O'Neil.

BARRIE, Oct. 10.—Facing a charge of double murder, George O'Neil will learn to-day the decision of the Grand Jury of the Fall Assizes upon the bill which is to be presented against him. If a true bill is returned, he will go immediately on trial for his life.

The case arises out of the death on February 4 last of Azor Robertson, a 72 year old farmer of Tecumseh Township, and his daughter, Mrs. Ruby Martin, aged 35. The pair met their fate in the burning of a barn on the Robertson farm, where O'Neil was employed as a hired man. Upon the recovery of Robertson's body, a pool of human blood was found near it, and close at hand was the handle of a pulper machine. O'Neil was in the barn at the time of the fire, but escaped. His story was that he did not know that Mrs. Martin was in the building, and that he went back in an effort to rescue his employer, but could not find him.

The case was the first one presented to the grand jury when Mr. Justice McEvoy opened the Fall Assizes. His Lordship presented the evidence to the jurors, instructing them to reflect carefully in returning their verdict. "Three persons were in that burning building," he said. "Two were burned beyond recognition, while the remaining survivor, burned about the hands, testifies that he did not know Mrs. Martin was in the barn, nor could he locate Mr. Robertson when he returned to help him."

The Grand Jury retired at three o'clock to weigh the evidence presented to them. They will return their verdict to-day.

The murder trial is the first one in Barrie since 1918. Urish McFadden, K.C., of Sault Ste. Marie, is Crown Prosecutor, and H. H. Cheswicke, of Barrie, defence counsel.

WANTS $5500 FOR HUG BY A MONKEY.

Los Angeles, Oct. 3 (By NEA Service).—Miss Anna Maurer is one young lady who is particular about her embraces. No monkey can hug her without paying dearly for it, she says.

So she filed suit against Samuel Grant, a neighbor, for damages alleged to have been suffered when Grant's pet monkey hugged her. Her nerves were shattered, her complaint sets forth, and she suffered minor injuries when the animal tried to show its affection.

Grain Has Big Setback In Trading At Chicago

CHICAGO, October 10 (Canadian Press).—In sympathy with weakness of the Liverpool wheat market, wheat values here underwent an early setback to-day. Corn prices also went lower, general selling being witnessed when a bulge at the start resulted from the Government crop report. Opening half to three-quarters to 7-8 off, Chicago wheat later showed a material further drop. Corn opened unchanged to a half higher, and subsequently suffered a decided downturn. Oats were easier.

Advance Speculation Sweeps N. Y. Market

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.— (Canadian Press.)—Speculation for the advance was resumed on a broad scale in to-day's stock market, a rally in high-priced industrial specialties being conducted with considerable violence. Extreme gains in active issues ranged from one to thirteen points with at least a score selling at record high levels. Trading was conducted at a brisk pace with the ticker falling twenty minutes or more behind the market by early afternoon. The rapidity of the advance indicated an over sold position in many stocks, shorts being driven to cover by the appearance of large buying orders. Merger, recapitalization and higher dividend rumors accompanied the advance in many issues.

Call money was again in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of six and a half per cent. Time money also displayed an easier undertone. Wall street apparently was not disturbed by the statement of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank that "credit expansion resulting from incessing stock prices is fairly close to the safe limit."

Outside the stock market chief interest centred in the monthly tonnage report of the United States' Steel Corporation showing a gain of nearly 75,000 tons in unfilled orders last month.

heaviest sales of any issue up to noon was up ¾ at 63¼. Hamilton Bridge was another active issue and was up 1¼ at 47¼.

Mine Market Decline Continues At Toronto

TORONTO, October 10 (Canadian Press). — The decline which set in on the Standard Mining Exchange yesterday continued to-day. Still lower levels were reached by many issues and the weakness broadened out to include many of the penny stocks which had held firm yesterday. Newbec suffered most of all with a drop of eight and one-half to 42½ at the close. Selling was very heavy, sales totalling 310,900 shares. Tough Oakes was a close second as far as activity was concerned, and dropped to seventeen, stiffening at the close to 19¼.

Noranda got below $46.00, and closed at that figure with a net drop of 15. Sherritt-Gordon for the first time in as many weeks, sold at $6.00, a drop of 15. Hudson Bay was down ofrty at 13.10, Jackson-Manion two and one-half at 85½, and Pend Oreille 1.05 at 1.50. Central Manitoba dropped four to 80 and Amulet three to 2.57. Mond Nickel was one of the few strong spots of the market, advancing 50 to 33.50. Big Missouri was up three at 59, and Abana two at 4.20. While Hollinger with only a single odd lot sale, was unchanged at 7.50.

Loblaw Makes Big Gain On the Toronto Market

TORONTO, October 10 (Canadian Press).—Prices turned firmer on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Cockshutt advanced 1 1-8 to 30 7-8, while the largest gain was made by Loblaw, up 3¼ at 88¾. International Nickel stiffened up to 139½, afterwards relapsing to 138⅝ for a net gain of ¾. Imperial Oil advanced sharply to 80¼ from the previous close of 77 7-8. Walkers, with the

Obituary

ELMA WEAVER.
Only two years of age, little Elma Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Weaver, passed away on Saturday morning, October 6, following a brief illness. The family had moved here from Coboconk, Ontario, about two months ago. The sorrowing parents, three brothers and one sister survive.
The funeral took place from Bellegham's Funeral Home on Monday afternoon at two o'clock, to Little Lake Cemetery, the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, of Murray Street Baptist Church, conducting the services.

His wife was a good woman, my son was a good boy.

"Someone killed the both of them. Then the murderer either forged that note or had some one forge it and leave it so as to make it appear that George was so jealous of Mr. Pacey that he killed his wife.

"My boy never wrote that note, you could never make him write it. Even though you held a gun to his head and commanded that he write it under threat of death he would have refused. He would never ruin his own, his mother's or Mrs. Pacey's reputation."

Friends Start Petition.

Despite Mrs. Knox's feelings in the matter, influencial friends of the dead youth, so bitterly grieved and outraged at the accusations against the boy, have taken the matter in their own hands to the extent of circulating petitions for the official action either of the commonwealth of Massachusetts or the State Department at Washington. Such petitions would in any case, in view of the mother's attitude, be ignored should they ever reach their objective.

This section has never witnessed such a funeral as that given the dead boy. No other youth of his age was ever accorded such a tribute. The service held in the Memorial Chapel at Swampscott was attended by a vast multitude. Possibly there were many of the curious there, but at the same time there were hundreds of people of every creed and age who went because they had known, admired and loved young George Knox.

Parents Still Estranged.

One of the most dramatic features of this strange case here was the attitude of the dead youth's parents toward each other at the cemetery and during the services, which were as impressive and sad as they were beautiful. Each went to the cemetery separately. They sat apart during the service and at no time were they seen to converse or even recognize one another.

Rumor had had it that these grief stricken parents who had been legally separated in the divorce courts of Massachusetts but a few years ago were to become reconciled through the deep grief of their boy's death. Much had been expected along these lines and from appearances it had been expected that the mother and father would at least be "friendly enemies."

Just what occurred to cause them to break still further apart in their behaviour toward one another is not known. Ugly rumor, and there seems to be plenty of it in connection with the case here has it that mother and father quarrelled over the extent of their son being involved in the Peterborough tragedy.

Finance Grief Stricken.

Another sad feature of this case is the great grief of the young woman whom, it had been expected, was to marry young Knox. Very prominent, the daughter of one of the leading families of this city, her name has been kept from publication.

The young woman, for unknown reasons, greatly resented young Knox going to Peterborough to enter the Collegiate Institute. She wanted and demanded that he remain in Lynn, but the youth explained to her that he had an opportunity, long sought, to bring his mother and father together again and from that opening it is learned that young Knox was considerably depressed the past few months in Peterborough. Time and time again he made the effort, determined to bring about a reconciliation, but without success. He was about to give it up and return here to Lynn, without finishing his Peterborough schooling, when this tragedy came. It was more than he could continue to stand, he had written her, being unable to do anything about his parents' continued separation.

Young Knox thought a lot of his mother; he loved his father, too. That is plain to be seen from the letters and statements he made previous to going to Ontario.

Both mother and father detest the publicity given the entire affair and the necessity of dragging their domestic affiars out into the light. Just what the plans of Rupert Knox, the father, may be are not known. He has not discussed the case in any way, withholding all comment. It is expected that he will return to Peterborough immediately, as apparently there is nothing to hold him here.

The strange case continues to be the sole topic of conversation not only in Lynn, but all through this section of New England. Interest is keen and comment is heard over the inability to secure connected facts from Ontario through the daily papers of New England.

Petitions Circulated.

LYNN, Mass., October 10 (Special to The Examiner). — Petitions are in the marking seeking the good offices of the State of Massachusetts and the Federal Government at Washington to secure from the Dominion authorities an independent and thorough tragedy in which George Frederick Knox, 19-year-old Lynn youth, met his death along with his 35-year-old boarding-house keeper, Mrs. Thomas Pacey.

Specialists in criminal law, national and international, were consulted, and while the mother and friends of the dead youth were advised that it was best to leave the investigation entirely in the hands of the Ontario police, the petitions are still in circulation.

Many here agree with his mother that both Mrs. Pacey and the youth had been murdered, and a note, a forgery, left to cover the deed, to protect the real murderer. Friends, influential and otherwise, flocked to the broken-hearted mother's side and offered their assistance to prove that the accusation against the dead youth was false.

Yesterday almost a thousand people followed the coffin of the boy to Swampscott Cemetery, not far from here. A heart-broken mother, on the very verge of a nervous prostration, and a grief-stricken father beside himself in mental agony, sat on opposite sides of the chapel. They neither glanced at one another nor spoke a word; in fact, they arrived at the chapel separately and departed as they came.

Some time ago George Knox's mother and father were legally separated by the divorce courts. Custody of the boy was given the mother. He graduated from Williston, Mass., eager to study forestry, and the reputation of the institute in Peterborough appealed to him. By a strange coincidence, George's father, Rupert Knox, resided in Peterborough, where he was connected with the C.G.E. Company. Because she did not wish to have the father feel that she objected to the boy being with him or seeing him, Mrs. Knox finally allowed her son to go.

"I have tried to defend the good character of my boy with all my strength," declared Mrs. Knox. "He was a wholesome, clean chap, without an unclean thought in his brain. I am certain that Mrs. Pacey was a fine, moral woman and true wife; their interest in one another was like mother and son. George could never have brought himself to shoot her. He could never have written that note; and I am sure he would not have written it if one held a gun to his head threatening to kill him if he did not do so. Neither could he have killed himself.

"I am satisfied some one killed both Mrs. Pacey and he, and then forged the note, trying to make out that George killed her because of passion or love and jealousy of her husband."

Nothing Official.

OTTAWA, October 10 (Special to The Examiner). — The office of the Secretary of State for External Affairs has received no representations from any United States authority in respect to the Peterborough double shooting. The Examiner was informed to-day.

A New Day Is Here

Achievement to-day cannot be measured in terms of yesterday. Health science has also made progress, and to-day you have the wonderful health science of Chiropractic to help you keep well and strong.

THE ENERGY
used for every bodily activity is distributed to every tissue cell by the spinal cord and nerves. The spinal cord is encased within the spinal column and nerves leave the spinal cord through openings between the vertebrae. These vertebrae in their normal position serve to protect the nerves, but if the spine should receive a bad jar, twist or strain and a vertebrae (as frequently happens) remains slightly out of normal alignment, it will constrict some nerve fibres. This may effect you as lumbago, stiff neck, lame shoulders or headache, depending upon the portion of the spine where the derangement exists. These ailments, along with many others, respond satisfactorily to Chiropractic spinal adjustments, so do not continue to suffer, but use the scientific health method of to-day to aid you in keeping well.

No Reconcilation Possible, Says Mrs. Knox

Will Make Husband Pay Up

Attorneys Seeking Warrant For Arrest of Knox For Non-Payment.

OPINION UNCHANGED.

Mother of Dead Boy Still Determined to Come Here to Work On Case.

(Special to The Examiner)

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 11.— All hope that reconciliation could possibly be developed between Rupert E. Knox of Peterborough, Ontario and his wife, Mrs. Josephine May Knox of this city the estranged parents of George Frederick Knox, whose body was found beside that of his landlady in the Canadian city, the result of either a murder and suicide or a double killing, vanished to-day when Attorneys representing the distracted mother sought to secure a warrant for the arrest of the heart-broken father. A divorce action brought by Mrs. Knox in Pittsfield of this Commonwealth is still pending.

At the time the probate court of Berkshire County ordered Knox to pay his wife $75 a month the Knox family resided in Pittsfield where the father was affiliated with the General Electric Company and Mrs. Knox in her divorce action alleged that her husband deserted her in that city.

Attorneys representing Mrs. Knox made every effort this morning to secure from Joseph L. Barry, clerk of the district court of southern Essex a warrant for the arrest of Knox because of the husband's failure to pay the monthly amounts ordered by the Pittsfield court. Clerk Barry refused, stating that no contempt warrant had been received from the police of Pittsfield. A bitter controversy followed, which caused officers to be called to settle the matter.

Wants No Reconciliation

Mrs. Knox, in an exclusive interview yesterday evening made it plain that she desires and will consider no reconciliation. She further admitted that she was attempting to force payments of the monthly payments due her and would have the matter taken up with the probate court at Pittsfield, where the order was rendered, to-day.

"I do not want and will not consider any reconciliation," she stated, in her most emphatic manner. "I will entertain no such proposal. George used to write me of this and I know he was always talking to his father about it, but I have no intent or wish to resume relations with Mr. Knox. That is final.

Rumor has it that the domestic happiness of the couple was first broken when they resided in Watertown. Queried as to this Mrs. Knox would have nothing to say, "I do not care to amplify that part of our life story. Sufficient it is to state that my husband left the boy and me in Pittsfield. We got along very nicely until the payments ordered by the court stopped and since then it has not been very pleasant.

Opinion Unchanged

"No, I have not changed by mind about the Peterborough affair," she answered in response to questions. "I am more convinced that ever that Mrs. Pacey and my son were murdered and that the real murderer left the forged note. I have more information to-day and it would tend to support my theory."

Mrs. Knox, it became known yesterday, sent a stirring if not pathetic appeal to Detective W. E. Meagher, who has charge of the investigation at Peterborough. Mrs. Knox would not disclose the text of the note left with the bodies and a special investigation to ascertain for whom her son had borrowed the pistol which was the cause of the killings. It is understood here that the boy borrowed the pistol from his father just before the tragedy, securing it to loan to a third person.

Knox Collapses.

Mr. Knox, whose mental sufferings here have been terrible to behold, collapsed yesterday afternoon and was taken to the home of his mother, Mrs Martha Boynton, at 36 Sewell street. The man has been under a terrible strain.

It is stated by relatives of the family that Mr. Knox does not hold the viewpoint that his wife does concerning the Peterborough tragedy, the fact that his son borrowed the pistol from him for "target practice" having convinced him that the boy contemplated the shooting of Mrs. Pacey and himself. Yet Mr. Knox, in

PROSPECTOR KILLED IN NORTH WHEN PLANE FORCED TO LAND STRIKES REEF; SIX MEN SAVED

One Member of Party Badly Frozen When Picked Up By Tug.

DETAILS UNKNOWN.

Plane Belonged To Company Formed Last Year To Explore Northern Mine Areas.

THE PAS, Man., Oct. 11 (Special to The Examiner).—One member of the Northern Aerial Mineral Exploration party is dead and another prospector is badly frozen and is in a critical condition, according to word reaching The Pas to-day.

The men were in the Hudson Bay area seeking minerals and are believed to be members of a party being transported by airplane to a new field on what is known as the North Plane. The plane, forced to land, it is understood, crashed on a reef.

Word of the precarious position of the men on the plane was radioed to a Dominion Government tug operating in the Hudson Bay district. It at once rushed to the scene of the wreck and was able to rescue six of the men of the airplane. The name of the pilot in charge has not yet been learned. As soon as word of the fatality reached here, Captain Oaks was sent out by plane to render all help possible.

Organized Last Year

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 11. — The Northern Aerial Mineral Exploration Company was organized about a year ago by J. E. Hammell, well known Toronto and North Country mining man. Its object was the exploration of the Hudson Bay district which the promoters believed to be rich in minerals.

Early this summer members of the party sailed aboard the schooner Patrick and Michael to start active work.

Reports from the North have been of an encouraging nature.

A few weeks ago the company requested Ottawa to life the suspension on "Duke" Schiller's flying license. They explained at the time that it was necessary to the safety of the men in the North that communications be kept open at all times.

"Duke" Schiller, they thought, was the one man capable of carrying out the work. Whether Schiller was the pilot on the ill-fated plane is not yet known.

The Toronto offices of the N.A.M.E. stated they had received no word of the tragedy.

Robber Throws Fits Night Before Trial

CHATHAM, Ont., October 11 (Canadian Press). — John Grbic, the Detroit youth who held up the mail car of a Canadian National train near here on October 2, and escaped with packages estimated to contain $22,500, only to be arrested trying to enter Detroit, was remanded until Monday on appearance before Magistrate Arnold to-day. Grbic refused to talk when brought into the Court, and the silence was taken as a plea of not guilty. He indicated preference for trial by a magistrate. He was alleged to have been faking fits in his cell at the County Jail during the night.

BIG ZEPPELIN LEAVES FOR U.S.

Graf Zeppelin Takes Off Without Hitch For Long Flight.

60 PERSONS ON BOARD.

FREIDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, October 11 (Canadian Press). — Germany's huge new dirigible, the Graf Zepeplin, bigger and mightier than any airship yet completed, flew westward to-day at an average speed of 95 miles an hour, with passengers and mail for America. Sixty persons were aboard, a crew of forty and twenty passengers, among them Lady Grace Drummond Hay, of England. Dr. Hugo Eckener, builder and commander, hoped to bring the airship down at Lakehurst, N.J., some 5,100 miles away, on Sunday morning. The airship took off from the hangar here this morning and headed toward the Atlantic, where heavy storms were reported, and because of this it was likely to follow the route by way of the Azores.

Take-off Uneventful.

Despite the feverish excitement which prevailed around the hangars in the last few days the dirigible got away with clock-like precision and with less fuss at the start than it takes to get a trans-Atlantic liner away from its berth. The crew took posts quietly, and the passengers embarked at 7 a.m., and the huge craft was dragged by two hundred men slowly out of the hangar. Two minutes later the stalwart workmen let go, and it rose to a height of 150 feet. The nose was pointed upward, and the craft climbed as it circled the city. Finally it headed westward and disappeared from view on what was hoped to be the third east-to-west flight across the Atlantic.

Dr. Eckener said before leaving he expected, in view of the storms, to stick to the southern course, while Captain Lehman, navigating officer, said it was possible the ship would go as far south as Africa and then head for the Azores. The ship carried a big store of provisions and liquors.

First in Ten Years

PARIS, Oct. 11 (Canadian Press). —Sailing majestically over Southern France on her voyage from Germany to the United States, the Graf Zeppelin, the first German dirigible to cross the French frontier since armistice ten years ago, was heading for the Atlantic coast this afternoon. The giant air liner was eagerly watched for by all France, and nowhere did there appear any signs of animosity over the "raid."

Weather conditions were unfavorable but better conditions prevailed out at sea. The big Zeppelin travelled pretty well on schedule.

Dirigible Over Mediterranean

Paris, Oct. 11.—(Canadian Press) —The Graf Zeppelin left France and headed out over the Mediterranean this afternoon and probably will be signalled next over Barcelona. Dr. Eckener, the commander, followed the River Rhone Valley. His wisdom in picking the southern route to cross the Atlantic to the States was shown in the weather reports from the Atlantic Coast of France. Tempests were raging on the shores of Brittany and the Vendee.

Car That Won't Go Not Motor Vehicle Says Mr. Justice Orde, Quashing Conviction

TORONTO, October 11 (Canadian Press). — A motor car which is out of repair and cannot move under its own power is not a motor vehicle under the Ontario statutes, Mr. Justice Orde decided to-day in quashing the conviction of Fred Higgins, on a charge of being intoxicated while in charge of a motor vehicle.

Higgins was convicted at Belleville, and in his appeal pleaded that at the time of his alleged intoxication his car was disabled in the ditch. While waiting for the repair truck, he accepted some refreshments from a kindly motorist.

BOARD OF EDUCATION REFUSES PLEA OF KIWANIANS FOR HALL

Program Arranged For Collegiate Auditorium Must Be Given Elsewhere.

OUTSTANDING ARTISTS.

Score of Musicians Already Booked—Ceremonial Opening Must Come First.

So large is the program prepared by Kiwanis Club for the Produced in Canada Exhibition this year that accommodation in the Armouries is all too limited. The Canadian Legion Hall has been hired for the week, but this, too, is fully booked up. And it is to-day announced by Dr. J. J. Craig, manager of the Fair, that use of the Collegiate Assembly Hall has been refused by the Board of Education.

Application for the use of this auditorium was made many months ago, and tentatively promised. Dr. Craig accordingly proceeded with his arrangements to bring to Peterborough such a galaxy of musical talent as had never before appeared on any platforms here. His artists include Miss Marie Thompson, of Edinburgh, and Miss Jean Buchanan, also of Edinburgh, who won fame at the C.P.R. Scottish Festival at Banff last month in recitals of Hebridean songs and in piano solos; Canadian Singers, a sextette of women's voices, renowned all over North America; Carlo Lamberti, tenor, of the Barnaby Nelson Studio, Toronto; Violet Scott Hannah, coloratura soprano, of Toronto; Bertha Louis Tamblyn and Edith Lelean Groves, of Toronto, lyric and music composers, in the inimitable "We Are Seven"; Mrs. T. L. Crossley, of Toronto; George R. Spragg, late of the Sir Frank Benson Shakesperean Company, London in dramatic recitals; and many other equally outstanding numbers.

This program is now seriously menaced, Dr. Craig admits, by the refusal of the Board of Education to grant the use of the new Collegiate Assembly Hall, but an effort will be made to find another hall, so that the people of Peterborough district shall not be deprived of the unusual opportunity to hear outstanding artists. Dr. Craig, who is past-President of the Kiwanis Club, feels keenly the position of the Fair managers, who advertised in good faith the presentation of this program, and now find themselves faced with disaster through a situation not under their control. Appeals made in a personal visit to the Minister of Education, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, by Dr. Craig, proved ineffective, the Premier pointing out that he had no jurisdiction over the use to which the local Board of Education puts this people's hall.

The Board is witholding its permission, it is said, because the hall has not been ceremoniously opened. The Board invited Premier Ferguson to officiate at the opening, but he has definitely declared that he will not be present. Parts of the extension have been in use for some weeks.

Board Alone Rules.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 11.— (Special.)— The Peterborough Board of Education has sole jurisdiction over the use of its Collegiate Assembly Hall, it was stated at Queen's Park to-day regarding the action of that body denying the Kiwanis Club the hall for the Exhibition.

"If any appeal to us were made we would send it back to the Peterborough Board," the Examiner was informed to-day at the offices of the Provincial Board of Education. "We have no check whatever save to see that educational buildings are used for proper educational purposes. A Made-in-Canada Exhibition would seem to come under that classification all right. But it is a matter for the Peterborough Board to decide."

"Is there no action the Kiwanis Club can take?" asked the Examiner.

"They will have to fight it with the Peterborough Board. That is all we can say."

47 Burn To Death When Oil Is Ignited

RANGOON BURMAH, Oct. 11 —(Canadian Press).—Forty seven natives, including eighteen women, were burned to death in a pool of flaming oil on Monday night. The oil leaked from a pipe line and the natives gathered to get what they could when an unguarded lamp set it ablaze.

REFUTATION IS REPORTED

Premier's Speech On Immigration Too Late For London Papers.

TIMES SUPPORTS VIEWS.

LONDON, England, Oct. 11—(Canadian Press Cable).—The fact that Premier King's speech finished late last night at the Canada Club probably is largely responsible for the reports in the British press being considerably condensed to-day and also for the absence of general editorial comment. Most papers, however, report his refutation of the allegation that Canada does not require British immigrants.

The Times today discusses the migration problem generally rather than the Premier's speech and says no one on this side of the Atlantic has ever been so blinded by disappointment at slow progress as to cast doubts upon the sincerity of the governments of Dominions.

"Every means should be taken to show them we fully share their consciousness of the fact that the building up of the great state is a process not to be hurried," says the Times.

SCOUTS TO TALK FIRE PREVENTION

Peterborough Troops Will Meet at Fire Hall On Friday.

The Boy Scouts of Peterborough are noted for their interest in all things that benefit the community, and that is why a large representation of each of the five troops in the city is expected at a meeting in the fire hall, Aylmer street at seven o'clock on Friday evening.

Secretary Taylor, of the Scout Association is eager to see the boys turn out, for they will benefit by a short snappy address by Fire Chief Gimblett. The meeting is being held in connection with the Fire Prevention Week campaign and though the chief has not exactly said so, the fellows who turn out are likely to be allowed a mighty unusual "close-up" of the fire trucks, engine and other equipment. Who wouldn't take advantage of such a meeting.

MR. JUSTICE ROSE FINDS BOTH PARTIES TO SUIT RESPONSIBLE FOR SHARE OF DAMAGE CAUSED

Assesses Mrs. Rattan's Sufferings at $2,700 and Awards Her Half.

FOR CAR ACCIDENT.

Driver Should Have Used More Care in Turning Into Wellington Street, He Says.

Judgment for the plaintiff for the sum of $1,350 was given to Mrs. H. Rattan this morning by the Hon. Mr. Justice Rose in the civil action arising out of an accident in the village of Norwood on the night of October 29, 1927, when the plaintiff was knocked down by an automobile driven by Nigel O'Conor-Fenton and owned by his mother. The plaintiff, through her lawyer, F. D. Kerr, K.C., had sued for $4,000 and costs. W. F. Huycke and G. O'Shea acted for the defendants.

His Lordship, in giving judgment, found that the defendant had not taken necessary precaution when he turned the corner of Victoria and Wellington streets in the village of Norwood that night just before striking the plaintiff, and he also found that the plaintiff had not take necessary precautions to protect herself against the accident. But as the onus under the Highway Traffic Act is on the motorist and the court held that it was the ordinary duty of the motorist to use such care as if pedestrians in his path were anticipated. Justice Rose found that both parties were responsible to one-half.

Two witnesses were called by Mr. Huycke this morning, and Mr Kerr recalled two in reply.

When court opened, Mr. Kerr took up the cross-examination of Nigel O'Conor-Fenton. The defendant gave his age at the time of the accident as 23 years. On that night, he said, he was driving his mother's car and coming from the Canadian Pacific station in Norwood with two passengers. The three were in the front seat of the car, and as he approached the turn he took his foot off the gas and his car slowed down to twelve miles an hour. As the lights of the automobile swung onto the road after making the turn, witness said he noticed a woman right in front of the car. He immediately applied the brakes and swung to the left. The woman moved to her right, and the car passed over her body.

Ruth Longmuir, an occupant of the automobile on the night of the accident, was called. As they turned the corner witness said, she saw Mrs. Rattan right in front of the car on the road, four or five feet from the edge.

Wallace Earl McConnell, aged 23 the third occupant in the car that night, said the defendants car was going fifteen miles an hour until Wellington street was turned into and then the rate was reduced to 12 miles. The first he saw of Mrs. Rattan was when she was six or seven feet in front of the car. Mr. Fenton immediately applied brakes both hand and foot and swerved to the left. Mrs. Rattan immediately stepped to her right in front of the car," he said. "At that time," witness said, "Mrs Rattan was two or three feet from the edge of the road."

Judgement Delivered

His Lordship in delivering judgment said, "This case is by no means easy to decide. One of the difficulties is the apparent conflict between two sets of credible witnesses. However, after careful consideration of the evidence of all the witnesses, I have come to the conclusion that the evidence of Nigel O'Conor-Fenton and Mr. McConnell we have probably as accurate a statement of the parts as can be hoped for in one of these unfortunate cases in which witnesses are doing their best to describe events. I think the defendant's car came down Victoria street at a rate of about 15 miles an hour slowed a little at the turn at Wellington street, did not run into any portion of the grass, ran into Mrs. Rattan, was stopped very shortly, and then driven on to the north side of Wellington street. I think Mrs. Rattan was struck when she was well up on the road.

Onus on Driver

"The first inquiry is whether the defendants have satisfied me as the onus rests on them in the Highway Traffic Act. I have come to the conclusion that they have not. I think it is the duty of the driver turning into such a street as Wellington street to be pretty sure the way is clear and in order to be

ADDRESSES ALDERMEN.

HON. PETER HEENAN,
Minister of Labor in the Federal Cabinet, who was the guest of the City Council at noon to-day, and will address the Knights of Columbus to-night.

ONTARIO CASE IS CONCLUDED

Navigation May Be Permitted Only By Province, Tilley Contends.

QUEBEC CASE PRESENTED.

OTTAWA, Oct. 11. — (Canadian Press.)—Ontario closed its case before the Supreme Court of Canada to-day on the issue of Federal and Provincial control over water powers and navigation. In briefly summing up the contentions of Ontario, W. N. Tilley, K.C., raised the point that the questions placed before the court were inadequate to enable satisfactory answers to be given to the whole question of the division of legislative control over and proprietary interest in the water powers.

Mr. Tilley contended there was no public right of navigation over an inland non-tidal river unless the same had been acquired by immemorial usage or by act of the Provincial Legislature. The only power the Dominion had was to regulate navigation where navigation existed in fact. He also claimed the Dominion did not possess any right to use part of the bed of a Provincial river or to divert the flow without the consent of province and without compensation.

Quebec Case Differs.

QUEBEC, Oct. 11.— The Quebec case in support of Ontario was presented by Eugene Lafleur, K.C. Variance with Ontario was noted, however, in the admission by Quebec that the public right of navigation existed over rivers in Quebec.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY WILL BE BEST YET

Citizens' Committee Begins Planning For Annual Festival.

At a meeting last evening of the Citizens' Committee in connection with the Hallowe'en party to be held again this year on Wednesday, October 31, plans and ideas were talked over, and this year's Hallowe'en demonstration should even be more popular and spontaneous than any year yet held.

It is a citizens' community night, and every citizen, young and old, is expected to take some part in this affair.

It is further expected that costumers will be in this year again from as far as Madoc, Port Hope, Campbellford, and in between towns and villages.

It is not too early now to have an idea of the costume you will wear, and get it in shape in an endeavor to win one of the good prizes that will be offered.

Economic Course Urged

Hon. Peter Heenan Thinks More Knowledge Would Aid Development.

GUEST OF CITY.

Speaks Favorably of Peterborough's Prospects at Luncheon Tendered By Council.

"I believe that an understanding of our country and its opportunities would be one of the greatest factors in the development of Canada," declared the Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, in the course of his address to the members of the City Council, and representatives of various civic bodies at a luncheon accorded him by the former body, in the Empress Hotel at noon to-day.

Guests at the luncheon, besides the Minister, were Senator McGuire, of Toronto, who claims Peterborough as his birthplace, and Frank O'Connor, also of Toronto. During the morning the visitors had enjoyed visits to the Quaker Oats plant and the Canadian General Electric plant, and this afternoon, in company with His Worship Mayor Denne and others, they will visit the Hydraulic Lift Lock.

Mr. Heenan will address a gathering of the Knights of Columbus to-night.

Alderman Macdonald, chairman of the Reception Committee of the Council, presided during the luncheon meeting, and he it was who called upon His Worship Mayor Denne. In so doing he voiced his appreciation of the visitors' presence, and extended a welcome to them.

Mayor Denne.

His Worship Mayor Roland Denne struck a happy note for the gathering in his address of welcome to Mr. Heenan, Mr. O'Connor, and Senator McGuire. He recalled meeting Mr. Heenan and inviting him to Peterborough at one time, and to-day he took pleasure in welcoming him.

He took pleasure in introducing the Minister.

THE HON. PETER HEENAN

Evidently the City of Peterborough had made a favorable impression upon the Hon. Peter Heenan, for when he arose to address the meeting, his opening remarks, not only evidenced that Irish wit for which he is somewhat famed, but also were decidedly complimentary regarding the industrial and scenic advantages locally. "If I had ever entertained any doubt as to the business ability of the citizens of Peterborough, that doubt has been dispelled," said he. "Though this is my first visit to your city, I have had the pleasure of meeting many of your people, generally about the government buildings, and have always found them in good spirits and optimistic regarding the possibilities of their home city."

Referring to Senator McGuire's rise to the Senate, Mr. Heenan humorously remarked that his having been born in Peterborough must have been a strong factor.

Coming to the more serious aspects of his address, the minister said in part: "I am delighted to see such a beautiful city with such industrial development. Take, for instance, the Canadian General Electric, which I had the pleasure of visiting this morning. As you know, the development of electric power in our country is as yet, in its infancy, and therefore, the C.G.E. must necessarily be only the forerunner of a much greater Peterborough industry, yet to come."

In the above connection, Mr. Heenan took occasion to remark upon the power of newspaper articles, either for good or ill. He instanced the effect upon the uninformed laymen of an article which stated that the government had given a tract of timber land worth some $30,000,000, to some individual or company, when, as a matter of fact, the overhead in developing that tract, before it could be worth a single dollar, would be far too great to be practical so far as the government was concerned. Therefore the government should not have been accused of giving away millions of dollars' worth of timber and land.

"I have often wondered if it is to the interests of Canada to be able to pick up newspapers and read such articles. Because of such propaganda, the progress of the country is retarded rather than assisted. Public ownership is another cry that is seldom of benefit, for there are very few, if any, instances of it coming up to expectations. That is why we should develop our resources for the people when it is possible, but I cannot see the wisdom of keeping our resources tied up because the people are not ready for their development.

Mr. Heenan voiced his opinion, prompted by discussion with university authorities, that a series of economic lectures, if properly carried out, might be of great benefit for, said he, "I believe that an understanding of our own country and its opportunities, would be one of the greatest factors in the development of Canada."

Horse Racing Is Feature at Norwood Fair

QUALITY OF ENTRIES EXCEEDS FORMER YEARS, SCHOOL CHAMPIONSHIP FAIR

Practically Every Item On Prize List Contested—Competition Keen.

BABY SHOW HELD.

Horse Racing Divided Into Three Classes—Large Midway.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Oct 11.—Approximately five thousand people were in Norwood yesterday afternoon for the express purpose of attending the Fair. This year is the sixtieth successive year that this town has held a fall exhibition and the citizens may well be proud of the board of directors which made the diamond jubilee year such an outstanding success. To them must be given the major portion of the credit for yesterday afternoon. Fine weather favored the event and only once during the entire afternoon did a dull sky threaten rain. Then, as if to remind the pleasure seekers of other years, a light shower sent hundreds of people scurrying for the shelter of the buildings and the hundreds of automobiles that were parked everywhere about the grounds. The rush across the track just as the starter was trying to score the fast horses, caused considerable anxiety in the stand. But there were no accidents and as nearly as could be seen, only one near accident. This was when a pedestrian walked right into the path of a horse travelling at an easy speed. Bystanders shouted and the unwary man jumped to safety from under the very head of the horse just as the driver saw the situation and swung his steed clear.

The four big attractions at the fair this year were the horse racing, driving circle, the midway, the armouries which was used as an exhibition hall, and the school championship fair. This year the number of entrants exceeded that of former years by a wide margin. Practically every item on the prize list was contested. The main exhibition building was the armouries. The garden and orchard produce were also to be found there. All afternoon huge crowds passed along the rows of exhibits and not a little interest was shown in the baby show which was held in a room at the rear of the building.

Keen Competitions.

Keen competition was a feature of the baby show. This contest was conceived with the idea of promoting better babies. The judging was done by a medical doctor, assisted by nurses from Peterborough. Judging began at one-thirty in the afternoon and it was well past four

CRUSHED UNDER UPSET CHOPPER

Wolsey Northey, of Lakehurst, Has Narrow Escape.

HEAD IS CUT.

LAKEHURST, Oct. 11 (Examiner Correspondence).—An accident which might have led to more serious consequences than it did occurred at the farm of Wolsey Northey of Lakehurst, on Tuesday, October 9.

Mr. Northey was operating a chopping machine, when the lace with which the belt was connected became loose, and was caught in one of the cogs of the machine.

The result was that the machine was overturned and Mr. Northey was pinned underneath it. A boy, Mr. Northey's only assistant, ran to the house for help and Mr. Northey was extricated from beneath the machine. Dr. Edwin E. Willis of Hall's Bridge, and Dr. Kelly of Bobcaygeon were called to the scene of the accident.

Upon examination it was found that Mr. Northey was badly cut about the head and face, and bruised in the chest and shoulders, but apparently no bones had been broken.

Had to Keep Hands Out of Water. Cuticura Heals.

"Eczema started with an irritation and soreness between my fingers. Later it broke out in small pimples which worsened and full of water. I had to keep my hands out of water, and could not do my regular work. The itching and burning certainly kept me awake at night.

After using it I discovered the trouble was disappearing so I purchased more, and my hands were perfect after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment." PEDESTRIANS USE FOOTPATH

Isaac Puffer, Norwood Consable Questioned in Rattan-Fenton Case.

DEFENSE WITNESSES HEARD

Defence witnesses were heard yesterday afternoon by the Honorable Mr. Justice Rose at the fall sessions of the Supreme Court of the County of Peterborough in the Mrs. H. Ratton vs. Nigel O'Conor-Fenton case. Isaac Puffer was the first witness called by W. F. Huycke counsel for Mr. O'Conor-Fenton. Mr. Puffer is the constable in Norwood and it was in front of his home where the accident occurred on October 29th, 1927. When he arrrived at the scene he said he found two men lifting Mrs. Rattan up from the roadway. He immediately told them to take he into hi shome but in the meantime Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Rattan.s daughter arrived and had her mother moved to her home which is across the street. Constable Puffer said he followed the tracks made by the tires of the car and found them to be on the beaten roadway and believed it would have been impossible to his Mrs. Rattan if she had been on the path at the side of road. He was questioned on the number of pedestrians using the road and claimed that quite a number used the footpath at the side. Leo Ackford a Peterborough garageman was put in the box to give evidence on the distance a car could be stopped and said that he believed a car going at 15 miles an hour should be brought to a stop in 20 feet on the kind of roadway where the accident occurred.

Two witnesses for the plaintiff were also called by Mr. Kerr before he closed his case. Anthony McNeil who lives across the road from the scene of the accident was asked about the number of pedestrians using the roadway. He estimated that nearly all the through-going traffic walked on the road.

Robert Gardner a farmer living a mile out of Norwood and a brother of the plaintiff, also gave evidence as to the number of people using the beaten roadway. In his experience he said he had found that nearly all pedestrians followed the road.

An attempt will be made this morning to close the case. Mr. Huycke has only two witnesses to call and then there will be the lawyers' arguments before the judge.

FARMER IS FREED OF MANSLAUGHTER

Had Been Instructed By Employer To Watch For Grain Thieves.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., October 11 (Canadian Press). — Stephen Bygraves, farm hand, who yesterday morning admitted shooting a neighboring farmer, Cecil Silverthorne, when left by his employer in the barn to watch for grain thieves, was acquitted of manslaughter by a jury at the Assizes yesterday afternoon, and discharged by Justice Wright. Bygrave maintained that he attempted to shoot over the man's head, hoping that the intruder would stop and he would learn his identity. Several shots entered Silverthorne's head. When Bygrave discovered the identity of the man he carried Silverthorne to his home where he died a day later. W. M. German, defence counsel, sought to establish the fact that a previous operation on Silverthorne's head superinduced death.

Alex. Federow, convicted last night along with Tony Smelle of manslaughter, as a result of the death of Tony Nupi after a fight in Fort Weller on Labor Day, was sentenced to six years. Smelle received a sentence of five years.

A SUNSET DIVORCE.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Elizabeth Jones of White Plains, who mothered nine children to maturity in 31 years of married life, has obtained a divorce from her husband on her charge of infidelity. The action was not contested, although the defendant was represented by counsel.

GIVES ADDRESS ON HOLY LAND

Rev. C. H. Schult Speaker at Anniversary Services in Lakefield Baptist Church.

SHOW LANTERN SLIDES.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 11 (Examiner Correspondence).—Rec. C. D. Schutt's lecture on his trip to the Holy Land, on Monday evening, was a fitting climax to the successful anniversary services of the Lakefield Baptist Church. The audience was large and thoroughly appreciative of the address which was delivered in a chatty manner, with many personal touches which made it especially interesting. The views were beautiful and nearly all were colored, which of course made them more real and the vivid colorings of the East, the quaint costumes of the people, and the Oriental architecture transplanted one to Bible-land, where a profitable evening was spent.

Dr. Schutt make his trip in 1913 and was one of a party of fifteen (five ladies and ten men), all but the speaker, being Presbyterians. They sailed from New York on the steamer "Carpathia," which was one of the ships which hurried to the rescue of the victims of the "Titanic's" crash with an ice berg. The first stop was made at Gibraltar, which was a point of overwhelming interest. The next stop was at Genoa, which is said to be the birthplace of Christopher Columbus, there the party visited the Campo Samto, or cemetery, which is a remarkable place with its covered arcades lined with beautiful statuary. It was intended that the trip to Naples should be made by boat but owing to the ship being twenty-four hours late the trip was made by train through a beautiful country, teeming with interesting sights. Venice was visited and was a veritable dream city with its gondolas and music, the beautiful buildings, notably the Doge's palace and the Church of San

OTONABEE CHURCH CELEBRATES AN OUTSTANDING ANNIVERSARY

Bethel United Congregation Has Worshipped On Same Spot 75 Years.

PRETTY LOCATION.

Edifice Itself Was Built Only 32 Years Ago On Sight of Old Church.

OTONABEE, Oct. 11. — On the south-east corner of lot 23, concession 5, Otonabee, stands a red brick edifice which is Bethel United church, the centre of the religious activities of the community. For seventy-five years a church has stood in the same location, first "the old church" and thirty-two years ago the present church was built. The farm on which the church stands remained in the possession of members of the Shearer family, Mr Andrew Shearer being the donor of the land, until a year ago, when it passed into stranger hands. The location is ideal, being on a hill. The interior is beautifully decorated. The walls are done in soft neutral shades of green with floral border in tan. A beautiful domed semi-circle forms the front of the church which contains the organ and seats for the choir members. The ceiling is done in natural colored wood and is beautifully pan-

CHURCH ACTIVITY IN WARSAW VILLAGE

Rally Day Services in United —Harvest Festival in Anglican.

WARSAW, Oct. 11.—The United Sunday School practiced the Rally Day service in the morning. Mrs. George Taylor's class of girls and Rufus Payne's class of boys composed the choir with Mrs. Taylor at the organ. The O.R.C.C. program was followed. Mr. Robert Somers, Sunday school superintendent, led the service. Rev. H. B. Herrington also was in the pulpit. The church was decorated with plants and flowers.

The junior and primary classes sang "Two Little Hands," a motion song. The verses on peace were recited by Kenneth Jenkins, May Payne, Ivan Clements and Lucile Herrington. Cora Drain told the story of "Christ of the Andes." Briefly it is that the people of Chile and of Argentina quarrelled to the point of war over the boundary, which was in the Andes mountains. Bishops of each country went among their people preaching peace. At length the king of England was called upon by both countries to be judge. Edward the Peacemaker's decision was just, and the peoples received it joyfully, and signed treaties of peace.

A beautiful statue of Christ had been made from an old bronze cannon. The people decided to buy it, and with much difficulty it was placed on a base high up in the Andes Mountains, on the boundary line. The words carved in the granite base are "Sooner shall these mountains crumble to dust, than Argentines and Chileans break the peace which at the feet of Christ the Redeemer they have sworn to maintain."

Ivan Drain and Allan Tighe took up the collection.

Rev. H. B. Herrington spoke on "Blessed be the Peacemakers". His illustrations were drawn from things of his own experience at different appointments.

The harvest festival decorations remained in the Anglican Church until after the service on Sunday evening.

The Presbyterian ladies had taken a great deal of pains to have their church looking pretty and clean for Sunday and the church was pretty with cut flowers and plants.

LIBERALS OPEN ANNUAL MEETING

Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George To Address Gathering at Great Yarmouth.

GREAT YARMOUTH, Norfolk, England, Oct. 11.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Two thousand delegates arrived here yesterday from all parts of England and Wales for the annual meeting of the Council of the National Liberal Federation which opens here today.

Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, will address the council Friday and his speech is eagerly awaited, particularly as he is expected to reply to the recent declaration of George Lansbury, chairman of the Labor Party Conference, that Labor would have nothing to do with the "decadent remains of Liberalism".

Best informed Liberals expressed the opinion last night that Mr Lloyd George would not attempt to lay down the terms upon which a Liberal-Labor coalition might be formed after the forthcoming general election. The opinion is expressed that Mr. Lloyd George is far too experienced a politician to play into the hands of his opponents by re-

FOUR CHARGES AGAINST KING

Canadians Aided in Smuggling Three Russions Into United States.

GLENELM FARMER.

MONTREAL, Que., October 11 (Canadian Press). — "T.. are four smuggling cases against King. He has been under indictment since November, 1926, for aiding and abetting the smuggling of three Russian aliens into the United States, in addition to the one smuggled in last month."

This was the statement made here yesterday by H. R. Landis, United States Commissioner of Immigration at Montreal, when asked the viewpoint of his department with regard to the seizure of H. J. King of Glenelm, Huntingdon County, Que., by United States immigration officers last month.

King alleges he was arrested on the Canadian side of the international boundary and has instituted habeas corpus proceedings which will be heard at Malone, N.Y., on October 30. In the meantime the claims of King have been referred to the Canadian Government.

Continuing, Mr. Landis said: "The reports are not worrying us one little bit. We have enough evidence to protect ourselves when the case is heard by Judge Bryant, October 30, in Malone.

"The habeas corpus proceedings brought by King is directed against the officers of the United States Department of Justice, as I gather it from the newspaper reports. He was apprehended by immigration officers, acting well within the scope of their authority, and our service will be represented at the hearing before Judge Bryant.

"Before the officers started on this assignment they were careful to ascertain just where the international boundary is at Tolan's Line, where the apprehension took place. Our information, based upon careful surveys, shows that the officers were well south of the boundary line when they apprehended King, and all proceedings took place on United States soil. The officers are well aware that they had no right to take any official action whatever on Canadian soil.

"The officers are well aw.. of just where the international boundary enters Quimet's store at Tolan's Line, and will have ample evidence to show that all the proceedings took place on the American side."

The first gun in The Examiner's Hallowe'en celebration was fired last night when the members of No. 3 Company, 4th Battalion, Canadian Machine Gun Company met at the call of the Officer Commanding, Major Murrell Dodds, to discuss plans for organizing a band.

Enthusiasm ran high, and there will probably be thirty or forty men in the band. The first rehearsal will be on Monday, October 22, at the Armouries, when final arrangements will be made about carnival dress. It is suggested that this be an Eskimo band, and the turnout promises to be spectacular, if anything.

CHINCHILLA RABBITS RAISED ON FOX RANCH AT MILLBROOK

J. L. Byam and Son Have Already Supplied Stoc': For New Farm.

THREE TO START.

Pelts Can Be Readily Disposed Of At Good Price.

Millbrook, Oct. 11 (Examiner Correspondence).—An extension of activities, within recent months, at the "Midnight" silver-black fox ranch, owned and operated by J. L. Byam and Son, at his property on Bank street, has included the raising of Chinchilla rabbits on a successful basis, both as to breeding and sale.

Mr. Byam introduced this innovation at Christmas time in 1927, the original investment being three rabbits of registered stock, "Sir Robert," "Highland Lassie," and "Lady Gray." As a sideline, in connection with his fox industry, the raising of rabbits is a wise move, Mr. Byam finding no difficulty in disposing of the pelts at a good figure, and using the meat for feeding the foxes, it being really their natural food.

It is probably generally known that the chinchilla rabbit is not the same as the common breed which small boys delight to raise in the backyard; it has been developed by cross-breeding, and it is the part of wisdom always to buy good registered stock as the poorer and cheaper strains are quite apt to revert to the original wild state of their ancestors, the common brown, black, white or grey breeds.

The color of a good chinchilla is a beautiful mixture of gray and black, and at the "Midnight" ranch no difficulty has so far been experienced in breeding true to type; out of the thirty-five or more rabbits which have been raised only one is slightly off color—too much gray showing for a really good pelt. The fur is like a rich velvet in pile and softness, and if one will blow on the coat of a good chinchilla the gradations of color, rather circular in effect, are readily seen.

Housing the chinchillas is a comparatively simple matter, for while the cost of a properly built fox pen is from $75 to $100, an oblong box, with a top that may be opened back like a lid, and a wire netting front, placed in a dry location, will answer for the rabbits quite satisfactorily. Mr. Byam covers the floor with hay at which the rabbits nibble, and grain, with fresh, green grass, forms the rest of the diet. The baby bunnies are fed on bread and milk.

Plenty of water is essential; in the wild state rabbits secure the needed water by nibbling clover and other similar food in the evening, when it is laden with dew; hence, experts in the business now know that the old belief that rabbits did not need water at all has been completely exploded.

Keeping the hutches clean is important, but really the whole problem of housing, feeding, and caring for these animals is much simpler than with other fur-bearers, or even with poultry.

Warning Given.

Although the climate of Canada, by reason of its dryness, is claimed to be well suited to rabbit breeding, and the raising of chinchillas, particularly, has received quite an impetus in recent years, yet a note of warning has been issued by the government, and by the Canadian Small Breeds Association, that no one should go into it with the idea that it is a 'get-rich-quick' scheme. While the chinchillas are as easily handled as the common variety of rabbits, and they may be raised wherever a reasonable space of land is available, too much stress cannot be placed upon the advice to buy only good stock that has bred true for several generations, when beginning the industry. The initial cost may seem high, especially to anyone who indulged the hobby of back-yard rabbit raising in his youth, but if success is to be the ultimate outcome, this is the only profitable course to pursue.

At the "Midnight" ranch, Mr. Byam keeps his rabbits in the same enclosure fenced in for the fox pens, but to one side of the latter, and finds it the best plan to have each rabbit in a separate hutch, this rule being followed in every case once the babies are old enough to be removed from their mothers. Three little ones of the last litter, that seemed inclined to droop their long ears a bit, as though there was some need not being supplied that their physical good demanded (their fur, however, being of a fine texture and color), are now running at large in the grassy enclosure, and evidently finding for themselves the needed diet item since improvement is noted daily.

When the Bala Fox Farm decided to add Chinchilla breeding as a feature of its fur-raising industry, the initial stock was purchased from Mr. Byam, nine fine rabbits, of varying size and ages, being shipped to Muskoka and reports having since been received that they have proved satisfactory in every respect. Several good pelts have been sold from the "Midnight" ranch, and three fine, large rabbits, which were littered in February, and which have beautiful coats of fur true to type in every detail, are sold for delivery in Toronto by December—possibly as Christmas gifts for someone about to make a start in the rabbit industry. From sales already made Mr. Byam has more than doubled the original amount invested; has had food for his foxes when pelting has been done; and has twenty, or more, fine Chinchillas as 'stock on hand' at present.

No Waste.

There is no waste in this business of Chinchilla breeding as if the right type of pelts are produced, the demand is always there; a good, average pelt will bring from $3.50 to $5.00; good breeding stock also sells without difficulty; and the meat, which it is claimed is delicious and often listed on the bill of fare at hotels and restaurants as 'chicken,' has a ready market. Old Country people, who are familiar with rabbit meat for food purposes, will buy it under its own name; the price is usually twenty-five cents a pound.

The business of pelting is said to be very simple, and easily learned even by those not used to any work of the kind; to an experienced hunter, like the owner of the "Midnight" ranch, it presents no difficulty at all. According to instructions issued by the Department at Ottawa the procedure is: Knock the rabbit sharply on the head, slit the skin underneath, remove the toes, and the pelt comes off easily; then soak in water, scrape, and prepare in the usual way.

Good breeding animals, price lists state, can be bought for $25 apiece, or a buck and two does for approximately $70; rabbits, it is generally known, do not suffer from race suicide in the common breeds and the rule holds true for the Chinchillas also. A doe will raise, on an average, three, possibly four, litters a year with six, eight, or ten baby rabbits in each. Experts think it is not wise to let the mother raise more than eight baby bunnies at a time, and there were six in the last family at the Byam ranch.

In selling to the Bala ranch Mr. Byam agreed to their suggestion that a good price per pound be placed on the whole nine, rather than so much on the individual rabbits, and was well satisfied with the cheque returned when delivery was effected.

Sane advice is given in the Dominion government bulletin when it urges that breeders shall give special attention to the production of good pelts, if the rabbit raising industry is to be permanently and successfully maintained in the country. "Do not lose heart if the pelts happen to be down in market value to-day, or to-morrow; remember that the Chinchilla rabbit pelt has a big future for the dealer who goes after the business of producing a fine article in this line. Like the silver fox furs, Chinchilla pelts are now a staple commodity for which there is assured a steady and increasing demand."

According to information supplied by Mr. Byam, a doe at maturity will weigh four or five pounds, and a buck from five to six pounds; these figures tally with those supplied by government literature.

President Howard Jordan, Recently Married, Receives Gifts.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 11.—A well-attended A.Y.P.A. meeting was held in the Parish Hall of Saint Thomas' church on Thursday evening, the special feature of the gathering being the presentation of a seven-piece sherbet set, and a dainty three-piece service which included cream pitcher, sugar bowl, and spoon tray, to the new president, and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jordan, who have but recently joined the rank[illegible] the homemakers in the community.

Mr. Jordan was elected president of the Association last May when Mrs. (Rev.) P. C. Howard resigned the office; he has been assistant principal of the Continuation School here for the past three years, and has won for himself an assured place in his teaching profession; in the church with which he is connected [illegible]membership; and as a citizen gene[illegible].

An address was read by E. R. Barnes, Mrs. L. H. Morton presenting the gift on behalf of her fellow-members in the A.Y.P.A. In the address, mention was made of his faithful services in the League and best wishes were extended to his bride and himself.

The event was a complete surprise to the guests of the evening, but suitable reply was made by Mr. Jordan on behalf of his wife and himself.

The gathering concluded with a pleasant social time and the service of dainty refreshments. The A.Y.P.A. is now prepared to carry on its regular fortnightly meetings which were discontinued during the holiday months, and it is hoped that the large attendance and the interest manifested last fall and winter will continue to be features of the gatherings in the weeks ahead.

Anniversary Services.

The anniversary services in connection with the United Churches of the Millbrook circuit are being held this month; at the Fallis Line appointment on Sunday, October 7, Rev. Mr. Carpenter, of Cavanville, preached afternoon and evening to large congregations; on Sunday, October 14, Rev. J. F. Mears, of Port Hope, will preach at Zion church, afternoon and evening; on the following Sunday, October 21, Rev. Principal Kent, of Queen's Theological College, Kingston, will preach anniversary sermons at the Millbrook church, both morning and evening.

The choir from the Millbrook church will have charge of the music at the different churches for the anniversary occasions. On Tuesday, October 23, the annual fowl supper, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, will be held at Millbrook, followed by a good program in the church auditorium; the supper to be served in the basement beginning at 5.30 p.m.

Personals.

Miss Gladys Tucker, of the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, spent the week end the guest of Miss Jean L. Burnham. The many friends of Rev. S. T. Tucker, a former pastor on this circuit, and now of Dorchester in the London conference, will be glad to learn that he has recovered from the severe illness which he had last spring, and which kept him convalescing for some months, sufficiently to resume his pastoral duties, though there is still need for care[illegible] in the amount of work undertaken.

Miss Muriel Smith left on Saturday for a month's visit with her sister, Mrs. R. Hall, Exeter; on her return Miss Smith expects to remain in Toronto and take up a secretarial course at the Shaw School.

Messrs. W. Fred Fallis, and T. H. Aiken are representing the United Church here at the big Laymen's Convention now being held in Massey Hall, Toronto, which is attended by two thousand delegates, and has principally to do with the Missionary and Extension activities of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sayles, of Toronto, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Stinson over the week-end. They are taking their furniture to Toronto having decided to remain in the city permanently. Miss Marjorie Sayles is visiting her aunt, Mrs. H. Stenson, at Kirkland Lake, and Mr. Walter Sayles has taken a position in this northern town.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Porter, their daughter, Miss Helen, and their guest, Mrs. (Dr.) Barclay, of Ottawa, were guests of Miss L. Burton, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Payne, on Sunday.

Mr. E. L. Burnham, who is attending the University of Toronto, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham.

Misses Francis and Beatrice Jones spent the week-end with friends at Warkworth.

Mr. E. Hansman, of Port Hope, was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, and assisted with the music at the anniversary services at the Fallis Line church.

CUTTING THE INCOME TAX.

The Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce have decided to memoralize the Dominion Government, asking that the Federal income tax be reduced to the same level as that of the United States.

Despite the partiality of the Canadian Council of Agriculture all other similar bodies for the income tax, the resolution of Ontario's Boards of Trade will have a large measure of popular support.

In the first place it is manifestly a handicap to Canada that the income tax here should be higher than the rate across the border.

And secondly it has been the experience of our neighbors, and our own for that matter, that a slash in the income tax does not necessarily mean a loss of revenue; in fact it has been proven that a reduction has such a beneficial effect upon business and industry that the revenue collected from this source is greater than ever.

There is some reason to hope that the resolution of the Boards of Trade will be acted upon when the next Budget is being prepared.

Mr. Robb will in all probability be in a position to do some further slicing along this line in view of the results that have followed the reductions he has already provided for the Canadian people.

ORGANIZE THE OLD BOYS AND GIRLS

An invitation sent out to members of the Cobourg Old Boys and Girls Association residing in Toronto to attend a social evening under the auspices of the Association suggests the thought that the formation of similar organizations of Peterborough old boys and girls would prove of invaluable assistance in connection with next year's Old Home Week.

Associations composed of former residents of Peterborough, now living in Toronto and in Windsor and Detroit and perhaps in other centres, would be in a position to materially help the local committee in arranging the celebration.

And at the same time this would be an excellent thing for the old boys and girls, keeping them in touch with each other and with their native city.

A first step toward the proposed re-union might well be the organization of such associations.

In the places named there are hundreds of former citizens who are interested enough in Peterborough to be glad to ally themselves with an organization of this kind.

If the Old Home Week is to be made a success the enthusiastic co-operation of the old boys and girls is essential.

THE COLLEGIATE HALL.

It is unfortunate that the arrangements for the Kiwanis Produced in Canada Exhibition have been interfered with to some extent because of the decision of the Board of Education that the new assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute is not to be used until the formal opening.

Counting upon having the hall at their disposal the Kiwanis Committee assumed heavy financial obligations in engaging the services of high class artists and the action of the Board has now made it necessary to secure other accomodation at the last moment.

While the desire of the members of the Board of Education to have the formal opening take place before the assembly hall is used by any other body is quite natural yet, under the circumstances and in consideration of the fact that the Produced in Canada Exhibition is a community enterprise with the proceeds devoted to community betterment, there will be many citizens who will fell that a point might have been strained in this case and the use of the hall granted to the sponsors of the Exhibition.

The last minute change in plans must be a source of much inconvenience to the Kiwanis Committee.

DO YOU KNOW?

That the percentage of fires in dwellings (seventy per cent.) was greater last year than ever before?

That eight out of every ten fires could be prevented by promptly correcting hazardous conditions, such as disorder, accumulations of rubbish and litter, defective heating equipment, faulty construction, and the exercise of care, order and cleanliness?

That the attic, cellar, closets, yards and outbuildings should be cleaned at least twice a year, and all useless material removed or burned?

That first-aid equipment, including chemical fire extinguishers, should be provided for the protection of every home?

That defective heating apparatus is the cause of fire, which results in much suffering and loss of life?

That last year 2,927 fires were due to careless handling and defective installation of heating apparatus—equal to thirty-four per cent. of the total number of fires from known causes?

That of all places in the home and factory, the furnace or boiler room should be absolutely free from accumulations of combustible refuse—the acme of order and cleanliness?

That steam or hot air should be used for heating factories, stores and warehouses—stoves are dangerous?

FIVE COSTLY MINUTES.

(From the New York Times)

A story comes from Omaha, by the way of the Iowa Homestead, which suggests one of the new perils of the radio in politics. For science, which has successfully devised a method whereby the voices of candidates may be heard by many millions listening in as well as by the few thousands before them, has never been able to keep introductory speakers from talking too long.

According to the authority cited, the Omaha chairman spoke from 8.45, when Governor Smith entered the hall, until 9.05, thereby devouring five minutes of the hour's radio time allotted to the candidate for which the National Committee had paid thousands of dollars. Protests from the audience and from the broadcasting manager were insufficient to stop the chairmanly mouthflow. The Governor sat, trying to silence the indignation of the audience, but he felt he was too much of a gentleman to express.

It is improbable that what any chairman of a Smith or Hoover meeting has to say is worth a nickel, much less the hundreds of dollars which the Omaha dignitary cost the Democratic party. Five minutes of Al Smith was worth—to the audience at any rate—a whole lifetime of the chairmans observations. Something of this was in the mind of Mayor Lawrence Hodgson of St. Paul, whose introductory remarks were: "It gives me great pleasure to present the next President of the United States, Alfred E.——." Then, as Kipling once said, all speech was lost in the roar of the guns.

The Mayor of St. Paul should be the model for all chairmen. But until some individuals are given self-operating terminal facilities, it will never come into complete use.

"WHAT IS A SCOTSMAN?"

The announcement that only bona fide Scotsmen are to be recruited in future for the Scots Guards is said to be exercising the minds of the authorities as to "What is a Scotsman?" The question threatens to assume the importance of those other classic problems, "What is whiskey?" and "What is a sardine?" which occupied the British courts for months on end, during which time scores of practical and academic experts were called to the witness box.

There appears to be no exact legal definition of a Scotsman, which has its advantages for the half-and-half variety who are enabled to boast about being Scots simply because there is no hard and fast rule on the subject.

Scots authorities are not agreed on the matter. A famous London-Scottish territorial regiment permits a man to join who had one grandparent of Scottish birth. Yet a man born in England of two Scottish parents, and playing for a Scottish soccer team, cannot be capped for Scotland against England on the ground that he is an Englishman.

The Globe suggests that the acid test would be to ask a claimant: "If ye can say, 'It's a bonny, braw, bricht, munelicht nicht, the nicht, ye're a' richt, ye ken'." Only a Scot could get those "ichs" right. An Englishman would pronounce that "ich" as "itch."

Then, of course, there is the other simple but equally infallible test of asking a man to pronounce the names of two well-known Scottish villages: "Auchtermuchty" and "Ecclefechan." Again the inexorable "uch" and "ech." It's more difficult for a Scot to spell those syllables than to get his tongue round them. Unless you hear a Scot negotiate them without tripping, you'll never know how they are pronounced.

The welter of Scottish stories have created such an untrue picture of the bona fide Scot that nothing would be gained by devising a test on any of these lines. A fairly safe guide would be to call upon a claimant to repeat the words quoted, to accept a dram of neat whiskey, and ask him if he would like a bowl of "neep brose" for his supper.

If he gets over these "chs" and "echs," all right; if he gulps down his whiskey without water, and if he exults at the prospect of brose for supper, he's Scotch.

A further, although a little more prolonged, test, would be to put him in a factory or office where there are no other Scots. If he is a real Scot, he'll be superintendent of the plant at the end of the first week, and president of the company in a month.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

BRITISH POLITICS.

Canada and the United States are not the only countries where balloting at the polls is preceded by a long campaign. Although an election in England is not expected to come until next spring at the earliest, the some of their heaviest guns are already in action. Premier Baldwin, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and Mr. Lloyd George were all heard from last week.

The contest, when it comes, is likely to be a close one. Aided by Liberal schism, and by the Zinovieff letter, which linked up Labor with Moscow, Mr. Baldwin carried the last election by an overwhelming majority; but much has happened since then. Labor, assisted by there has been trouble in the Conservative camp over the old quarrel about Protection; and Liberalism, freed unemployment and hard times, has reformed its ranks; of the vendetta between Asquith and Lloyd George, has had something of a revival. By-elections of the past year, with their Ministerial defeats or dwindling Conservative majorities, revealed strong anti-Government sentiment.

Mr. Baldwin's best prospect of a return to power is that Liberals and Laborites will continue to cut one another's throats in the constituencies. The only thing that unites these two factions is a common desire to turn out the Conservatives. Between the creeds of Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Ramsay MacDonald there is little visible difference, yet the ablest of conciliators appear to be powerless to secure co-operation between them. Mr. MacDonald indeed, speaks of Lloyd George with undisguised public scorn; and at the Labor party conference at Birmingham last week its chairman urged that the door be banged, bolted and barred against any combination with the decadent remains of Liberalism."

Such talk, of course, is music to Mr. Baldwin. If Labor were to stick to the industrial areas, where its vote is largely concentrated, and Liberalism to the urban districts, there is hardly a doubt that the Conservatives would go down. But with Labor candidates invading Liberal ridings, and Liberals invading the large cities, enabling the Conservatives to win with minority votes in three-cornered contests, the position is different.

Many Liberals, as well as many Laborites, perceive this. Papers like the Manchester Guardian, for example, never cease to preach a rapprochement between the two parties; and it is probable the moderate Labor statesmen like Mr. Philip Snowden would like some sort of an alliance. The trouble, however, is with the local associations. These have their own local quarrels and prejudices, as well as their deferred hopes for political preferments, and are little influenced by the voices of their leaders in London.

It is this condition that produces most of the political uncertainty prevailing in the Old Land. The old two-party system had its defects, but it at least had one great virtue. That virtue was that people always knew what would happen if a Government were turned out of office.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Fire prevention, like charity should begin at home.

Over twenty-three million dollars worth of Canadian liquor was exported to the United States last year. Prohibition does not seem to be airtight across the border.

A Thought

MOTHER AND BABE

A babe is a mother's anchor; she cannot swim far from her moorings; and yet a true mother never lives so little in the present as when by the side of the cradle, her thoughts follow the imagined future of her child; that babe is the boldest of pilots, and guides her fearless thoughts down scenes of coming years.—H. W. Beecher.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 11 (Canadian Press).—A moderate amount of business was worked with United Kingdom and Continental buyers in Canadian grain here yesterday.

Owing to further weakness in the Winnipeg market for car lot prices for cash wheat in the local market weer reduced another two cents per bushel, and oats and barley one cent per bushel. The trade was fair. Manitoba No. 6 wheat sold at $1.03, feed wheat at 98 cents, and Argentine corn at $1.06.

Prices for all grades of Spring wheat flour were reduced twenty cents per barrel, which was attributed to the weakness in the Winnipeg wheat market. The demand continued limited. There was no change in winter wheat flour prices and a moderate trade was done.

The millfeed market was active and firm. Prices for standard grades of rolled oats were well maintained under a fair inquiry.

A feature of the egg trade was the easier feeling that developed for fresh firsts and seconds, and some dealers shaded prices one cent per dozen owing to the fact that they have not been moving as fast as they would like them. Fresh extras were firm under a good demand. A moderate trade was done in storage grades at unchanged prices. The receipts were 847 cases.

The trade in potatoes showed some improvement and sales of several cars of Prince Edward Island best grade Cobblers were made at 85 cents to 90 cents per bag of 90 lbs in bags, f.o.b. Montreal, and New Brunswick Green Mountains sold at 80 cents per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, with Cobblers at 75 cents per bag, ex-track.

There was no change in imported beans, prices being firm with a small trade passing. Choice white handpicked grades sold at $4.50 to $4.60 per bushel, ex-store, and car lots to arrive were quoted at $4.40 to $4.50 per bushel, ex-track.

The volume of business in butter was again small with no change in prices to note. The receipts were 45 packages.

There was some demand from English importers for cheese and a moderate amount of business was done. The spot trade was also good and values were steady. The receipts were 7,383 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (Canadian Press).—Announcement that 35,000,000 bushels more wheat had been piled on top of the world's available supply did much to upset wheat values yesterday. The addition of that amount during the last week made the total 280,000,000 bushels, compared with 187,000,000 bushels a year ago. Moreover, Canadian shipping facilities on the Great Lakes were reported yesterday as having already on hand wheat enough to keep working at maximum capacity until the close of navigation.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled 1⅝ cents to 2¼, 2¼ cents net lower. Corn finished 1⅛ to 1¼ cents down. Oats ⅜ to ¾ cents to ⅝ cents off, and provisions varying from 17 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Influenced by downturns in wheat prices at Liverpool and by reports from there that cheaper offerings of low grade Canadian wheat were pressing on the market, wheat values here began to give way as soon as trading opened. Besides, the United States government report as to wheat had some bearish effect. Meanwhile, wheat receipts yesterday were heavy at Winnipeg, 2,754 cars, and there were also liberal arrivals at domestic northwest markets, foreshadowing apparently another large increase of the United States visible supply total. Favorable crop advices were likewise at hand from the southern hemis-

Marco. In Florence there were miles of beautiful pictures, some of the finest i nall the world. At the Palace of Fine Arts, there are priceless works of art, many by Michael Angelo and Fra Angelica and others whose names are well known and whose contributions to the world of art are noteworthy.

At Rome, the beautiful, the party was permitted to see the Pope as he appeared on the balcony at the Vatican to bless some German pilgrims. They visited the Catacombs, 350 miles of underground passages; they saw Nero's golden palace and the Coliseum, and hundreds of other famous places.

At Naples, they climbed Mount Vesuvius, the largest active volcano in the world, and heard the rumblings which made one realize that it was still a menace, and later the party went on to Pompeii, which is being uncovered and well repays a visit.

The party embarked at Brindisi and went on to Egypt; they saw the entrance to the Suez Canal, the south-east outlet of the Mediterranean Sea, and, like Gibraltar, controlled and commanded by Britain, who must also control Egypt. At the entrance to the canal there is the statue to De Lesseps, who made the canal possible. In Egypt the population is largely Mohammedan and at that time all the men wore either a fez or turban, according to Moslem law. Since the war the regulations regarding both male and female attire have been greatly relaxed. Some time was spent at Port Said, where they saw a woman with a babe in her arms riding on a donkey which was led by a man. The similarity to the flight of the Blessed Virgin Mary and Joseph with Jesus struck the whole party, and brought home the picture of the Holy Family fleeing from the wrath of Herod. Treasure cities are being excavated and some of the bricks made by the Israelites, some with and some without straw, are shown, proving the Biblical story.

Description of Nile

The River Nile, one of the four largest rivers in the world, overflows its banks, which means life to Egypt, as the borders of the Nile constitute the only fertile part of the whole land. The ancients called these inundations, the tears of Isis.

Cairo is a city of one million people of whom ninety-seven per cent are illiterate. The filth of Egypt is indescribable, and is the chief cause of the prevalence of disease. The Mosques or Mohammedan churches are beautiful with their graceful minarets, and five times a day the Muezzin gives the call to prayer, which is answered by all devout Moslems.

They visited the Pyramids, going part of the way by street car and then by camel; there are seventy pyramids, and of the Cheops, the greatest, occupies ten acres of ground and is 200 yards of a climb up, the steps each being three feet in height. It took one hundred thousand men twenty years to build this pyramid which contains the tombs of the Pharaohs.

From Egypt the party went to Palestine, which is one of the smallest counties in the world, being only thirty-five miles wide and one hundred and seventy miles long, and yet no country has had such a noble influence on all nations, and it is precious and holy to Christian, Jew and Mohammedan alike. The shore line is flat, gradually rising into the Judean hills, then eastward is the Jordan valley and the Plains of Moab.

The landing was made at Joppa and was by means of small boats; Haifa is the only real harbor in the land. The country was for many years under Turkish rule, but now is under British rule, and the Jews are returning in thousands, and have formed a large new city near Joppa.

It is interesting to see the wells, many dating from Isaiah's day, which were later used by the British soldiers in the Eastern campaign. At Joppa there is the tomb of Dorcas and the house of Simon the tanner, and it was there that Jonah embarked on his famous journey. It is fifty miles from Joppa to Jerusalem which is situated on a hill, with valleys to the east, west and south, so that it is only vulnerable to invasion from the north. The old city is surrounded by a wall more than eight feet in height, with eight gates and is practically divided into four quarters; the Mohammedan, Christian, Armenian and Greco-Frankish. The population was 65,000 at that time.

Sold Water in Skins

In 1913 all the water came from cisterns and the water-sellers sold water in goal skins which were far from clean or inviting to the Canadian visitors, but now since the British rule drinking water has been piped in from King Soloman's pool.

On the site of the temple of Soloman stands now the Masque of Omar, one of the most beautiful buildings in the East, and in the mosque the most sacred spot is the bare rock which was the stone of burnt offerings in Soloman's Temple. There is the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, which is built over the supposed site of our Lord's tomb and in this church are thirty sacred sites, there are lamps which are kept perpetually alight by Roman Catholics, Greek Orthodox, Armenians, and Copts, each group being responsible for a certain number.

Pictures of the Garden of Gethsemane were shown, beautiful in scenery and vividly recalling the betrayal of our Lord, a sad scene in the world's greatest tragedy. From this garden one can see the probable place of the Ascension. Looking from the Mount of Olives one sees the fields where Ruth gleaned, where the shepherds watched their flocks on that wonderful night when the angel's song awoke the echoes and brought light to a dark world.

In Bethlehem is the Church of the Nativity, the oldest church in the world, dating from 320 A.D., and there marked by a silver star is the site of the manger, our Lord's birthplace.

Nazareth lies seventy miles north of Jerusalem, where stands the Church of the Anunciation. The travellers visited the Sea of Galilee which is thirteen miles long and six miles wide, and were rowed across to the site of Capernaum. Tiberius is the only town left on the Sea of Galilee at present. The flowers are wonderful, they cover the hillsides and carpet the valleys.

The Inn of the Good Samaritan on the Jericho road was shown, a stone structure close to the road, and even to-day the Jericho road is fraught with perils for the unwary traveller as it is still the haunt of bandits.

The party visited Damascus, the oldest city in the world, and saw its wonders, and then leaving Palestine, they visited Greece, saw the cities of Athens and Corinth and then by way of Switzerland and France the party made their way home, sailing up the St. Lawrence to Canada, which, in the Autumn glory of its changing foliage, was the most beautiful country of all.

Rev. J. B. McCormack expressed the thanks of the audience to Dr. Schutt for his inspiring and edifying address. While we all cannot personally visit the Holy Land, this address has brought us into a closer touch with its wonders, and it has been a real privilege to hear about it, and to see the pictures of the scenes which are so closely associated with the life of our Lord.

The appreciation of the audience was expressed in a hearty clap of the hands, given in all sincerity as thanks for a great treat.

sponding to the challenge of Premier Baldwin in his speech before the Conservative conference at Greater Yarmouth September 27. lenge was tantamount to a request that the Liberal leader state before the election what he intended to do after it.

A significent passage in a resolution to come before the Liberal meeting on "The aims of the Liberal Party," declares that the party "refuses to link its fortune by any pact or agreement with any other party." The resolution explains that while willing to cooperate with others for the achievement of reforms to which it has set its hand, it will resist every proposal "which conflicts with its principles."

A Free Trade resolution to be submitted to the delegates pledges the Liberal party to "abolish all protective taxes and take the lead in the world movement for the removal of commercial barriers."

and the plowing match on Wednesday. It has been finally arranged that the Institute will provide dinners and lunches for the men and any other who may wish to get them.

Besides these affairs nearly every one will likely be in some corn cutting or threshing gang.

Potatoes are not all in yet and while many report good crops one man reports a very poor one.

Sale Being Held

Some travelling salesmen have secured some rooms in Sam Bell's house and are having a sale of men's and women's outer clothing: suits, coats, furs, and fur robes. They expect to remain for a few days this week. This is a new thing for Warsaw and on Saturday a great many people went to see.

Teacher Training

Twenty-two attended the teacher training class on Monday evening. Eight took the Old Testament work taught by Rev. G. Wesley; fourteen took story telling, taught by Mrs. White.

Story telling the class was told, builds character. The Bible is an ideal story book for adults or for children, the strongest characters the developed from the use of the Bible. The stories thrill people as do great paintings or grand music.

A story is a life message that passes from one soul to another.

Unless we thoroughly understand and believe in the good of a story, we should not try to tell it. A story is a narrative of true or of imaginary events, which from a vitally related whole, so present an idea, as to make it appeal more to the emotions than to the intellect. To tell a story is a work of art as it is to paint a picture.

If a story impresses one so that he just longs to let some one else have the joy of it, he should tell it.

The story is an effective method of teaching. It is God's way of building character. Character is formed by appealing to the higher emotions, gotten by story telling. A story-teller presents a high ideal, gives examples and through all joy and pleasure to the listener and to himself.

Stories develop the imagination, create a desire to serve and influence the conduct, parts of a story, and form are, the introduction which should be short; the body which tells the events, and smoothly connects one thing after another; the climax, which eases off, and the conclusion which should be brief and happy, but not moralized. Let the child work out the moral.

A story should be so told that a child will be happy and satisfied with it.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

phere and seedings of wheat in New South Wales this season were estimated at 4,420,000 bushels, against 2,900,000 acres last year.

Lowest prices of the day in wheat though, were reached after world available supply figures had been posted, and the fact was evident that no broadening out of export demand for wheat from North America was in sight. Under such circumstances, selling here for northwestern account gained further momentum, and signs were reported of an increasing movement of wheat in the southwest. Advices of need of moisture in Kansas and Oklahoma failed to act as much of a counter-balance, but the market was showing something of a rally as the day drew to an end.

Despite some corn buying yesterday on account of government figures showing 28,000,000 bushels curtailment of the 1928 estimated corn yield as compared with a month ago, the corn market became heavy, a selling drive disclosing that prices were without any aggressive support, although 150,000 bushels of corn was admitted to have been taken yesterday for export. The weakness of the corn market was accentuated by assertions that 13 per cent more of this year's corn crop is of merchantable quality than was the case in 1927. New corn available for immediate use was also arriving in Chicago yesterday in limited way, and cash prices on some transactions were as much as 5 cents a bushel lower. Oats declined owing to sympathy with other grain.

Future deliveries of provisions were weaker, responsive to action of hog market. There was a big demand, however, for cash bellies, with sales estimated at 5,500,000 lbs; the largest day's business in years.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, Oct. 11.—Trading in the local butter market yesterday was not only unduly excessive, and wholesale dealers and jobbers reported a quiet movement at mid-week, with prices generally holding steady and unchanged. Most of the sales made for small broken lots on spot were for finest creamery usually required for immediate consumption. The price trend was moving narrowly between 39c and 39½c per pound for No. 1 pasteurized creamery solids. Dealers do not anticipate any radical changes in values for some days yet, and anticipate that the market for butter will maintain a uniform relation to growth of activity. There appear to be sufficient stocks of butter on hand for day to day requirements. Moreover, from reports to hand, it is hardly likely that shipments of finest New Zealand will arrive until late this year. Previous news on this subject presaged a large influx of New Zealand butter into the Canadian market about the middle of November next. This change in the import situation will consequently necessitate a change of plans in the home market.

The cheese market continues draggy with very little demand from any source. At mid-week sales on the spot market were negligible, and the jobbing department of the market reported a nominal spread of from 22½c to 23¾c per pound for No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and Government graded, delivered Toronto.

The local egg market continues firm. Receipts of eggs of extra grade are now quite light and some stores are using storage stocks. Prices to retail have broadened out again this week, and in some quarters fresh eggs are selling to the trade at from 49c to 50c per dozen for extras, firsts 43c to 44c; seconds 34c to 35c. Storage prices are, extras 45c and firsts 41c per dozen. Principal markets in the United States report declines in values for storage eggs.

QUALITY OF ENTRIES

o'clock before the last child had been examined. The competition was divided into two classes, from one to twelve months old and from twelve to twenty-four months of age. Carleton Longmuir, of Havelock, was the winner of the first prize in the former class with Isobel Naylor second and Harold Linn third. The honors in the older division were divided between Johnson MacKay, first; Victor Hope, second, and James Andrews third.

Horse Races Divided.

The fast horses were divided into three classes for the speed events. There was the usual free for all race first. The classified event was second and the green race came third. George Tice, the starter from Belleville, had a real man-size job on his hands and accomplished his duties remarkably well. Before he took the reins of control in his hands at the start of each heat, there seemed to be race horses all over the track. But he lined them up and brought them under the wire with the pole horse well up and the entire field coming fast. Tice's hardest task was in the classified event when there were nine horses entered. His duty was slightly simplified when Eleanor May, a Peterborough horse owned by J. Akey, was drawn before the first heat. Hal E, owned by Elmhurst, of Keene, won first money with three firsts and did the mile in 2.18¼. Second money also went to Keene, when Mac Dale got fourth, third and second in the three heats. Della J, owned by F. Lowe, of Cobourg, came in for third money with a fifth, second and fourth. The other horses were Alka Silk, owned in Peterborough, 6, 7, 5; Leo Stewart, owned in Frankford, 3, 5, 6; The Limit, owned in Cobourg, 8, 6, 8; T. J. D., owned by Burke, of Perth, 7, 4, 3; Hal Direct, Peterborough, 2, 5, 7. Of the also-rans, T.J.D., the "mystery horse," seemed to show the finest form, coming from seventh place in the first heat to third position in the third and final heat.

Free-For-All Race.

The free-for-all was the first event to be finished. Six horses entered, and three heats did the trick. This proved Jack Abbey, owned by Akey, of Peterborough, to be the winner, with three firsts, and the time of 2.14¼. Alfred Elk, another of Akey's horses, captured second money with a score of 2, 2, 4. Third money went to Lu Grattan with 4, 3, 2. Hal Pointer also ran with a 5, 4, 3 count. Jim Todd counter 6, 5, 5, and Armadale got fifth in the first heat, and was withdrawn.

The seven race caused plenty of excitement. This time the honors went to Hastings, when Red Peter, owned by Richard Walsh, Hastings, captured three firsts and first money in the time of 2.22½. Gypsy Wilkes, owned by Jones of Peterborough, pulled down second money with a 3, 3, 2 count. The third money went to Keene, when Rose Direct, an Elmhurst horse, scored 5, 2, 3. The other horses were Jack Moore, 4, 5, 4, and Lena Direct, 2, and 4. Lena Direct did not finish the third heat but stopped just before she came down the stretch for the final effort.

Many Attractions on Grounds.

Out on the grounds there were many attractions for the thousands who were everywhere. Joyland Shows midway attracted many, and had the largest number of attractions that it had shown at any of the local fall fairs this season. The merry-go-round, the ferris wheel, the chair plane, and fun on the farm all enjoyed active patronage. Of these, fun on the farm seemed to be the most attractive. This was probably due to the fact that it is something of a novelty. The five-in-one show also found favor with the patrons of the fair. Motor row called for its just share of the interest as well. Many fine makes of medium and higher priced cars were on exhibit, and demonstrators were busy all afternoon with their sales talks. Among the makes displayed were Buick, Pontiac, Dodge, Nash, DeSoto, Plymouth, and Chrysler, and the Whippet.

Forestry Department Display.

This year the Forestry Branch of the Department of Lands and Forests invited the attention of the property owners in the district. The display was in a large marquee immediately in front of the Armouries. Electric signs told the story of the loss to the country by fire and of how the department was attempting to replace the damaged areas by reforestation purposes. The rotary sign which told its own story gave the information that any land owner might receive three thousand five hundred trees for reforestation purposes and an additional five hundred for windbreaks. These trees are furnished absolutely free of charge and the department will gladly furnish all instructions required for their planting.

For the first time this season in the district east of the city of Peterborough it was necessary to start the races in two tiers. This was the case in the classified race, when there were nine entries and eight starters. On one occasion Tice reverted to a beautiful mix-up when the horses were scoring, as a Chinese puzzle. But it straightened out miraculously, thanks to the expert handling by the drivers and much to the surprise of the spectators, the horses were in good starting formation when they came under the wire. Tice let them go. The judges had the worst of it to face then. It was up to them to get the names of the eight horses at the finish. As each finish was close, there was some fast thinking and excellent remembering done.

The fete day did not end with the coming of darkness or the conclusion of the racing program. While the crowds were retiring to their motor cars which not only filled every available inch of the grounds, but lined the streets of the village for blocks in every direction from there, the midway was beginning to prepare for its evening session. Artie Marks and her players were ready to receive a full house, and there was general preparation throughout the entire district. Last night it was impossible for one attraction to cater to all the people, and each received a fair share of the business. After the Marks show in the Opera House, Al Whyte's syncopators held sway, and a lively crowd tripped the light fantastic till the early hours of the morning.

THE BLATTS - By FANNIE HURST

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Humoresque", "A President Is Born"

There descended upon Mrs. Blatt a new kind of silence. To Herman Blatt it was a new and terrifying kind of silence. She was no longer garrulous even of her ills.

Weeks passed without even the slightest reference to the shooting pains in her ankle or the discomfort between her shoulder blades.

There was something defeated about Mrs. Blatt.

THE Blatts started in one of those little one-room cafes that mottle the lower East Side of New York. There was a show-window with a glass dish of Hungarian pastry in it and a queer, foreign-looking bowl of some kind of kippered fish. Mr. Blatt performed the double role of waiter and cashier and in the furiously overheated kitchen, Mrs. Blatt acted as chef.

By the time the Blatts had been at it for about five years, they had earned quite a reputation in the neighborhood. That is, you were sure of getting a good home-brewed, reasonably-priced meal there, to say nothing of the congenial company of Mr. Blatt, who would sit at table opposite you and discuss the minute advantages of one of Mrs. Blatt's dishes or current events of the East Side.

Sometimes Mrs. Blatt appeared in the main dining-room herself, where she was known and liked by the patrons. Even back there in those years of her early maturity, there was something broad and comfortable and homelike about fussy Mrs. Blatt. She was a real hostess. She exuded a genuine anxiety concerning the well-being of her customers. Not infrequently she brought in a dish of her inimitable meat-balls wrapped in vine leaves, or her famous concoction known as Greek salad, hovering over the patron's table as he seasoned and sampled. Eager, eager to please.

There was something eupeptic if not particularly good-humored about Mrs. Blatt. She wore nice, clean blue and white gingham dresses in her kitchen and broad muslin aprons around her broad waist. She saw to it, too, that Mr. Blatt wore nice white starched coats when he served.

PRESENTLY, Blatt's branched out. There was a larger restaurant with two show-windows and the entrance between them, and an electric piano which spilled you one of the town's current song-hits for five cents in the slot. This time, there were table cloths and a whole new set of glass cruets and tumblers. And as the piece-de-resistance, Mr. Blatt purchased a painting that had once hung in a Bowery saloon. A broad, highly-keyed canvas called "Samson and Delilah."

For weeks, Blatt patrons came to regale themselves with glimpses of this work of art. It consisted of the outstretched figure of Samson, who might easily have weighed six hundred and forty pounds, in the act of being shorn by a virulent-looking Delilah. A great portiere, done in the tones of violent-colored chenille, formed the background. Sometimes, even as she cooked, Mrs. Blatt would poke her head in through the swinging-door for just a glimpse of this event of Samson and Delilah.

From this time on, Blatt's not only became a place of gustatory attraction, but one of the art centures of their section below Canal Street. The Blatts prospered.

Sometimes, for as many as nine hours a day, ten hours, eleven hours, even thirteen, although she had three assistants at her elbow, Mrs. Blatt was on her feet. No one, for instance, could dip the French fried potatoes as she could, bringing them up brown and feathery from their bath of grease. No one could so cunningly tuck the flavored meat balls into their nest of vine leaves.

MRS. BLATT'S "strudel" was finally the reason for uptown slumming-parties. A young newspaper reporter, chancing into Blatt's one night after hounding down a neighborhood story, spread the news that he had stumbled across the most delicious meal in New York. That was the beginning. Night after night, taxicabs and limousines nosed along the curb of Blatt's Restaurant.

Uptown parties were the rule at Blatt's now. The old neighborhood clientele, intimidated, dropped away to make room for this more sophisticated invasion of customers. The new element treated Mr. and Mrs. Blatt with an air of enormous and good-natured patronage. They insisted upon Mr. Blatt's regaling them with the neighborhood gossip. That was part of the spirit of slumming, you see, and Mrs. Blatt was forced to emerge from her kitchen and show herself to her patrons. By this time, Blatt's had become one of the landmarks of the lower East Side.

IT might be said of Mrs. Blatt that she was a congenital grumbler. That is, there was never a moment in her long work-a-day that Mrs. Blatt was not bitterly complaining of her lot. That had been true from the very beginning, even when Blatt's consisted of the one room and kitchen. She loved to complain. It gave her a positive relief to sum up the number of aches that could shoot through her tired ankles or the manner in which her back could hurt from bending over the hot stove or the terrible pains that she experienced between her shoulder blades when she emerged from the over-heated kitchen into the chill outdoor air.

All day long as she cooked Mrs. Blatt complained, and through those years of her constant reiterating and recounting of her ills, Herman Blatt moved with a kind of imperviousness that was superb. He could sympathize with the area between her shoulder blades without actually hearing what she said. It had come almost to be a rhythm with him. He knew from the inflection of her voice whether it was her back or her ankles or her temperature that was troubling her.

She was garrulous about her ills to a degree that was chronic insofar as Herman Blatt was concerned. He scarcely heard her words.

INEVITABLY, there came a time when one of the slummers offered the necessary capital to transfer Blatt's from the lower East Side up into the heart of the Broadway theatre district. It was a windfall. It was a bolt out of heaven. Overnight, as it were, Blatt's became a sumptuous, modernly-equipped, terraced, Broadway restaurant, hundreds of tables gleaming under damask. There was a seven-piece orchestra, darky waiters and Blatt's food.

The difficult transition had been made. Chefs had been initiated by Mrs. Blatt into the cunning secrets of her specialties and, for the first time in her life, the sweaty, red-faced, irritable little woman was free to enjoy some of the fruits of her labor.

The Blatts moved into a large uptown apartment and furnished it according to the Blatt ideal of upholstery, velour and lace curtains. "Samson and Delilah", a bit fly-specked for the Broadway Blatt's, now occupied one whole wall of the new apartment. There were two servants and a small but comfortable sedan which took Mr. Blatt to and from the markets every day. It was arduous for Mr. Blatt, who still did the marketing himself, to leave the house three times a week at three and four in the morning to get the freshest produce to be had.

IT was arduous for Mrs. Blatt, in a way she had never dreamed life could be arduous. According to the custom of a lifetime, Mrs. Blatt rose at the same hour as Mr. Blatt and then the day began. The day in the large, bright apartment on upper Broadway; the day that was ministered to by two servants and devoid of the need of any activity on the part of Mrs. Blatt.

At first, there was the novelty of showing off the new home to the old friends down-town. But after a while even that wore off because, once they had seen it, the great distance between the uptown apartment and the lower East Side made it difficult for old friends to pay frequent visits.

There came a time when Mrs. Blatt found herself confronted with long rows of arid days and strangely enough, there descended upon her a silence. To Herman Blatt, a new and terrifying kind of silence. She was no longer garrulous even of her ills. Weeks passed without even the slightest reference to the shooting pains in her ankles or the discomfort between her shoulder blades.

There was something defeated about Mrs. Blatt. Her very silence was defeated. Try as he would, Herman Blatt could not get a complaint or a querrulous word out of her, and yet in his heart he knew there was something ominous in the silence of Mrs. Blatt. All was not well even in the midst of their well-being.

AT the end of their first year on Broadway, Herman Blatt developed a nervous and exacting kind of irritability. He began to detest the hurried regime of eating his meals at the restaurant. They began to disagree with him. He began urgently to feel the need of coming home three times a day to much-needed quiet and specially-prepared dishes to which he was accustomed. Suddenly, it became necessary for Mrs. Blatt to use the greater part of her leisure cooking for Herman Blatt. He would not even partake of a dish that had been prepared by a servant. He was nothing short of tyrannical in his demands upon the time of Mrs. Blatt.

As she bitterly complained, it was practically the old regime once more, only now it took all of her time to prepare the foods for her husband that she had previously given to catering to the demands of their East Side clientele.

But Herman is merciless, even though he finds it impossible to partake of all the dishes she prepares for him. Three times a day when he returns from his restaurant, he expects the outlay of home-brewed food to be steaming and waiting at the table for him.

Mrs. Blatt is her old irascible, complaining self She recites her ills to her husband. She feels put upon. She feels abused.

But Herman Blatt is unrelenting. He knows the dear old note of irascibility has come back into her voice and that all is well with Mrs. Blatt. He is unrelenting in his demands upon her time.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

BAPTIST CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 11.—The anniversary services of the Lakefield Baptist Church were held on Sunday, October 7th with the special preacher, Rev. C. H. Schutt, D.D., superintendent of the Home Mission Board of the Baptist church. The church was decorated with beautiful autumn flowers and potted plants and at both morning and evening services the choir rendered special music under the direction of Mrs. (Rev.) J. B. McCormack, the organist and choir leader. In the evening the congregations of the Presbyterian Church and Regent St. and Knox United Churches joined the Baptist congregation in the celebration of their birthday and Rev. S. A. Kemp and Rev. T. M. Wesley assisted in the service. Rev. J. B. McCormack, pastor of the church, thanked his brother ministers for their hearty and willing co-operation in making the services so successful and assuring them of his own wish to reciprocate when they had their special services. Mr. McCormack paid a fitting tribute to the work of the Girls' Club in financing the redecorating of the interior of the church and in many ways assisting the pastor in his work.

Dr. Schutt took his text from the 5th and 6th verses of the 1st chapter of the Revelation of St. John the Divine: "Unto Him that loved us and washed us from our sins in His own Blood and hath made us Kings and Priests unto God and His Father, to Him be glory and dominion for ever and ever."

St. John was on the Isle of Patmos in exile for his fidelity to the Gospel of Christ and yet even in exile his soul was filled with thankfulness for the love of God in Christ. No one understood Our Lord as did St. John, who was called the "beloved disciple" and who sat next to our Lord at the Last Supper and, with St. Peter and St. James, was permitted to view the Transfiguration and also was, also with the aforesaid two apostles, nearest to Him in the garden of Gethsemane. He was at the foot of the Cross to the end and to him our Lord commended His beloved mother. St. John has written of the incomparable love of God for man in many places and bore faithful witness for that love which passes knowledge. Our Lord's life on earth and His death were God's supreme disclosures of that wondrous love. The depth of God's love reaches to the very worst of men, in height it reaches to the very gates of heaven and is as wide as the world itself and in duration is everlasting. Let us continue in that great love and manifest it one to another. Thank God, the day has passed away when the various denominations disagree among themselves. A Christian love is the world's greatest need, apart from trust in God and in His Church. The love of a good man for a sinner has often raised the sinner to the ranks of self respecting and helpful citizens and the speaker gave several illustrations of this, whereby men who were hopeless "bums" became, through the exercise of Christian love, welfare workers of great power.

Our Lord has washed away our sins in His own Blood, so we should be thankful for what the death of Christ did for sinful men. Water can cleanse the flesh but nothing but the Blood of Christ can wash our souls clean and white, another reason for praise is that we are made Kings and Priests with dominion over sin and death, and are as ministers, deacons and elders fulfilling our opportunities, how many have we on our prayer lists, are we helping others to find salvation in the Blood of the Lord Jesus Christ?

Dr. Schutt will deliver an illustrated address on Monday evening in the church, on the subject of his trip to the Holy Land.

STEPHEN'S UNITED CHURCH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BURNBRAE, Oct. 11.—With the weather man on his very best behaviour, ideal conditions prevailed for the anniversary services of Stephen's United Church, Hoards, on Sunday last. The outstanding feature of the occasion was the presence, as minister for the day of the Rev. John Moore of Strathroy, who for thirteen years was the beloved pastor of the United congregations of Burnbrae and Rylstone.

Mr. Moore preached two sermons, characteristic of his rich Christian experience, sermons which had in them a definite appealing message for young and old alike.

After the services Mr. and Mrs. Moore were greeted by scores of friends and members of the congregations in which they ministered. It is twenty-four years since Mr. Moore left Burnbrae and although now well past the three-score and ten he retains all his keenness of mind and sight and was able to remember many of his friends of former days.

The choir rendered a special anthem at each service, while in the morning a splendid quartette number was given by Mrs. Ray Williams, Miss Jean Ranine. At the evening service Miss E. Meiklejohn of Campbellford acted as soloist.

EBENEZER CHURCH.

Cavan, Oct. 11 (Examiner Correspondence).—Ebenezer held their anniversary services on Sunday, October 7. In the morning, the Rev. F. Carpenter, pastor of the circuit, preached, and the Bethany choir supplied the music.

At 7:30 p.m., the Rev. W. W. Jones, Millbrook, preached, taking as his text Exodus 4:2—"And the Lord said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, a rod." He emphasized the fact that each one had some talent or something which could be used in God's service.

The Cavan choir sang the anthem, "If Ye Love Me"; Miss Annie Tinney taking a solo in it. Also singing the chorus, "Just the Whispered Name of Jesus."

The church was decorated for the services with fruit, vegetables, autumn leaves and red haws and rounds. There was a good attendance.

Among those from Cavan circuit who attended Ebenezer service on Sunday evening were Mr. and Mrs. R. Matchett, Mr. Archie Matchett. Mrs. A. Tinney, Doris Tinney, Miss A. Tinney, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Byers, Mr. M. Byers and the Misses Alberta and Susie Byers, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Kennedy and Harry, Reginald Sutton, Elton Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Staples, Ray Staples, Ruth Staples and Gwenyth, Gordon Staples, and Mrs. Milton Carr.

RALLY DAY SERVICES

AT MOUNT PLEASANT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT PLEASANT, Oct. 11.—On Sunday afternoon, October 7th, the annual rally day worship service was observed in the former Methodist church. The special program prepared by the Board of Religious Education was used and the entire congregation joined with the scholars in the service.

A profusion of cut flowers was tastefully arranged inside the altar rail and surrounding the pulpit with an immense background of colored foliage, which presented a most beautiful appearance. The entire church being decorated in accordance.

The theme of the special program used, "Peace and Goodwill", was followed throughout. The story of the Good Samaritan, appropriately chosen in connection was read impressively by Miss Verna Gardiner, Luke 10:-30-37, followed by the hymn, "For the Beauty of the Earth," which was sung by three intermediate girls, the Misses Verna Gardiner, Dorothy Morden and Annie Graham.

The junior boys and girls gave short recitations on the theme "open the Gates." The gates were beautifully decorated and through them the scholars each in turn passed before giving his or her recitation. When they sang two hymns together very nicely.

The responsive reading was led by F. Gardiner, superintendent of the school.

A very eloquent and interesting address was given by the pastor, Rev. John Riddell, who spoke on the theme, "Blessed are the Peace Makers."

WARSAW PRESBYTERIAN S. S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Oct. 11.—The Presbyterian Sunday School held its Rally Day service on Sunday morning. Great pains had been taken to prepare the service, the Rally Day program for the schools being carefully followed.

The Sunday school orchestra assisted with the music and made the hymns much more inspiring. Eva Clifford read the selection "To the Kirk," Ivan Watts, the one "The Holy Scriptures," and Mary Rose "The Lord's Day. The orchestra, including Dr. Munro, gave one selection. David Miller took the topic "Things that Abide." He spoke first of thoughts of wrong that people might wish to forget that will stay in the mind. The main idea was to show that what one is taught in the home and in the Sunday school, in early life will stay with one throughout life.

He took as examples, Field-Marshal Foch, with his daily hour of prayer, and that in a church. General Haig, who could have been buried almost any place he chose, wished to go back to his own home, and be buried in the little home church-yard, surrounded by his own people. Lloyd George, who was put to a great test, always when he had a chance went back to his little Welsh village and attended the church of his childhood. The people who present the Passion play at Ober Ammergau, are drilled in their parts from childhood, and are affected by it.

There were several others, but lastly he spoke of Roland Kidd, who, as a boy, attended that very Sunday school they were in. When in the army he came to see the speaker. After walking the seven miles to the camp and a good deal more to find his friend he had no grouch, but talked of the ordinary things Before leaving the cook of his own free will had a supper for him, simply because he liked his kindly smile and way. He was in Toronto but a short time, when he was made an elder in the College street Presbyterian Church, because, though a young man, he showed in his walk and conversation that he put first things first.

Personals.

Rev. H. B. Herrington, accompanied by Mr. Ivan Drain, of Warsaw, and Mr. Goldie Drain, of North Dummer, motored to Toronto and attended the Laymen's Convention. They were much impressed by Dr. Speer's address and by the gathering itself.

NORHAM SUNDAY SCHOOL.

(Examiner Correspondence)

NORHAM, Oct. 10.—The rally services of the Norham Sunday School were held on Sunday evening, Oct. 7. The church was very prettily decorated with fall flowers and vines.

The Sunday School scholars occupied the front seats of the church. Mr. Fred. Huycke had charge of the responsive service prepared for the occasion. Mrs. Martin Peterson presided at the organ.

The recitation selections were well given by Margaret West, Edith Brenton, Wesley Clare and Austin Huycke. Miss Florence Clare told the story of "Christ of the Andes" in an effective manner.

Rev. D. R. Clare gave a short illustrated talk to the children. He showed them a sunflower plant which had been broken down, and then grown at right-angles to the original stem and with leaves growing on only one side. From this he spoke on the effects of bad habits on a young person's life.

In his address on "Peace," Mr. Clare gave four reasons which were detrimental to peace: (1) The history text-books which emphasize the wars of the past; (2) Moving pictures; (3) The way war trophies are collected and placed in prominent places; (4) The greatest heroes of a country are the war heroes.

He closed with the thought that peace in our country, community or home must be preceded by peace in the heart.

The choir gave an appropriate rally song as an anthem.

The church service will be at 7 o'clock for the winter months.

MEN WHO THINK THEY'RE GETTING OLD, READ THIS

Many men who live what is known as "the modern life" often feel symptoms of old age creeping upon them after they have reached 40—sometimes even before then. In many instances, this condition is not true "old age" or senility. It is merely an overworked or nearly depleted nervous system crying out for aid. Such men are not old in years. They have merely been living too fast, working too hard, or in other ways aburing their nervous energy.

It is for just such condition as this that pharmaceutical science has produced ERBAC (remember that name—it may mean much to you), the new nerve tonic in tablet form. Now you can rebuild your nervous energy, get back the old "pep" and fire, and once more taste the real joys of living.

ERBAC is not a cheap medicine. Bond and other reputable druggists are dispensing it for Two Dollars a packet. But a packet contains a full twenty-day treatment, and there is a strong guarantee that, unless you are absolutely satisfied with results, your money will be returned.

Now, don't say "Can this be true?" It is true. Just go to your druggist today. Ask him about ERBAC and the money back guarantee. Start the treatment right away. Don't spend one unnecessary day feeling weak, out-of-sorts and "old-mannish". Give ERBAC a fair chance to demonstrate its worth, then tell your friends about the benefits you derived from it.

NOTE: There is no guesswork about ERBAC. Take the treatment regularly according to the simple directions, and results will MANIFEST THEMSELVES to you. ERBAC is perfectly safe and harmless and, while it is not intended for children, many women are taking it and reporting excellent results.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SUGAR

(Copyright, 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

There had been some snow and ice, a little freezing weather and a little thawing weather in Woodland where Uncle Wiggily lived. But now the day was crisp and cold and the rabbit gentleman felt fine and dandy as he hopped out of his hollow stump bungalow to go adventuring.

How his pink nose twinkled in the sun! His ears flopped to and fro in the wind as he hopped fast over the fields and through the woods. His paws flashed in and out among the weeds and grass which were now beginning to turn brown, for Jack Frost had touched them with his cold fingers to send them to sleep until summer should come again to awaken the flowers.

"Well," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he skipped along, "I am sure I ought to be very happy to-day. I have nothing to worry about. The skillery Scallery Alligator will keep away from me a long time on account of having broken his teeth trying to eat stones for hickory nuts. And if any other Bad Chaps try to catch me I'll play the same kind of a trick on them."

So Uncle Wiggily hopped along until,

"Dear me! The school is on fire!"

all of a sudden, something dropped out of his pocket as he took a little slide on the brook which had frozen over in the night.

"Hello! What's this?" asked Uncle Wiggily, picking up something white. He saw that it was a piece of birch bark on which Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy had written:

"Don't forget to bring me a pound of sugar."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I came near forgetting. But I'll go get the sugar now."

Then he remembered that the night before the muskrat lady housekeeper had asked him, when he went adventuring next day, to bring her home a pound of sugar. Mr. Longears had promised but Nurse Jane, knowing that when he went adventuring he might forget, had put the piece of bark in his pocket with the message written on it.

"I'll go get the sugar before I look for an adventure," said Mr. Longears to himself. "Then Nurse Jane can't say I forgot."

It did not take him long to buy the sweet stuff and he was going to take it home when, all of a sudden, he saw smoke coming from the windows of the Hollow Stump School and the bunny uncle cried:

"Dear me! The school is on fire! I must hop fast and save the Lady Mouse Teacher and all her pupils!"

Carrying the pound of sugar in a paper bag, Uncle Wiggily raced to the school, but as he arrived he saw the animal boys and girls marching out as nicely as you please, not a bit frightened, and after them came the Lady Mouse Teacher.

"Oh, dear Lady Mouse, is your school going to burn?" cried the rabbit gentleman anxiously.

"No, indeed!" squeaked Miss Mouse. "The janitor rat tried to burn too much paper at once in the furnace and it made a lot of smoke but there was no danger of fire. However, I thought it a good chance to give the pupils a fire drill, so I did. But everything is all right. Thank you, though, for coming to save us."

"Don't mention it," said Mr. Longears, glad there was no danger. So the Lady Mouse and the children animals marched back into school and Uncle Wiggily hopped home.

"Where is my sugar?" asked Nurse Jane as she saw him.

"Sugar!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "Sugar? Dear me, what did I do with it?"

"Did you buy it at the store?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Oh, yes!" answered the bunny. "I found the piece of bark on which you wrote the message. I at once hopped to the store and bought the sugar. I was bringing it to you before looking for an adventure when suddenly I saw smoke coming out of the school. I thought it was on fire, but it wasn't.

"Then I started home and I thought, all the while, I had the sugar with me. But I didn't, it seems. I wonder what I did with it?"

"I wonder, too," said Nurse Jane, smiling. "I guess you forgot to get it so you had better go back to the store again. You are very forgetful, Wiggy dear."

"No, I'm sure I bought the sugar," said the rabbit. "But what I did with it I can't remember. It is very mysterious!"

OPERATION SUCCESS.

Geraldine Feinburg, age 5, of Toronto (above), who was taken to Philadelphia to have a pin removed from her left lung, is reported to be recovering, following the operation. Dr. Chevalier Jackson, specialist, performed the delicate work.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1928.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

This is read as a day subject to evil planetary influences. Atrologers warn dwellers on the Earth not to take any unnecessary risks.

The day is pre-eminently affected by Mars and Uranus in malefic aspects and seems to presage many dissensions, misunderstandings and even wars in foreign countries.

The sway is most unfavorable for partnerships and for many lines of cooperation since it emphasizes selfishness and greed.

While this configuration prevails, quarrels are numerous and the influence of the stars is hostile to domestic peace.

Persons who find their moods irritable and unreasonable should put as much blame as possible on the stars and then try to overcome bad temper.

Women are likely to be exacting and deaf to logic under this direction of the stars and those who might argue should maintain silence.

Love affairs are likely to meet perils to-day when human nature may be exceedingly captious and trying.

There is a forbidding sign for those who would begin travel under this rule which presage delays, disappointments and even danger.

Aviators should be extraordinarily cautious at this time when the growth of confidence air navigation goes before fatal falls.

The evening should be fairly fortunate for writers and newspaper folk who are to benefit greatly this month and next.

Agreements made to-day may be lucky, provided they are not bound by written contracts. It is not an auspicious day to make marriage engagements.

Fashion which has accentuated the feet and legs in dictating the modes is now subject to a sway which will focus attention on the backs of women. It is said that the planets influence clothing as well as behavior on the Earth.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid litigation in the coming year. Men should not become associated with military matters. These subjects of Virgo are supposed to be almost immune from disease and to long lived.

Children born on this day probably will have careers of unusual adventure. These Virgo people are often severely tested but they are able to succeed marvelously. Mercury is their ruling planet and they may expect extraordinary life experiences. Brilliant intelligence should be their heritage.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE ARE LAW-ABIDING

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author The Springs of Human Action)

Despite the seeming lawlessness which is the scandal of our times the average run of folk are peaceful and law-abiding. Were it not for this fact, self-government would break down completely.

There are no laws to the man who purposes to live peaceably and honorably. He obeys a moral law that is more inclusive than the civil law and a lot more exacting.

The commonly accepted ethics and morals of any community are and should be superior to its written laws. Otherwise the laws have no force or value. They are dead.

It is possible to live wholly within the law and be a pretty poor specimen of humanity. There is no law which compels a man to give to charity, to take an active part in the constructive program of improving the community, to go to church or to take part in any religious and moral enterprise.

The law necessarily deals with negatives and prohibitions. It usually tells us what we must not do. It has very little to say about positive obligations, what we should do. The man who does not go beyond the law in the discharge of his duty as a citizen is not a desirable neighbor.

We are law-abiding, then, because we are bigger and better than the commonlaw. Voluntarily we assume larger obligations than the law demands.

We come by this higher moral law that gives sanction to the laws of the state through social inheritance, early training and an enlighted self-interest. We realize that in the long run we get more for ourselves by playing the game according to rules. It is common sense foresight which supports early training in these matters.

Fear may possibly play some part in restraining open violation of law. But fear as a preventive is of very doubtful value in a democracy. It is almost negligable as a motive.

We are law-abiding because we accept the laws of the land as our own and go beyond them in the moral values of social living.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write care of this paper, and send stamped addressed envelope for reply.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Several favorite hymns were sung and the cortege left the family residence for the Lakefield cemetery for interment. Six grandsons were the pallbearers, Messrs. E. Murduff, Stuart Murduff, Claire Murduff, Garfield Anderson, G. O'Donnell, of Peterborough and Sherman Sweeting, of Smith.

Mrs. Murduff's maiden name was Minerva Norton and she was born in Prince Edward County 82 years ago, and married Feb. 7th, 1869, to Sylvester Murduff, and in four months would have celebrated their diamond wedding. For the past forty-eight years Mr. and Mrs. Murduff resided in Lakefield, where they were held in high respect as good citizens and kind neighbors. Mrs. Murduff was in failing health for some time but was only really confined to her bed since Wednesday last and on Sunday she passed quietly away.

Of a retiring disposition, she devoted herself to her home and family, but many acts of kindness are recorded showing her fine qualities as a neighbor and friend. Her husband, one son, William of Peterborough and four daughters, survive. The daughters are Mrs. Anderson of Lakefield, Mrs. Aaron Sweeting and Mrs. Fred Sweeting of Smith, and Mrs. O'Donnell, of Peterborough.

THOMAS LUXON

MILLBROOK, Oct. 11 (Examiner Correspondence).—There passed away on Sunday, October 7, Thomas Luxon, who had been a resident of Millbrook for almost a quarter of a century, had been known for his quiet and industrious nature, had built up a comfortable home in the community, and had carried on his business, that of a market gardener, with careful attention to detail and with success in the enterprise.

Deceased was the son of pioneer settlers of Clarke Township, the family homestead being in the neighborhood of Kendal; his parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. William Luxon, his mother's maiden name being Joanna Hancock. Their family consisted of five sons and one daughter, the latter being now Mrs. James Burgess of Orono. Of the boys three survive: William and George of Kendal, and Richard of the Eighth Line, Clarke.

Mr. Luxon is survived by his widow, her maiden name having been Mary McDonald, a daughter of a pioneer Clarke township family; their marriage taking place in 1894. Two sons passed away in infancy, and the remaining members of their family are two daughters, the Misses Charlotte and Margaret Luxon, who are members of the teaching profession, but are at present at home.

Immediately after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Luxon lived for a time on the family homestead near Kendal, removing to Millbrook over twenty-four years ago, and making their home ever since in the comfortable brick residence north of Centre street. Deceased was a life-long member of the Methodist Church, going with it into the Union when that event took place.

The funeral took place from the family residence on Tuesday, at 2.30 p.m., his pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, assisted by Rev. Joseph Wilks, being in charge and a large number of citizens, with friends and relatives, gathering for the occasion. The pallbearers were three brothers, Messrs. William, George and Richard Luxon, of Kendal; and three brothers-in-law, Messrs. William Byers of Garden Hill; James Burgess of Orono, and George McDonald of Cavan.

Many beautiful floral tributes bore evidence to the esteem in which the deceased was held, among these being a spray from the Men's Bible Class of the United Church Sunday School, of which Mr. Luxon was a faithful member; a pillow from the Golden Links Mission Circle and the Mizpah Bible Class; and a spray from the Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, No. 176. Carrying the flowers from the house were members of the Bible class to which Mr. Luxon belonged, Messrs. L. W. Smith, W. O'Brian, G. E. Burnham, J. H. Might, Weston Fallis, and John Rowland.

Interment was at Gardiner's Cemetery, and among those from outside points who attended the funeral were Mr. William Luxon, his son, and daughter, Mr. J. and Miss K. Luxon; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Luxon, their son, James, and two daughters, Misses Laura and Marjorie; Mr. George Luxon, Mr. and Mrs. Eber Luxon, and their daughters, Misses Viola and Irene; all of Kendal; Mrs. John Mercer, and her son, of Garden Hill; Mr. and Mrs. J. Burgess of Orono; Mr. and Mrs. William Rutherford; Mrs. Robert Ard; Mr. and Mrs. George Burgess of Kirby; Miss Elizabeth Burgess, of Orono; Mrs. Robert Morgan, of Kendal; Mr. Wilbert Hancock, of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Best; Mr. Richard Uglow, of Morrish; Mrs. Charles Box of Montreal; Mrs. Diamond, of Bass Lake; Mrs. Robert Byers, Mrs. Wilbert Tennant and son, Mr. Clarence; Mrs. Leonard Hayhurst, of Orillia; Miss Ruby Boyd, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Potts, Miss Lucy Potts, Mrs. Archie Muldrew, and Miss Annetta Muldrew, of Elizabethville; Mr. and Mrs. William Byers, and Mrs. Carruthers, of Garden Hill.

Wedding Bells

LEWIN—GOOCH.

An interesting wedding was solemnized at Westmoreland Avenue United church when Mildred Jessie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gooch, became the bride of Mr. Albert Frederick Lewin, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lewin. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Harold Toye in the presence of a large company of relatives and friends. Miss Irene Lewin was the bridesmaid, and Mr. John Jones supported the groom. During the signing of the register Miss Grace Gooch, aunt of the bride, sang "My World." After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 54 Salem avenue. The young couple will make their home at 124 Mortimer avenue, Toronto. An interesting coincidence is the fact that the fathers of both bride and groom were fellow members of the 75th battalion in the Great War.—Toronto Star.

OTONABEE CHURCH CELEBRATES

elled. The wood-work is also done in natural shades.

For Sunday's centenary anniversary the church was a blaze of color with its floral decorations. Seldom does one see such an array of blooms. Fortunately the garden flowers have scarcely been hurt yet with frost.

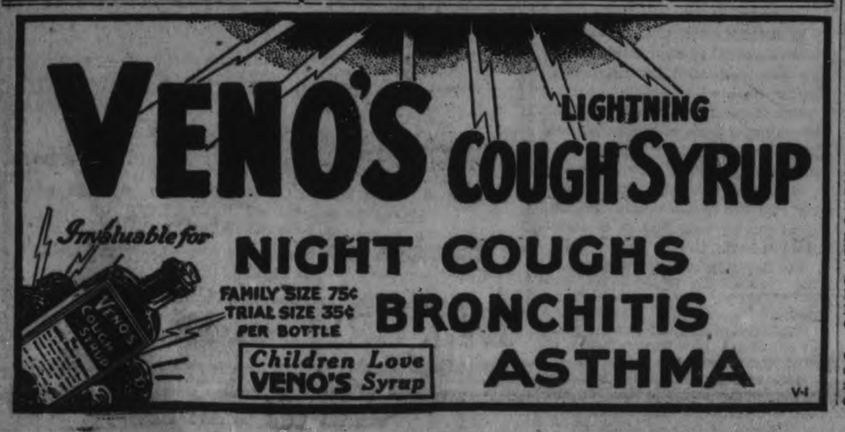
A centenary is always an interesting event and many thoughts come to one's mind. What a force for good this church has been in the lives of those hard-working, God-fearing Scotch-Canadian people. Think of one man, Mr. Samuel Armstrong, being Sunday school superintendent for forty-four years! That is a record that will take some beating. Another occurrence that is not often equalled was the fact that last year at a church social, a descendant (or many descendants in some cases) of every one of the original church members of one hundred years ago was present, being proof that those people have taken deep roots in their native soil.

At the morning services, which were attended by most of the congregation of Keene United church, Rev. Mr. Swayne of Fraserville was the preacher of an eloquent and deeply religious sermon.

In the evening at 7.30 Rev. William McDonald of Knox church, Peterborough, preached a powerful and eloquent sermon.

The splendid choir of Keene United church, consisting of about a dozen female and half a dozen male voices, sang many of the splendid old hymns that will never lose their appeal. "Lead Kindly Light," "Rock of Ages," "Abide With Me," "Faith of Our Fathers," and other were sung. Miss Bryce of Keene, presided at the organ.

Many people from distant places attended and the church was packed at both services. Messrs. Harry Garnett and Stan Wood were ushers for the occasion. Messrs. John Palling, singing leader for almost half a century, and Mr. S. Armstrong, S. S. superintendent for almost as long were seated at one side, close to the pulpit.



CARS DERAILED NEAR MARMORA

Six Freight Cars Leave Track Three Miles North of Station.

TRACK BADLY TORN.

MARMORA, Oct. 11.—Six heavily loaded freight cars were derailed at noon yesterday, about three miles north of Marmora station, on the Trenton-Maynooth line of the Canadian National Railways. The train was proceeding south from Maynooth to Trenton at the time. Three of the cars were ditched on each side of the track, and about ninety yards of the track torn up. Passenger cars at the rear of the train remained on the track. Auxiliaries from Trenton and Lindsay are working, and it is expected the track will be cleared by noon to-day. The derailed cars, which were loaded with lumber and pulpwood, were badly damaged.

CABINET ADMITS PACT BREAKDOWN

May Publish White Paper Telling Disarmament Efforts and Failure.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(By Associated Press.)—The British Cabinet to-day made a post mortem examination of the Anglo-French naval accord. All the principal ministers assembled at 10 Downing street to go over communications from the United States, which opposed it, from Italy, which opposed it, and from Japan, which favored it "in principle." It was generally admitted in British official circles that the agreement was dead. It was stated other steps will have to be taken to solve the disarmament problem which confronted the nations after the breakdown of the tripartite naval conference in Geneva.

To Publish Particulars.

LONDON, Oct. 10.— (Canadian Press.)— It is understood that the Cabinet to-day decided to publish a white paper containing full details of the discussion leading to the Anglo-French naval compromise with relevant documents and replies from the powers consulted as soon as cetrain outstanding formalities are completed.

LIGHTNING HITS HOUSE.

Home of James Irwin at Bogart Badly Damaged During Severe Storm.

MARMORA, Oct. 11.—During a heavy electric storm which swept over this district last night, lightning struck the home of James Irwin at Bogart, destroying the chimney and tearing off about half the roof. Considerable damage was done to the contents of the exposed rooms.

Wintry Weather In West Causes Gains In Wheat

CHICAGO, Oct. 11. — (Canadian Press.)—Wintry weather north-west, both below and above the Canadian boundary, tended to bring about early upturns in wheat values today. There were reports also that India is purchasing wheat in Argentina. Opening unchanged to ½c. off, Chicago future deliveries of wheat soon scored an advance all around. Corn and oats developed firmness with corn starting 1-8 to 1-2 down, but afterward rallying well.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 115, March 120½. Corn, December 75 5-8, March 82 1-8. Oats, December 42 5-8, March 44¼.

Alberta Pacific Consolidated Oils Ltd. and McKinley Mines Securities Company Ltd.

The listing of the shares of Alberta Pacific Consolidated Oil was passed Tuesday by the board of directors of the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange, as was the listing of the shares of the McKinley Mines Securities Company, Limited.

Alberta Pacific Consolidated Oils, Limited, is capitalized at 5,000,000 shares of $1 par value, of which 1,000,000 shares have been issued. The company owns extensive leases in the oil fields of Alberta.

McKinley Mines Securities Company, Limited, is a successor to the McKinley-Darargh-Savage Mines of Cobalt, Limited, which was formed last year, and is operating on an investment policy. Its authorized capitalization is 1,000,000 shares of $1 par value. Shareholders of the old company receive one share of the new corporation for each four which they previously held.

Marmot River Gold.

The following wire has been received by the company from the mine: "Everything going fine. Number 1 tunnel is 320 feet. Not encountered vein yet, but calcite and prite mineralization showing. Number 3 tunnel is 125 feet, also showing crystallized calcite and purite mineralization, the calcite in both veins indicating silver values."

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Serviceto The Examiner

A wire from Kirkland Lake is to the effect that the Goodfish have encountered high grade ore on the 400-foot level. The find is said to contain much free gold but no assays have been taken as yet. A few days ago it was reported that this company was about to commence a systematic diamond drilling campaign from the 600-foot horizon, which, it was believed, would serve to eliminate a good deal of unnecessary lateral work.

Prospectors coming into Amos from the upper Hurricanaw River report that work on the climas of Abbey Mines in Fourniere township has revealed the presence of mineralized zones. These claims are next to the south-east of the Lucky Tiger group. Trenching will be under way in a few days and lines are being cut now preparatory to a Radiore survey and diamond drilling.

H. L. Nicol, manager of the Gold Rock Mining Syndicate, has just returned from the property and is quoted as saying that everything is progressing satisfactorily. The stamp mill has been set up and the amalgamation plant has arrived from San Francisco. It is estimated by engineers that there is approximately 500 tons of ore ready for the mill on the various dumps. It is expected that production will be commenced this month.

A meeting of the Pre-Cambrian Development and Mining Syndicate was held recently at which it was decided to amalgamate certain of the Syndicate with those of the Deep Rock, Easter and Yorkton groups, and to incorporate a company for the development. An agreement between the Syndicate and the Barloch Mining Corporation was cancelled. The syndicates properties are in the Central Manitoba gold fields and lie between the Central Manitoba Gold Mines, Ltd., and the Oro Grande Gold Mines.

Lake Duprat Mines Ltd., incorporated under a Dominion charter in 1927, with its head office in Toronto, has been granted letters patent to change its name to Dumont Mines Ltd. The company's authorized capital is set at $5,000,000 in dollar shares.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

Natural Gas in Wabash Field, Alberta

An event of considerable importance to oil industry in Alberta has been the sucuring of natural gas in the Wabash Well at a depth of 1,600 feet. This well is located West of Morley on the main line of the C. P.R. 50 miles west of Calgary and 30 miles north west from Turner Valley. The dolomite limestone made famous by Turner Valley wells is here very near the surface, and the Wabash well was drilled on the northern end of the Moose Mountain uplift at a shallow depth of 1600 feet. Sufficient gas was struck to blow all the water out of the hole. This well is not a commercial producer yet but it has very indication of being one. The most important feature is that it shows that wells drilled on structure in the Morley district have an excellent chance of securing production from the Dolomite limestone. This is the first well in Alberta outside of Turner Valley in which Dolomite limestone was secured and a production of natural gas found in it.

Mining Stock Index

The weighted index of seventeen mining stocks, computed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics on the basis of 1926—100, was 113.0 for the week ending October 4 as compared with 118.9 for the week ending September 27. Gold-copper stocks represented by Noranda and Amulet, fell from 272.1 to 254.9 Eleven gold stocks fell from 90.2 to 86.5 Four silver and miscelaneous stocks fell from 75.1 to 71.1. Among the gold stock the average weekly prices behaved as follows; Dome fell from $9.26 to $8.95; Hollinger from $8.63 to $7.95; McIntyre from $21.62 to $20.96; Lake Shore from $22.36 to $21.92; Sylvanite from $2.83 to $2.59; Teck-Hughes from $9.02 to $8.94, Wright-Hargreaves from $3.05 to $2.81. Average prices were lower for both the gold-copper stocks. Amulet fell from $3.33 to $3.13 and Noranda from $50.79 to $47.58. In the silver and miscellaneous group the average price of Nippissing fell from $3.13 to $2.89; Coniagas from $3.50 to $3.30 and Mining Corporation from $3.29 to $3.23.

Canada Northern Power Earnings Are Increased

The increase in mining activity in Northern Ontario and Northern Quebec has resulted in very favorable conditions for Canada Northern Power Corporation, which controls practically all the power now being used by the mines in these districts. As a result consolidated earnings of the corporation are showing excellent increases over those of last year. In the month of July there was an increase of $40,000 in gross earnings and of over $200,000 for the first seven months. This would indicate an increase for the year of close to $350,000 in gross earnings. The increase in net for July was $31,000 and for the seven months to July 31 close to $175,000. This would in turn indicate a gain in net earnings for the entire current year of around $300,000. The starting up of operations by Noranda provided a large increase in earnings for a subsidiary of mining power group Quinse Power Company, and the Kirkland Lake Camp has also taken much more power than last year, owing to increased activities and production in the area.

Mr. Jellett began his business career with Sampson, McCuaig and Company at Toronto in 1897 and later served in the Bank of Montreal at Brantford and Toronto. He was born in Picton, Ontario, and attended Trinity College school at Port Hope of which he is now a governor.

Ontario Bakeries, Limited, May Acquire New Plants

Ontario Bakeries, Limited, are negotiating with a view to taking over several existing bakeries in this province, according to information received by the Financial News Bureau. The plants mentioned are located in Toronto, Hamilton and Sault Ste. Marie. If negotiations are consummated, these acquisitions will improve the operating position of the company materially, as such locations would bring units with substantial business into the consolidation, which now controls a number of bakeries in the smaller cities and towns of the province.

British Controlled Oilfields—Production from Venezuelan Holdings Totaled 30,134 Barrels in Week Ended October 3

London. — Crude oil production of British Controlled Oilfields, Ltd., from its Venezuelan holdings totaled 30,134 barrels in week ended October 3, compared with 31,937 barrels in preceding week.

Company states reduction in output was due to fire in new well at Palo Seco, which commenced flowing September 25 with estimated initial production of 2,200 barrels daily, subsequently taking fire. Damage to machinery and plant is covered by insurance. Fire is not yet extinguished but is isolated, and work on the other well has been strictly curtailed for safety reasons.

Shipments of crude totaled 32,433 barrels, against 32,393. Trinidad production was 3,294 barrels, against 4,885.

Walkers Has Stocks of 10,000,000 Gallons of Spirits

Continuing his comments on the operations of Hiram Walkers-Gooderham and Worts for the year ended August 31, 1928, the report on which appeared in an early bulletin, Fletcher Ruark, secretary, says on behalf of the directors:

"The directors have been careful to continue the policy, common to both the former companies, of providing for increased business by maintaining adequate stocks of fully matured whiskies. The present holdings aggregate approximately ten million imperial proof gallons of spirits. Particular attention is being paid to the development of markets for the company's products. Sales have shown most satisfactory increases in all markets, both domestic and foreign.

"Owing to the extremely keen competition in the industrial alcohol business, prices at the present time are such that only very small returns can be expected. The directors realize, however, the importance of maintaining the company's present position and of actively developing this branch of its activities. With this in view, they have made a number of improvements in the facilities for manufacturing alcohol for industrial purposes, and for the storage of raw material. One of the most modern alcohol distilling apparatus obtainable is now being installed at the Toronto plant.

"The directors decided, after due consideration, not to contest the Dominion government's recent claims for sales tax, and the two operating companies now have no claims outstanding against them from either the Dominion or any Provincial government."

Big Earnings Anticipated for Steel of Canada in 1928

It is understood that plans of the directors of Steel Company of Canada to reorganise the capital structure were delayed because of the big program announced some months ago involving expenditure of some millions of dollars on plant improvements and extensions, to take care not only of increased business but bring certain factors in the plant up to date. How long this work will delay capital re-organization is doubtful.

There is every assurance that earning this year will show a substantial gain over 1927. That year the company earned at the rate of $12.30 per share on the preferred and common stock combined. After allowing 7 per cent dividends on the preferred, profits left were equal to $16.03 per share on the common. The preferred stock however, participates with the common in all dividends after 7 per cent has been paid on the common.

At the end of 1927 bonds outstanding were show at $5,633,736, but evidently some of this amount, probably a considerable proportion, has been bought in off the market and appears among assets under the heading "Cost of coal, ore and other properties and investment in the company's own bonds, including those acquired for sinking funds, $3,464,677." The amount appropriated for sinking fund purposes at the end of 1927, was $303,143. The original bond issue was $10,000,000, and the terms permit them to be called at 110 and interest on any interest date, on six months' notice. This clause has not prevented them being purchased in volume on the open market.

It is anticipated that when capital re-organization comes, provision will be made to retire the preferred stock by an exchange into new common on terms that will be attractive to these shareholders. Probably, the present common will be split to provide for this and for an increase in returns to shareholders. If the stock were split on a basis of 4 for 1, and a dividend on the new common was declared of $2.00 per share, the annual return would be the equivalent of $8 per share on the old stocks, instead of $7 per share as at present.

Toronto Stocks Firmer With Activity General

TORONTO, Oct. 11. — (Canadian Press.)—Prices were decidedly firmer on the Toronto stock exchange today and a good number of issues were active. International Nickel and Hiram Walkers showed heavy turnovers and International Nickel broke new ground when it touched 148, while Walkers eclipsed its recent levels by soaring to 66¼. At noon Nickel was up 2¼ at 147½ and Walkers was up 3-8 at 66 7-8. Steel of Canada at noon was selling at 208, a gain of seven. The unlisted section was quiet apart from Walkers.

ECONOMICS COURSE URGED BY MINISTER

The speaker urged upon his listeners the advantages of every citizen visualizing the resources and opportunities of our country and instanced the splendid results that would come from business men travelling from one section to another to obtain fresh ideas regarding the carrying on of their industries.

Department's Good Record.

"You will probably expect me to say something of my own department, and I am proud to do so. As you know, we have almost, if not complete, industrial peace in Canada. It is pleasing to note that though we have had something like forty disputes within the past few weeks, including one that looked like a major problem, every one was settled without a day's loss of time. Unfortunately, we have had a break in the Alberta coal fields, but even this is likely to be smoothed out in a short time."

An increase of 145 per cent. last year and a further increase of 50 per cent. this year over 1927, in turn, was noted in the pensions department of the Department of Labor, the Minister stated, while records of the employment service bureau showed more men employed in Canada to-day than ever before in the country's history.

"The other thought which I would leave with you, is that as we expand we should not forget those greatest investors in any industry, the working men and women, and see that they get the square deal which they deserve," concluded the Minister of Labor. "I appreciate this splendid honor which you have accorded me and I hope that you and your city may continue to prosper. May we meet again, many times!"

Senator McGuire

"I am glad you and your city are making such a favorable impression upon Mr. Heenan," said Senator McGuire, "for I have been telling him a great deal about Peterborough and its people." He went on to urge that a fairly aggressive campaign be carried on by the city in going after her just deserts from the government and humorously remarked that with Senator Green, Buchanan and himself at Ottawa, the Senate would surely proffer its assistance.

He spoke of the evolution of travel from the old water traffic to train, to motor and finally to airplane. He predicted that the next ten years would bring enormous changes and urged Peterborough to procure for herself airplane industries that would someday mean to her what the General Motors represent to Oshawa to-day.

Frank O'Connor

Frank O'Connor is always a welcome visitor in Peterborough and to-day he recalled many pleasant associations with the city where he once lived. Mr. O'Connor urged Peterborough to became "air minded," and to be ready for the coming of airplane traffic. He expressed his pleasure at being present at the luncheon to Mr. Heenan.

"We are running on schedule and while we would like to hear from many other gentlemen present, time will not allow," said Chairman Macdonald, in calling for the National Anthem.

Among those present to-day were: The Hon. Peter Heenan, Senator McGuire, Frank O'Connor, His Worship Mayor Denne, Alderman Macdonald, W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.; W. A. Anderson, M.P.P.; E. A. Peck, M.P.; A. J. Reynolds, Vice President of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce; Aldermen Huffman, Lowe, Phelan, Stocker, McIntyre; also Gordon Matthews, Chairman of the Utilities Commission; City Clerk Armstrong; E. G. Patterson; Thomas McMurray, President of the Trades and Labor Council; John Corkery, Chairman of the Separate School Board; E. Bruce Fowler, Chairman of the Board of Education; John Crane of the Utilities Commission, and Donald McKinnon, Grand Knight of the local K. of C.; and A. Costello, Past Grand Knight.

MR. JUSTICE ROSE BLAMES BOTH SIDES

thus, he must reduce the speed of the car to its lowest point.

"The car driver's onus to pedestrian varies according to circumstances. In this case I think it is no more than reasonable to say the driver should have reduced his speed more and I think the car should have been under greater control. Had Mrs. Ratian been watching there was nothing in the world to prevent her stepping into a place of safety.

"I have come to the conclusion that each party is responsible to one-half. Taking into consideration the pain Mrs. Ratian suffered, her medical, hospital and domestic help expenses and disregarding the rupture I have to assess damages at $2,700, each bearing one-half or $1,350 and costs to the plaintiff.

IN POLICE COURT

"When is a son not a son," is the interesting point of law which His Worship Magistrate O. A. Langley will have to decide when he tries the case of a young man who appeared in court this morning and he was remanded on a charge coming under the Dependent Parent Act. The case will be heard on October 18.

John Dermont of Toronto was remanded on a charge of vagrancy, to which he had pleaded not guilty. He will re-appear on Saturday morning.

Percy Holland, before the Magistrate on a remand for breaking and entering, was allowed temporary freedom without bail. He will re-appear in eight days, when the Crown will be better prepared to proceed with his case.

OLD CONVICT SHIP SUCCESS IS AGAIN SAILING HIGH SEAS

Dungeons and Torture Instruments Are Still Intact On Old Vessel.

FLOATING MUSEUM.

After 16 Years In North America Ship Returns To Australian Coast.

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 11 (By the Canadian Press).—The old British convict ship "Success," which has just passed down the St. Lawrence river en route to distant Australia after a stay of 16 years in North American waters, is reputed to be the oldest vessel now sailing the seas, and is certainly rich in interest and historical associations. The fact that at an age of 138 years, the "Success" is to be taken under her own sail down the Atlantic Coast and across the Pacific forms ample testimony to the strength of her teak timbers and to the skill of her master, Captain Smith, who is confident that the feat will be sstisfactorily accomplished.

Since the year 1890 the "Success" has toured the world as a floating museum for which purpose she is to be permanently stationed off the coast of Australia. But when she was laid down in the shadow of Kipling's Moulmein pagoda in British Burmah as long ago as the year 1790, she was destined for the East India Service and actually engaged in it, as one of the fastest vessels in the trade, until the year 1802. Traces of her former grandeur still exist in her figure-head and in her other carved teak. Interesting though this association of the old vessel undoubtedly is, vastly more interesting is her connection with the convict traffic, of the fleet employed in which she is now the sole survivor. When the "Success" was taken from the East India Merchant service in 1802 to become the flagship of the British felon fleet plying between Great Britain and Australia, she was thoroughly equipped for that business and many evidences of such equipment still remain. A trip through the old yellow hulk seems to turn back the clock to the middle ages. Here, in their original state, are preserved the cells and dungeons in which men and women were confined, the instruments used to torture them and the official records of their crimes, trials and sufferings.

Visitors are first directed to the officers' quarters beneath the high-quarter deck. In addition to the ancient muskets in the gunroom, there are old hand-cuffs, keys, locks and scores of documents relating to the trial, deportation and confinement of prisoners, autographs of different Sovereigns and rare woodcuts and etchings showing the inhuman treatment accorded prisoners in the old days. On the main deck, immediately outside the officer's quarters, there are displayed the original legirons used aboard the convict ship when she was engaged in the transportation of human freight. Transportation sentences were never less than seven years and ranged to the term of the natural lives of the prisoners.

Leg-irons varied in weights from 7 to 56 pounds. Some of them are attached to heavy punishment balls which refractory prisoners were obliged to drag about during their one hour of exercise each day.

The original pumps of the vessel, still used to keep her free of water and utilized with remarkable success during her voyage of 96 days across the Atlantic in 1912, may be seen a few feet distant.

The original mainmast of solid Burmese teak like the other timber of the ship still stands, although it is scarred by the indentation of a pirate's cannon-ball as long ago as 1800. The giant rigged stone to which a score or more convicts were chained is amidships, while the original flogging frame and triangle to which hundreds of unfortunates were manacled; the cat o' nine tails used for the whipping; the "coffin bath" into which they were dipped in salt water; and numerous other exhibits occupy space on the main deck.

On the lower decks are the cells and each of these—72 in number—has its story. On the 'tween deck are the prison chapel and the prison hospital, merely larger cells into which the prisoners were thrust for their spiritual or physical needs, and here, too, is the "Tigers' Den," where the most ferocious of the prisoners were herded to "fight it out amongst themselves." On cells and the infamous black holes. In these airless, lightless, tiny slope-sides cubicles, the most refractory prisoners were chained to a ringbolt, unable either to sit down or to stand up. The majority of those so confined for any extended period came out blind, insane or dead. Even the condemned cells situated at another point of the same deck, in which men were given a few hours respite before being strung up at the yardarm, were less feared than the "black holes."

It was not until 1851 that the "Success" was taken out of the terrible convict trade to become a permanent receiving prison off the site of the present city of Melbourne. Other than solitary confinement prisoners, felons were then taken ashore daily to work in stone quarries preparing stone for the erection of public buildings. In 1868 this system was abolished after the murder of her commander, Captain Price, and the convict ship became successively a women's prison, a boys' reformatory and an ammunition dump. Scuttled and sunk in 1885 by irate Australians who desired to destroy the last trace of the iniquitous system, she lay under the waters of Sydney Harbor for five years and was then raised and started on her world tour as a floating museum. Since that time she has sailed across both the Pacific and the Atlantic, and has been inspected by fully 21,000,000 people. Apart altogether from her associations with perhaps the darkest chapters of prison history, the "Success" has a very real value for the teak-wood of which she is made is now almost unprocurable, the most recent quotation for it being at the rate of $1,00 per pound. It is estimated that there are from 400 to 500 tons of this rare wood in her structure.

INDIGESTION, GAS AND SEVERE PAIN

Of the thousands of people whom Tanlac has saved from the misery of Indigestion and Stomach Trouble, none are more grateful than Mr. Fred Hill, 349 Thames St., London, Ont. "I had about given out altogether," he says, "and was going down hill so fast that I thought nothing could stop me. I ate only two light meals a day and even then suffered untold agonies from indigestion, gas and pains that just doubled me up. My nerves were wrecked; every bone in my body ached; I could not sleep; and just felt sick all over.

"Tanlac fixed me up so I could eat anything from soup to dessert without having indigestion. All my other troubles vanished like smoke. I picked up twelve pounds and never felt better. I never thought anything could do for me what Tanlac did."

Tanlac corrects Stomach Trouble and builds up the whole system because it is nature's own remedy for the sick—roots, barks and herbs. Remember, your money back if it doesn't help you; so get a bottle at your druggist's to-day.

MISSION CIRCLE BEGINS STUDIES

St. James' Church Branch Reads First Chapter of Book on Africa.

SOCIAL PROGRAM.

Misses May Ritchie and Jean McIlwain were joint hostesses for the October meeting of the H. L. Mission Circle of St. James' Church and were responsible for the very excellent program given. There were twenty-five members present, showing that the circle is growing and is well under way. Miss Nina Andrus capably presided.

The meeting opened with a hymn after which prayer for the circle, its members, and their work, was offered by Mrs. Rose. Jean Patterson read for the scripture lesson, the 42nd Psalm.

A vocal duet by Annie and Nellie Payne was very much enjoyed. "Mike and William's Thankoffering," was the suggestive title of the appropriate and timely reading given by Edith Wright. This was followed by greatly appreciated piano solos by Donald McIlwain.

The study book, which is a story of Africa, very interestingly written by John T. Tucker. His book, "Drums in the Darkness," was introduced and a synopsis of the opening chapter given by Mabel Dulmage. This first chapter was a forecast of an interesting and profitable winter's study ahead. Another hymn closed the program.

A pleasant social hour concluded the meeting. The November meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Rose and Mrs. Wagar.

AUTO RUNS 59 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings, but are also surprised to find quicker pick-up, instant starting, smoother running motors and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver, 999-825 W. Third St., Milwaukee, Wisc., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. They also need men everywhere to make over $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write him at once for free sample and big money making offer.—Adv.

ROSENEATH, Oct. 11.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. Orra Varcoe have returned home after a pleasant trip with their daughter, Mrs. Murrell, Chicago and other places in U.S.A.

Mr. George Hogg has made a decided improvement in cleaning the grounds around the Orange Lodge.

Rev. R. M. Brown delivered an excellent address to his congregation on Sunday evening taking his lesson from Luke 10, verse 35 to the end: Bringing to light new ideas of the ways and deeds of Mary and Martha, Mary, mystical, quiet and loveable; Martha, practical, full of action, being busy brings happiness to her heart that she may please Jesus. Rev. Brown spoke of the world today, it is in too much hurry and not enough love and thought.

Next Sunday is Rally Sunday service at 10:30 a.m. The Sunday school and teachers will furnish the service and a good attendance is hoped for.

A few from this district attended the fair at Norwood on Wednesday.

ANNUAL MEETING HELD AT ST. JAMES'

Delegate To Presbytery Reports to Congregation—Much Business Transacted.

The annual Congregational meeting of St. James' United Church was held in Wesley Hall on Monday evening. It was with regret learned that the pastor of the church, Rev. J. H. Dudgeon, was unavoidably absent owing to illness.

The different departments of the church and Sunday school were well represented by members and officers.

Elmer Frost was appointed chairman for the evening and conducted the business with his usual grace and tact. A E. Prest was chosen as secretary.

A hymn and prayer, led by W. McLaren, opened the meeting. A report from the delegate, J. O. Pife, to the Peterborough Presbytery, held in George Street United Church last week, was of very great interest, bringing to the congregation of St. James' not only facts and figures in connection with the financial work in hand, but many helpful thoughts which could be applied to all and each of the church members.

This was the tenth annual conference which Mr. Pife had attended as representative from St. James.

The church has one specific mission to perform, that of winning souls for the Lord Jesus. The church is an endless chain, and each member is a link in this chain. The chain is only as strong as its weakest link. These links are strengthened, and kept perfect by prayer.

Mr. Pife spoke very strongly upon the consummation of Church Union, saying that any one doubting the wisdom of this union, also doubted the wisdom of God. The whole convention breathed the spirit of union. All were of one mind. Methodism and Presbyterianism are names of the past, and he had never attended a conference where all were so enthusiastic for the success of the United Church of Canada. If any pastor is not successful in his church, is because of a weak link. He said "Ask yourself, 'is it?'"

In closing his report, he left these two prominent thoughts with his hearers:

1. Evangelization by visitation.
2. To guard against the weak links in the chain.

Business in connection with the financial affairs of the church was then taken up, thoroughly discussed and several knotty problems quite satisfactorily settled.

Disappointment was felt that no reports would be given by the delegate to the Layman's Conference in Toronto, would would be given at a later date.

Many kindly expressions of faith in the pastor, Rev. Mr. Dudgeon, were made, all appreciating the fact that the church was progressing most favorably, both materially and spiritually under his pastorate.

This part of the meeting was concluded with prayer, offered by Mr. Pavey.

Two Sunday school classes, Mr. Wilford's and Mrs. Patterson's, took charge of the refreshment table, serving ice cream and cake, while all enjoyed a social hour.

RED CABBAGE PICKLE

Dear Marion:

Please send me a pattern for the easy jacket for baby. I think your page is wonderful. Having no recipe book I cut out all the recipes and put them away and use them. I see where someone wants red cabbage pickle, here is one which I think is delicious.

Cut up cabbage fine and add ½ cup of salt and let stand over night. Drain well in the morning and put down well in jars and heat the vinegar and a little water. Fill the jars up and seal tight. I find this lovely.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

AS I HAVE remarked in this column before, I have a weakness for old books—'tis not that I love modern works less, but old writings more. Last night, browsing through "The Poetical Works of Alexander Pope," published in 1716, I came on this:

"I know the thing that's most uncommon
(Envy be silent, and attend!)
I know a reasonable woman,
Handsome and witty, yet a friend.

Not warp'd by passion, awed by rumor,
Not grave through pride, or gay through folly,
An equal mixture of good humor
And sensible soft melancholy.

"Has she no faults then (Envy says) Sir?"
Yes, she has one, I must aver;
When all the world conspires to praise her,
The woman's deaf, and does not hear."

I reprint the poem here because it seems to fit in awfully well with the subject on which I'm going to write—woman. I said yesterday I intended to do it someday—and why not now?

There is no use, it seems to me, in railing at the fate that has separated men and women into the classes they now occupy. In fact, this is not done to any great extent, if one may judge by the letters entered in our "After Five Years" contest.

After all, this arrangement between the sexes, whereby the woman is the homemaker and man the breadwinner, seems to have come about without blame or credit on either side. It was doubtless the best working arrangement that could be devised in the uncivilized world. The chief difference between ourselves and men is that men are expected to struggle against adverse circumstances, whereas they have made it our chief virtue not to struggle.

The trouble with that arrangement to-day is that it long ago served its purpose, and became worn out.

• • •

Men are, I believe, beginning to realize this, and becoming more willing to concede to woman the ability and right to think and speak and act on her own initiative. That women are more than willing to accept the new status is indicated in the letters printed this week.

As I intimated yesterday, one of the difficulties in the way of complete equality is woman's silence. She has become so inured to it that now she finds herself inarticulate. Men have dug up cities buried for centuries and found there records of men's thoughts when the cities were bustling centres of life and commerce—but they have no record of the thoughts of women in those days.

Schliemann may uncover one Troy after another, six separate cities deep, and never come the nearer to what Helen thought. Only the voice of man has not been silent.

• • •

Isn't it something appalling to think of the world-long silence of half the world? Has woman some profound secret which she must hide? Is her chattering about nothings merely camouflage to hide her real thoughts?

I like to think that it is so, and I like to see, in these advanced days, women giving voice to their thoughts. What a profoundity of worth there must be to arise out of that silence of tens of centuries!

Women of the kind quoted in wonder by the poet Pope are to-day more usual than exceptional. Most women are well balanced, well educated, and well read. Add to this mental development their heritage from the silent ages of the past and you have a wealth of knowledge from which to draw—and I believe the time has come for women to become articulate on those topics with which they are particularly conversant.

Some have been mocked by the lordly male, of course. Women in public life to-day are still the butt of men's humor. But the joke is dying a natural death in the face of man's grudging admission of woman's ability.

There was, a few years ago, a fear that the novice in exposition would be snowed under by attacks of men in ridicule and spite, but that fear is passing. Skill in the art, as in others, comes only with practice, but who can deny that the letters printed on this page this week are splendid examples of exposition? Could any lordly male have so clearly set out the causes of domestic discord, or better analysed the cases, or with greater success proposed the remedy? I think not—and take heart.

Woman bided her time, storing up all the while a vast understanding and building for herself a background that to-day adds emphasis to her statements. Take advantage of the time, neighbors; let your voices be heard.

For, lo! another door to perfect equality is open to you—the voice of the press!

In thus expanding her horizon, woman shall not lose her age-old attractiveness. She may be mentally alert and valuable to the world, at the same time retaining her feminine nature, just as Wordsworth's "Nature's Favorite" combines the attributes of Diana and the all-knowing heart of a motherly woman:

"She shall be sportive as the Fawn,
That wild with glee across the lawn
Or up the mountain springs;
And hers shall be the breathing balm,
And hers the silent and the calm
Of mute insensate things."

To come down to more mundane things, if you are thinking of a present for some little girl, what could be nicer than the wool flowers for which I am this week offering instructions? They are easily and inexpensively made, and look well on sweater or coat.

• • •

If any neighbor has a little poem suitable for the "Songs of Love" column, I shall be glad to have it for publication. I prefer original poems, of course, in keeping with the local nature of our pages.

AFTER FIVE YEARS

Views of Examiner Readers on How to Make Married Life as Happy After Five Years as After Five Months.

'Dear Marion:

I think most people will agree that if a man and woman are happy together after five years of married life the chances are good that they will continue to be happy together.

It is not a great while as times goes but long enough for them both to have been "tried in the balances," and if one or the other has been found "wanting" it will have been discovered long before that time has elapsed.

After the glamor and the romance have worn a little thin, and one or the other begins to realize that the other is not just what their fancy has painted him, it is a sobering thought. One is so apt to think the object of one's devotion is perfect. 'Well then, but am I just what he believed me to be?' should be the first thought of a woman beginning to discover the feet of clay. It is only natural for two people who love each other (somewhat different from being in love) to present their best side out when together. Each wants to appear all that is desirable and lovable in their eyes. All too soon after marriage one grows careless of always being this, and it is rather a rude awakening to discover that the one above all others had faults and fads and fancies just like yourself in fact.

Learning to demand less than one gives is one of the hardest lessons in married life, Marion. As the years go on and we begin to understand that there is much more to this married life than at first appeared and we begin to learn the meaning of some words like tolerance, understanding, forbearance, we will also understand why marriage is not to be entered into "lightly or unadvisedly." Life takes on a deeper meaning when that understanding comes.

It is true that if it is the woman who is disappointed or disillusioned in marriage there is the consolation of her children to help her to the realization that she has gained more than she has lost and that it has all been worth while.

She must learn to overlook the little annoyances that crop up to fret the spirit, such as husband's neglect of trifles—most of it is unconscious, and to be able to sympathize with his masculine outlook on things in general, not demanding that he see through her eyes. Even two married minds generally have more than the "single thought" you see.

Above all else it seems to me that if one is blessed with the sense of humor one can cultivate but never acquire—it being something one is born with or without—the situation is saved, to borrow a phrase from wartime. That gift of God has saved more marriages from shipwreck than all the meekness in life's practice could. Perhaps in this day and generation love is not woman's whole existence and to the man a thing apart as it was in the Victorian age. For women have "broadened" so to speak (not literally, as you will have noticed), and have learned to interest themselves in affairs of world-wide interest and to keep up with the march of the times.

She does not spend a whole morning in tears now-a-days because He left her without that customary goodbye salute. When some little disagreement arises she does not at once threaten to leave at once or sooner for mother'ssheltering arms.

I think the wife of to-day is more of a good comrade and chief pal to her husband than ever before. It is true she does spend most of her time in the nursery with innumerable babies to the right and left of her, nor in the kitchen (kindly allotted to her as woman's proper place, by mankind) and I often think, Marion, how unfair it was to expect the wife in days blessedly now gone by with the dark ages, to be the same old happy cheerful companion of the days of early married life, when she had been worn out by sleepless nights of watching anxiously over the sick bed of her children, or fussing and fuming hours over his favorite dishes.

Sometimes the wife is discovered to have extravagant tastes in the matter of dress and husband objects. She is only trying to present the same appearance that first attracted his attention to her but he does not think of that now. She cannot just understand how when she dons that new rose taffeta frock, an exact copy of the one she wore when he first told her she looked "mighty like a rose to him," he has any reason to bawl and say first of all "What's the damage?"

This is is only one side of the picture, of course, often a home is made wretched by a woman's continual nagging, one sure way of killing love, whether it takes the form of habitual fault finding or what Mrs. Brown has that she has not, and what a grand man Mr. Brown is, and so on till one often wonders how any man has the good will in him to maintain such a home where he can find no rest or comfort.

Most men, like most women, desire some appreciation of their efforts and at thirty a word of praise or admiration is just as good to hear as it was when he was a small boy of ten.

I would say, Marion, that it is the woman that is mainly responsible for maintaining the happiness of the home, as your question asked. It is in the order of things that woman should be the home-maker in every sense of the word, not only making it a place pleasing to the eye, but also the most desirable place on earth to dwell, truly a place of rest to the spirit from the harrowing cares of life in the outside world.

Only a happy and contented woman is capable of making a real home, so it should be the man's first care to do all that is possible to make his wife happy and contented. Co-operation is the secret of a happy home, Marion.

It is for the woman to put into her home all that she wishes to get out of it too. Home, her natural background, centres round herself. If, sometimes, she thinks her unselfish care is unnoticed she might be surprised to know just what an awful sense of loss there is in a home when mother is away just a week. How often do we hear men who have been bereft of their wives, "I miss my home" or "It doesn't seem like home since Mary went." Surely it is worth the devotion of a lifetime then to know one is filling a place that no one else can ever fill in the same good way. It ought to be worth while to try to improve one's work as in any other business in life so that the man or woman to whom one is married can say and think with all sincerity, "My wife, or My husband, is the best in the world."

I am sorry to have written so much more than I intended to, Marion, but your subject is an interesting one and it is difficult to write briefly.

Yours truly,
MIRANDA."

Old-Fashioned washday methods have gone

...modern women have whiter clothes—yet save hours of hard work

OLD days—old ways. What woman who uses Rinso would go back to them?

To-day women have in Rinso the greatest wash day help that science can give them. It soaks clothes clean. Little or no rubbing to do and no boiling. Gone is the long, steamy, back-breaking wash day of years ago. Rinso has banished such drudgery. Clothes now soak in rich Rinso suds—then a light rub here and there. Rinse, and white clothes are whiter—coloured things brighter than ever before.

In the hard water of the prairies, the soft water of the cisterns and the medium water of the cities, Rinso is helping women everywhere to get a snowy wash on the line easier and earlier. Your nearest grocer will tell you how many women in your district use nothing but Rinso for washing clothes. Get a package and try it yourself.

CHAPTER III.

Julie smiled at Chittenham with disarming frankness.

She had curiously thick, dark lashes that looked almost as if they had been clipped, forming a most attractive setting to her eyes. Chittenham was reluctantly forced to recognize her charm. It was of such an unusual quality, almost elusive.

She leant her bare arm on the back of her chair and looked out over the lake. "I love Switzerland," she said dreamily. "I haven't seen a great deal of the world, but every bit I see I love a little more than the last. That's like me. I love everything," she added enthusiastically.

"And everybody?" Chittenham asked.

She laughed and shook her head.

"No. I'm afraid I can't say that." She made a grimace which somehow reminded him of Sadie, and of the way in which she used to screw up her little nose when she was determined to get her own way. "In fact, I dare say you'll be shocked when I tell you that in all my life I've never really and truly loved anybody."

Chittenham could well believe it.

"A lady without a heart!" he said lightly.

"Yes," she agreed seriously. "I don't think I could have been there when the hearts were given out."

"It's not yet too late. You never know who may turn the corner of the street and present you with one," Chittenham said jokingly.

"I suppose not." She looked at him gravely. "To tell the truth, I'm always rather afraid that somebody may," she said confidentially. "I'm always rather afraid of loving. I go in for things so thoroughly when I tackle them at all—much too thoroughly sometimes for my peace of mind."

"Does that apply equally both ways? I mean, are you as thorough over your dislikes as you imagine you could be over your loves?"

Julie flushed a little.

"Are you laughing at me?" she asked directly.

"Not at all, I assure you. I am just interested to know."

But she did not answer; she only said thoughtfully:

"You almost sound as if you might be a woman-hater."

And this time it was Chittenham who did not answer. To change the conversation he said:

"So you set out on the perilous adventure quite alone?"

Julie nodded.

"I believe in the saying: 'He travels the fastest who travels alone'," she said lightly.

"Perhaps you have never tried travelling in company?"

"Have you?"

"Yes."

"And was it a success?"

Chittenham hesitated and thought of his wife.

"Not altogether," he admitted. "But I can imagine it might be ideal if one were fortunate enough to choose the right companion."

"Yes, I think it might," Julie agreed. "It's too hot sitting here. I'm going to walk about," she said.

Chittenham followed her, and they strolled the length of the deck and back again.

"And what do your people say to this wild adventure?" he asked.

Julie laughed.

"I haven't any people that matter to me, or I to them," she admitted. "I am a law unto myself."

"With a supreme contempt for Mrs. Grundy, I suppose?"

"A profound contempt," she agreed emphatically.

They were both silent for a moment, stopping by mutual consent at the ship's rail, their faces turned to the mountains. It was a perfect day, hot and yet with a refreshing breeze which now and then swept cross the lake like a long sigh. The mountains were veiled in a misty haze which indicated heat, but far away in the distance the snow-capped jagged peaks of the Dents du Midi rose sharply against an azure sky.

"Isn't it just—heavenly?" Julie asked in an awed little voice.

Chittenham made no reply, and, looking up at him, she was struck by the curiously hard expression of his face.

"What are you thinking about?" she asked impulsively.

Although as yet she had not succeeded in placing Chittenham, he interested her.

She was conscious of his reserve and strength, angrily piqued because of it. He gave her the feeling that she was being quietly but determinedly kept at arm's length until he was ready to allow her to draw nearer, and it was a feeling of which she did not approve.

He brought his eyes back from the distant mountains and looked down at her.

"I was wondering just how far you would allow your contempt for Mrs. Grundy to carry you?" he said calmly.

Julie raised her head with a little defiant gesture.

"All the way if I wished to go all the way," she said quickly. "We've only got one life to live, and what does it matter what people say? I've never cared."

"I can believe that."

"You say that, but in your heart you are still a Didymus," she accused him.

Chittenham turned his back on the mountains, leaning against the ship's rail.

"Very well, then convince me!" he challenged her.

"Convince you? How can I?"

"By taking me with you to-morrow through the St. Bernard Pass."

She stared at him for a moment, then she flushed a little and laughed.

"Of course you are not serious?"

"I am, indeed."

"But—but—" she seemed nonplussed—"we are quite strangers to one another," she protested.

"And Mrs. Grundy is not so completely ostracized as you would like me to believe," Chittenham said triumphantly.

Her grey eyes met his unflinchingly.

"Are you daring me to take you?" she asked quietly.

"Yes."

For a moment longer they held one another's gaze, then Julie said in brisk, business-like tones:

"Very well, but I make one condition—that you do not tell either Bim or Mr. Lombard until we return. It is not that I care in the least what they would think or say, but I have a reason of my own for wishing them not to know."

"As you please."

She went on calmly:

"I am leaving at seven o'clock in the morning. We are staying with friends at Montreux, as Bim told you. I have to go through Villeneuve. You had better meet me there—just where the trams enter the town. It will be quite easy to find."

"I will be there."

"Yes, and please be punctual," she said coolly. "And don't bring a lot of kit, as there is only room for two suitcases on Charon's carrier."

"You do not expect to return in one day, then?"

"I always believe in preparing for eventualities," Julie answered unhesitatingly.

She turned away as if the discussion were ended, and rejoined Bim and Lombard.

Chittenham followed slowly.

He felt angry and irritated, and yet at the back of his mind there was an unwilling admiration for this woman.

She was so cool, so confident of herself. He could well understand how completely she had mastered Rodney, and how soon she had wearied of his slavish devotion.

She was the type who wanted a man to break her to his will, not a boy to kneel at her feet.

He looked forward to to-morrow with a kind of exultation; he had never crossed swords with a woman before; even with Sadie he had only made half-hearted protests; she had not sufficiently interested him for anything deeper.

Julie was different. He knew that already she was measuring her strength against his, that she had willingly picked up the gauntlet he had thrown down, even though she was probably still blind to the real reason of the challenge.

He quickened his steps and overtook her.

"I wonder why you think I am a woman-hater?" he questioned.

She stopped and, turning, looked up at him.

"I remember that Rodney once said you were," she said cooly.

The audacity of her reference to his brother amazed him.

"Yes," her grey eyes were unfaltering. "Rodney often spoke of you, and I seem to know you so well that even if Mr. Lombard had not given your name I think I should have known that you were Giles Chittenham." She smiled serenely. "I have often wished I could meet you," she said.

Chittenham bowed.

"I can only assure you that the desire has been mutual," he said stiffly.

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE HOME ROAD.

The high road, the low road, they call us, and call,
But what road's, of all roads, the best road of all?
The high road's a rough road, the low road is long;
Oh, what road's the right road and what road the wrong?
Well, low roads and high roads I've walked in my time,
Climbed all roads, and no roads, with no roads to climb:
Of all roads—the straight road, the road 'round the bend—
But one road, the home road, had joy at the end.

The high road's the brave road the brave heart will go,
Oh, that road's the great road—but how do you know?
The high road's the hard road, of fortune, of fame,
But what road's the one road you're glad that you came?
The low road's the bright road, the soft road to tread,
But sometimes the soft road's the hard road ahead.
Oh, some take the short road, and some take the long,
But who takes the home road will never go wrong.

Lunch: Baked sweet potatoes, cooked celery, cooked lettuce.

Dinner: Veal loaf (chopped, cooked veal and parsley, baked parsnips (molded in gelatin), cooked tomatoes, salad of raw celery and ripe olives, pearsauce.

Fresh vegetables should be thoroughly cleaned, with a vegetable brush, under running water in order to remove all trace of grit or poison spray. The water that clings after the final washing usually affords sufficient moisture to start the cooking process, especially where the thick aluminum pans are used, and with a little care almost any vegetable may be entirely cooked in practically its own juice, either over the flame on top of the stove, or by baking. Many vegetables which are commonly cooked by boiling or steaming may be given a desirable and "different" taste by baking, such as ground beets, turnips, carrots, etc. The flavor may be varied by slight browning on top.

In either boiling or baking vegetables, avoid over-cooking and be sparing of the water added. A little careful practice, with the proper cooking utensils, will more than repay you in the better flavor and actual benefit derived from fresh or canned vegetables.

It is believed by some that the vitamins in vegetables are lessened through the process of canning, but with our modern methods of canning the loss of vitamins is so slight as to be of no consequences. My advice is to stock your pantry with a variety of canned vegetables to be used when the fresh ones are not procurable, and thus guarantee yourself a plentiful supply of these essential minerals every day in the year.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Canker Sores.

Question: D. F. writes: "I am frequently troubled with canker sores. Can you give me any information as to the best method of treating them.

Answer: Canker sores are usually caused by a conditionof acidosis, and an acid fruit diet for a few days is usually advisable after which you should follow the menus outlined in my newspaper articles.

Digestive Troubles of Children.

Question: G. D. W. writes: "I have been reading your articles on health with interest, and wish your advise in regard to my grandchildren, ages three and one-half and five years. They are very healthy looking children, but the older one quite frequently eats his breakfast and vomits it up almost immediately. They both grind their teeth at night till one can scarcely sleep in the same room with them. Will you kindly tell me the cause, and what should be done for them?"

Answer: Your grandchildren are probably overeating, and using bad combinations of food. The grind of teeth at night is usually caused by some form of indigestion. The older child who vomits his breakfast, doubtless does so because his stomach is still upset from the meal of the evening before. Try giving the children a lighter dinner, and I am sure these troubles will disappear.

Acid Reaction.

Question: J. L. writes: "Please tell me what foods or combinations of foods produce acid in the kidneys. Is milk or buttermilk good in the above?"

Answer: Normal urine has a slightly acid reaction. When too much starch, sugar or protein is used, there will be an over-acidity of the urine produced. There is seldom any reason for trying to produce more acid in the urine, but the diet treatment which is usually advised in all kinds of kidney derangements is one which will reduce the acid rather than increase it. A milk or buttermilk diet is an excellent treatment for adjusting metabolism, and to assist in balancing the quantity and quality of urine so as to make it less irritating.

City Softball League Holds Annual Banquet

HARRISON'S NORTH-ENDERS PRESENTED WITH TAYLOR CUP

Umpires and Officials Receive Recognition For Services To League.

JOLLY AFFAIR.

More than forty members of the Peterborough Softball Association and their guests were present at the annual banquet of the association held in the Empress Hotel last night. President Charles H. Westbrooke made a very suitable chairman, while the entertainment was provided by Vern Morphet, who led in the community singing, and also contributed a vocal solo in his usual splendid fashion. G. A. Liddle added much to the enjoyment of the occasion by his work at the piano, acting as accompanist for the solo numbers and community singing. The Harrison players, city champions, were the guests of honor, and gathered around the tables were representatives of the De Laval team, who were runners-up in the finals, and representatives of the other teams in the league and a number of other invited guests.

In congratulating the North-Enders upon their success in winning the city and in also winning the numerous exhibition games that they had played in the district, Mr. Westbrooke pointed out that just as good an exhibition of softball was seen here during the last season as was played in Western Ontario, where softball is supposed to be at its best. The speaker congratulated the teams in the league for the sportsmanship they had shown during the past season, and hoped that the same spirit might be a prominent feature next year. The chairman also expressed the thanks of the Association to artists who had assisted in the program, and to groundkeepers, umpires, and The Examiner for their support of the Softball League.

Need Clean Sport.

J. E. Sullivan, past president of the association, as main speaker of the evening, stressed the need of good, clean sport for the upbuilding of a city, and also of the way in which it served as a form of advertising. Having been a follower of all kinds of amateur sport both summer and winter for a good number of years, he said that he believed there was at least material enough for thirty teams for a softball league in this city, and urgently requested that at the beginning of next season all those who were interested in any way in this form of sport should not be backward about taking an active part in the formation of a league that would form strong competition among the teams and enable the fans of Peterborough to see some real ball playing.

Cup Presented.

The Taylor Cup, emblematic of the city championship, was presented to the Harrison club by ex-Mayor Taylor, who said that he had always been a great follower of the game, and had taken an interest in it since its origination back in 1922, when the trophy was first presented. This cup is for perpetual competition, the winners of each year to hold it until a new winner is declared the following year.

Norman Lewis, who acted as secretary of the association for the past season, was presented with a cigarette case by Mr. Sullivan, who expressed the appreciation of the teams and officials of Mr. Lewis' services in looking after the league affairs. Several other speakers were then called upon to give short addresses, each one telling of the success of the league during the past year and hoping that it might be continued next season.

Bob Ross, who acted as spokesman for the championship team, expressed the appreciation of the North-Enders for the manner in which the league's affairs had been conducted, while Mr. Downie, who spoke for the De Laval, also expressed his appreciation for his team along the same lines.

Before the eventful evening was brought to a close, Frank Jobbitt paid an eloquent tribute to the services rendered the league by Mr. Westbrooke and Mr. Lewis, and proposed a vote of thanks to these gentlemen. The motion was seconded by Ray Bennett, and enthusiastically carried.

Golf Champs May Go To Germany

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(Canadian Press.)— Three golf champions—Johnny Farrell, open title holder; Leo Diegel, new king of the professionals, and Walter Hagen, British open winner—conferred to-day with Rans Samek, Berlin clothing manufacturer and golf booster, over details of a trip by the members of the American Ryder Cup team to Berlin next year to play in the German open tournament. The trip to Germany is virtually assured. The dates of the German open will be fixed accordingly, either for last Saturday or Sunday of April or May 13 and 17, which would be after the British open and the Anglo-American Ryder Cup matches.

SENATORS WILL HAVE STRONG TEAM

Club's Main Strength Will Pivot Around Cox, Baker and Timmis.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 11 (Canadian Press).—With the Hamilton Tigers, and Ottawa's second Big Four Rugby engagement of the present season, only three days away, there is still no indication of how the Senator squad will take the field Saturday.

Facing one of the hardest assignments of the schedule, the Ottawa directorate realizes that nothing but the very best team will win from Mike Rodden's Bengals, and with this in mind every effort is being made to mould a line which will be able to cope with the front rank on which such players as Cox, Baker and Timmis are the pivots. Yesterday's practice was another two-hour experiment with the line shifted repeatedly as an endless search was conducted for the proper combination to flank Stew Bruce at snap. Two very promising youngsters, Stanyar and Cousens, are looming up as the most likely choices. Radley turned in a sensational performance against Camp Borden, but has since been hindered with a leg injury, and it is doubtful if he can even take part in the approaching game. Dunne is still out with a twisted knee, and as a result the Senators are woefully weak at middle wing.

A couple of new plays were introduced at yesterday's workout and the team drilled in the new formation. Failing any convincing evidence of improved strength before Saturday, it is considered that Gilhooly will attempt to shift his attack to the outer flanks and through the backfield, depending on speed to offset the lack of weight.

SPORTS WINDOW HOLDS INTEREST

Many Beautiful Silver Trophies On Display in LeBarr's Store.

Of more than passing interest to the Peterborough sporting fraternity is the main show window of LeBarr's Sporting Goods Store, just around the corner from George street on Charlotte street.

Holding the centre of the attraction is a well mounted small-mouth black bass, weighing six pounds one ounce, and caught by Tom E. Curvin at Clearview Tourist camp. The catch was made with the 'foxy tackle for frisky fish' for which Lebarr's are agents.

Set out carefully in the foreground are a number of beautiful silver trophies. There are the Spalding trophies, presented by Lebarr's to the Peterborough Softball League and to Raybestos, winners of the East Peterborough League. The Gordon cup, presented to the City Baseball League and won by Lakeviews, Junior City Champions from 1923 to 1925 is also there along with the Andy Brown Challenge cup won by the Peterborough Seniors from 1924 to 1927 inclusive.

But perhaps the most interesting feature of the window is the collection of pictures of Peterborough teams, past and present, among them being the Junior Y.M.C.A. Lacrosse team comprising Dr. Bob. Armstrong, Oshawa; Harry Foote who played on the Home; Alex. McMilland and Jim Connal, defense.

Also in the picture are Ed. Manning, goal; W. Hendricks, Herb. Morphet (club secretary) George Armstrong, Fred Metheral; Dick Davidson, centre field; R. Henderson, Stephen and Archie Mooney.

Pictures of the Lakeviews of 1920 and of 1923, both of them Junior O.B.A.A. champions, are in the window, as well as those of the Peterborough Senior O.H.A. championship team of 1925 and 1926, the G.W.V.A. Soccer teams, winners of the Gordon cup, and several others.

The Made-in-Canada Fair also comes in for a little publicity in the window with pictures of school groups.

PLAYERS HAPPY.

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

En Route With Yankee Special, Albany, N.Y., Oct. 10.—No conquering hero in sport ever was accorded more noisy or sustained acclaim than was Babe Ruth yesterday as the special train bearing the worlds champion Yankees sped in triumphant style from the conquest of St. Louis.

Baseball's greatest showman and most colossal clouter basked in the spotlight of his latest achievement, with all the characteristically boyish enthusiasm that was shown by the crowds of youngsters that scrambled at various stops to cheer him. Until late at night, after departure from St. Louis, people gathered at stations in Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio in the hopes of getting at least a fleeting glimpse of Ruth and his mates.

Cheered By School Children.

Yesterday, hundreds of school boys and girls clustered about the special train in the Buffalo yards during a half hour stop, yelling wildly for Ruth as well as his hitting partner, Lou Gehrig. The demonstration was repeated at Syracuse, Schenectady and Albany.

These Yankees, who defy all lawz of baseball averages, all precedent and all figuring against them, are returning home like a lot of kids who have been out on a lark or a high school football game. It may be the secret of a good share of their success. They are serious and concentrated enough on the field, but with worry, aches and training rigors behind them, they are a care-free, joshing group.

It is a question in Babe Ruth's mind whether he got his biggest "kick" out of hitting his third home run in the final game, off Alexander, an old nemesis, or out of his great running catch of Frisch's foul for the final out.

"I wanted to belt another one to show ur those birds who were tossing pop bottles and giving me the razz out there in left field," said the Babe. "But boy, I liked that catch. Wasn't that a darb?"

The attitude of the Yankees, with their sixth pennant in eight years, their third world's championship victory and a record of eight successive triumphs behind them, is "watch us next year." They are already talking about taking their fourth pennant in a row, to set an American League record and equal the mark of the Giants in the National.

There are certainly few signs that they are slowing up. Ruth was given up as "through" three years ago when he developed his famous case of indigestion. Two seasons later he set a new record of 60 home runs.

Makes Second Comeback.

Late this season he was again crippled and pictured as being on the chutes. If so, the Cardinals haven't heard about it.

The Babe is 34 now. Next season will be his sixteenth in the majors. He believes he can carry his 225 pounds or more through at least five more campaigns. He was signed for three years at $70,000 per annum on a contract that has one more season to run. The astute Colonel Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, is convinced it was no mistake.

The satisfaction of owning the first team to win two successive world's series without a defeat or even a tie appears to offset any annoyance Colonel Ruppert may have at the consequent loss in gate receipts this sort involves. In fact Colonel Ruppert smiles at the thought of refunding approximately $160,000 to customers who bought tickets for a sixth game at the Yankee Stadium. The Cardinals must turn back around $125,000, representing the reserved seat sale for the fifth scheduled game.

Baseball Straight Game.

If the four straight scored by the Yankees over the Pirates last year was accepted as convining evidence of baseball's honesty, the duplication of this performance, depriving the clubs and leagues of any appreciable profit, must end any debate whatever on the subject.

It will be a long time, however, before the experts cease debating that quick pitch of Willie Sherdel's to Ruth in the fatal seventh inning of the last game or before they quit seeking an explanation for the Cardinal rout.

The simplest explanation is that the big bats of Ruth and Gehrig beat the National Leaguers, but it doesn't explain why the Cardinals themselves were so weak in nearly all departments of play.

"Psychology beat them," is the opinion of John Heydler, the National League's chief executive, who believes they went into the series too confident and failed to recover from the shock of defeat in the opening game.

"The Cardinals had heard about the Yankees being in such bad shape and about themselves being such favorites, that they were unprepared for what happened, mentally. Mr. Heydler said in St. Louis. "It seemed to me this hurt their confidence and that they failed to recover it, especially after seeing the pitcher they had counted on so heavily, Alexander, knocked from the box."

MATCHED AGAINST BELANGER

He took the crown from Belanger in their last meeting, while the Torontonian won their first contest.

Owing to so much rain, the farmers are somewhat later than other years with their work. There is very little fall ploughing done, and while some have the buckwheat harvested, there is still a lot out, and it is only a fair crop.

The potato crop was very good, but some reports say there are quite a few rots in the later digging.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

To-Night the Capitol Offers the Cleverest Juvenile Act Ever Seen in Peterborough, the Butterfly Kiddies, in a Musical Revue. Richard Dix in "Warming Up" and "Our Gang" on the Screen.

Whatever you do, don't miss the show at the Capitol the last half of this week commencing to-day. One of the cleverest Kiddie Companies ever seen here. The Butterfly Kiddies will present their musical comedy revue. This is a guaranteed attraction, clean, clever and refined.

Richard Dix in "Warming Up" on the screen.

Richard Dix, the star of "The Quarterback," "The Lucky Devil", "Shock Punch", "Shanghai Bound", "The Gay Defender", "Sporting Goods", "Easy Come, Easy Go" and many others, has made a new box-office winner. He is the most popular male star in Hollywood with audiences and exhibitors alike. He delivers the goods.

None other than Fred Newmeyer, the director of Dix's outstanding success, "The Quarterback", and of Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy" and "The Freshman," directed this new Dix winner.

The Story

A baseball jinx and a romance in a kitchen. That is the theme of "Warming Up", which is action on a diamond background. Baseball is the cause and romance is the result. Sam Mins, author of "The Quarterback," wrote the story for which Ray Harris arranged the adaptation and screen play.

The Cast.

Big leaguers all. Present and past stars of the diamond contributed their talents to the making of this baseball picture with Jean Arthur playing her first role opposite Richard Dix.

"Growing Pains" is the name of the funny "Our Gang" comedy.

AT THE REGENT.

DANE AND ARTHUR IN THEIR BEST PICTURE FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Screen's Most Popular Comedy Team Turns Out Great Laugh-Maker in "Circus Rookies," With Louise Lorraine as the Heroine

Screendom's most famous comedy team, Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, the comedians responsible for "Rookies" and "Baby Mine," arrive at the Regent Theatre in "Circus Rookies," said to be the most hilarious of the season's comedies.

In this film the elongated Dane and the pint edition Arthur do their stuff against a circus background, Dane as an odd-job man around the "big top," who essays his hand at lion taming, and Arthur as a loquacious, quick-witted press agent. They run afoul of each other when they lose their hearts to a dainty, pretty trapese artist.

Louise Lorraine has the heroine role and demonstrates to a nicety the devastating effect of the feminine influence on the hearts of two wandering susceptible males. Among the other notables in the cast is Fred Humes, who takes the part of a giant gorilla in a make-up and costume that is an engineering feat. He wears a huge gorilla skin that fits over his body, the eyes, mouth, whiskers, tongue, hands and fingers all operated by an intricate set of levers inside, so that a considerable amount of mechanical skill is necessary just for Humes to propel his make-up around. Sydney Jarvis, who plays the part of the circus owner, is an old-time character actor, famous on the musical comedy stage for years.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has filmed this production on a lavish scale. The entire personnel of a real circus, wintering in California was induced to appear in the regular routine life of the big show and in various specialty acts so that the picture might have an authentic background. Even the real circus tent was used, as well as the special cars in which they carry their animals about. Some of the most thrilling action of the film takes place on a train, when the gorilla escapes its cage, enters the engine cab and takes possession of the throttle, sending the cars in a mad but thrillingly funny race down a mountain side. The company chartered a track in the California mountains and the cast did the rest with some of the most realistic acting of their various careers, the reason being, that their fright, in the majority of instances, was the genuine thing.

Edward Sedgwick, famous for "Slide, Kelly, Slide," "Tin Hats," and other well-known films, directed.

Few Days' Use of Uratabs Stops Annoying Bladder Irritations Getting-Up-Nights

Those who know the trials and discomforts of Bladder Weakness should be interested in this letter: "I have been bothered with Bladder Trouble for more than 3 years. A burning irritation was almost constant—and I was obliged to get out of bed perhaps five or six times during a night. Then I heard of Dr. Southworth's Uratabs and, without much hope of help, tried them. Wonderful relief came within a few days, and I now feel my trouble is practically ended. Am very grateful for what this grand medicine has done for me, and will always use Uratabs whenever I feel it necessary."

No matter what your age may be, if you want to end days of troublesome annoyance and nights of restless misery due to Bladder Weakness and Irritations—you should try the amazing value of Dr. Southworth's "URATABS" at once.

Dr. Southworth is a well-known practicing physician of nearly 50 years' successful experience. URATABS are made from his own special private formula and all druggists are authorized to supply them on guarantee of money back if not satisfactory.

PILE SUFFERERS

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal? That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is an internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, sold by McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store and all druggists with guarantee of money back if it fails?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause—stagnation of blood in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation.

YOU CAN QUICKLY LIMBER UP SORE, STIFF, SWOLLEN JOINTS

Even Chronic Rheumatic Swellings in Knee, Elbow, Shoulder or Finger Joints Yield to the Mighty Powerful Influence of JOINT-EASE.

It's here, right in town and Bond's Drug Store, McDermid & Jury, McDermid Drug Co., and every live druggist has it.

It's a low price remedy, to be sure, but that doesn't stop it from taking the kinks, lameness or torture out of your troubled joints.

Joint-Ease is the name, so called because it is compounded solely for the purpose of relieving all joint ailments.

Just rub it on the tormented, lame joints and in just a few seconds it will penetrate to the bone and blessed comfort comes quickly.

It absorbs instantly and is so clean and stainless that you can rub it on often and get thereby results much more quickly, when the joint is inflamed and the agony intense.

Being such a powerful counter irritant, it cannot help bringing speedy and helpful results in congestion, sore throat, chest colds, lumbago and neuralgia much quicker than almost any remedy you can buy.

But you must remember that it is for joint afflictions that it is mostly dispensed and its helpfulness will astonish you after all ordinary liniments and other treatments have failed.

WON SUCCESS AT FESTIVAL

Marie Thomson Made Decided Hit in Hebridean Songs at Banff.

COMING HERE.

That Marie Thomson, who will sing at Kiwanis Club Exhibition, made a wonderful success at the C.P.R. Scottish Festival at Banff last month, is indicated by the press notices still being received.

Says Paul Standard in Musical America:

"Hebridean Folk Songs had a renowned interpreter in Marie Thomson who brought to these works a lovely tyric soprano, perfectly controlled and capable of surprising depth and volume when the occasion required. She sang easily in Gaelic and English, with deep sincerity and without pose. Her audiences at two appearance responded with enthusiasm to such songs as 'Birds at the Fairy Fulling' and 'The Cockle Gatherer.' All her accompaniments, beautifully scored, were as beautifully played by Jean Buchanan."

Musical News, edited by Charles E. Watt, has this to say:

"A great feature of the festival was Marie Thomson, soprano of Edinburgh, assisted at the piano by Jean Buchanan of London. Miss Thomson, known through Scotland and England, has appeared in Toronto and in a few private engagements in the United States. Her present tour is under the management of Katherine Whetham, Toronto, and she is specializing in a program of 'Songs of the Hebrides', which is particularly suitable for courses in special schools. Miss Buchanan is a very clever pianist and her accompaniments are particularly facile and sympathetic. Miss Thomson is gracious both of voice and of manner—her scale is particularly even and, at its top, of ravishing sweetness. She has made the difficult songs of the Hebrides absolutely her own and is not only serious, somber, introspective or sad, just as they require, but also in the many of them which require lilting gaiety, bird imitations or girlish coyness she could not be surpassed."

Her Baby Wakes up Laughing and Cooing

"I started using Eagle Brand for my five months old baby two months ago. Now she wakes up laughing and cooing and is more than satisfied. No more getting up nights, as she gets only one bottle, going to bed, and no more till 7 a.m. She won a third prize at a recent baby show and I know Eagle Brand helped her to win. She weighed 6 lbs. at birth but is now over 13 lbs. If any mother would like me to tell her about Eagle Brand I would be pleased to do so. I only wish I had known about it sooner as it cannot be too highly recommended".

JEAN BUCHANAN WILL PLAY HERE

Kiwanis Club Arranges For World-Widely Known Artist To Come.

Not least of the triumphs of Dr. J. J. Craig in connection with this year's Kiwanis Club Exhibition is his securing Jean Buchanan to add to his program.

Miss Buchanan has a world-wide reputation, and it is no little honor to have her visit Peterborough.

Some of her press notices follow:

Morning Post, London—Miss Buchanan gave indications of natural ability. There is much to praise in her technique and touch.

Times, London—Miss Buchanan showed capacity for playing runs and decorative passages fluently, and her soft touch was delicate and of an agreeable quality.

Sunday Times—Miss Buchanan played with fluency, grace and intelligence.

Standard—Miss Buchanan's playing was technically fluent and marked by a pleasant touch and tasteful expression.

Glasgow Herald—One was not long in finding one had to do with an artist. There was an intelligent grasp of the work and an earnestness in its interpretation altogether admirable. Some solos were played well with the note of sentiment sufficiently accentrated and with technical freedom and brilliance.

Glasgow News—Jean Buchanan won the respect of critical listeners by a very spirited, well conceived and brilliantly handled performance of Brahm's elaborate and difficult Scherzo for which she was deservedly encored.

Glasgow Times—Fire and energy as well as lightness of touch and refined phrasing were features of Miss Buchanan's clever playing. The Schumann's "Romance" was played with insinuating simplicity and a nice instinct for beauty of expression.

Scotsman, Edinburgh—Jean Buchanan showed remarkable executive ability and an artistic temperament.

Manchester Guardain—Jean Buchanan gave us an intricate and rarely heard Intermezzo from Brahm's last period, the splendid setting forth of the melody though the Composer had hidden it under a covering of chord notes which made its setting forth a matter of great technical difficulty, was a feature of great skill. We had also a finely though out interpretation of Brahm's early Scherzo which was admirably balanced and contrasted in its treatment.

WAREHOUSE BURNS.

Fire Caused By Spark From Train Destroys Norwood Building.

NORWOOD, Oct. 11.—Fire destroyed a building on the north side of the railroad track west of the station yesterday morning. This building, which was used by J. Finlay and Sons for storing goods from their factory ready for shipment, had a large quantity of squares, broom handles, etc., in it at the time.

The fire, which was believed to have started from a spark from an engine, had gained some headway before it was noticed. The local chemical engine and volunteer brigade were not successful in their efforts and the building with most of the contents was destroyed.

PAINTED FABRICS.

In writing of the Painted Fabric exhibit which is coming to the Produced in Canada Exhibition October 15 to 20, the Telegram says:

"This year there is a corner in the Canadian National Exhibition that Paris would welcome....the superb exhibit of "painted fabrics" done by Britain's disabled soldiers...exquisite shawls, dress lengths, scarves, etc., made for European royalty and queens of the art world by Britain's disabled soldiers from designs by some of the greatest modern artists. No lover of beauty or student of design should miss the exhibit. To those who have not followed the history of painted fabrics, the following sketch by Mr. James Bloomfield, the English artist, and designer of many fine painted fabrics, now residing in Toronto, should be of special interest:

The painted fabric, whose mediaeval name is "painted cloth," is an art expression of great antiquity. Egyptian, Babylonian and Assyrian kings employed it for great hangings in their palaces, and their priesthoods in their temples. While the great woven and embroidered pieces, splendid in gold and colored threads, undoubtedly held an important place, yet in the great houses, palaces and temples of ancient Greece and Rome, the painted fabric was honored as a means of dignified and splendid decoration.

In France and Spain throughout the middle ages, equally, it had with woven tapestries and embroidery a place of premier importance. In Italy particularly during the fifteenth century—that is anywhere between A.D. 1400 and 1500 it was looked upon by the great artists of the time as a mode most honorable of showing their skill as limners and expressing their visions of saints and angels, of archangels and the divine fellowship of the Trinity itself in splendor of color embellished with figured and burnished gold. There exist certain journals of studio and shop practice, kept by master craftsmen and painters of Florence and Venice in the fifteenth century, in which are set down modes and methods of preparing and executing various types of work for divers purposes, such as banners, altar hangers, dossals, frontals, and so forth. In one of these the master craftsman, counselling his students upon the beginning of such work, advises the worker that upon beginning his work, before he makes his first stroke, he shall make always a short prayer to Saint Luke, patron saint of painters, and to the Virgin, in the name of our most blessed Saviour, that, by the power of the Holy Ghost, his work shall be in each touch and whole, to the glory of God the Father and, doing so, his work shall honor him as a painter.

In England, from its earliest ages to the mediaeval, the Tudor and the Elizabethan periods, the painted cloth held an important place in abbeys, cathedrals, universities, guild halls and great houses, known only by frequent references in the works of contemporary chronicles and essayists, palace, cathedral and other accounts, but by many fine examples yet preserved. Not only for wall and altar hangings, for cloths of state behind a king's throne and to make splendid the vestments of an archbishop of the tabards of the king's heralds and officers of state, or the habiliments of a great lady was this mode of painting on fabrics used, but even the ships of England, those of the king, of her knights of the sea, her great explorers—the gentlemen adventurers of Elizabeth's great day—had their sails and banners made splendid in color by it, with coats of arms and all other symbolic devices. The Matthew of Bristol, for example, the ship in which John and Sebastian Cabot sailed to discover the coast of Newfoundland, and as some maintain, the upper coast of eastern Canada, long before Columbus made his abled discovery of America, had upon its mainsail a great figure of St. Matthew.

In a life of Sir Thomas More, written at that time, is this passage: "Mayster Thomas More in hys youth, devysed in his father's house in London, a goodly hanging of fyne painted cloth, with nine pageauntes, and verses on every one of those pageauntes."

Shaskespear, in King Henry IV, speaks of "slaves as ragged as Lazarus in the painted cloth." Again, in "As You Like It", is this: "I answer you right painted cloth from whence you studied your questions."

Rowley, the Elizabethan dramatist, in the Match at Midnight, refers to "a witty posey....a saw that smells of painted cloth." This, of course, refers to that quite usual design of historic or legendary personages with sage sentences or texts on scrolls issuing from their mouths.

Dekker, in the Gulls' Hornbook, speaks of "those painted cloth rhymes made by the University of Salerne."

The earlier types of painted fabrics were executed either in tempera—white of egg—or in a size medium which had many variations. The discovery of an oil medium to carry both transparent and opaque pigments, as far as a general knowledge and use of it is concerned, dates not much farther back than 1450. The present use of it for the painted decoration of fabrics, in respect of the mediums and colors used is a vast step in advance of old methods, and renders the work produced as nearly permanent as anything of the kind can be.

During the nineties—that golden age of artistic awakening and artistic endeavor, whose fruits the present generation is now reaping, some notably beautiful work on a large scale was produced in London by various artists for use in interior decoration. One such set of painted cloths, made in London in 1902-3 was for the great stair hall of the Government House, Victoria, British Columbia, where they now hang as one of the most notable decorative features of the Lieutenant-Governor's official residence. Other painted cloths were executed about the same time for various private residences in the west.

The present exhibit by Painted Fabrics, Limited, is a practical and modern use of an ancient fine arts process for the decoration not only of hangings, wall coverings and cloths of state—to use an Elizabethan phrase—but of varied articles of household use and adornment and personal wear. The designs, entirely original, are from the hands of English artists of the foremost standing in the field of decorative design. Their color schemes, often strikingly original, are yet entirely harmonious, while the craftsmanship involved in their execution is pronounced by leading artists who have examined the work to be of the very highest order.

In one of his works John Ruskin remarks that no work of great was ever produced that was not in the first place designed for some specific use, place and purpose. Many of the more important pieces in the present exhibit, destined for a place and use, though possibly in a dwelling house merely, are works of art to be treasured and handed down as part of the precious incunabulae of a family.

Canadian Air-Mail Pilot Makes Record

ALBANY, N.Y., October 11. — A record for the time required to transport mail from Albany to Montreal was established on Tuesday by Lieut. Fa.. Reeder, pilot for the Canadian Colonial Airways, when he flc between the two cities in one hour and a half—a full hour less than the scheduled time for the 200 miles. Lieutenant Reeder's plane is capable of 110 miles per hour under normal conditions, but his speed was considerably in-reased on the trip by a strong tail wind.

WILL MAKE HUSBAND PAY

the only statement he has made in connection with the case since his arrival here with the body last Sunday, was just as emphatic as Mrs. Knox, that there was nothing between Mrs. Pacey and George other than a mother and son interest.

A strange development last night was the reading of several of the letters the dead youth wrote home to his mother concerning the Paceys. Mrs. Knox in these letters had been told that Mrs. Pacey was living apart from her husband and was earning her livelihood by keeping a boarding house. In none of the letters, however, was there any indication that the boy was in love with Mrs. Pacey. In fact his last letter explained in detail the preparations he was making for returning to Lynn.

Minister Defends Boy.

The Rev. John C. Shepley, pastor of the Methodist church, of which young Knox was a member, issued a statement yesterday declaring his disbelief of the reported charges against the boy. "I knew the lad very well indeed and if I am any judge of human nature, he neither wronged this woman or murdered her above all. He did not take his own life. Of these things I am certain and I trust that every effort will be made to clear his name and remove the shameful burden from his mother's shoulders. She is a dear true woman and mother."

It was Dr Shepley who officiated at the funeral services for young Knox, assisted by the Rev. John F. Hoon. Dr. Hoon has offered his services in any way that can be suggested by Mrs. Knox.

A report from Toronto received here yesterday afternoon in the form of a newspaper dispatch stated that a letter written by Mrs. Pacey and now in the hands of the police contained the phrase, "You will never see me alive again."

Attorneys acting for Mrs. Knox immediately got in touch with the Toronto authorities seeking information concerning the letter and were advised in the most positive manner that no such letter was in existence.

Determined to Make Trip

Dr. Milo Green, prominent Lynn physician and nephew of Mrs. Knox, stated to-night that his aunt was in no condition to go to Ontario, but still insisted that she was going to make the trip.

"I have used every argument I can think of to have her give this plan up, but as yet I have met with no success. If she does attempt the journey, however, I shall most certainly go along with her, for she can not make the trip alone.

"I have wondered at the supreme strength she has displayed the past few days. It is a wonderful example of just what mother-love can accomplish when called upon. I have never seen anything like it in my life, and the confidence in the complete innocence of her boy is beautiful to behold."

Mrs. Knox spends the better part of each day seated in the parlor of the home for aged women, gazing on the features of her son in a school picture and fondling his baby clothing and the toys she took from her trunk. She is by no means an inmate of the home but is attached to it in the position of a nurse. It is a convenient arrangement made that she might have a home with her sister.

WEDDING BELLS

JAMESON—MIDDLETON

Murray Street Baptist Church with decorations of palms, ferns and autumn flowers, presented a pretty setting at 3:30 on Wednesday afternoon, October 10, when Gertrude Georgie, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Middleton, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Malcolm Stewart Jameson, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jameson, of Inglewood. The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, pastor of the church read the ceremony.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, looked lovely in Ivory Canton with rhinestone trimming, long tight sleeves and uneven hemline, long white kid gloves and shoes and hose to match. Her veil fell in four points from a band of orange blossoms to the tip of her hem, the three points being finely embroidered. She carried a shower bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses and lily-of-the-valley.

The bride's sister, Miss Lorraine Middleton, was her only attendant. She wore a period frock of pale green taffeta and black velvet hat with silver trimming and shoes to match. She carried Columbia roses.

Mr. T. H. Jameson of Inglewood, brother of the bridegroom was groomsman and Mr. Craig McCannell, of Toronto, and Mr. Max Middleton were ushers.

The wedding music was played by Mr. Arthur Collison, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. W. Liddell sang, "Until."

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents, 555 Bethune street, which was prettily decorated with autumn flowers. Mrs. Middleton and Mrs. Jameson received with the bridal party. The mother of the bride was attired in navy georgette with small black hat and wore a corsage bouquet of Columbia roses. Mrs. W. J. Jameson, mother of the bridegroom was also attired in navy georgette with small black hat and wore a corsage bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Jameson left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a two weeks' motor trip through western Ontario and Michigan, the bride travelling in a brown georgette frock with satin trimming, brown broadcloth coat trimmed with beaver and a brown velour hat with gloves, purse, shoes and hose to match. On their return they will reside in Inglewood.

People Not Sold on Canada, Says McGuire

Addresses Local K. of C.

Hon. Peter Heenan and Senator McGuire For Columbus Day.

WONDERFUL COUNTRY.

Minister Appeals For Co-operation in Carrying On Common Business of Canada.

"The Canadian people are not yet sold on their own country," said Senator William McGuire in proposing the toast to Canada at the Columbus Day banquet at the Empress Hotel last night, which was held under the auspices of Peterborough Council of the Knights of Columbus, with the Hon. Peter Heenan, Federal Minister of Labor, as the principal guest and speaker.

"The people of Canada do not realize what a wonderful country they have," Senator McGuire continued. "One reason for this lack of appreciation lies in the fact that our country is so vast, few of us have travelled over it. Many Canadians have gone to the United States and the great majority of them knew and no doubt still know, only the localities from which they went. Canada is more extensive than the United States and Alaska combined. We don't know our greatness, therefore we don't appreciate it. The finest crops I saw this year were within sixty miles of the Arctic Circle, and the greatest forests I saw were on the Skeena River, also close to the Arctic Circle.

"His Excellency the Governor-General suggested, facetiously, of course, that he might undertake to conduct the Canadian people on a sort of Cook's Tours over this country. It is a pity he cannot do so. If we knew our country better, we would be infinitely more enthusiastic about it. Do you realize that the wheat which took first prize at Chicago last year came from the Peace River district, farther northwest of Winnipeg than Winnipeg is northwest of New York."

Senator McGuire paid a high tribute to the memory of the pioneers of Central Ontario and especially of this district, which was originally known as the district of Newcastle.

"If I may say so in all seriousness I feel like blaming you for not having done more to show your respect for theo lives and work of those settlers. I have made a study of American history, and I have read every history I could find dealing with the beginnings of this district, and I say that there never was a migration from Europe to any part of America that surpassed the people who came to the district of Newcastle one hundred years ago. If we could obtain immigrants today of the same courage and vigor and determination, we would have no immigration problem."

Hon. Peter Heenan.

"Rambling remarks," was Hon. Mr. Heenan's allusion to his address in response to the toast. The flavor of his native land clings to the accents of the Minister of Labor, and a rich fund of humor, with occasional little ironic twists and fillips to it, illumines and adorns his speech and clarifies the points to which he brings emphasis. It was a witty address, with a brief concluding appeal for co-operation in carrying on the common business and affairs of Canada and the Canadian people. Exceedingly interesting was Mr. Heenan's sketch of his trip to Europe this year to attend the Geneva Conference. From Geneva he went to Rome and was granted an audience of nearly half an hour with the Pope, who conversed in English.

"His Holiness praised the work of the Knights of Columbus of the United States and Canada, and said they had his blessing. I saw the athletic fields and gymnasia for children in Rome which have been provided for by the Knights of Columbus, and I assure you that the money was well spent. I left that city with the feeling that one can't help but be a better Christian after a visit to Rome.

"In England I had the pleasure of an interview with H.R.H. the Prince of Wales at Windsor Castle. The grasp of Canadian affairs which the Prince showed was most surprising.

"The reception which was accorded to me in Belfast by the government of the North of Ireland was one of the warmest I received in Europe. One of the gentlemen at the head table was Sir Samuel Kelly, a prominent Orangeman. When he heard that I had worked as a boy of twelve in one of his mines he wanted to be present at the dinner. I was born forty miles from Belfast, and they asked me how it was that I had gone to Canada and had come to be known as 'Peter the Peace Maker.' I told them it was all due to good judgment. I said 'I was born and brought up among all you Orangemen and how could I be anything else but a peaceful man?' The next day the Belfast Telegraph had a humorous article to the effect that the Orangemen had come into their own by having properly brought up a Minister of the Canadian Government."

Hon. Mr. Heenan spoke of the natural wealth of Canada and also of the harmony existing between employers and employees. "There is no other

Steamer Sinks Submarine At Sea; Does Not Report Until Inquiry Made

PARIS, October 12 (Canadian Press). — The French submarine Ondine, overdue for three days, was sunk on the night of October 3 by a Greek ship off Oporto. The submarine carried three officers and forty men.

The Ondine, of six hundred tons, left Cherbourg on an endurance run on October 1. She was last heard from on October 3 by a Spanish wireless station. Her position then was off Cape Finisterre. The French naval authorities began inquiries when it failed to dock at the Tunis seaport Bizerta on October 9, and the Ministry of Marine reported that Greek cargo boat which recently docked at Rotterdam reported having sunk a submarine.

ENGINEERING TRAINING RESULTS TAKEN UP BY INSTITUTE SPEAKER

R. E. Doherty of General Electric Staff Addresses Peterborough Engineers.

CHANGES ADVOCATED.

College Graduates Too Tied Down To Formulae—Semester Hours Too Long.

"The Effect of Present Engineering Education as it is Reflected in the Young Men who come to the General Electric Company" was the subject of a most unusual yet highly interesting and informative address delivered at last night's meeting of the Peterborough Branch, Engineering Institute by R. E. Doherty, Consulting Engineer of the General Electric Company. A recognized authority on the subject of Engineering Education, Mr. Doherty stressed the importance of "cutting down" on the shop work and laboratory chart making, so that the student engineer may have more time to rub elbows with his fellows.

An even stronger argument in favor of this was the fact that under the present system, bright young men were being driven from the engineering profession by the large number of semester hours required as compared with a smaller number for other professions. The ratio was about 148 or 149 to 125. Regarding the college education of a student engineer, he pointed out that it made the student good at inductive reasoning but decidedly weak in deductive reasoning. The moderation above referred to might be the solution, Mr. Doherty pointed out.

In the absence of Chairman W. M. Cruthers, A.M.E.I.C., B. L. Barns presided at last night's meeting, which was attended not only by a splendid turn-out of members of the Peterborough Branch but also by representatives of the Board of Education in the persons of Chairman E. Bruce Fowler and E. F. Reid as well as City Clerk S. R. Armstrong. At the close of the meeting, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Doherty by E. R. Shirley.

Mr. Doherty.

Mr. Doherty prefaced his address proper with an expression of his pleasure at being present on this, his first visit to Canada. His connections with the General Electric have brought him in very close touch with from 250 to 300 college graduates annually, and from these contacts he had formed certain convictions. He had found that the colleges could not exactly fit a man who would satisfactorily answer the demands of different companies because the requirements varied. Only close co-operation between the industrial concerns and the colleges could bring about any happy medium course.

Speaking of some of the faults earliest detected in the college graduate, Mr. Doherty mentioned the rut of formulae as well as inability to express himself. Nevertheless, the speaker had concluded that college men are more resourceful and have more initiative than those who have only had the practical experience. College training taught a man to reason inductively, but did not help him to think from fundamental principles down to definite engineering problems. In other words, the college man was not good on the frontier of new things where formulae does not exist.

Improvement of Situation.

"How can we improve the situation?" was the question raised by the speaker, who answered himself by saying that constant vigilance, pressure and co-operation between the industries and colleges would be necessary in order that a new program of education may be evolved. Since the college graduate is often found unable to use his acquired knowledge, it was felt that a more constant drill in the fundamental principles, even in the latter part of the course, would be of benefit. The present requirements should be modified so that the course, rather than making the student of a book-worm type, would make him have a broader horizon. The high ratio of semester hours now required should also be modified to attract bright but impatient young men who are turning to commercial courses. "Let's unburden

FINAL REPORT GIVEN ON FAIR

Dr. J. J. Craig Tells Kiwanians of Progress Made With Big Show.

OPENS ON MONDAY.

Final marshalling of forces for the big Made-in-Canada Fair campaign of October 15 to 20, with Dr. Jack Craig giving an up-to-the-minute report on progress made, occupied the usual speaker's half hour at the Kiwanis luncheon meeting in the Empress hotel to-day at noon. The splendid response by every member, as recorded on Carl Brown's "volunteer" sheets, must have been a source of genuine satisfaction to Dr. Craig. The stage is all set for this, one of the major activities of the club, and judging from the general spirit of the meeting, citizens of Peterborough and district will witness another real triumph on behalf of the local service club.

Pleasing Musical Numbers.

J. J. Turner presided at the meeting which was graced by the presence of Miss Edythe M. Shuttleworth of Toronto, Mrs. W. R. Widdess and Miss Mabel Clarry, both of Peterborough. Two vocal numbers by Miss Shuttleworth, accompanied by Miss Clarry, ranked high among the outstanding musical contributions to which the club members have been privileged to listen, her delightful elocution enhancing a most pleasing voice. CONSERVATIVES HOLD TAVISTOCK Win Three Cornered By-Election By Only 173 Votes.

V. C. WINNER CHOSEN.

TAVISTOCK, England, October 12 (Canadian Press Cable). — The Conservative Party retained the Tavistock Division of Devonshire in the by-election held yesterday. Brig.-General Wallace D. Wright, V.C., received 10,745 votes to 10,572 votes for Lieut.-Commander R. T. Fletcher, Liberal, and 2,449 for R. Davies, Labor.

The election was considered a preliminary test of strength among the three parties, and the results were awaited as a possible indication of what may happen in the general election. The contituency went Conservative in 1918, was Liberal in 1922 and 1923, and Conservative again with the election of Major Kenyon Slaney in 1924. He died recently.

Montreal Bandits Rob Loan Company Man

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 11 (Canadian Press Cable).—Isidore Goldberg, 32, secretary of the Metropolitan Loan Syndicate, was held up and robbed of $4,000 as he entered his home Wednesday night. As he stepped from his automobile in front of his home with a friend, two men accosted them. One of the bandits held Goldberg's friend, while the second struck the secretary and took the money. Both bandits then fled.

TRAVELS SOUTH TO MADEIRA BEFORE TURNING WESTWARD FOR LONG TRIP OVER OCEAN

Will Fly To United States By Way of Bermuda Islands.

EXPECTED ON MONDAY.

Delays Caused By Head Winds Responsible For Arrival One Day Late.

Far out over the Atlantic the dirigible Graf Zeppelin was west of the island of Maderia this afternoon and headed for the United States on a southerly course that might carry her past Bermuda. Thirty and a half hours out of Freidrichschafen the huge air liner passed over Maderia with a good three thousand miles to travel before hitting the American coast. From messages picked up it was learned the passengers were exceedingly sick, the ship having been forced away out of the planned course to avoid storm centres.

Dodges Lead Winds

FREIDRICHSCHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Dodging far to the south to avoid strong strong headwinds would make flight Zeppelin today was headed south of the Azores planning to reach the United States by way of Bermuda.

Advised after leaving Gibraltar at 6 a.m. enroute to the Azores that strong headwinds would hake flight over those islands inadvisable if not impossible, Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, decided to change his course and head for the Island of Madera off the northwest African coast and thence fly for the United States. News of his decision was wirelessed here. From Madeira there is a water jump of some 3,700 miles.

In view of the slow progress made by the Zeppelin in bucking the headwinds experts estimated the dirigible would require a hundred hours for the trip, which would mean the ship would reach Lakehurst, N.J. early on Monday.

In Touch With Steamers

The ship during the early hours of to-day was in touch with various steamers on the route, including the Reliance and Columbus, and was sighted by others, including the Vergilio, Gloucester Castle, and Glymeric. At last reports the airship

Canadian Officers To Welcome Airship

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—Wing Commander E. W. Stedman, of the Royal Canadian Air Force, accompanied by R. de B. Corriveau, Assistant Chief Engineer of Public Works, left Ottawa last night for Lakehurst, N.J., where they will await the arrival of the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, as official observers for Canada.

Wing-Commander Stedman intimated that close attention would be paid to mooring of the giant craft and other information obtained which might prove useful for the reception of the British airship R-100, which is expected to fly from the British Isles to Montreal early next year. The Canadian representatives will also inspect the delicate machinery now under construction in the United States, which will be installed in the mooring mast at St. Hubert, Que.

THRIFT HABITS BEING FORMED

Inspector Littleproud, of Penny Bank System, Notes Progress Here.

2,300 OPEN ACCOUNTS.

J. R. Littleproud, Inspector of the Penny Bank for Ontario, paid the Peterborough schools an official visit this week. Thrift talks, illustrated by thrift stories were given all the classes. The inspector spoke very highly of the situation in Peterborough. "The school savings work is a project in citizenship," said Inspector Littleproud. "It is an effort to inculcate thrift habits in our girls and boys. Habits are formed by repeated action. The child learns to do by doing. Habits formed in early years continue for life. The teachers in Peterborough are giving the school savings work great encouragement. Another factor which has materially contributed to the success of the scheme locally is the splendid co-operation given by the Royal Bank of Canada where the school ledgers are kept and where withdrawals are made."

The Penny Bank was installed in Peterborough on the tenth day of January of this year. On the opening day there were fifteen hundred and sixty-six pupils opened accounts with a total deposit of $598.43. The project has grown steadily until to-day, there are nearly 2300 open accounts with a total balance of $8,600.00.

This $8,600 balance would have been largely spent on trivial purchases which would have been of very little lasting benefit, had it not been for the school savings work. Of infiltely greater value than the balance accumulated is the thrift habit formed. Many of these depositors bank every Tuesday morning. Life habits are thus formed. While some children are very irregular in depositing, the whole school population runs over 50% as depositors on any given banking day. About 95% of the children have accounts.

Peterborough is one of the many places that have introduced school savings into the programme of regular

Large Shortage In Cold Storage Butter Shown As Dairying Season Nears End

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 12.—(By the Canadian Press).—As the end of the dairying season approaches, there are 8,882,000 pounds less butter in cold storage in Canada than last year. Figures published by the Dominion bureau of statistics show 29,129,000 pounds in storage on October 1 as compared with 38,009,000 pounds on the same date in 1927 and 32,175,000 pounds for the five years average.

A similar depletion of cheese stocks is revealed. There were 27,793,000 pounds in storage on October 1, a decrease of 7,977,000 pounds from last year's total of 35,770,000 pounds. The five years average was 30,348,000 pounds.

The quantity of cheese graded up to the end of September of this year was 1,213,150 boxes as compared with a total of 1,163,208 boxes for the same period in 1927, or an increase of 55,912 boxes.

The reason ascribed by the department of agriculture officials for the lower stocks of butter and cheese this year as compared with last year, is the higher prices prevailing for cheese in the export markets. More milk was made into cheese and less into butter as a result and and both products have been exported quickly to meet the outside demand.

One of Doris Triplets Breaks Left Arm; Robert, Nine, Was Helping Neighbor

Nine-year-old Robert Doris, one of the triplets of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Doris, 482 Bolivar Street, suffered a severe fracture of the left arm between the elbow and shoulder, when he fell while helping pile wood at a neighbor's house between four and five o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

Dr. O'Brien was called, and on discovering the fracture, had "Bob" removed to hospital, where an X-ray was taken and the bone set at noon to-day. While the injury is causing him severe pain, the little fellow is feeling somewhat better, and a host of his chums wish him a speedy recovery.

KIWANIS PROGRAM TO GO ON IN SPITE OF DIFFICULTIES

Murray Street Church Granted To Club For Music Festival.

REPLACES COLLEGIATE.

Dr. Craig Plans To Have Concerts Given in Legion Hall.

Dr. J. J. Craig, manager of the Kiwanis Club Produced-in-Canada Exhibition, to-day told The Examiner he has arranged to use Murray Street Baptist Church for the music festival, in order to leave the Canadian Legion Hall clear for the concert which was to have been given in the Collegiate Assembly Hall, use of which was refused at the last minute by the Board of Education.

"The change will not mean cutting down the program," Dr. Craig said, "but we were negotiating with several additional musicians and companies and have had to give up hope of using them. Even with the disappointment occasioned by the Board of Education, we will have what I think is the best concert program offered in Peterborough in many years."

Dr. Craig intimated that all the artists named in the advertisement inserted to-day would positively present their complete numbers, as previously arranged. "We must realize, however," he said, "that the Legion Hall will not accommodate the number of persons for which the Collegiate Hall offers seating, and there is not, therefore, the same opportunity for the people of Peterborough to hear these outstanding musicians.

"At the same time, Kiwanis Club will lose considerably in the funds it expected to make for its community work, through the change in plans. However, I know that everyone who attends the Exhibition and sees the programs will be thoroughly satisfied, and that, after all, is what we desire."

Asked as to the sale of tickets, compared with last year, Dr. Craig expressed the opinion that it is fully equal. "In fact," he said, "I believe there may be more sold already. The offer of six admissions for one dollar has proven popular. If there are six in one family they can all go the same night, or each have a ticket to use any night. If there are three in the family they can go twice—and really twice is all too little when you consider that the program for every day is altogether different. Of course, we cannot sell the advance tickets after Saturday night."

Used September—Opened April.

In order to ascertain the action of other Boards of Education under circumstances parallel with that dealt with by the local Board this week, Dr. Craig telephoned the school authorities at Kitchener last night. He was informed that the school was opened for use on September 8, 1923, but the official opening did not take place until the close of the evening class term on April 1, 1924 — six months after.

"In view of this, and of the promise of the Board of Education under which we have mistakenly planned," Dr. Craig told The Examiner, "I cannot understand the grounds of refusal of the hall. The excuse is that the Board does not wish the citizens of Peterborough to see the school until it is officially opened, but that seems to me petty in comparison with the importance of the Produced in Canada Exhibition to the surrounding community as a whole. The official and ceremonial opening will give gratification to individuals, it is true, but the Kiwanis concert, with a score of leading artists, would have given pleasure to hundreds. We were to have paid for the use of the hall, so that the Board of Education, and therefore the ratepayers, have actually lost financially through our not using it.

OULTON INSANE DOCTORS STATE

Campbellford Barber Committed to Provincial Hospital by County Judge.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

(Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 12. — Charles Oulton, local barber, who a few weeks ago attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat, was yesterday declared insane and remanded to custody in the County Jail at Cobourg pending receipt of an order for his admission to a provincial hospital. Dr. C. Lapp, jail physician, and Dr. George Field, who examined Oulton, reported to His Honor Judge L. V. O'Connor that Oulton has apparently been insane for some time, suffering from delusions. Judge O'Connor thereupon ordered Oulton to be confined to an asylum.

Socialists Not To Rule

Lloyd George Dismisses Prospects of Next Election at Conference.

LIBERAL INDEPENDENT.

Not Class Party Like Conservatives and Laborites—Group System To Stay.

GREAT YARMOUTH, England, October 12 (Canadian Press Cable). —Addressing the Liberal Federation conference to-day, former Premier Lloyd-George made three predictions in connection with the general election next year. There would be an overwhelming majority of votes in condemnation of the present Government, there would be an enormous accession of strength to the Liberal fold, and whatever party received the majority, it would not be Socialistic.

Lloyd-George then dealt with the possibility of a deadlock in the next Parliament, saying the Socialists had made it clear that under no conditions would they be associated with the Liberals unless they adopted Socialism.

"We are neither Socialists nor Tories, but Liberals, and as such we are equally opposed to both, and have no particular preference for either."

Both Class Parties.

Both Conservatives and Socialists were essentially class parties, he said.

"That is their weakness and their tregnth. In Parliament we must expect no quarter from either party, and we do not ask for it. We can only now make our general position clear. We shall fight the next general election as an independent party."

Lloyd-George, making one of the most important speeches in the history of the Liberal Party, received an enthusiastic welcome. He said the next general election might be one of the most momentous in history. The group system of government had become an integral part of the machinery of Britain, at any rate for a long time to come, he remarked. Extremists on the right and extremists on the left will probably always have separate organizations, and there will always be a body of sane opinion in the middle that will also seek definite expression.

Up to Electorate.

"When the general election comes, the electorate will have to decide whether they are going to renew their trust in the people who let the country down so badly, who have done nothing to pull us through the great trade emergency, and have thoroughly muddled the case of peace and disarmament," he declared.

NEW INDUSTRY PLANNED HERE

Manufacture of Stevenson Concrete Construction Parts Projected in City.

LOCAL MEN.

A new industry is projected for Peterborough, to be organized just as soon as the sponsors can arrange for a factory site. It will be the manufacturing of Stevenson Concrete Construction units, used for building houses, factories, farm buildings, garages, warehouses, and in fact, every type of structure where permanency and freedom from fire are desired, with economy in construction.

The new industry is sponsored by W. J. Kearns, a life-long resident of Peterborough, and George Stevenson. There was a consultation with city officials this morning and Mayor Roland Denne assured Mr. Kearns the city would be ready to assist in the choosing of a site for the plant. There is now one active factory turning out the Stevenson product in Fort Erie, and the Peterborough plant will be the second.

Buildings constructed on the Stevenson concrete plan are of concrete throughout, and are easily erected because of the way the parts join together without cutting. There is no wood in the entire structure, and the outside appearance of the buildings is most appealing. Many farmers in this district who saw samples of the product at the Canadian National Exhibition are enthusiastic about its possibilities for farm building construction, and some have already placed orders for materials.

It is expected that the raw material will be brought from cement plant at Lakefield, and made up into desired forms in the Peterborough plant. "We should be in operation inside of thee months," Mr. Kearns told The Examiner.

Giant Dirigible Near Gibraltar This Morning

Is Delayed By High Winds

First Commercial Air Voyage Over Atlantic Proceeding Steadily.

SEEN AT TARRAGONA.

Airship Has Not Been Reported Since Late Yesterday Evening at Spanish City.

BARCELONA, Oct. 12.—The Graf Zeplin, giant dirigible, late on Thursday night was believed heading southwestward down the southern coast of Spain, toward Gibraltar, with adverse winds cutting its speed to below 50 miles an hour.

The big dirigible was last reported sighted over Tarragona a small city on the Spanish Mediterranean coast, at 8:15 p.m. (3:15, Eastern standard time), an hour and a quarter after it had flown over Barcelona. At Tarragona the dirigible was said to be heading in the direction of Valencia, 150 miles farther down the coast.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press). — Bound over the same track that Columbus followed 436 years ago, the giant German dirigible Graf Zeppelin last night was nosing her way westward towards the United States on the first commercial trans-Atlantic air voyage. In the place of the eighty-eight aboard the historical caravan that led the way to the New World in 1492, were sixty souls, including one woman, who boarded the dirigible at Friedrichshafen yesterday morning and began the long voyage across Southern Europe and the Atlantic to the United States.

Just twelve hours later, the dirigible passed over Barcelona, Spain, well on her way over a course along the southern Atlantic route, westward toward the Azores and America. The northern route had been abandoned even before the flight started because of stormy weather conditions and even the southern route, so far as the Continent was concerned, was none too good; out at sea, however, conditions were reported more favorable.

"I expect to reach New York Sunday morning," said Dr. Hugo Eckener, the ship's commander, just before the start. "The last weather reports timed 2.00 a.m. speak of heavy sotrm. Under these circumstances of course, it is impossible to determine the exact route in advance. In general, however, I can say we will stick to the Southern course, flying over France and then heading southward to avoid a depression which is moving to and fro between Newfoundland and Ireland. The northern route is out of the question."

The Graf Zeppelin's commander, who already has one trans-Atlantic dirigible crossing to his credit, that of the ZR-3, now the Los Angeles, in 1924, followed this course precisely.

Within three minutes of the casting-off at Friedrichshafen, the Graf Zeppelin headed across Lake Constance and disappeared in a blue haze, while the shouts and cheers of the spectators at the flying field were still heard. Like clockwork ,the dirigible sped on, averaging between 55 and 60 miles an hour. Basle was reached at 3.33 a.m. eastern standard time, and the Franco-German border an hour and a half later.

Makes Good Time

Then the ship swung to the southwest and passed over Lyons at 7.25 a.m. eastern standard time. Here the Graf Zeppelin turned directly southward and sped down the valley of the Rhine, over Montelimar at 9.05 and Arles about an hour later. At 10.30 a.m. she reached the Mediterranean and left the shores of Frances at the wireless station in the village of Sainte Marias de la Mer.

Once over the Mediterranean the great ship headed westwards toward her goal. The detour toward the south added 500 miles to the 5,000 mile journey from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst, N.J., but the added safety more than made up for the extra mileage. The ship has a flying range of 120 hours, and a radius of about 9,300 miles, giving a wide leeway.

The latest estimate of the length of the flight was made by Commander Lehmann and Fleming, who told the correspondent for the Associated Press that they thought it would take from 80 to 85 hours because of the heavy headwinds that had been forecasted. This would bring the dirigible into Lakehurst some time between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Sunday.

Although the two other dirigibles, the British R-34 and German ZR-3 have spanned the Atlantic, the flight of the Graf Zeppelin was the first trans-oceanic commercial air voyage ever to be attempted. The huge ship carried 20 passengers, one a woman Lady Grace Drummond Hay, English society woman and writer.

The passengers paid $3,000 each for the privilege of making the trip.

FORMER RYLSTONE RESIDENT LOSES LIFE IN FAR NORTH WHILE ON PROSPECTING TRIP

Joseph Rutherford Dies at Baker's Lake Late Last Month.

NEWS JUST RECEIVED.

Has Brother at Bonarlaw—Mother Died Last Month.

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—Tragedy has overtaken the exploration party of five men sent into Baker's Lake on Hudson Bay late in July as part of the Northern Aerial Mining Exploration, according to a telegram received in Toronto last night from Jack Hammell, head of the project, who is now at The Pas directing rescue work.

Details are obscure, but it is confirmed that Joe Rutherford, one of the prospectors who was to explore the wilderness about Baker's Lake, died on September 24. Neither the cause nor the exact place of his death are yet known.

Another member of the party, Thomas Cowan, is now believed at Fort Churchill, and is believed to be suffering from frozen feet. He and two others have been brought out from Baker's Lake by the plane which took them in.

Ben Martin, assistant secretary at the Northern Aerial Minerals Exploration headquarters here, stated last night that the three prospectors had been brought back to Fort Churchill. Mr. Martin had received the news in a telegram from Mr. Hammell.

Rutherford, who, it is learned, has a brother Harold at Bonarlaw, Ont., is unknown at headquarters here. Mr. Hammell hired him at the Howey property at Red Lake, it was stated His mother died last month.

The fifth man in the party was remaining behind with the crew and prospectors aboard the Patrick and Michael, the schooner which is lodged on a reef at the entrance to Baker's Lake. Mr. Martin believed that there were ample provisions aboard, as it had been the intention, he said, to allow the boat to remain at Baker's Lake all winter in any event.

According to Mr. Martin, the three prospectors were brought out by Pilot A. M. Berry of Ottawa, who took them in at the end of July. Reports of an airplane crash were flatly denied by Mr. Martin, who stated that the only aircraft trouble had been a defect which developed in the starting mechanism of Berry's plane. It was this trouble which was keeping Berry at Fort Chuchill now, he said. An unsuccessful attempt had been made to start for The Pas, but the plane would not take off.

When communuication was lost between The Pas and the crew of the Patrick and Michael, two planes had been started from Fort Churchill, but were forced down by storms at Cape Eskimo. These planes were piloted by Captains Oaks and McDonough, Mr. Martin believed.

Rev. W. W. Jones Renews Acquaintances in Carmel Charge of Circuit.

LEAGUE FORMED.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 12.—A church gathering of peculiar interest was held at the Carmel United Church on Friday evening, when Rev. W. W. Jones, whose boyhood home was in the vicinity, met his people in a pastoral relationship and organization was effected for active community service during the winter months.

There were more than sixty present, representing practically every family in the community, and after the pastor had conducted an opening devotional period a full discussion relating to further church meetings, which would be considered as the mid-week gathering in connection with the Sunda. School was carried on. For some time past the Sunday session of the school has been the only service held at this appointment, except on special occasions throughout the year.

Mr. Jones explained the four departments usually organized in connection with a Young People's Society, and the following were elected to fill the position of conveners, their committees being also named:

Friendship—Convenor, Mrs. Malcolm Ward; committee, Mrs. Reid and Miss L. Olan.

Literary and Social—Convenor, Miss M. Moise; committee, Mrs. Allen and Miss Stella Olan.

Citizenship and Patriotic—Convenor, Mr. W. H. Lunn; committee, George Dew and J. Rusk.

Music—Convenor, Mrs. John Lunn; committee, Mrs. E. Gardiner and Miss Martha Lunn.

The regular time of meeting will be on Friday evening of each week at 8 o'clock, each department being responsible for one program in the month.

A pleasant social time was enjoyed at the close, when refreshments were served. Future gatherings are being looked forward to with enthusiasm and interest, a willingness to work, and initiative in planning programs being requirements of outstanding importance.

The Weather

METEOROLOGICAL OFFICE Toronto, Oct. 12.—Pressure is high on the Atlantic Coast and over the Western Provinces and Northwest States with a trough of low extending from Lake Superior to Arizona. Probabilities

Lake Superior—Fresh northeast winds; mostly cloudy and cooler at Port Arthur; becoming cooler at the Soo by Saturday.

Western Provinces—Fair and cool.

THE WEATHER

The lowest the temperature went last night was 66 degrees. It was thus one of the warmest nights of the present season, although we are now nearing the middle of October. Yesterday's highest point was 81 degrees —a warm day for this time of the year.—W.P.

MISSION CIRCLE FINANCES GOOD

Satisfactory Amount On Hand —Expansion Proposed.

WILL HELP W.M.S.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 12—The Golden Links Mission Circle held its October meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Edgar Fallis, Seventh Line, Cavan, a number of carloads of the young people motoring over for the gathering.

The president, Miss Jean L. Burnham, was in the chair, and among the items of business transacted was the appointment of a new treasurer, Miss Francis Jones, to take the place of Miss Lila Whyte who found it impossible to attend the meetings, and hence had resigned.

Finances were reported as in good condition, the amount on hand being satisfactory for this time in the church year. The Honorary President, Mrs. V. C. Lambert, stated that more than twenty dollars had been realized for the Circle as its share from the articles sent to the rummage sale held last week at Oshawa.

Notice was given of the Young People's Rally to be held at Newcastle on Monday, October 15, when F. W. Boreham, of England, will be one of the speakers, and the president urged having at least two or three carloads of local workers at the gathering.

On motion, it wa decided to have the Circle offer its services to the W.M.S. for the purpose of assisting Mrs. M. McDowell with the regular meetings of the Sunshine Mission Band, the superintendents, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, having removed to Toronto to reside.

The pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, addressed the meeting asking consideration of the extension of the Circle membership to take in the young men of the church, for whom at present no special organization, other than the Tuxis Square, is functioning. This matter will be taken up at the next meeting which will be held at

MARMORA, Oct. 12 (Examiner Correspondence).—The final factory meeting of the Madoc District Cheesemakers' Association was held on Wednesday evening at the Victoria factory, three miles west of Tweed. In his remarks he referred to the influence extending from the association and mentioned the receipt of a letter from the Wisconsin Sheesmakers' Association enquiring regarding routine of local association. Mr. Brennan further announced the annual meeting of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, which is being held in Belleville, December 5 and 6, and the annual meeting of the Madoc District Association, which is being held in Madoc on November 27. SUBMISSIONS FAVOR PRESENT SYSTEM OF THROUGH RATES ON INTERNATIONAL FREIGHT Interstate Commerce Commission Hears Evidence Change.

NO DECISION GIVEN.

Canada Represented Although Taking No Active Part in Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—For the purpose of gathering evidence for and against a change in the present system of through rates on international freight, the Interstate Commerce Commission held court here yesterday. With few exceptions the submissions of both shippers and carriers were in favor of a continuation of the present system as against a system of proportional rates to and from the Canadian-United States boundary. The commission adjourned without giving any decision.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association and other Canadian shippers' organizations and both Canadian railways were represented in the court room, but Canada took no official part in the proceedings. The case arose out of a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States upholding the Interstate Commerce Commission ruling that the commission had authority to order reparation when in its opinion excessive rates had been charged by railroads. Canada was involved because the particular test case chosen involved reparations ordered on shipments of newsprint from Thorold, Ont., to United States points on which rates were reduced by the commission in 1922. The News Syndicate Company of America claimed rebate of what they said were excessive charges assessed by two American railways prior to this date.

The Supreme Court found that the Interstate Commerce Commission had authority to order full reparation even though its order was not binding on the Canadian railway which carried the newsprint to the United States boundary. This question was involved, but was really secondary to the general question of whether through freight rates were preferable to a combination of local rates on each side of the line. The decision of Interstate Commerce Commission may not be handed down for some time.

HALL'S BRIDGE, Oct. 12.—Harry Shearer, the owner and manager of the general store, has sold his business to Rollie Windover. Mr. Windover has a five-year lease, beginning December 1, 1928.

RUSSELL LEARMOUTH PRESIDES OVER SCHOOL LITERARY SOCIETY

Elected At Re-organization Meeting of Campbellford Students.

BOYS AS PIANISTS.

Unusual For Musical Honors To Be Awarded Male Sex—Two Reporters.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 12 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Once more the literary society of the high school here has been formed, and the officers for the present term appointed. For many years past, the school has boasted a most successful organization along this line, and it is expected that the officers appointed this term will conduct the affairs of the society with as much or more success than in former years. The meeting held yesterday afternoon was strictly business, and the most important item was the election of officers and form representatives to the executive.

This year, the principal, E. H. Greig, B.A., will be the honorary president. Russel Learmouth will be president, with Hilda Jones in the office of vice-president. Dorothy West was appointed secretary. Kathleen Crosson and Eric Douglas will represent the Fifth Form students, while Fourth Form selected Georgie Davidson and Basil Linton. Ivy Ray and Harry Fowlds were the favorites for Third Form, and the Second Form elected Fern Weatherill and Martin Rusaw. Helen Smith and Frank Rowe will represent the Freshmen class.

The position of pianist was awarded to Ralph Sperry, with George Osborne as his assistant. The fact that two boys were appointed to these positions has occasioned considerable comment among the students. Girls have usually filled these places. This year there are two press representatives rather than the one of former years. Muriel Kingston will represent the local paper, while Roxie Wilson will be responsible for the doings of the society finding their way into The Examiner.

HOCKEY MEETING ON MONDAY NIGHT

Campbellford Fans and Players Look Forward To Good Season.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 12 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Hockey that was to have been discussed last night will not be the topic of official conversation till Monday evening. It was found that there were several persons who would be greatly interested who could not possibly attend a meeting last night, so the affair was postponed till Monday night, when a good representation is expected to be present in the public library rooms.

Last year hockey proved the most interesting sport in town. Davidson's Arena was erected, and every possible effort put forward to make the game a success. This year should see fewer difficulties ahead. There will be no uniforms or equipment to be purchased other than perhaps a few sticks. This should lessen the usual financial strain that is so keenly felt by most amateur hockey clubs. At the present time the players of last year's sextette are busy arguing as to who will be their officials for the coming season, and it is expected that the meeting on Monday night will be short and snappy.

APSLEY, Oct. 12—(Examiner Correspondence).—An aged resident of the northern part of the township in the person of William Jones, passed away on Wednesday night, at the age of 86 years. Mr. Jones and his wife had lived for twenty-five years on a back wall, four miles from what is called by courtesy, the main road, and about the same distance from the nearest neighbour. For some years the council had tried to induce the aged couple to leave their isolated home for the House of Refuge but without avail, and for some time a man has been engaged by the council to look after them, supplying necessities and making daily visits. The remains were brought to Apsley and the funeral was held on Friday at the cemetery, the service being conducted by the minister of the United Church, Rev. W. H. Taylor. Mrs. Jones, who is 82 years of age, was lodged at the Apsely House until Monday when she was taken to the House of Refuge. The deceased apparently had no near relatives.

During the social hour at the close a contest on the jumbled names of animals native to India created interest and enjoyment and guessing proverbs, disguised in rather 'high-flown' language, also gave employment for all. Homemade candy and apples were served before the guests left for home, and the formal vote of thanks to Mrs. Fallis, and her daughters, Misses Elinor and Margaret, was moved by Miss Wilma Fallis and Miss Dorothy McDowell.

HARVEST FESTIVALS

ST. AIDEN'S CHURCH.

(Examiner Correspondence)

YOUNG'S POINT, Oct. 10.—The annual harvest thanksgiving services were held at St. Aiden's Church, Young's Point, on Sunday, Oct. 7, 1928.

A celebration of the Holy Communion was held in the morning, Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly being the celebrant. In the evening the service was a combination of a harvest festival and the dedication of a pulpit.

The Anglican Laymen's Association of Peterborough have presented to the church a very handsome pulpit, it being built in Peterborough by Percy Stenner. There was a delegation from the association present, among whom were Charles Lacheur (president), Mr. and Mrs. Howden, Messrs. J. J. Turner, R. N. Stuart and Mr. Hooper. Mr. J. J. Turner formally presented the pulpit to the incumbent for dedication.

After the dedication Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly opened the pulpit with a sermon suitable for a thanksgiving service. He took as his text, Deuteronomy XIII., 11-17, "Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God, and say in thine heart, My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth."

The season of the harvest calls us to remember God. We are only too apt to forget God altogether and leave Him out of our considerations. We must remember that He is the source of all life-giving necessities. Without God we could not exist. There are many ways in which we may remember God, of which the preacher gave an illustration of two ways. First of all we remember Him by worship. This necessitates attendance at church and taking a full part in the service. God calls us to come to His house. Then, besides worship, God asks us to give back to Him a portion of the good things with which He has blessed us. In other words, to support morally and financially His church.

The question is asked, Why should we remember God? It is stated in Deuteronomy xiii., "In the day that thou do at all forget the Lord thy God, I testify against you that ye shall surely perish." So then we must see to it that we do not forget God and to walk in His paths always.

The musical portion of the service was ably rendered by Miss Daisy Wilson.

After the service the visiting laymen from Peterborough were entertained at the rectory by Mrs. R. T. C. Dwelly.

Among those that attended the thanksgiving services at St. Aiden's Church on Sunday were Mrs. David Coones and Miss Dunford, Pine Grove; Mr. and Mrs. Fawcett, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. McIlmoyle, Mr. and Mrs. Barr, from Buckhorn; Mr. and Mrs. Melville Stone, Mrs. W. G. Stone, Mrs. Lytle, son and daughter, Mrs. Robert Stone, from Burleigh.

THE TRUTH ABOUT BRAN AND CONSTIPATION

Thousands of people eat bran regularly for the healthful roughage it provides. It is a splendid practice. But be sure you are really getting all the roughage you need when you eat bran. Doctors say it takes 100% bran to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only accomplish part-way results. That is why they fail!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. Just two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

You'll like the flavor and crispness of ALL-BRAN. Serve with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Mix with other cereals. Sprinkle into soups. Use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

DOING GREAT WORK.

In connection with the Kiwanis Club Produced-in-Canada Exhibition next week it should be remembered that the event will not only serve to call attention to the excellence of Canadian products but will also raise funds for the various community activities of the Kiwanis Club.

The Kiwanis organization has given ample proof of its capacity for service.

Its work in connection with the Summer Camp at Jackson Park is outstanding.

The club not only expended $662 on this camp from 1921 to 1923 and built a wading pool there at a cost of $250, but for the last two years the entire financing of the camp has been assumed by Kiwanis, the expenditure in 1927 being $1,099, while during the past summer the amount spent on this splendid cause was $1,140.

Such work as that is in every way worthy of community support, and thus the phospects of the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition setting new records this year in point of attendance will afford general satisfaction.

The citizens of Peterborough are counted upon to give the event whole-hearted support, and will undoubtedly do so.

HON. PETER HEENAN.

Peterborough was glad of the opportunity to welcome Hon. Peter Heenan, Federal Minister of Labor, yesterday, and the action of the City Council in arranging a reception for the Minister will be generally approved.

Mr. Heenan has made good as a Minister of Labor, and his visit here yesterday gave an opportunity to understand his success.

He has he faculty of making friends and inspiring confidence—two valuable qualities for any Cabinet Minister and particularly useful to the holder of the Labor portfolio, one of the chief responsibilities of which is conciliate the employer and the employee and avoid industrial unrest.

Mr. Heenan is a splendid sample of the opportunities Canada offers her new citizens.

Coming to this country from Ireland in 1902, he has climbed the ladder steadily until to-day he is a member of the Federal Cabinet, after having had the honor of also representing the same riding in the Ontario Legislature.

To him Canada has been the land of opportunity, and his career should be valuable material for Canadian immigration agents abroad.

RELIGION AND CIVILIZATION.

President Calvin Coolidge of the United States cannot be accused of talking too much, but it is noticeable that when he does break silence he usually says something of moment.

Thus his speech at the general convention of the Episcopal Church, in which he proclaimed religion to be necessary for the continuation of the American government, will attract widespread attention.

"We cannot remind ourselves too often," the chief executive said, "that our right to be free, the support of our principles of justice, our obligations to each other in our domestic affairs, and our duty to humanity abroad, the confidence in each other necessary to support our social and economic relations, and, finally, the fabric of our government itself, all rest on religion."

It is refreshing to read such speeches and encouraging to have men in high positions thus remind the world of the fact that without religion civilization would fail.

In these days when so many people appear to pay little or no attention to religion, speeches of this nature from those high in authority serve a very excellent purpose.

MOTORISTS AND THE CUSTOMS.

The customs service and the officials in the service on both sides of the line between Canada and the United States probably cause no more trouble to travelling mankind than such laws and officials cause at any international boundary throughout the world. But to people who travel little elsewhere it seems that, between two friendly and similar countries, there is caused at the border trouble enough.

Against the policy followed by the Canadian customs in regard to people entering the Dominion in motor cars the Manitoba Free Press makes protest and invites the press all across the country to join with it.

The case is this. The regulations permit a tourist to bring his car into Canada duty free, and he may stay sixty days. But if while here he buys grain or buys a cottage or transacts any business or appoints an agent the customs officers get after him and make him pay duty on his car. He isn't a tourist if he does any business. A tourist must only tour. A typical case is that of a tourist who motored into Winnipeg a couple of months ago and while looking around decided that he should open a business there. Coming back by motor a fortnight ago he explained to the customs authorities that he had decided to open an office in Winnipeg and go into business; that he meant to rent an office, find a house to live in, and then go back and bring his family over. The customs informed him that as he was entering the country on business he would have to pay duty on his car or put it in bond while here. The duty would have been over $100, so he put the car in bond at a charge of $10. Deprived of his car he went about on foot and by street car renting an office and a warehouse, getting signs painted, printing done, and finding and engaging a residence in which to install his family. The Free Press says:

"Here was a man coming to Winnipeg to rent an office, for which he would pay rent, to have work done by Winnipeg workmen, to rent or buy a house in Winnipeg, to hire Winnipeg citizens as employees, and generally to add something to the development of Winnipeg, and all the encouragement he gets from the customs department is in the way of being charged $10 to put his car in a place where he could not have the use of it."

The difficulty appears to be that it is not deemed possible to permit the customs regulations to possess any flexibility at all, or to allow the exercise of discretion by officials. A regulation is there and it must be enforced. It should be possible, however, for an official of sufficiently high standing to be entrusted with a certain amount of discretion to be used in such a case as that which occurred in Winnipeg.—Toronto Star.

* * * *

In connection with the above The Examiner has heard of a case in which a Niagara Falls youth in Canada as a tourist inadvertently ran foul of the customs authorities, and as a result finds himself in the unpleasant situation of having his car held and a penalty of $25 inflicted upon him.

This young man, very much interested in aviation, became friendly with representatives of an aviation company at the Toronto Exhibition, and one day when a number of people wanting a flight were to be motored out to the flying field and the company's car refused to start, the young visitor says that he was asked as a favor to transport the party. Upon his return he found taxi drivers had laid a complaint against him on the ground that, although in Canada on a tourist permit, he was using his car for commercial purposes. Accordingly the car is being held and the penalty has been inflicted.

As described, the case seems to have been only a technical violation of the customs regulation, and, as The Star points out, officials should be allowed to exercise a certain amount of discretion.

This boy's case is particularly unfortunate as, in addition to his trouble with the customs officials, he has loaned a sum of money to an aviator who in return for the favor was to give him some flying lessons, and also provide him with board and lodging.

This contract is not being carried out, the visitor is without money, and his car is held in Toronto.

His impressions of Canada are not likely to be quoted by agencies promoting the tourist traffic.

MR. JARVIS AND THE PROVINCE.

In speaking of Mr. Aemilius Jarvis' work in buying bonds for the Ontario Government during the Drury regime, the use of the term broker, we find, is liable to misunderstanding by those not familiar with the circumstances of the transaction. Mr. Jarvis was very much more than the ordinary broker in this case. He had offered to do the business for the Government on a cost-plus basis. The Cabinet decided, however, that in case of his inability to carry out the project, they would be unable to justify the expenses in London, estimated at £4,000, but which turned out to be over £7,000. As a result Premier Drury insisted that the terms must be such as would ensure the Province against any loss or expense, and that Mr. Jarvis must make a definite proposal showing exactly what the bonds were to cost. That is to say, the Government played absolutely safe, with no risk of loss or expense. Mr. Jarvis accordingly made an offer which tied him down to the purchase of the bonds at his own risk, and the payment of all expenses, while it was understood he would make no claim for commission, but take his chances for remuneration for his services on the rate at which he might purchase the bonds, and their resaleto the Province at the prices agreed upon. It was the correspondence on this point that was held by the jury to be a conspiracy, and the trial judge on nine occasions evaded the duty of enlightening the jury on the point. The fact was that Mr. Jarvis was not a broker in the ordinary sense at all, but a dealer who bought the bonds on his own credit, as was sworn to by Sir John Ferguson, head of Lloyds in London, and he actually owned the bonds for forty days before the Government repaid him. There was a real and distinct risk during these forty days, a period when the financial situation was much disturbed on both sides of the Atlantic. This disturbance, however, enabled Mr. Jarvis to make the profit that accrued, not an extortionate one, being slightly over five per cent. net. Considering the risk no reasonable objection could be made to this, in view of the millions of profit which accrued to the Province. When all this is thoroughly understood it will be simply a scandal if a new trial is refused in which these circumstances can be set forth.—Hamilton Herald.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 11 (Canadian Press)—There was some demand for Manitoba wheat on the Montreal grain market yesterday, and sales of five loads of No. 6 wheat were made at 24 cents per bushel under the Winnipeg October option, and No. 4 wheat at 2 cents per bushel under, c.i.f., Montreal. A steady trade was done in car lots of grain with domestic and country buyers and prices generally were steady.

A fair amount of business was done with United Kingdom and Continental buyers in Spring wheat flour. The domestic trade was also good and values were firm. The winter wheat trade was fair and values were unchanged.

A feature of the millfeed trade was the demand from United States buyers for Manitoba bran and sales of several cars were made. The local trade was steady and value were unchanged. The market for standard grades of rolled oats were active and firm.

The undertone to the egg market was steady under a good demand for all grades of fresh and storage. The receipts were 2,158 cases.

A strong feeling prevailed in the market for beans owing to the continued small offerings. Cables received quoted choice white handpicked for shipment at $5.20 per bushel delivered here, and car lots of choice Canadian beans were quoted at $4.35 per bushel, ex-track. In a jobbing way imported beans sold at $4.40 to $4.60 per bushel, ex-store.

The potato trade was active and firm. Prince Edward Island best grade cobblers sold at 85 cents to 90 cents per bag of 90 pounds in bags, f.o.b. Montreal, and New Brunswick Green Mountains sold at 80 cents per bag of 90 lbs in bulk.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press). — Pre-holiday evening-up of accounts tended noticeably at times yesterday to emphasize the upward trend of the wheat market, and so likewise did word that India which is usually an exporting country has contracted for 10,000 tons of Argentine wheat to be shipped this month. In addition, news was received that 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been bought yesterday for the Orient. The market effect of stormy weather northwest, too, was heightened by a forecast that unfavorable conditions would continue. Such conditions, it was asserted, would be likely to interfere with the crop movement, and perhaps cause some damage to wheat quality.

Official announcement yesterday that fall sowing of wheat has been suspended throughout the western two-thirds of Kansas gave special point to persistent complaints of drought in various winter wheat sections. In this connection, a leading firm here had reports from grain dealers that on account of adverse weather for planting, Ohio probably would show 20 to 30 per cent reduction of winter wheat acreage, Indiana 20 per cent, Illinois 6 per cent, Oklahoma 3 per cent, Texas 1 per cent, and Kansas and Nebraska 3 to 5 per cent. However, if rain is received in time these figures are likely to change.

Upturns in the price of corn were associated with a forecast of lowest temperatures of the season and of snow to-day in parts of Nebraska and the Dakotas. Fears were expressed that movement of new corn might be delayed. Meanwhile, export sales of 125,000 bushels of corn yesterday were noted, and old corn here was in good demand. Especially white, which commanded 3 to 5 cents a bushel advance. Oats trade was light, and the market kept within narrow limits.

Provisions averaged higher, reflecting an upward trend of hog values.

MALE VOICE CHOIR BEGINS REHEARSALS

Good Attendance at First Practice of Season—Music Tried Out.

The first rehearsal of Peterborough Male Voice Choir for the 1928-29 season was held on Tuesday evening in Canadian Legion Hall. The executive was on hand to greet a chorus of about sixty ladies and twenty-eight gentlemen during the period from eight to nine o'clock. Under the leadership of Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" was rehearsed, and the beautiful music and the practice was thoroughly enjoyed. The nine to ten o'clock period was spent by the male voice section with part songs, giving a general impression of the music to be studied.

From opinions expressed it would seem that the season will be very happy, a fine spirit prevailing in all sections.

On account of the hall being engaged for next week, it was decided to call next practice on Tuesday, October 23, when the executive is looking for increased members, especially in the male choir.

THIRD DEGREE METHODS WILL BE EXAMINED

Royal Commission Holds First Sitting in Inquiry Into London Force.

LEAKAGES MENTIONED.

Joynson-Hicks Refers To Giving of Non-Vital Information To Papers.

(By Henry Sommerville, Special Cable, Copyright.)

LONDON, Oct. 12. The Royal Commission on police methods held its first sitting to-day. The chief question to be considered is whether third degree methods are used for obtaining evidence. Another topic may be the frequent leakages of official information to newspapers, and there is no doubt that these leakages are a frequent occurrence from Scotland Yard.

Sir William Joynson-Hicks often has referred to them publicly and he personally appealed to two leading newspaper proprietors to help him abolish this abuse. The newspaper proprietors, however, told him it was his business to stop leakages if he could and it was their business to get the news.

Tom Johnstone, M.P., an experienced journalist, has made detailed statements as to crime reporters receiving regular "entertainment allowances" from their offices which are expended on police officers.

Sir Wyndham Childs recently has denied that any information which might defeat the course of justice is improperly given to the press by officials of Scotland Yard. This is denying an accusation that has not been made. The information that is constantly "scooped" by one newspaper or another at Scotland Yard is not such as hinders the detection of crime or the conviction of criminals. Childs has given no reason for his own resignation and he denies reports that he intends to make any sensational revelations. Sir William Joynson-Hicks has openly and repeatedly stated that it is necessary to restore public confidence in the metropolitan police. A matter which has caused further anxiety is employment of third degree methods of getting evidence. This is a post-war development in Britain.

There are various other allegations as to police taking bribes from women street offenders, from street book makers and from motorists who park cars in public streets, but these do not touch the central police administration. The Home Secretary passed over Childs when he appointed Lord Byng as successor to Sir William Horwood and it is not unnatural that Childs should feel himself slighted.

King's Wharf

(Examiner Correspondence)

KING'S WHARF, Oct. 12. — The cutting of corn and buckwheat is somewhat delayed on account of so much rain. A number of fields of buckwheat had to be left as the ground was so wet the men could not get on the fields with horses or binder. The potatoes are all out now, but where the ground was wet the potatoes are not very good and a few rotten ones are found, while those on high sandy land are an extra good crop. On account of so much rain and cold weather, the fall wheat is not getting the start it should get, and most of it is just over ground. Unless it gets fine weather it will be a poor lookout for next spring. There is great demand for cattle here just now, and they are selling for very high prices. Pork was also very high, selling at $20.00 per hundred dressed, but has taken a drop now and is only $17.00 per hundred.

District Churches

Harvest Festival Service at St. Matthew's (Anglican) Church, Hall's Bridge

The annual harvest thanksgiving service was held at St. Matthew's (Anglican) Church, Hall's Bridge, on Sunday afternoon, October 7. The church was tastefully decorated, and a goodly number were in attendance. Rev. Walter J. Creighton, rector of St. John's, Lakefield, was the special preacher for the occasion.

He took as his text, St. Luke xii: 15, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." The preacher went on to state that none of us are blessed with an overabundance of this world's goods, and if our lives are to be judged according to our possessions, then they are not worth very much. Following the same reasoning, the life of one who is wealthy in the eyes of the world, is worth so much more. The text, however, rings out a very true statement, and by that principle both rich and poor may alike be very wealthy in the highest sense of the word.

The preacher went on to give some practical illustrations of the principle that a man's life does not consist in the things which he possesses. We must beware that our possessions do not take such a hold upon us, that instead of us possessing them they in reality possess us.

There is no end for the desire of mankind for more, and still more. We must realize that the possessions of the world are not the greatest things. In our trials and struggles we must see the many blessings which God has given us. The sooner we begin to see these blessings of God in our lives the better it will be for all concerned. Life becomes the greatest of all blessings when it is governed by the principles of God. It then consists of the mercy which is above, and which becomes illustrated in the complete and perfect life. The kindly hand of God is ever outstretched to guide us into the perfect life, and may we always be ready to hold out our hands to grasp that Hand which will assure us of a share in that peace which passeth all knowledge.

The fruit and vegetables with which the church was decorated will be sent to the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough.

EVEREADY Radio Batteries —they last longer

Try It Yourself, Too!

You Can See Why a Layerbilt Lasts Longer

We would hardly advise you to tear up a new Eveready Layerbilt to find out why it lasts longer—but after you have finished one of these batteries, pull it apart!

You'll see how solid with current-making elements it was—and how evenly the wide plates of carbon and zinc wore away, giving the last bit of energy before your Layerbilt finally "signed off."

You'll marvel at the great improvement over the old types of batteries with their round cell construction—and we know that you'll be satisfied that the long life and economy of your Layerbilt was not just a lucky accident or a mystery, but a certainty of long service and economy based on scientific construction, which you can count upon with every Eveready Layerbilt "B" Battery.

METROPOLITAN STORE OPENS

Peterborough Workmen Made Ready the Fine Interior—Peterborough Sales Help Engaged.

Metropolitan Stores, Ltd., are opening on Saturday, Oct. 13th at 371 and 373 George street another 5 cent to $1.00 store in their fast growing chain of 130 stores from coast to coast now operating in Canada and the United States.

All construction has been accomplished by Peterborough contractors and no expense has been spared to make this the most up-to-date store of its kind in the province.

The most modern equipment has been installed to make this store a model of convenience to the shopper and this, together with Metropolitan's tremendous chain store buying power will make this new store both a pleasant and profitable place in which to shop.

The Canadian head office is located in London, Ontario, under the direction of the following executives: L. R. Deamarteaux, vice-president and general manager; P. P. Banninga, merchandise manager; W. L. Shuff, secretary and treasurer; W. C. Watson, construction manager; G. Ross, E. B. McWilliams and W. J. Murphy, buyers; R. A. Turner and H. C. Thomas, superintendents.

The largest 5 cents to $1.00 store in Canada was opened by Metropolitan on September 20th in Montreal and under the present program this firm will have over 50 stores in operation in Canada during the coming year.

Mr. H. O. Almas is manager of the local stores and fifty Peterborough girls will be employed on the opening day, Saturday, October 13th.

AT EMILY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

EMILY, Oct. 12.—The annual Harvest Home service was held in St. John's Anglican church, Emily, on Sunday evening.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the choir rendered excellent music.

Miss Mildred Magee sang a solo, while the collection was being taken up.

Rev. Mr. James, of Newcastle, formerly of this parish, conducted the service. The church was filled to capacity, with a number of pepole standing at the back.

$5 BUYS A JAIL.

San Anselmo, Cal., Oct. 12.—Col. John Jordan bought him a nice jail here for the munificent sum of five iron men. The building, which is six years old, has housed but two prisoners and county officials decided the jail was an unnecessary source of expense.

METROPOLITAN STORES, LTD. ENJOY TREMENDOUS GROWTH

Head Office of Canadian Division of Progressive Company In London; Vigorous Policy of Expansion Laid Out Will Enable Firm To Share In Marked Prosperity of Canada.

We are able to secure from L. R. Desmarteaux, vice-president and general manager of Metropolitan Stores, Limited, an interesting story which indicates the progress of Canadian enterprise if properly managed. The company has its head office in London and is the Canadian division of a very successful chain store enterprise. The parent company is the Metropolitan Chain Stores, Incorporated, with head offices in New York. E. W. Livingston is president of both the parent company and subsidiary in Canada and L. R. Desmarteaux is vice-president of both companies also. The Canadian division is under the special direction of Mr. Desmarteaux, himself a Canadian and resident of London, Ontario. His experience in chain store operations covers a period of over sixteen years, including several years in Canada with the Woolworth Company and seven years in U.S.A. with the Kresge Stores. The Canadian Field offers splendid opportunities for expansion and Mr. Desmarteaux is devoting his entire time to this end.

Metropolitan Stores, Limited, was incorporated in 1920 and purchased a chain of stores then operated by the Canadian Small Wares, Limited. In 1924 the company was re-organized and has since had a tremendous growth.

A vigorous policy of expansion has been laid out which will enable the company to share in the marked prosperity of Canada, a prosperity which is certain to continue, according to the best informed authorities. There are thirty stores now operating in Canada. New stores are under construction, fifteen in number are located at Montreal, Winnipeg, two in Vancouver, St. John, New Brunswick; Truro, N.S.; Glace Bay, N.S.; Hull, Quebec; North Bay, Port Arthur, Calgary, Ft. William, Moncton, New Brunswick; Oshawa, Cornwall. The stores at London, Ontario, St. John, N.B., and Sarnia are to be enlarged and improved this year and it is estimated that the expansion program of 1928 will add several million to the annual turnover.

Recently the Grand Building, now occupied by Gray's Dry Goods Store was purchased and the plans are to join this building with the present store of the company. This store will have modern store fronts on both Dundas and Carling street and will be one of the finest stores in western Ontario. In addition to the new locations already mentioned, twenty additional locations are to be purchased outright or secured on long leases during 1929, and by the end of 1930 it is planned to have sixty stores in operation in Canada with a yearly turnover of ten million dollars.

All buying for the Canadian Stores is done at the head office, London, Ontario, and fully 75 per cent. of the merchandise purchased is Canadian-made. This proportion will increase every year until practically every dollar's worth of goods handled will be of Canadian origin, as the manufacturers of the Dominion become educated to produce better merchandise at right prices and suitable for the requirements of the Metropolitan type of store.

Buyers Especially Trained.

A great deal of the success in chain store operation depends upon the buying. All buyers for Metropolitan Stores, Limited, have been specially trained for this important work, have gone through every phase of chain store operation and have worked their way up from the position of store manager. Mr. P. P. Banninga is in charge of the merchandise department.

The Metropolitan Stores have now adopted a unique policy in considering the welfare of those who are helping to make the business a success. The company has virtually made co-partners of its buyers, managers and other executives by giving them an opportunity to purchase stock on very favorable terms. This has promoted loyalty, esprit he corps and devoted interest which results in untiring effort in the setting of high records for sales and the effecting of economy.

The success of the Metropolitan type of store, selling merchandise within a price range of five cents to one dollar, is amply proven. Every one of the seven Metropolitan Stores opened during 1927 showed a profit the first month — a notable tribute to the wisdom shown in the selection of locations, the type of men placed in charge and the efficiency of the organization behind them. Mr. R Desmarteaux knows Canada and Canadian conditions from coast to coast and is in every respect well equipped to make a still more remarkable success of Metropolitan Stores, Limited, as a leading enterprise.

CONVENIENT ARRANGEMENT OF COUNTERS MEANS THE LAST WORD IN SERVICE TO THE CUSTOMERS

Combining beauty with serviceable arrangement of counters the new store of the Metropolitan Stores, Limited, which will be officially opened on Saturday will be one of the most outstanding in the city. For the past six weeks draughtsmen, carpenters, electricians and other tradesmen have been busy perparing the store.

The location is indeed a credit not only to the owners, but to the contractors and the community which it serves.

From George street one passes beneather a large green and fawn striped awning over which the brilliant red and gold sign of the store has been placed. The signs are good advertisements for the store and although they are more or less characteristic of chain stores, generally, they proclaim their message whatever it may be.

Display Windows

The display windows are novel. They have been so designed with prisms and corners that every available space may be used in the display of the goods featured by this firm. Laurentian granite bases with metal mouldings on the windows themselves add considerably to the finished appearance of the entry. The flooring of the entrance is of tile, in interesting color scheme.

The windows are decorated in light mahogany and cream and provide the window decorators with considerable space in the placing of the goods on exhibition. A row of indirect lights provide equal lighting.

Spacious Interior

The interior of the store is generally more spacious than the average smallware store.

It will provide the patrons of the store with plenty of space in which to move about. The counters of which there are three rows, are well arranged so that there will be plenty of space in between. The walls are light cream and white with an interesting trimming in panel work of mahogany. In the upper panels along the walls there is a row of rather unique store symbols which give the store a distinctive interior. These symbols are diamond-shaped, red plaques with the capital M. standing out sharply in gold.

For Service

The counters and all the interior woodwork is of wainut and provides an interesting relief in the spotless ligth shades of the walls. At rear of each section of the display windows, upper, are frosted sections of a pale green color. These sections are designed in squares much after the Gothic church window designs. In the very centre, within a decorative emblem, is the "M" symbol of the stores.

Lighting

Lighting, always an important factor in modern store planning, has been well carried out in this store. There is an abundance of electric lights. Skylights brighten up the centre, but generally there is plenty of well placed lights. In fact there are twenty-six arc lights in the main portion of the store which will provide an abundance of light. These lights are of cream-tinted opal with a flower design of a darker shade to correspond with the walls of the store.

There will be three centre rows of square counters fully stocked and equipped with the necessaries of general smallware store merchandise. There will be twelve of these square counters throughout the centre of the store. Then, on each side, there will be long lines of counters which will be close to the wall.

In the Basement

The basement is always an important factor in providing ample storage accommodation. This is an interesting department of this new store. It would be well worth while for visitors to this new store to ask the management to permit inspection of this storage department. Orderly placing of the goods has been carried out and one pauses to realize and appreciate fully the fact that this is one of the chief places where system counts in the successful operation of a store of the magnitude which the Metropolitan Stores will be.

Every line which is carried on the counters on the main floor is catalogued and an extra stock reposes on the spacious shelves in the large basement. Special clerks, trained in the conduct of a stockroom management are employed to convey supplies to the place where they are required to be ready at a momenet's notice.

Rodent Proof

A mouse who tries to penetrate the candy storage room will require a pair of wire pincers and an acetylene torch in order to break into the sweets. A heavy wire screening has been built about the candy storing section that it is absolutely rodent-proof.

Rest Rooms

The extent of fire fighting and fire prevention equipment, provided in the basement of the store, is impressive. Furthermore the comfort of the staff has been well taken care of. Special rooms for the ladies of the staff, with lounges and easy chairs, provide the rest essentials.

The office is elevated and is in the rear with a clear view to all parts of the store.

MISSING OFFICER FOUND IN DENVER?

Toronto Family Anxiously Awaits Definite News—Son Lost in Trench Raid.

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—The wires burned hot yesterday and last night as anxious Toronto people strove, with the co-operation of Pueblo police authorities, to identify the "Harry Devlin," who was picked up unconscious on the outskirts of the Colorado city a few days ago, as the Lieutenant Harry Devlin, Toronto officer with the Seventy-Fifth Canadian Battalion, who went "missing" in 1916, in the first raid "pulled" by his unit on the German line.

Since Lieutenant Devlin was shot down by the enemy that wild night in the P. and O. sector of The Salient, no official word of him, save the blunt, heart-rending notification, "Missing in Action," has been received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Devlin, of 71 Delaware Avenue. In the twelve years that have elapsed, they have come to believe him dead.

"We cannot think this Colorado man is our son," Mrs. Devlin said last night. "I think we surely would have heard from him in all these years were he alive."

Father Collapses.

And yet the Devlin family—the father in a state of collapse from the effect of the Colorado story—are hoping for the best, and have forwarded photographs and a description of their "missing" boy to the Pueblo Sheriff, at his request, for purposes of checking up on the mystery man.

The latter claims to be an ex-service man, and the crutches he had with him when belted over the head by a taxicab robber tend to bear out his story. He says his age is 33 years, and that is the age Lieutenant Devlin of Toronto would have reached next January had he come back from the war. On these points, and the belief that the blow from the robber's blackjack might have restored the memory he lost when, wounded, he fell into German hands, the Devlin family are basing their slender hope that their son is to be returned to them—back from the grave, so to speak.

One Contradiction.

One point in the Colorado man's story is, however, contradictory. He contends he came from Toronto on October 2 for a visit with a sister in Denver. The Devlins of Toronto have no relatives in Denver. It is this particular claim, the Devlins feel, which turns to black the silver lining of their hope cloud. Until a late hour last night the family waited up for further information from Pueblo, but none came. To-day, however, they should have the answer they so eagerly seek.

Roseneath

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 12.— The Harvest Thanksgiving services were held Harvest services at Alderville on Sunday morning and evening, Oct. 7, when Rev. Joblin, of Stirling, administered to his large congregations two most instructive and powerful sermons.

Rev. Joblin's first charge in ministry was at Alderville 22 years ago. On several occasions he has made short visits and in his address he expressed his hope and gratitude for living near enough to come and the royal welcome he received when he arrived was worth a great deal to him.

On Monday evening an excellent supper was served by the ladies, consisting of fowl, pies, cakes, salads and many other good things, including Indian rice pudding which deserves special mention for its most delicious and appetizing flavor. The ladies of Alderville are experts in the cooking of the Indian rice.

Will Give Lectures.

Beginning on Sunday, Oct. 14th, H. Arthur Barton, popular lecturer and dramatic reader, will give lectures in the Alderville Indian church every night except Saturdays for the following two weeks. Mr. Barton is a noted elocutionist and will take these subject: for his lectures: "Thinking Black, White or Gray," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "Joy Bells in Home Life," "The Man for the Hour."

Mr. Barton has proved himself a master in dramatic art. His impersonation of character is striking, his lecture will be education. His interpretations are worthy of wide hearing, therefore may his stay at Alderville be appreciated by showing a large audience.

PROGRESS

This year we celebrate our eighth anniversary.

The unique manner in which we shall celebrate this event will be as gratifying to our patrons as it will be interesting to us. BROKEN

A Story of Revenged Love, by Ruby M. Ayres.

CHAPTER IV.

THE STORY THUS FAR:

GILES CHITTENHAM, on his way back to England from the United States to help wind up the affairs of his young half brother, RODNEY, who has recently killed himself for love of the notorious flirt, JULIE FARROW, joins his old friend, HARRY LOMBARD, for a few days in Switzerland. There, on a lake steamer, he meets Julie and BIM LENNOX, a straightforward, boyish sort of girl, loyal friend to Julie. The girls are there to settle a wager—Julie has bet Bim that she can drive her little car through the hazardous St. Bernard pass and back again. Chittenham dares Julie to take him with her, and she tells him to meet her at seven the next morning.

It was raining a little when they started, and the morning was grey and chill as Chittenham waited by the tram junction, wondering whether or not Julie would come.

He had made some excuse to Lombard the night before, about looking up an old acquaintance in Villeneuve, and had arranged to rejoin him in Montreux the following evening.

The two men had taken rooms in one of the smaller hotels and Chittenham had left most of his kit there, except a few things which he had packed into a rucksack and carried strapped to his shoulders.

He was looking forward with interest to this adventure; heglanced up at the grey, unbroken sky and hoped the weather would clear. But the tops of the mountains were hidden in clouds and mist, and there was a great chilliness in the air that seemed to speak of much rain to come.

Julie arrived punctually.

"I did not expect to see you," was her greeting.

She looked very businesslike and smart. She wore a tweed coat and skirt and a little brown hat pulled closely about her ears.

"What do you think of Charon?" she asked proudly.

Chittenham glanced casually at the car.

"I hope you've got good brakes," he said non-committally.

She laughed.

"Good enough, and you don't have to come if you're nervous," she said with a touch of malice.

He got in beside her and slammed the door.

They started away. Before they had gone very far Chittenham discovered that Julie drove very well indeed. She was cool and quick and thoroughly understood the engine she was handling.

"What did you tell Mr. Lombard?" she asked after a moment.

"Nothing. It's no business of his."

"He'll send the town crier out to look for you."

"I don't think so. We've known one another for a good many years."

"So that he knows all your little peculiarities?"

"Some of them."

They were through the little town now and speeding along the road through the wide green valley.

"Bim thinks she'll win the bet," Julie said presently, and she laughed. "But she won't. I can always do a thing if I set my mind to it."

"Always?"

She glanced round at him.

"You think I am conceited?" she asked.

"No, but as it happens to be a conceit of my own—that I can always do a thing if I set my mind to it—it interests me to hear you express the same sentiment."

"I wonder how we should get on if it came to a battle of wills," he added lightly.

"What do you mean?"

"Didn't Rodney tell you that I am a pig-headed brute?"

"No. He always spoke of you as if you were one of the seven wonders of the world."

Chittenham frowned.

"You knew my brother very well?" he asked formally.

Julie hesitated.

"I don't think I ever quite understood him," she answered at last. "He was such a dear boy in some ways, but in others he was almost—forgive me for saying it—unbalanced."

Chittenham's eyes narrowed.

"You mean—where his affections were touched."

"Yes, I suppose so."

"He must have been unbalanced to take his life as he did."

She shivered a little.

"You don't think, then . . . don't you think it was an accident?"

Chittenham looked steadily at her. "Do you?" he asked.

She shook her head.

"I'm afraid not—but, oh, wasn't it dreadful?"

The deep sincerity of her voice surprised him. She almost sounded distressed, instead of being utterly heartless and callous about the tragedy, as he knew she was.

"It seems rather pitiable," he answered in a hard voice.

The rain was falling more heavily.

"Have you had any breakfast?" Julie asked.

"Only some coffee. And you?"

"I had coffee, too. I thought we could get breakfast later on—in about two hours' time perhaps."

"I believe Martigny is the stopping-place patronized by most people. We ought to be there by eleven—barring accidents," Chittenham said unkindly.

Julie frowned.

"I suppose, like most men, you think all women are bad drivers?"

"On the contrary, I think you are an exceedingly good driver. I am sure I shall not have a single qualm of fear all the way."

She did not answer for a moment or two; then she said with a note of exasperation in her voice:

"It would interest me exceedingly, Mr. Chittenham, to know the real reason why you wanted to come with me."

"I told you. To see if you are really as defiant of Mrs. Grundy as you pretend."

She shook her head.

"That's not the real reason, though yesterday I pretended to believe you. There isn't anything at all dreadful in you and I taking this drive together. I've often done more risky things. We're doing a perfectly harmless and ordinary trip which plenty of other people have done before us." She laughed. "Oh, no, that's not your real reason for wishing to come, I know!"

Chittenham sat staring before him with frowning brows. This woman was more than a match for him, and he knew it.

"If I told you the real reason you would not believe that, either," he said deliberately after a long pause.

In some strange way he felt as if Rodney were close to him, at his elbow, prompting him, whispering again the words of that last tragic letter: "I'd like to think you were making her pay. I believe I could even manage to laugh in hell, or wherever I shall go, if I knew that you were making her suffer as she's made me suffer."

Chittenham turned his gaze from the wet road and looked at her. There was a little flush in her cheeks, and her eyes were deep and unfathomable behind their thick dark lashes. She looked so young—hardly more than a girl—and yet Chittenham knew that she had been through the divorce court and through many experiences of which no woman need be proud.

"Please tell me!" she said again, and now there was a little breathless catch in her voice that seemed to speak of a deep sincerity and interest which she was trying in vain to conceal.

Chittenham asked an apparently irrelevant question.

"Do you believe in love at first sight?"

"Love at—" She caught his words up, then broke off to ask almost in a whisper: "Oh, why?"

"Because," said Chittenham deliberately, "that is my real reason." He laughed as she wrenched suddenly at the wheel, making the little car skid dangerously. "You'd better not do that when we are up on the mountain road," he said.

She straightened the car again.

"You should not say such foolish things," she said sharply.

Chittenham leant back in his seat, shifting his long legs into a more comfortable position.

"I told you you would not believe me," he said calmly.

"I don't understand you," Julie said in a jerky little voice.

"Because you do not wish to," he answered. "Yet anyone of your experience must have been told the same thing before, no doubt more than once! I do not suppose I am the first poor devil who has been fool enough to look into your eyes and say: 'I love you!'"

There was a tragic little silence, then Julie said almost in a whisper:

"You have not said it, and you have not looked into my eyes."

"Stop the car for a moment and I will do both."

"No." She increased speed as if she were trying to outstrip him and the words he had just spoken.

Chittenham said no more and it was she who presently broke the silence.

"I can't understand you, Mr. Chittenham. If it's a—a joke—I don't think it's quite good taste, and if it's not a joke—I keep remembering what Rodney said of you, that you despised women, that you had never cared more for one than for the rest."

"Even Napoleon met his Waterloo," Chittenham said.

He laid a hand over one of hers that held the driving wheel.

"Stop the car a moment. I want to talk to you."

She resisted desperately.

"We shall never get there."

"We have all day before us—all tomorrow also."

Against her will she drew the car to the side of the road and stopped the engine.

"What do you want to say to me?"

"First of all you have not answered my question."

"I have forgotten what it was."

"I asked if you believed in love at first sight."

"Of course I don't." But her voice was not convincing. "I don't believe in it any more than you do," she said, gaining courage.

Her hands were clasping another in her lap, clasping one another hard, to hide their sudden uncontrollable trembling, and she kept her eyes upon them, afraid to look up. Suddenly she laughed brokenly.

"We are behaving in the most ridiculous fashion," she said with an effort. "I'm ashamed of you for talking such utter nonsense, Mr. Chittenham, and I am more than ashamed of myself wasting time listening to you."

Chittenham took a cigarette from his pocket and lit it.

"There is nothing in the world to prevent you from driving on, Miss Farrow," he said formally.

Julie drove on without a word, bungling the gears badly and after a moment Chittenham said dryly:

"I suppose it is as much fashion for a married woman to call herself 'Miss' nowadays, as it is to discard her wedding ring?"

Julie did not answer; she was not listening. Her thoughts were in a whirl, and she was trying in vain to steady them and to reduce them once more to sane stability.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1928

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

After early morning hours kindly stars rule this day, according to astrology. Benefic aspects are powerful.

Even though it is the thirteenth, labor should benefit greatly for there will be much work in all parts of the country as winter approaches, the seers prophesy.

Government projects of wide scope are well directed and will be pushed under the planetary rule which has a tendency to stimulate activities of all sorts.

Agriculture is to benefit, although the good outlook will not be recognized for some time, owing to the adverse aspect of Neptune.

An undertow of suspicion may mark many phases of public opinion at this time when there is a sign that is supposed to encourage intrigue and deceit.

The direction of the stars is not favorable to domestic faith and loyalty. Many scandals are forecast, but they will indicate the peak of martial woes in America which is to turn back to oldtime ideals as the years pass.

Women should find this an auspicious direction of the stars for making decisions, especially regarding the choice of a husband.

While this planetary government continues love is supposed to triumph over mercenary considerations in courtship. Young men are not likely to marry middle-aged wealthy widows under this sway.

There is a sign forecasting marvelous labor-saving inventions for the household which is to focus new interest, despite the trend of popularity for hotel existence.

Again food is to receive much scientific attention and as part of the reactionary influence of the stars women are to desire added weight, it is foretold.

Increase of birthrate is foretold and boys will outnumber girls. As if to compensate for the inequality of the sexes, girls are to be exceedingly beautiful and clever who start life in the closing weeks of 1928.

Persons whose birthdate it is may reach a crisis in their lives this year which will be eventful and will bring new friends. These subjects of Virgo with Mercury as their ruling planet should avoid outbursts of temperament.

Children born on this day probably will have artistic gifts that bring them fame. These Virgo folk usually are most popular and many reach the heights through their extraordinary talents.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE HATE TO BE PASSED

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author of The Springs of Human Action.)

"Look! looka! Dad. Shame! You let that truck pass you." This from a five-year-old shows how deep seated is the aversion to being passed.

The honk-honk as a signal for passing you on the road will never have a musical tone. It seems to say "Make way for a better car," and by implication, "for a better man." This stepping aside to make way for another touches our pride. It accounts for the tendency to speed up and keep the other from passing. The element of rivalry enters in. The situation is regarded as a challenge. The one who is passed has a sense of inferiority while the one who whizzes by throws a look of disdain in the direction of the vanquished.

It is this trait which kills leisurely driving. You feel so inferior in being passed by every make of car that you speed up unconsciously to shake the inferiority complex. The same trait accounts in part for excessive speeding and reckless driving. Just as being passed gives you a sense of being nobody, so the experience of passing "everything on the road" sets you up.

The law of association works wonders. If you car can pass other cars then you are a better man than the average by as much as your car excells other cars on the road.

Ordinarily we save our pride and self-respect by a defense mechanism. The man who is constantly passed on the road calls his passer a fool if not worse. He indignantly informs the person riding with him that accidents are caused by such reckless lunatics who have no business to be driving cars on the public highways.

Frankly, none of us enjoy being passed. But most of us have learned to submit as giving in to the inevitable. We yield with better grace if the car that passes us is of superior make to our own. We hate to be outdone by an inferior or cheaper make of car. Conversely, perhaps this is also why we take special delight in passing a superior car. Being passed by a disreputable looking auto or by a truck is especially humiliating.

Perhaps you are one of these self-possessed fellows who don't care what passes you on the road nor how often. But just you wait till you are passed by a funeral procession.

Why do you do what you do. Ask Dr. Thomson. Write care of this paper, and send stamped addressed envelope for reply.

Annual Meeting of Ontario Association To Be Held On October 16th.

TORONTO, Oct. 11.—The annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association will be held at the Victoria Club on Tuesday morning, the 16th inst., at 10 o'clock. The grouping of clubs for the Tankard, Governor-General's and District Cup, and junior competitions will be arranged. The Tankard banner will be presented to the Granite Club.

The proposed rules is as follows: "A curling stone must be delivered from the hack, but the handle must be released before the stone is clearly over the sweeping store drawn across the tee."

It has been suggested that the Ontario Curling Association assume control of all open bonspiels held in the territory under their jurisdiction.

The election of officers for 1928-1929 will take place at this meeting.

The suggested formation of a Dominion Curling Association also will be discussed at the meeting.

LYRICS OF LIFE

GOODBYE?

There are goodbyes that are goodbye,
Farewells that mean farewell,
Without a smile, without a sigh,
With nothing more to tell.
But, oh, for every one of these
There are a thousand more
That still are lights upon the seas,
Are lamps upon the shore.

We may be half a world apart
From lover, friend or kin,
And yet be closer in the heart
Than we have ever been.
As long as friend remembers friend,
As long as lovers sigh,
Whatever way our way may wend,
Goodbye is not goodbye.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY MEET AT MILLBROOK

Mrs. F. P. Stinson Hostess for October Meeting of United Church Society.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 12.—Mrs. F. P. Stinson was hostess for the October meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church, held on Wednesday afternoon, over forty members and visitors being in attendance.

The president, Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, was in the chair, and took charge of the business period, during which Mrs. J. H. George, Presbyterian Associate Helpers' secretary, presented the matter of increased subscriptions to the Missionary Monthly magazine. The treasurer, Miss M. E. Hetherington, presented her report, and it was decided that a special effort would have to be made in the two closing months of the year, November and December, if the full objective of $530 is to be reached. The president, however, expressed her confidence that with consecration and prayer there would be no falling below the amount needed when the accounts were finally made up; both the Mission Circle and Mission Band have an encouraging amount of their share of the allocation on hand and will raise more before the year ends. The Auxiliary members, last year, gave a special thankoffering in their envelopes at both the November and December meetings last year, and if they do so again at the two meetings yet to come there will be the required funds on hand for sending on to the branch treasurer.

The matter of preparing the pageant published in the July number of the Missionary Monthly and of holding a special evening in the Auxiliary interests, was left over for further consideration at the November meeting.

Mrs. Stinson, convenor of the group in charge, took the chair for the formal program, Mrs. Jones leading in prayer, and Miss Stella Hetherington reading the devotional leaflet, "God's Possessions."

Reference was made by the leader to the fact that one faithful member of her group was absent owing to recent bereavement in her home, Mrs. T. Luxon having lost her husband through a sudden attack of illness at the beginning of the week.

The opening chapter of the new study book, "Drums in the Darkness," was taken up by Mrs. (Dr.) Rae in a most interesting manner, and Miss Nellie Finnimore read an appropriate selection on "Prayer." The duet, "If I Could But Tell," by Misses Frances and Beatrice Jones, was much appreciated, their mother playing the accompaniment.

Mrs. Stinson gave the concluding reading, "Our Out-Going Missionaries," and the meeting was dismissed with prayer.

The hostess was assisted by the members of her group, and by her daughter, Miss Jean Stinson, in serving refreshments during the pleasant social hour at the close.

POLICE USE TEAR GAS

WINDSOR, Oct. 12. — Complying with a request made by Chief Constable Mortimer S. Wigle of Windsor, the Police Commission yesterday directed the secretary of the Commission to order a supply of tear bombs for the department.

These bombs, which are already carried by quite a few police departments in United States and Canada, will be used to deal with desperate criminals, the chief said.

Chief Wigle told the Commission that American bad men seemed inclined to think that the border would prove a happy hunting ground for them, and that he wanted to be prepared to repel the invasion.

FOWL SUPPER WELL ATTENDED

Anniversary Celebrations Concluded at Trent River United Church.

GOOD PROGRAM.

(Examiner Correspondence)

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 12.—Ideal weather favored the attendance at the fowl supper held Monday night in the large dining hall in connection with the United church.

The Ladies' Aid with their assistants were responsible for the bountiful spread, the tables being arranged lengthwise and were prettily decorated with cut flowers, the newly built kitchen at the rear came into service for the first time. Everything was arranged in order so there was no confusion. Abundance of fowl and cold meats and everything good that goes with it were placed on the tables. 346 tickets were sold and each ticket was numbered and all were served according to their number. After the tables were served all repaired to the auditorium where a fine program was given, Rev. A. W. Archer, acting as chairman and led in the singing of several well known hymns. The program proper was opened with the singing of "All Hail the Power"; opening prayer by Rev. Forbest Stillman; chairman's address which was along the line of "Thanksgiving"; Taylor Huycke gave a comic selection, "You Can't Blame Me For That" and came back with an encore, "The Stern Old Bachelor." A short address by Rev. Mr. Joblin, Jr. of Cordova Mines, on the subject of "Work" now we are to be successful on our work; duet (vocal) by Mrs. Fo and Mr. Huycke of Hastings and for an encore gave a darky melody "Uncle Tom" playing their own accompaniments on auto harps; recitation, "The Strike," by Gerald Buchanan; address by Rev. Mr. Tile of Hastings taking for his topic "The World on Wheels" and some of things the wheels are helping us to do. An amusing incident took place after this address, Rev. Mr. Archer said one wheel could not go alone as he had never heard of it, when "a wheelbarrow" came as an answer from Rev. Mr. Stillman. This created hearty applause. However, the chairman came back with the remark that wheels must have company. Solo by Roger McMillan, Norwood road, who responded to an encore; solo, "Just Ask the Ladies' Aid" by Mrs. Fox, Hastings, playing her own accompaniment on the mandolin. Address by Rev. Forbes Stillman of Norwood (who remarked he thought he had made his speech when he referred to the wheelbarrow and he considered this an encore. The male quartette gave a plaesing number, bringing the program to a close. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to those who had taken part and to the members of the Ladies' Aid and assistants who served the supper. The accompanists for the evening were Miss Huycke, Mr. Wesley Wildman, Mrs. Isaac Lawson and Miss Bessie G. French.

The door receipts amounted to $162.10. There were a number of carloads of friends from Campbellford, Hasting, Norwood Road and Havelock in attendance.

Personals.

Mr. Jack Christie is having his cottage enlarged on the east and west sides and making considerable improvements.

PRIZE-WINNING LAMBS ARE SOLD

Belmont Animals Bring Good Price at Toronto Stock Yards.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Oct. 12.—The prize winning lambs at the Belmont Rural School Fair, exhibited by the Belmont Sheep Breeders' Club, were sold last week on the Toronto market and the price realized was $12.25 a hundred. Although this price is a quarter of a cent a pound less than the prize winning lambs sold for last year, it was due to the fact that the shipment was later than last year and at a time when a large number of lambs were offered for sale. Nevertheless, when the price was compared with the amount received for two decks of Government lambs from Manitoulin Island, which were sold on the same market at from $11.00 to $13.00 a hundred, with an average selling price of $11.90 a hundred, the shippers feel that the local lambs brought a good price.

ONTARIO WOMAN BENEFITED

Vegetable Compound Helps Run-Down Condition

Simcoe, Ont.—"For several years I have had a run-down feeling, caused from overwork. One day a neighbor came in. I told her all about what was wrong with me and she told me she had suffered the same as I had. She said the only medicine she tried was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she advised it to me. I sent to the drug store and got a bottle and now I am on the fourth one. Where before I was dizzy, tired and 'all in' in every way, now I can eat and enjoy my meals, am gaining in flesh and able to do more work. You may be sure that I will tell others who are suffering like I was."—Mrs. Gilbert Ball, Box 103, R. R. No. 1, Simcoe, Ontario.

ENNISMORE COUPLE 50 YEARS MARRIED

Mr. and Mrs. James Cadigan Celebrate Golden Wedding.

(Examiner Correspondence)

ENNISMORE, Oct. 12. — Mr. and Mrs. James Cadigan celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage on Monday, October 8. Mr. Cadigan is 77 years of age and his wife 75, and each is enjoying excellent health.

A thanksgiving mass was said by Rev. Father McAuley in the morning and a sumptuous dinner was served at five o'clock to about fifty guests at Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Cadigan's, the house being prettily decorated in gold and white for the occasion.

There are seven children: Mrs. William Collins, Mrs. Michael Sullivan, Patrick and John, of Ennismore; Mrs. Thomas Quinlan and Mrs. Fred Kearns, of Calgary, and Mrs. Fred Murphy, of Lasalle, N. Y. There are also sixteen grandchildren.

They were presented with a purse of gold from the family. The spirit of interest and good-will that prevailed were a fine tribute to the place Mr. and Mrs. Cadigan have won for themselves in popular esteem during their many years of residence here.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestants

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, follow the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

The St. Luke's Troop (2nd Armour) Boy Scouts met at the patrol house on the evening of Friday last, October 15.

Warren Turner and five boys were visitors from St. John's and were given a real reception. Several games were played and the compact was read. Patrol Leaders Peters, Nokes and Brown then proceeded to pass their cooking test. The patrol leader of the Beavers fed the Wood Pigeon Patrol. The Wood Pigeon Patrol leader fed the Raven. Ravens and Beavers were likewise punished by the Raven Patrol leader. No reports of poisoning or indigestion have been received.

A paper collection now being held by the boys is advancing as well as can be expected and any one interested in the advancement of the Troop is requested to phone the Scoutmaster at 567W and notify him of any paper the boys may collect.

The boys of St. John's are invited again on Friday next and a pleasant program will be extended to them.

All members of St. Luke's Troop are requested to be on hand at 7 p.m. sharp.

WEINER ROAST MUCH ENJOYED

Young People From George Street Sunday School Have Fine Time.

EAT, DANCE AND SING.

Wednesday night, October 10, a weiner roast was planned under the auspices of Mrs. Hetherington's Sunday school class of George street United church.

All plans were made but the weather proved adverse to the occasion and the roasters repaired to Mrs. Devell's house on Conger street.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Hetherington, Mr. and Mrs. W. Westran, Mr. and Mrs. G. McNabb, Misses G. Roseborough, F. Brown, G. Gillis, M. Thompson, V. Harrison, E. Brown, A. Hunter, J. Puddick, M. Holden (Fraserville), B. Harrison, M. Irons, I. Cox, A. Devell, Messrs. J. Goldie, C. Northey, A. Hunter, B. Reynolds (Toronto), G. Avery (Toronto).

No program had been planned but one of the young ladies arose to the occasion and played the piano. A kazoo-saxophone artist, a mouth-organ virtuoso, and a young gentleman with paper and comb chimed in with the piano very beautifully and with show of much skill in their own lines. Others lent their voices in song.

Many interesting games were played and were enjoyed by all, even the chaperon and married couples.

To bring the party to a grand climax weiners, marshmallows, fancy cookies and drinks were served scrumptiously.

BODY IDENTIFIED.

Man Found in Lake Ontario Was Member of Boer Boat's Crew.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The body picked up by the steamer Wamble on Wednesday has been identified as that of John Villemure of Cowaga, missing for three weeks, who was believed to have left Picton with three companions with a cargo of ale. The body of one of the men, John Copping, was found earlier in the week.

CHILD KILLED BY CAR

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—Clutching a nickel in her little fist as she darted across the traffic-laden thoroughfare at College and Bathurst streets, last night, her childish mind intent upon the succulent dainty she soon hoped to enjoy, nine-year-old Grace Marchione, daughter of Louis Marchione, 429 Bathurst street, was struck down and fatally injured by a motor car driven by Louis Levey, aged 18, Bushberry road. The child died of a broken neck in Grace Hospital about fifteen minutes after her admittance. The body was subsequently removed to the morgue. Coroner MacDonnell is investigating, preparatory to holding an inquest.

Levy was taken into custody by P. C. Underwood, of Claremont Station, on a charge of manslaughter, and later released on bail of $3,000.

A reputation of over thirty years is at stake every time a package of Red Rose Orange Pekoe Tea is sold. So highly is this reputation prized that the makers have authorized your grocer to replace any package free of charge that does not satisfy you in every particular. 9-2

A very charming and well-attended afternoon tea was held yesterday at the residence of Mrs. G. C. Carruthers, Aylmer Street, under the auspices of the flower booth of the Christmas Fair of George Street United Church. Mrs. Carruthers was assisted in receiving by Mrs. J. E. Todd and Mrs. C. E. Smith. The table was lovely with a central silver basket of cosmos and training vines with red berries. Tea was poured by Mrs. E. E. Harvey and Mrs. J. Long, assisted by Mrs. B. Shortley, Mrs. F. Whatley, Miss Pearl Carruthers and Miss Marion Harvey. A very interesting program consisted of vocal solos by Mrs. C. W. Saunders and Mrs. G. F. Liddle, instrumental selections by Miss Musa Cox and Miss Dorothy Whatley.

Miss Verna Fell, a bride-elect of the month, was presented last evening with a handsome silk spread, the gift of her fellow-members of the choir of St. James' United Church. The presentation was made by Mrs. E. Kitney, and an accompanying address read by Mrs. B. Pitchford, at a weiner roast held in the church parlors at the conclusion of choir practice, last evening.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

Cuffs of lace, net and crepe de chine.

To look really well dressed is no longer the simple matter is has been for a decade or more. If clothes haven't become exactly more fussy they have at least become more complicated. One well-to-do woman I know who dispenses with the services of a personal maid since the war, not because she could not well afford to have one, but because—as she explained—since permanent waves came into existence there was so little for a maid to do, tells me now that with her new wardrobe she doesn't see how she can get along without one. And other women I know who cannot afford such luxuries find that they have to allow more time for dressing and more time to keep their clothes in condition than they did a season or so ago.

This is interesting because the prediction was freely made a little while ago that, once women had become accustomed to simple clothes that could be kept in condition with the minimum of effort and put on properly in a few minutes, they would never go back to the more complicated sort.

And yet here they are—the more complicated clothes—and most of us are only too eager to wear them.

As just one example of the more complicated mode—take detachable lingerie cuffs. They add considerably to the task of making a frock because when they are worn the sleeves and cuffs have to be fitted with precision, and the cuff itself has to be adapted to the wrist and hand, like a frame to a picture. Unless you can afford to wear a frock two or three times and then send it to the cleaner, these fragile bits of lace and lingerie and net have to be removed and cleaned or washed with care and then they have to be sewed back into the sleeves with the utmost precision.

It does make dressing more complicated and yet, as we see things at present, it is well worth while, because these bits of lingerie framing the hands impart that tone of elegance and femininity to the costume that distinguishes it from the commonplace.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

AMONG the charges made by men against women is that we have no sense of humor. I have often heard men say it as if that were axiomatic. And it was brought to mind for discussion here by an incident at the "Rose Marie" picture in the Regent this week.

* * *

Something in the picture—I have forgotten what, because I got so mad—gave two men near me the chance to make this age-old statement, and they both guffawed. I didn't start an argument there, although such was certainly an inclination. I can reach a larger audience through our page, and perhaps I shall be able to effectively squelch the chestnutty joke in The Examiner's territory.

Anyhow, I'm going to try, and I want you neighbors to help.

* * *

There's a book in Peterborough library by Mark Twain, alleged to be humorous. I'd hate to have to prove it. This book, called "Extracts from Adam's Diary" tells about the fun Adam had with Eve's queer ways—and apparently poor Eve never saw a joke in anything.

* * *

Probably she was not educated up to studying Adam!

* * *

Mark Twain quotes Eve as blaming Adam for getting them kicked out of the garden through telling himself a joke—and she couldn't see the joke!

And so writer after writer has gone on, challenging woman's ability to appreciate humor. The writers have been copied by their readers, until a tradition has grown up. Like most traditions of the ilk, it has a very insecure foundation, and in toppling down the structure I much fear I may have to hurt male pride. Let's go!

* * *

Let me, in the first place, tell my two ignoramuses of the theatre that humor is of very lowly origin, and therefore we would not, even if we could, boast its possession. If they will go back to the genesis of humor they will find it sired by cruelty and fostered by ignorance.

* * *

Woman has always had an inborn sympathy and an instinct for sheltering compassion. They are just as marked to-day as ages ago—in motherlove and in the babying of husbands. Our two jokers will expect their wives to feed them and provide warm beds for them and keep the furnace fire going and give them hot gruel when they have cold and provide mustard baths for their feet and see that there are no draughts in the chimney corner where the lord of creation wishes to read his paper.

* * *

Well, no one will argue that point. It's self evident. How does it affect woman's sense of humor?

Away back in the spacious days behind us, humor found its highest expression in Shylock-baiting and insanity. The sight of an insane person futilely struggling to understand was a side-splitting entertainment. The spectacle of a bent-over man staggering under the clods of a lot of street urchins afforded the weary workman a hearty laugh. Isn't it probable that the more human and more humane woman found these sights horrible, beast-like, and anything but amusing? I think so.

Our two jokesters would in those days have enjoyed to the full the bumpkin comedy of the times, and they would have twitted the humaner womanfolk on their lack of a sense of humor!

Even to-day, isn't half the "humor" based on someone's sufferings? Isn't it worth telling about when one sees someone slip on a fruitskin and fall? Or when a woman has the misfortune to lose her shoeheel in one of the terrible cellar gratings on George street? Or when a man's hat blows into the street mud?

* * *

That, if you please, is humor!

* * *

And women are challenged for their inability to laugh heartily! That challenge, by the way, is in itself humorous!

Woman may pride herself upon this humaner instinct which has made the stock jokes of the race obnoxious to her and earned for her the reputation of having a constitutional lack of humor.

* * *

Let us follow those two jokesmiths into the homes they may sometime have, and see how humor works there. Woman's sphere is the home (I have no doubt but that they subscribe to this fallacy also). Without doubt she has learned the fine points of making a happy home—or making a home as happy as her unaided efforts can! Then she must have recognized the value of humor there.

* * *

But, mark you, young men, it must be under strict rules. She must be ready to "bite" on every stale joke her lord and master brings home from factory or office, so that he can work off his sense of humor. She must be the target for his pleasantry—and then he will retire to his corner and chuckle the evening through at her lack of sense of humor because she couldn't see his joke.

Mark you, youths of the eternal joke, how things are changed if woman by any chance lands a barbed arrow in your breast. The point is little appreciated. And did it ever occur to you that some of the things women say are so really humorous that you are incapable of appreciating them? Men's jokes are blunderbus-like—women's are more like the stiletto.

Women have learned few lessons as well as this—to keep their thoughts to themselves. They contribute in this way to man's esteem of himself, and therefore to the home-happiness. Heaven help the self-esteem of men if their womenfolk ever opened up the storehouses of their knowledge, or let loose the shafts of wit they so carefully keep with guarded points lest they pierce the thin skin of menfolk and cause disruption!

* * *

Woman has a sense of humor, but it is refined. It is human. It is on a much higher plane than mere man can attain to. And, after all, from that plane we can afford to be tolerant when bumpkins say "Woman has no sense of humor!"

AFTER FIVE YEARS

Views of Examiner Readers on How to Make Married Life as Happy After Five Years as After Five Months.

"Dear Marion:

This is my first attempt in writing, but the subject appealed to me why a married couple didn't have the same love in five years as in five months. As I see things the men get married to have a helpmate to be a comfort in his crosses and losses in married life, but the majority of the ladies of to-day have a car and that's all right if they know how to use it and, of course, they must be in society. That means a lot of time now-a-days with the clubs, institute meetings, bridge and euchre, and they have no time for church or Sunday school, but on Sunday they must go for a picnic. If you were on or around Hall's Bridge on a Sunday morning you would see hundreds of cars going to the berry patch. Church-going people too, as well as non-churchgoers. No wonder our churches are going down—no time to think of their soul's salvation. We are certainly living in a fast age,—my advice to married ladies is be a home maker not a home destroyer.

Thanking you,
"LAKEFIELD LADY."

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

I enjoy your page very much and am gleaning much valuable information from it.

I will soon have a book of fine tested recipes, including those which won prizes at Peterborough Exhibition.

It is so easy to cut them out and paste them in a book. I have tried a number and found them good.

Would some of your readers kingly tell us how to cook Hubbard Squash? I have a number this year and have never cooked this vegetable.

Thanks, in anticipation of help.
"Ruralite."

I'm glad you like the page, Ruralite, and I hope that it continues to be helpful. I'm sorry we couldn't continue to gather the recipes that won prizes at Peterborough Exhibition. They were being collected for us by Jeannette, who has been confined to her home by an accident for some weeks.

Will some reader respond to this request for a Hubbard Squash recipe?

"Dear Marion,

I thoroughly agree with everything you write about the absurdity of Jack Miner's criticizing women for smoking. It is just about as sensible as my bawling him out for his treatment of Canada Geese—and I never saw a Canada Goose in my life! His experience with women is about as broad, judging by his statements.

And it seems to me he must place Canada Geese and women in about the same category, with a slight leaning toward the geese. He certainly has that archaic idea that men can still tell women what they may and may not do.

Thanks for taking up the battle for us—more power to your arm.

Yours sincerely,
Fanny."

I'm glad you approved, Fanny; I'm afraid there are lots don't. I had another compliment on Monday, when a MAN who doesn't know who runs the column told me he read my attack with appreciation. You see, men are learning that we women have minds of our own—and the ability to use them.

"Dear Marion,

I received a little note from you this morning that perplexed me as I did not write the letter, so I am hastening to correct the mistake.

I am very glad your venture in conducting a page for women has turned out so successful and helpful to so many women, and though I am over middle-age and somewhat old fashioned, yet I rejoice in the goodwill spirit existing through your page. Yet I wonder sometimes how you ever do so well all you do; one would think to read the things you write that EACH ONE was the ONLY ONE instead of there being so many ONES to consider. Truly it needs tact and sympathy, which I believe you have.

With all kind wishes for your continued success,

Yours very truly,
Mrs. M. B."

I'm very sorry, indeed, Mrs. M. B., about the mistake in address. I wil have to keep a record of the pen names and those to whom they belong, for apparently my memory cannot be trusted. There are so many!

I appreciate a whole lot your cheering comment on our page. To me, the most inspiring part of the work is the receiving of so many helps from readers. It certainly shows that the women in this district are real neighbors, eager to help out when they can. I think the realization of this dream of giving voice to the ideas and ideals of Examiner readers is the greatest thing in my life.

ANKLE CONTEST WON BY OCTOGENARIAN

By NEA Service.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Ankles ain't what they used to be.

Take, for instance, the set propelled by the 80-year-old postmistress of Aylestone, a little village near Leicester. They are the most beautiful ankles of the whole village as proved by a contest in which they were awarded first prize against all comers, particularly 30 flappers who sought the honor.

"Old, young or middleaged—let them come. I will show my ankles against anybody," commented the octogenarian when the award was made. "I don't feel my age and I believe in having a bit of fun when I can get it, whether it's ankles or anything else."

TINY CUSHIONS

An era of comfort is upon us and, therefore, such little aids as tiny cushions which exactly fit into the small of the back are chic. Every room should have a couple of these little shaped pillows, preferably made of quilted bits of silk, or of modernistic new fabric, in gleaming pattern.

The Luxury Soap of the World

Ladies of the gay days of the Georgian Court sought the charm of Yardley's Old English Lavender Soap from the apothecary. From his modern prototype the ladies of to-day still seek this charm—the soothing, enriching softness and the lovable, clinging, fragrance which is the distinctive gift of Yardley's.

TORONTO COMPOSER IS COMING TO CITY

Miss Bertha L. Tamblyn Writes Anthems and Children's Songs.

TORONTO.—A signal honor has come to Miss Bertha Louis Tamblyn of this city, in that an outstanding American publishing house has chosen her anthem, "Wait Thou on God," as one of the few to be published out of 900 entered in a recent competition.

Distinguished composers throughout the continent entered this competition and it was against the work of these men that Miss Tamblyn's anthem was selected. It has a majestic theme with its four-part harmony beautifully worked out.

This anthem, however, is by no means the first which has attracted attention. Eight years ago Miss Tamblyn composed her first anthem "Rest to the weary." A second anthem, "Praise the Lord," followed closely and both were accepted by the first publisher to which they were submitted. It is as composer of the well-known song, 'The Wasted Crust', however, that she is best known.

This and many other whimsical little songs for children of which she is the author, show a marked contrast to the solemn beauty of the athem music, and demonstrates her versatility as a writer of music.

Miss Tamblyn holds a unique position in that she is one of the very few Canadian women composers. Canadian women hold a place in practically all of the other arts, but in the realm of musical composition Miss Tamblyn stands practically alone. Indeed there are very few men who are publishing music of their own composition.

Miss Tamblyn, who resides at 19 Dunbar road, in Rosedale, delights in her work, like all other true artists.

How does her music come?

It sings all about her, once she has got an idea to give it a start.

She may be reading a magazine or a book of poems. A bit of verse attracts her attention. The melody to accompany it begins to sing in her head. And putting down the book she goes to the piano to work out the harmony with the melody. She is constantly doing this. Most of these little compositions, she discards as "not good enough", but once in a while she gets something fine. And she clings to it until she has worked out the whole song.

Recently Miss Tamblyn has been associated with Mrs. Edith Groves of Toronto, in her song compositions. The words of "The Wasted Crust," perhaps the best known Canadian song for children, are by Mrs. Groves. "Sleepy Time" is another delightful song, the words written by Lady Ponyter.

Miss Tamblyn's songs for children are well known in the Toronto schools where they are sung as part songs at school concerts. But Miss Tamblyn has not devoted her time entirely to songs and anthems. She has also a number of waltzes, a wedding song and marches which add to her very large store of manuscripts.

Just recently she had composed a number of delightful children's songs, using the verses of Walter Le Maro and Harold Begbie. In her search for words to clothe her music, Miss Tamblyn has had some very interesting correspondence from all parts of the world. Just the other day she had a letter from Tangiers, which came as the result of the search for a writer, whose poem she had admired and wanted it put to music.—Toronto Star.

Miss Tamblyn and Mrs. Groves are coming to the Produced in Canada Exhibition, to assist in the Women's Section program.

school activities in the past two years. There are now three hundred and fifty eight schools in the project. The children in these schools own an accumulated balance of well over a million dollars. This money is placed in the custody of the Department of Finance at Ottawa. The children are paid three per cent. on their deposits.

The teachers report the operation of the system as being very simple. A whole class can bank in fifteen minutes. As this is done while the pupils are doing "seat work" there is no interruption in the regular school routine.

The Separate School Board is considering the advisability of installing it in the Separate Schools at an early date, Mr. Littleproud states.

Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SWEET ICICLES

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

Uncle Wiggily looked in all his pockets. His wife looked in all his pockets. Then Nurse Jane Fussy Wussy, the muskrat lady housekeeper, took her turn of searching the pockets of the rabbit gentleman.

"Well, it isn't there, anyhow," said Mr. Longears.

"Then where is it?" asked his wife.

"That's what we must find out," said Nurse Jane.

They were looking for a pound of sugar. Uncle Wiggily had bought the sweet stuff at the store, but in hopping home with it he had seen smoke coming from the hollow stump school and ran there to save Lady Mouse and the children.

But, as it happened, there was only smoke from the furnace, and no fire so everythin g was all right, but when Uncle Wiggily went on to his hollow stump bungalow the sugar was nowhere to be found.

"Anyhow I couldn't put a pound o sugar in any of my pockets," said Mr Longears, poking back those which had been turned inside out. "They are too small."

"Then you must have dropped the sugar somewhere around the school when you thought there was a fire," said Mrs. Longears.

"Or else you left it on the desk of the Lady Mouse Teacher," spoke Nurse Jane.

"I'll go look," said Uncle Wiggily.

Back he hopped over the way he had come from the school, but he did not find the sugar, nor was it around the school. All the classes had gone home by this time for it was getting dark. But the rat gentleman janitor was sweeping and he let Uncle Wiggily in to look on the desk of the Lady Mouse Teacher.

"No sugar there," said Mr. Longears, looking all around. "I wonder what I could have done with it? I was so excited when I saw the smoke that perhaps I ate the sugar when I didn't know what I was doing."

He rubbed his tongue over his teeth to find out if they tasted sweet, but they didn't so he thought he could not have eaten the bag of sugar.

"It is very queer!" said the bunny uncle. "What could have become of that bag of sweet stuff?"

But it was so dark, now, that it was of no use to look any more, so Mr. Longears hopped back to his bungalow. The first part of the evening was warm, so that snow and ice on the roof melted and dripped large drops of water. But toward morning it grew cold and these drops of water were frozen into icicles—long, slender glittering spears of ice.

When all the forty twelve little bunny boys and girls who lived in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow were ready to go to school that cold morning, they saw their father hopping along with them.

"Where are you going, Unkie Wig?" asked Baby Bunty.

"I am going to school," said the rabbit gentleman.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the other forty 'leven little bunny boys and girls. "Daddicums is going to school."

"But not to say my lessons," went on Mr. Longears. "I am going to have another look for my bag of sugar by daylight."

When he reached the school, with his children, he saw Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow and Nannie and Billie Wagtail clustered around the wood box in the school yard. The children were breaking off long slivers of ice that had frozen from melted snow that ran off the roof of the low wood box. And the boys and girls were eating these icicles as fast as they could.

"You shouldn't eat icicles," said Uncle Wiggily.

"But they're sweet icicles," said Jackie.

"Sweet icicles? No!" cried Mr. Longears.

"Yes!" chattered a squirrel boy. "Taste!" So Uncle Wiggily tasted and, surely enough, the icicles were as sweet as sugar. Then Uncle Wiggily looked on top of the wood box which held kindling for the school furnace and, lo and behold! There was all that was left of his lost bag of sugar. Only the sugar had melted and the water, mixing with it, had run down to the edge of the roof where sweet icicles had been frozen. Oh how the animal boys and girls ate those sweet icicles!

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the rabbit. "I remember now. I laid my bag of sugar on top of the wood boxs when I thought the school was on fire. Then I forgot all about it. Hurray for the sweet icicles!"

"Hurray!" shouted the animal children and everybody was happy.

The RAILWAYS of Canada

THE citizens of Canada are under everlasting obligation to the far-sighted railway officials who have provided them with facilities for a rapid and permanent growth.

What appears like a sudden and marvellous expansion in trade and industry is the logical result of the change from preparation to fulfilment. Canada now has 54,000 miles of railway track, a greater mileage per capita than any country in the world, making available the natural resources of the Dominion.

Nearly 6,000 locomotives and approximately a quarter of a million cars are in constant use on these railways; 40,000,000 passengers and 120,000,000 tons of freight being carried annually. Over 170,000 employees work on our railways, handling the trade and traffic of this young nation, and receive a quarter of a billion dollars in wages per annum.

The Northern Electric Company is gratified that it has been able to supply a share of the electrical equipment which is part and parcel of Canada's great railways.

IMFORMATION

The Northern Electric Company has 14 branches situated at strategic points throughout the Dominion, serving not only the railways, but also all other forms of Canadian industrial activity.

FINAL REPORT

Comes" and "What I Found in Heaven" the latter a happy little encore, were the chosen numbers. She sang again during the afternoon at the Women's Music Club meeting in the Conservatory and is soon to leave for Europe for further study.

Force Organized

Dr. J. J. Craig stated that Harry Huffman will be in charge of the gates, Vern. Morphet will supervise the program in the Canadian Legion Hall, while the musical festival will be in the hands of Isaac McNabb. Since the rides will be run on a percentage basis, it will be necessary to have a representative of the club to check on the patronage of each, and already that requirement has been partly arranged for.

Most of all, Dr. Craig expressed his desire, and the necessity of absolute loyalty on the part of the club members, and immediately following his talk, Carl Browne informed him that all the members who possibly could, had pledged 100 per cent. of their time to helping with the Fair next week. His authority for this statement was the collection of sheets istributed earlier in the meeting, on which the members vindicated their intentions.

The Formal Opening.

Dealing with the formal opening, Dr. Craig stated that at 12.30 on Monday, the usual luncheon will be held in the Band Room at the Armouries, at which the Rotary Club will also be represented, as well as the manufacturers of the city, the Singers, and many civic bodies. Sir Joseph Flavelle will address the gathering, and in the afternoon will formally open the Made-in-Canada Fair.

In the evening at 7.15, the grand parade will take place from the Market Square, and will be made up of Public School boys, the Canadian Legion representation, the Peterborough Rangers Band, the Harmonica Band, a Curve Lake representation, boys from the Bowmanville Boys' Farm, the Millbrook Boy Scouts, and other oragnizations.

Tom Mark thanked the members who turned out last Wednesday afternoon to give the old folks of the Protestant Home an outing to Lakefield. The House of Providence will be visited in a short time.

Vote of Thanks.

A sincere vote of appreciation to Miss Shuttleworth was moved by Harry Dickin at the close of the meeting.

Aldred Stock Bonus Activities Behind Gillette Declaration.

The announcement of a 5% stock bonus by Gillette Safety Razor convinces the local Street that Mr. Aldred is enjoying a period of stock bonuses. The Aldred interests have controlled Gillette for some years past and have been voting very attractive bonuses as a result of the tremendous increases in business the company has enjoyed. The popularity of this form of distribution was what likely led to the decision to have similar disbursement for Shawinigan, something which was regarded as somewhat unusual for power corporations in recent years. Shawinigan, however, is in a unique position as a wholesale distributor, and as pointed out the stock bonus represented the equities created out of th companies investment in various enterprises.

Gillette has a large number of Canadian shareholders, all of whom have done extremely well in recent years.

Northern Bakeries Reported to be Earning over $3 per Share.

In many quarters of the financial district there is special interest being expressed as to what the financial report of Northern Bakeries, Limited, will show when it makes its appearance. While definite figures as to the rate of earnings are not available it is stated in circles close to the company that a very satisfactory situation will be revealed for the first year's operations of the company since it was taken over by Canadian interests early in 1927.

At different times in the past few months estimates have been experienced by the company in the current period. It has been stated that this is in the neighborhood of $3 per share. Interests who are well posted on the affairs of the company are of the opinion that this figure is being somewhat exceeded. A portion of this result is being achieved by results of operations at the new Hamilton plant of the company, which was opened in June last.

Since Northern Bakeries began to specialize in a large way in the production and sale of various brands of cakes, they have added extensively to their lines. This, it is reported, is proving an important factor in adding substantially to total sales being reported by the different units.

Looking for Special Distribution on Dominion Bridge.

The impressive buying of the stocks of Dominion Bridge and its subsidiary, Dominion Engineering, is looked upon in many quarters as a reflection of the belief that some particularly favorable development will be announced shortly. Directors of Dominion Bridge are scheduled to meet on Tuesday next, and it would not be a surprise to the street if some form of special distribution were decided on, in view of the tremendous amount of profitable work now on the books of the company; and the prospects for a continuance of this condition for some time to come.

Since the raising of the dividend on Dominion Engineering from $2.00 to $3.00 per share it has been generally expected that Bridge shareholders would be in line for similar action. Most of the increased revenue from the higher rate on Engineering will accrue to Bridge, which holds the large majority of Dominion Engineering stock. With the plant of the subsidiary keeping pace in the matter of production, the larger earnings of Bridge from its operations will be steadily enhanced from this source; and it is expected the benefit of the steadily increasing earnings will be passed along to shareholders, possibly in the form of a bonus.

Toronto Prices Are Firm With Trade Volume Good

TORONTO, October 12 (Canadian Press). — Prices were firm on a good volume of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Steel of Canada continued its advance with a gain of 11 to 217. Brazilian sold up to 61¼, afterwards easing to 60% for a gain of a point. The implement issues were in the limelight. Cockshutt, up a quarter at 31¾, was very active, and Massey-Harris advanced 1½ to 48. International Nickel was quieter than usual, and was up ¾ at 147. On the unlisted section Walkers was the leading issue and at noon it was unchanged at 66.

Mine Shares Show Signs Of Recovery From Slump

TORONTO, October 12 (Canadian Press). — Decided signs of recovery from its recent slump were shown by the Standard Mining Exchange today. Trading was comparatively light. Sudbury Basin advanced twenty-five to 5.50, and Noranda 80 to 46.80, while Hollinger was up twenty at 7.60. Newbec continued weak, easing a point to 33½. Teck Hughes on heavy selling dropped five to 8.15, and Wright Hargreaves was down five at 2.30. Amulet and Abana were both firm, the former up four at 2.64 and the latter uncharged a 4.30. Hudson Bay advanced five to 18.15.

country where labor conditions are so peaceful as in Canada, and as we see the good results of co-operation in industry it seems too bad that we can't have the same degree of co-operation in regard to the nation's business. No matter what your politics may be I would like to ask you for that kind of co-operation."

In conclusion the Minister requested the chairman to convey to Mayor Denne and the members of the City Council his warmest thanks for their cordial reception and hospitality. It was his first visit to Peterborough, and it had been a most enjoyable one.

Mr. O'Connor's Thanks.

The toast to "our guests" was proposed by D. H. McKinnon, with replies by Bernard Collins of Belleville, and Frank P. O'Connor of Toronto. As an old Peterborough boy, Mr. O'Connor said he liked to come down to Peterborough and renew old acquaintances. He particularly referred to the graciousness of Mayor Denne, not only in extending a civic and personal welcome during the 25th anniversary celebration May 24th last and again yesterday on the occasion of the visit of Hon. Mr. Heenan.

Large Gathering.

The Columbus Day banquet brought out a large attendance, some of the members coming from Lindsay, Belleville, Cobourg and Campbellford. D. A. Costello, Past Grand Knight, was toast master, and among those at the speakers' table were Hon. Mr. Heenan, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Senator McGuire, Judge O'Connor of Cobourg, John R. Corkery, B. Collins of Belleville, A. J. Reynolds, F. P. O'Connor of Toronto, Rev. Father Garvey of Lakefield, Rev. J. V. McAuley of Ennismore, Rev. Monsignor McColl of Lindsay, and Rev. Father Costello.

The first toast to "Our Pope and King" was proposed by Mr. Costello, the one honored by the singing of the national anthem, and Bishop O'Brien responding to the toast to the Pope. His Lordship said he liked the linking of these toasts. They implied respect for the laws of the state and also of the Church, which were nothing more than the reflection of the law of God, Himself. Touching on the loyalty of Catholics, His Lordship said—"I can't understand how the loyalty of that splendid citizen in the country to the south of us should be questioned simply on account of his religion, because he is a Catholic. He has shown, as Governor of the State of New York and he knows from the teachings of the Catholic Church, the principles on which loyalty is founded and built."

Bishop O'Brien spoke of the delicate position of the Pope during the War, with millions of Catholics on both sides. "He guided the Bark of Peter safely through that titanic struggle. But his kingdom is not a temporal one; it is spiritual, and can never interfere with our love and respect for our rulers, especially for His Majesty the King."

The toast to "Our Order" was proposed by Past State Deputy of Alberta, A. J. Reynolds, and responded to by Judge O'Connor. Mr. Reynolds dwelt upon the courage and fortitude and the faith of Columbus in conquering all the obstacles that threatened to defeat his epochal voyage that ended in the glorious discovery of the new world. Columbus planted the cross on the sand of San Salvador's shore and sang a Te Deum of thanksgiving.

Judge O'Connor remarked that since his appointment to the bench he had not been active in K. of C. affairs. The members of the order had a great opportunity to carry their ideals into their daily lives and thereby become better Catholics and better citizens. He also referred to the K. of C. work during the War and their prompt assistance in times of stress and disaster in both Canada and the United States.

The Silver Slipper Orchestra played during the banquet, and Miss Geraldine Collins sang two numbers that were very gratefully received, incidentally meriting a gift of chocolates from the Hon. Mr. Heenan.

the boys by cutting out a lot of shop work and tabulating of data."

The speaker went on to discuss the possibilties of junior colleges as preparatory to the more advanced university finishing course.

Approves Peterborough School.

In concluding his address, Mr. Doherty answered the question of Mr. Barnes, relative to his opinion of such a Technical school as is being opened in connection with the Peterborough Collegiate. "I think it is a good thing," said he, "for it affords the young person an opportunity to gain first hand knowledge of that which he might never have an opportunity to come in contact with again in his life."

Following his address the visiting speaker answered many questions dealing with various phases of his address.

KIWANIS PROGRAM

to arrive at a compromise. We even offered the Board our program for Monday night, between the items of which they could have given their speeches. We said we would not charge for this concert, thereby sacrificing a night's revenue to placate the board. The offer was rejected."

Dr. Craig, who has for three years managed the Produced in Canada Exhibition, asked The Examiner to make clear these facts so that the advertised use of the Collegiate hall for the Fair will not be misunderstood.

"It all boils down to a statement of the Chairman of the Board of Education in our last interview," Dr. Craig concluded. "The Board wishes to make a display at the school opening, and for that it will sacrifice the efforts of an outstanding civic service club, including in its numbers sixty leading business men of the city and touching in its work all the city and surrounding district. The Chairman of the Board told me, 'It's your show against ours.' And that ends the question."

ZEPPELIN STARTS ACROSS ATLANTIC

passed over the Madiera Islands at 8:55 a.m.

The passengers to-day had their first experience at breakfasting in the air, unless they were too airsick to eat. The twenty passengers and the crew viewed from the air the lights of the cities on the Spanish Mediterranean coast as the airship passed over them during the night at a speed of about fifty miles an hour. They slept in the ten cabins which line the gangway of the ship. The ship also carries a crew of forty.

After the start yesterday, finding unfavorable weather, the big ship was swung southward over France. It reached the Mediterranean at Barcelona, where crowds cheered it and swung down the Mediterannean to the open Atlantic, which it reached shortly after 5 a.m. when it passed the Straits of Gibraltar. From there it headed over the Madeira Islands and then set forth on the long overwater journey to the States by way of Bermuda.

Flying High

MADIERA, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The Graf Zeppelin was flying at a great height when it passed over the Madeira Islands to-day and headed on the long cross water journey to America.

Reception Planned

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—New York city to-day eagerly awaited the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin and meanwhile planned elaborate receptions for crew and passengers. Hugh Allen of Akron, Ohio, personal representative of commander Hugo Eckener, said if the ship arrived on Saturday night she would cruise over New York, Philadelphia, and along the coast during the night. If, however, she does not arrive until after daybreak she will probably go directly to Lakehurst. Five military planes from Mitchell Field and many commercial ships are to act as escort for the dirigible, along with two navy blimps.

Headed For Azores.

BERLIN, October 12 (Canadian Press).—Latest news from the Azores indicates that the Graf Zeppelin is heading sharply for the Azores, which it expects to reach early this evening, instead of going straight across the ocean.

PARCELS NOT RETURNED.

Bundles Dropped By Injured Woman Have Not Yet Been Found.

Parcels dropped by Mrs. E. W. Davies and her daughter Inez when they were knocked down by an automobile on Saturday evening last have not yet been returned, although inquiries have been made and advertisements inserted in The Examiner. Mr. Davies is very anxious to get his property, and would be obliged if whoever picked the parcels up would notify him or return them.

McGILL-VARSITY TO FIELD STRONG SQUADS

McGILL LEAVE OTTAWA TO-DAY

Montreal Squad Concludes Preparations for Game With Toronto Varsity.

STIFF PRACTICE WORK.

MONTREAL, Que., October 12 (Canadian Press). — A light workout yesterday concluded the McGill senior rugby squad's preparations for their game with University of Toronto at the Queen City on Saturday. The team will leave here to-day at noon for Toronto, and will thus have a full night's rest before taking the field.

The stiff scrimmage against the Montreal Seniors on Wednesday served its purpose well, and the McGill Board of Strategy was of the opinion that they could do no better than let the fruits of the heavy practice stand and confine yesterday's drill to tapering off exercises. Signal drills and formations were run off speedily, and the entire squad was then chased to the showers.

Jerry Altimas, who was being groomed for the job of snap, was not at practice yesterday, and will not make the trip to Toronto. Altimas suffered a bad shoulder injury in Wednesday's scrimmage that will keep him out for ten days at least. Dave Munroe will take his place.

Jack Brown will start at quarter with Tesky, the Sarnia recruit held in relief. Lovering will be back at secondary defence half-back position, with Fremain and Doherty doing the catching. Kritzwiser and Smyth are relief halves. Urquhart and oMar will alternate flying wing and at outside wing. Granger and Young will start. Swabey and Chard are reserves.

Captain Charlie Littlefield and Chic Church will flank Munroe a snap and the starting middles will be McTeer and Harry Church. Jacquays and Russell will act as relief linesmen.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Local P.C.I. Seniors entertain the Oshawa club in interscholastic meet here to-morrow afternoon at James Stevenson Park.

Strengthened by the presence of Hewett and Magee on their back line, the Collegiate team can be counted upon to put up a tidy argument when they meet the Motor City "rah-rahs" here to-morrow afternoon.

* * * * * *

Coach Browne has put the local gridders through some rather stiff drill work since their last encounter with the Collegiate boys' old rivals, tightening the lines and polishing up their back play.

* * * * * *

Rugby fans who turn out to see this game will not be disappointed, if we can judge anything by the former work of these two teams.

* * * * * *

Lindsay are also playing in an interscholastic fixture to-morrow afternoon. They journey down to Cobourg to play their return game with the Lakeshore town.

* * * * * *

There wasn't much lacking in the various hockey leagues around here last season. Plenty of action, including fast hockey, with the occasional scrap thrown in, making up the play—anything, in fact, to make the game interesting from the standpoint of the customers.

* * * * * *

Again this season the leagues give promise of excelling themselves, for the managers of the various teams have not been idle during the summer. Most of them have lined up powerful aggregations for the coming campaign.

* * * * * *

The football teams have completed their hard work for Saturday's games. Senators rattled through a brisk workout yesterday, and their full line-up was given a polishing off for their game in the Capital City with the Hamilton Tigers.

* * * * * *

Signal and formation were the principal drills tried out by the McGill squad in their final workout for their intercollegiate tangle in the Big Town. Varsity, while a little weak in their back plays, are greatly encouraged by their victory over the Queen's on Saturday last, and hope runs high in the Toronto camp for a victory to-morrow.

O.A.L.A. SERIES BEGIN SATURDAY

Motor City to Meet Buffalo Intermediate Champions at Brampton.

CHALLENGE CUP SERIES

OSHAWA, Oct. 12. — Oshawa's glorious year in lacrosse has not yet come to a close. There still remains a home and home game series by the winning of which no question whatever will remain in anyone's mind as to the team possessing the absolute supremacy of amateur lacrosse in Ontario, with the City of Buffalo in United States thrown into the bargain.

The first game of this home and home series will be played on Saturday in Brampton, the scene of Oshawa's latest victory, which gave them the senior amateur championship of Ontario. If Oshawa defeats Buffalo, the "Falls Roofing" team, in this oncoming series, they will be acclaimed the amateur lacrosse champions of Ontario in addition to being presented with a three foot silver trophy which is given yearly to the team winning this special series which is usually an annual event.

Homeless Champions

The Buffalo team is known as the "homeless champions." They are something of an unknown quality throughout Ontario since they have only been in the limelight since the first of last month when they entered under the O.A.L.A. banner into the Intermediate championship playdowns with their first game being against Bradford. They defeated the Bradford dozen by a two goal margin on their home lot and then repeated the drubbing by a similar margin in the return game in Buffalo.

In their search for new fields to conquer, the Buffalo men then ran up against Hamilton's one and only intermediate contingent and although the Ambitious City representatives were considered "class," the visitors from across the border took them into camp in three straight fixtures. This gave Buffalo their ticket into the intermediate championship finals with Wallaceburg, which, by the way, happens to be "Shep" Shepley's home town.

Buffalo in Finals

The first game of the series with Wallaceburg was played in Fergus, this ardent lacrosse centre being used by Buffalo as their home town, just as they are using Brampton for their home town in the series with Oshawa. The game in Fergus was about as lively as any championship struggle could be, and ended with Buffalo just barely managing to nose the Border City team out by two goals. The return game up in Wallaceburg was played the same day Oshawa played Brampton up in Brampton, and two games for excitement were never more alike.

If anything, excitement ran higher up in Wallaceburg, and with two minutes to play, the crowd, following a referee's decision against one of the home town players, broke through all restraint and overran the field. Buffalo being in the lead by a slight margin at the time and the referee being unable to get the crowd back off the field, the game was called and awarded, rightfully, to Buffalo. Thus this team earns the right to met Oshawa for the Association championship of the province.

ST. JOHN'S MEN.

Play Carpet Ball and Cards at Regular Meeting.

St. John's Men's Club held the second meeting of the season in the parish house at 8 p.m. on Monday last. New members were present and two teams played carpet ball. The teams:

G. Gregory, A. Davis, G. Groombridge, M. G. Howden, skip—11, 12.

C. W. Clee, D. Batchelor, C. Greson, F. E. Britnell, skip, 10, 8.

Afterwards a few games of cards were played.

OTTAWA GRIDDERS PRACTICE IN MUD

Senators Run Through Brisk Drill in Preparation for Tiger Game.

OTTAWA, October 12 (Canadian Press). — Despite a heavy rain last night and this forenoon which turned Lansdowne Park into a slippery, and muddy gridiron, the Senators rattled through a brisk two-hour drill yesterday afternoon. A full team line-up was indulged in and the squad was just about polished up for the game here with Hamilton Tigers on Saturday. After limbering up exercises, the "probables" were sent aaginst the "possibles" for an hour of formation and rehearsals, and then Coach Gilhooley let them go in earnest for the best part of another hour.

Eddie Emerson, Charlie Lynch, Harold Starr and Charlie Connell were all absentees, nursing minor injuries. All four will be on hand on Saturday, however, and the team is being counted on to enter the fray at full strength.

While Gilhooley is still reticent as to his probable line-up for the Bengal enaggement, it is predicted that the squad will be practically the same as that which defeated M.A.A.A. There was talk of moving Emerson into the line to replace Dunne at middle wing, but there is no actual indication of this move, and it is more than likely that Stan. Stanvar will be Radley's co-worker at the middle position. It is just possible that Stanyar will be sent to flying wing and Emerson to middle when the team is on the defensive, with the positions reversed when Ottawas are on the attack.

Currie and James will likely flank Bruce at snap. Currie is replacing Ketchum.

GIRLS ORGANIZE BOWLING LEAGUE

Many New Members for C.G.E. League—Elect Officers for Year.

A preliminary meeting of girls interested in bowling was held October 5th in the Laboratory Lecture room at which Mr. Hayes and Mr. Williams of the Men's League outlined the policy under which their section is operated in order to assist the girls in organizing.

The second meeting was held on Monday last when the following officers were elected Mr. Jas. O'Brien, president; Miss V. Langton, vice-president; Miss Mary Wallace, secretary, and Miss K. Armore, treasurer, also a committee consisting of three girls, namely Misses G. Lackey, G. O'Connell and E. White were elected to draw up a list of rules. The dummy score having already been set at 75.

With the large number of new members who have entered teams and the experienced lady bowlers who are continuing together with the help and encouragement that the Athletic Club is giving, the girls intend to make a name for themselves in bowling circles this season in the city.

TAKE POST-GRADUATE COURSE

Dr. Joe Sullivan, famous goaler of the world's champion Canadian Olympic team (the University of Toronto has left to take a post-graduate course in hospitals in New York, London and Vienna. Dr. Sullivan will be attached to the staff of the New York Nose, Ear and Throat Infirmary in New York until Christmas, when he will leave for Vienna, where he will "walk" the city hospital in Vienna until May. Then he will go to London and remain there until the fall, when he will return to Toronto to take up his practice. Dr. Sullivan is one of the University of Toronto's leading athletes, and his brilliant goal-tending has brought many hockey championships to his alma mater. He is also a golfer of ability and has represented the university in the inter-collegiate golf series. His work in goal for the Canadian Olympic team at St. Moritz created a sensation and he was 'featured' in all the leading newspapers in Europe. He is sure to receive an enthusiastic reception in Vienna, where he is very popular.

CHEESE MAKERS MEETINGS END

tion. He referred to the standing of Hastings County for the past four or five years as 95 per cent. Two years ago, Prince Edward went ahead with 96 per cent. Last year Carleton County went by, and Hastings was still in second place.

He ventured that the discussion of problems by cheesemakers has made so good an increase that Hastings County is going to stand 98 per cent this year. He suggested that the stockholders hold meetings once monthly. Speaking of adverse conditions on farms, he instanced a case where they were feeding pigs in the same stables where they milked cows.

He concluded by saying he was anxious that the makers should finish the season well.

J. A. Orme, of an importing firm of Liverpool, told of the conditions of consumption in England. He mentioned that the consumption was eight pounds a person a year. He told of the increased consumption of cheese by the working classes of England, where it is being consumed at the expense of meat. Canadian cheese, he declared, made a good appeal to the English market on account of price and quality. Among other advantages the Canadian cheese has is that it is made under good sanitary conditions. Last year was a record for importation. He hoped to see the trade go ahead in leaps and bounds, so that in time England might take the whole of the Canadian surplus production.

Pat Murphy, buyer, referred to the question of boat cheese, and pleaded for grading to be done at Belleville in preference to Montreal. He also said that he did not see the advisability of stamping date of manufacture on cheese and box.

Sim McCrae, one of Victoria's patrons, briefly eulogised the work of the cheesemakers' association. He saw good in the shareholders' meeting monthly and, like previous speakers, had a word of praise for Instructor Bailey.

J. R. Dudgeon, maker of Moira Valley, conveyed greetings from his section, and congratulated the maker at Victoria, Alex. Johnston, on his factory.

He hoped the association would go on better every year until all second grade cheese was eliminated.

George Graham, Sr., and W. J. Cottrell having given short speeches, a vote of thanks to Mr. Johnston and speakers was carried with applause. A dainty lunch wound up an interesting meeting.

GENARO READY FOR TITLE BOUT

Lightweight Champion Expected to Arrive in Toronto To-day.

BELANGER ON SATURDAY

TORONTO, Oct. 12. — While Frenchy Belanger, Canadian challenger for the world's flyweight championship, which will be decided in the Coliseum next Monday night, is having some busy sessions with paid sparring partners in Stillman's gymnasium in New York City, the champion, Frankie Genaro, is just as busy at Madam Bey's camp out at Jersey City, where Dempsey, Tunney and Greb often prepared for important bouts. Doc. Casey, Genaro's trainer, told Manager Joe Jacobs that the champion never looked better before any important contest and that he was ready to put up the best battle of his brilliant career.

One and all who saw Belanger give Marty Gold a good pasting last week are convinced of his ability to also make it close for Genaro if he does not as a matter of fact grab back the title from the champion.

As the national boxing convention is being held here Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Matchmaker Playfair Brown is planning the best set of preliminaries the club ever held. Although there has never been any kick on this score, it has often been remarked, you always get your money's worth from the preliminary boys at a Shamrock show. There will be three sixes and an eight round semi-final.

Genaro will arrive here before Belanger, the champion gets in to-day, while French will spend an extra day training, arriving home Saturday.

Davy Garrity in a long distance talk with Promoter Brown, expresses more than a little pride over the attention that is being paid to Belanger and boasts of the fact that his protege boxed several rounds with Dempsey, who, after the session, declared that he was a great puncher for his poundage. He also showed Frenchy how to put his weight into his blows.

Cliff Graham and Artie McCann have been matched for the semi-final on Monday night. It will be recalled that in their meeting at the Maple Leaf stadium the latter broke his hand and was unable to show at his best. It was a corking bout at times and Graham although given the decision was somewhat the worse for wear in the last round.

A sudden turn in the market puts some store in a position to offer you goods of the highest repute and quality at a bargain price. Read the advertisements and save money.

OUR GANG COMEDY

TAKE-A-CHANCE WEEK

Yacht racing was one field of sport concerning which little was heard last summer. All the same, while Canadian sprinters were piling up points at Amsterdam, Canadian yachtsmen were trimming the pick of the Yankee skippers at home. The Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto lined up a crack crew toward the end of August, and took it down to Marblehead, Mass., to race against the Eastern Yacht Club (U.S.A.) in an international contest for "Q" class boats, held every other year. Six races were to be sailed, but five were sufficient to establish the suppremacy of the Canuck sailormen who garnered 28 points against the American 22. Norman Gooderham who piloted the R.C.Y.C. to victory on this as on so many other aquatic occasions, is probably the most skilful all-round skipper in Canada. All the more notable in this instance was his success in handling in strange waters an unfamiliar type of craft. Tom Wade is another popular R.C.Y.C. skipper who assisted in the overthrow of the Americans, and who, like all the rest of the R.C.Y.C. men, is much too modest to talk about it.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

THE BUTTERFLY KIDDIES.

At the Capitol, is Without Doubt one of the Cleverest Juvenile Acts Ever Seen in This City. Received a Wonderful Reception Last Night. Richard Dix on the Screen in "Warming Up," a Corking Fine Feature, With an Our Gang Comedy Makes a Great Show.

A great show, was the unanimous verdict of the large audience at the Capitol last night, and a great show it was for the money. The Butterfly Kiddies, five clever little girls, featuring Baby Rita, delighted beyond words a most enthusiastic audience. They are the cleverest aggregation of juvenile actors ever seen on the Capitol stage. They do clever specialties, duets, songs and acrobatic dancing. Little Baby Rita won the hearts of all and nearly brought down the house by her clever characterizations. It is just exactly as advertised. Clean, wholesome, refined entertainment, and this clever company will surely pack the popular theatre for the balance of the engagement.

In a fast-moving comedy drama, Richard Dix, the athletic star, and his supporting cast, headed by Jean Arthur, also delighted all present.

"Warming Up" concerns the activities and inactivities of a young rookie baseball player whose trials and tribulations are not confined to the baseball diamond. In fact, a large percentage of the actions involve another brand of diamond, one very well known to women. Jean Arthur, Dix's leading woman, who plays opposite the star for the first time, gives a creditable performance in a pleasing role.

The suspense of the plot and the novel twist at the end are enjoyable and the mixing of Dix's jinx with the absorbing romance is cleverly handled. As the production stands, it gives every indication of care in the handling, a circumstance that is easily explained by the names connected with it.

The picture was directed and photographed by those who held similar positions in "The Quarterback," namely, Fred Newmeyer, the director, and Edward Cronjager, the cameraman. Newmeyer directed many of the Harold Lloyd successes in addition to the Dix comedy drama of the gridiron, including "Grandma's Boy" and "The Freshman."

Other heroes of the diamond, in addition to Newmeyer who boasts of a baseball record, with parts in the picture are Mike Donlin, formerly of New York Giants, Chet Thomas, Bob Murray, Truk Hannah, "Wally" Hood, and many others. "Beans" Reardon, fiery little umpire of the National League, and Jimmy Toman, of the Pacific Coast League, are the arbiters.

The Our Gang Comedy, "Growing Pains," was very funny as these clever comedies always are.

AT THE REGENT.

COMEDY AND ROMANCE BLEND IN THIS FILM

Karl Dane and Geo. K. Arthur Do Great Work in Edward Sedgewick's "Circus Rookies"; Louise Lorraine Has Feminine Lead.

All the world loves a comedy—and all the world loves a love story. Wherefore in "Circus Rookies," the new co-starring effort of Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, those redoubtable heroes of "Rookies," has been achieved a picture that everyone certainly should like. It has all the hilarious comedy in the world, plus a very pretty love story, all woven together into a lilting cocktail of mirth and entertainment.

The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, now playing at the Regent Theatre, plunges the heroes into a series of circus adventures. Dane, a roustabout, gets a job as animal trainer and Arthur gets the post of press agent, and then the fun begins. There is a huge gorilla in the picture too —he chases the heroes over a careening circus train, and Arthur gets tangled up with a trapeze, and thrills and laughs mix in profusion.

A complete circus was built and a whole performance was staged for the picture, so one gets a circus along with the rest of the fun. Which is a lot of show for one picture. Altogether it is the most ambitious and one of the funniest of the Dane-Arthur comedies.

The love interest is between Arthur and Louise Lorraine, and in spite of all the funmaking Arthur has opportunity for some really romantic lovemaking, and some of his scenes with Miss Lorraine are almost heart-gripping. The romance runs through a rapid fire background of thrills and laughs.

Edward Sedgwick, who directed "Slide, Kelly, Slide," and other hits did a clever job with the new picture, comedy plainly being the forte of this director. Sydney Jarvis is convincing as the circus owner, and Fred Humes, who played the gorilla, was a truly fearsome beast. Humes is recognized as one of the cleverest delineators of animals in the world, and his portrayal of the gigantic monkey was artistry itself. A complete circus with professional circus performers made a realistic background, and intimate glimpses of life with a circus are interesting details to the big picture.

Dear Sir:

I was reading in the paper that my son Fred was killed in action, which is not right. My son Fred enlisted from 13 Union street, 1915, and went overseas with the 59th Regiment draft for the 59th Battalion. He was shot in the right arm and admitted to Number 8 Station Hospital. When he got better he went back to France. Here he was wounded the scond time, a large piece of shrapnel entering his collar-bone. He was picked up off the battlefield and carried to the dressing station and admitted to Number 8 Station Hospital. He was a corporal. My son Fred was twenty eight years of age when he enlisted. He is in the West, just now not too well.

(Unsigned).

Editor's Note:—The only "Fred" mentioned on that date was reported as winning a prize—not killed in action.

LAKEFIELD WAR MEMORIAL.

Editor, Peterborough Examiner.

Sir,—When a worthy undertaking seeks introduction to the public, it is usual to turn to the press for help, and in this case we approach The Examiner knowing full well, Mr. Editor, that you will respond to any reasonable call for publicity—hence this letter.

In your "northern suburb," which on occasion you designate Lakefield, there is at present a movement on foot to erect a suitable memorial to our soldier dead, and this movement, to their lasting credit, be it said, is being inaugurated by the members of the Legion of Lakefield and district, who must have many times wondered if the people had forgotten their fallen comrades and what they gave their lives for.

It is indeed regrettable that we, living in comfort and safety, should have neglected our duty so long, for, during the dark days of the war, this whole community was fully alive to the need for help and succor for our brave boys and men, and gave valiant and untiring service in their behalf. Perhaps the seeming neglect may have been due to lack of individual initiative in attempting so momentous a task, or more likely it was because of the fact that the Town Hall, built in 1920 to replace one destroyed by fire in 1918, was called the Memorial Hall, and thus our unreturning heroes' sacrifice would be held in perpetual memory.

A little reflection, however, will surely satisfy us that a public building, erected for utility and to meet a pressing need, besides being paid for by taxes levied on the ratepayers, cannot adequately meet the situation. It is true that the Memorial Hall contains a veterans' room (so-called) whose dimensions are about suitable for a committee room and altogether unsuitable for the purpose intended, and no one's conscience should rest satisfied with such a remembrance.

A true symbol of our love and unforgetting gratitude must be represented by something apart from utility, but in itself in spirit and in fact, a memorial sacred to the memory of our glorious dead, and where the little children can lay their offerings of flowers, or in any way that love dictates, honor the dead, and where on Armistice Day we may all rather to pay our tribute of thanksgiving to God for deliverance from a ruthless foe, remembering that deliverance came through the sacrifice of human lives, many of which were our own flesh and blood, and where the debt we owe may be commemorated by the cenotaph we erect, and lastly where our brave returned men may look with pride and joy upon a tangible evidence of a people's devotion and regard.

Have we forgotten that amongst these soldier men of ours are two members of the original Princess Pats—numbering fifteen in all? These two are Dr. Finnemore and Mr. Stenner. Two won the M.C. and seven won the M.M., and the others, too, "counted their lives not dear to themselves," but "quit themselves like men," and served as true soldiers.

Many of these have come back to us broken in health and some unfitted to take their place again amongst the world's workers, but all heroically and cheerfully carrying on in whatever sphere they are.

Let our response be worthy of the cause, hearty and generous and prompt. Let it be shared not alone by the various organizations, civil, fraternal, and religious, as well as the Village Council, but by every individual, including the children, even the smallest contribution to be especially welcome from the latter.

"For the dead a tribute,
For the living a memory,
For posterity an emblem of loyalty to the flag of their country."

Yours for justice,
SUSAN E. GRAHAM.

DISCUSS PROGRAM FOR W.M.S. SOCIAL

Springville Society Plan to Hold Affair Sometime in November.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, October 12. — The regular monthly meeting of the Springville W.M.S. was held on Wednesday afternoon in the basement of the church, with a good attendance. The Scripture lesson, I. Corinthians, 13, was read by the president, MCrs. M. Johnston, who was chairman of the meeting. The reading of the minutes by the secretary, Mrs. A. Hunter, was followed by the roll-call, each member responding with a verse of Scripture bearing on the subject of the lesson, "Love."

New business was brought before the meeting and settled. A committee was appointed to arrange a program for a W.M.S. social evening to be held some time in November.

The study book was continued by Mrs. J. Grandy, who read of Dr. Margaret McKellar's college days, which dealt with her faith in prayer, and told of an outstanding example during her college days of prayer that was answered. Dr. McKelle 's whole life is a record of answered prayer.

An interesting article was read by Mrs. William. Whitfield on "Why Are There So Many Hypocrites?" When we learn to withhold judgment the hypocrite vanishes.

Mrs. S. S. Staples read an article on "Covenant Prayer" in which is told the story of praye:s that were offered to God asking that the frost might be withheld until the wheat had sufficient time to r'pen, and God answered these petitions.

Closing prayers were led by Mrs. A. Hunter, Mrs. William Whitfield, Mrs. E. Kelk, and Mrs. M. Johnston.

Ladies' Aid Meet ng.

A Ladies' Aid meeting was held to form committees and make arrangements for the fowl supper which will be held on Monday evening, October 22.

WHAT? NO ANGORA!

Constantinople, Oct. 12.—You can't get your Angora in Angora. A frantic search for an Angora cat, to be presented to the queen of the King of Afghanistan as a feature of a reception, was without avail and the royal couple journeyed on without an Angora.

British advertisers spend something like $750,000,000 a year in bringing their products to the notice of the public.

Mine Operations

As Reported to F. G. Oke & Company.

F. G. Oke and Company wire as follows:

HAILEYBURY, Ont., Oct. 11.—Canadel claims which includes Rochester Mines tied unto Hollinger purchases outright to buy Porcupine United Gold Mines who are closely connected to March Gold.

12.30 p.m. Mutch.

ROUYN, Que., Oct. 11.—Amulet to drill ore extension. May put several machines at once in interesting program.

Amulet has under consideration the employment of diamond drills to find out as quickly as possible the extent of the extensions of the ore bodies shareholders were told about at the annual meeting a couple weeks ago. The number of drills to be employed is yet to be decided. Of course, other points of interest will be probed also. Underground work is progressing slowly at present because of demands on equipment for surface. There has been little change in the general situation since the annual meeting.

Mining Briefs

A Special Service to The Examiner

A report from Rouyn is to the effect that the Noranda concentrator was started on October 9th, and ran three hours that day, during which it treated 26 tons of ore. It is also stated that it ran for six hours on Wednesday, October 10th, during which time 58 tons of ore were treated. The bins are said to be filled with Waite-Ackerman-Montgomery ore for to-day's run. This is one unit of the concentrator that is being operated at present. The ore already run through has been Noranda ore.

It is unofficially reported that Harker is starting a new shaft about 200 feet east of the present one and that these will be connected at depth. Official confirmation of this could not be secured owing to the absence of the company's directors.

A wire from Timmins was received in the city yesterday morning, the contents of which were to the effect that the Canadel claims, which include the Rochester Mine and which tie on to Hollinger Consolidated, were purchased outright last Tuesday by the Porcupine United Gold Mines. This latter company is said to be closely connected with the March Gold.

Nice ore has been found in the old Cochrane Mine shaft, which was recently dewatered and deepened. The vein is about four inches wide and is probably one of a series that shows on old developed levels. No assays have been made but quite a lot of coarse silver is to be seen in samples. The Cochrane adjoins the old Temiskaming Mines inCobalt in the neighborhood of the equally old Beaver Mine. The shaft is now about 100 feet from the Keewatin-diabase contact, and is now entering what is considered the most favorable ground.

The directors of Paramount Syndicate visited the property this week and are so pleased with the showings that it has been decided to start a shaft on the silver deposits. A meeting has been called for October 20th to consider the advisability of closing the books to further subscriptions.

A few days ago this bulletin reported a few details of the Rich Rock Gold. Vice-president C. G. Henderson was noticed with a miniature gold brick which he wears on one end of his watch chain. He states that there is plenty more where that came from. This can hold its own in the expensive watch fob class.

Montreal despatches say that officials of Bunker Hill Extension and Boischatel have announced that arrangements were nearing completion for their taking over properties in the Chibougamau mining area and that on the completion of negotiations considerable equipment would be shipped by plane. Both deals are of somewhat the same nature as that recently completed by Dome. It is expected, according to the announcement, that the Bunker Hill Extension agreement will be completed in Toronto on Friday, while the Boischatel directors and the owners of the Chibougamau property will meet in Quebec city early next week.

A gang of 15 to 20 men is at present at work on the holdings of the Canada Quebec Mining Corporation in Desmeloizes township. This work is of a preliminary nature.

BEARISH TALK ON TECK-HUGHES ABSURD, SAY OFFICIALS.

Reports of lamprophyre seriously cutting into Teck-Hughes' ore chances sent out in the last few days are termed "nonsense" by Teck-Hughes officials. "Certainly we have lamprophyre, we have always had it and expected we always will," one of the heads remarked to the Northern Miner, in discussing the articles that have caused so much unsettlement among shareholders in the past few days.

"We find that the best condition for ore is where there are both basic rocks like lamprophyre and highly silicious porphyry," he said. "There can be too much of either, but the best part of the mine, which is near the centre, shows both rocks. The west end of the property has quite a lot of lamprophyre, but still we have fine ore there. To the east the proportion of porphyry is high."

The main shaft is now down 2,500 feet, where the 21st level is now being cut. The new shaft is being sunk again, after delays for surface equipment installation. It is down 70 feet and progress is at the rate of five or six feet a day.

UNLISTED MINING SHARES ATTRACTING ATTENTION.

Unlisted Mining Market has been fairly active recently nd, while no spectacular displays of strength has been shown since Brett-T , ethewey halted at around 50, several issues received particular attention.

The present favorites on the "street market" are Aldermac which at present (October 10) is being quoted at 1.90 to 2.15; Astoria Rouyn—12 to 15; Brett-Trethewey—40 to 45; Callinan-Flin Flon—offered at 54; Canadian Kirkland—4½ to 6; Creighton Fairbanks—35 to 50; Gem Lake—offered at 32; Kirkland Gold Belt—35 to 40; Namitoba Basin—37 to 40; McMillan Gold—1.45 to 1.55; Northland—15 to 17; Old Colony—45 to 48; Pandora units—30 to 40; Patterson Copper—28 to 32; West Tree—5 to 6, and White Lake—1.60 to 1.70. These quotations were obtained from the Financial Times' Open Market.

Interesting news on Manitob Basin came out during the week when it was learned that the company had acquired a tin property near Winnipeg. This explains present activity in this stock. Production at the Waite-Montgomery in September was greatly in excess of the August figures although exact data is not available. Brett-Trethewey holds firm at present prices although an absence of any real news is noticeable. Officials assure the Financial News Bureau that while work is proceeding satisfactorily no new strike or other developments have occurred on either of the company's two properties. J. B. Tyrrill of Kirkland Lake Gold Mines is president of the latter company. Gem Lake is enjoying a good volume of trading. President Morrow, in an interview with The Financial News Bureau, denies reports that lateral operations are being carried on at the 125 foot level. Shaft sinking is under way and is now down past 200 feet. The shaft will proceed direct to the 250 foot objective before the lateral work will commence. When this is attained, first work will be done at 250 level and then operations will be carried out on the 125 foot station, when it is expected that a drive will be pushed northward towards an interesting section which yielded good values on surface.

News From the Mines

WAINWELL

With legal difficulties out of the way, as a result of settlement out of Court of the suit which for a time threatened to obstruct smooth operations of its properties near Wainwright, Alberta, Wainwell Oils Limited is going ahead with intensive development of its holdings.

As the latest step in its expansion program, which has moved rapidly since Wainwell brought in its first big producer a few months ago, a contract for drilling a third well has been let. When work on this well gets under way, Wainwell will have, in addition to its producer, two additional wells, the new one and No. 2, now standing cemented at 535 feet, with work on the latter to be resumed shortly.

In addition, the company's refinery, which was purchased from Kling Del at Wainwright shortly after the first producer was brought in, will soon be in a position to operate, thus offering refining facilities for Wainwell's own products as well as output from other wells of the vicinity.

Evangeline Gold.

Seventeen men are now employed on the Evangeline Gold Mine's group of claims in Dasserat township. Assays have been obtained over 8 feet up to $20 a ton on the gold showing which is situated at the eastern end of McDonald Lake. This property was under option to Conigas at one time.

Wright-Hargreaves.

Lateral work now under way on the 2,000 foot level of Wright-Hargreaves is making good progress and yeilding favorable results, according to J. A. McRae, of the Mail and Empire. Drifts to the east and west have opened 170 feet in length of the north vein, all in ore of good grade. Mill heads were estimated to average about $9 per ton. The current quarterly dividend of 2½ cents is being easily earned with the above grade of ore.

Comment on the Market

A Special Service to The Examiner.

Reported Strong Canadian Financial Group Will Take Over Steel Company of Canada.

The buying of Steel of Canada, which is unusual for such a high priced issue, is attributed to interests who have been accumulating this security for the last couple of years. It is believed they are the same group who carried out the reorganization of Canada Cement and as soon as their plans mature they have similar plans for Steel of Canada.

For some time the matter was held up due to general market conditions, but now it is recognized that the situation is much improved, both from the standpoint of the stock market, as well as from the ability of the investment market to absorb the new securities that might be created. There has been no development which would indicate that the interests were satisfied they would be ready with their plans for the next month or so, but in some quarters it is thought that if conditions continue favorable an announcement regarding the proposed deal will be forthcoming between now and the end of the year.

In some circles that have been close to the buying it confidently expected that before the deal is announced Steel of Canada should sell close to the 250 level.

3. The estimated lifetime of the work is five years.

4. GRAF ZEPPELIN DELAYED BY DAMAGE

Whitby Officer Loses Life in Rescue Attempt

Live Wire Causes Death

County Constable Samuel Vanstone Dies Seeking Accident Victim.

CAR HITS HYDRO POLE.

Constable Electrocuted While Looking Under Car For Occupants.

WHITBY, Ont. 13 (Special to The Examiner).—County Constable Samuel Vanstone was electrocuted early to-day when he came in contact with high tension electric wires when attempting to rescue a girl whom he believed was pinned beneath a motor car which had crashed into a Hydro pole on Brock street south, near the C.N.R. bridge.

The motor car was proceeding south, towards the Ontario Hospital, shortly after midnight when it crashed into the pole, breaking it off and bringing down a number of high tension wires. People nearby heard a scream and feared that someone had been injured. Constable Vanstone rushed to the scene and could find no person in the car. Assuming that someone was pinned beneath the car, the constable knelt on the sidewalk to peer beneath, when he came in contact with the wires and was instantly killed.

Hydro linemen were rushed to the scene and spent the night repairing the damage and re-establishing the service which had been shut off. To them fell the ticklish job of removing the constable's body, which was badly burned.

No trace has yet been found of the occupants of the car although the police are diligently searching. There were no eyewitnesses of the accident but those who heard the screams contend that they were those of a woman.

Constable Vanstone was a life-long resident of Whitby and was well known throughout the county on account of his police activities.

An inquest was opened this morning by Coroner Dr. C. F. McGillivray.

BRIDGENORTH MAN MISSING

George Nurse Disappeared On Wednesday Night From Rice Lake.

SEARCH BEING MADE.

Believed to be suffering from loss of memory, George Nurse, of Bridgenorth, disappeared somewhere in the region of Gore's Landing on Wednesday evening and since that time, search parties of private residents as well as Provincial Constable Storey, of Cobourg have been unable to find any trace of him.

While details were somewhat lacking this morning, The Examiner was informed that Nurse had left his home at Bridgenorth sometime on Sunday and had gone to visit at the home of his sister, Mrs. William King, about one mile west of Gore's Landing, Rice Lake. He had arrived safely and on Wednesday evening disappeared.

Nurse is a man of large stature, being 6 feet three inches tall.

HOLY NAME RALLY SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Men of St. Peter's Diocese To Hear Rev. Father Keogh Address Annual Gathering.

The men of St. Peter's Diocese will hold their annual Holy Name Rally to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon.

They will assemble at Central Park at three o'clock and parade to St. Peter's Cathedral for benediction, and will be addressed by Rev. Father Keogh of the Redemptorist Order of Toronto.

There will be a very large attendance not only from the city but from the whole district that is included in Peterborough Diocese.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday afternoon the temperature was up to 63 degrees in the shade. This morning it had dropped to 41 degrees. This is but another example of the vicissitudes of our Canadian climate. As a quick-change artist our climate is in a class by itself. Rainfall last night .25, or one-quarter of an inch. The leaves are falling fast, and the frequent showers are hastening their descent.—W.P.

PENSION PLAN IS ANNOUNCED FOR ONTARIO

Premier Ferguson Says Law Will Be Placed On Statute Books.

AT NEXT SESSION.

"To Obtain Very Best Conditions For Our Aged and Needy People."

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—Announcement that provision for old-age pensions would be placed on the Statues at the next session of the Ontario Legislature, was made by Premier G. Howard Ferguson in the course of an address at a meeting of Ward 1 Conservative Association.

The Premier's statement appeared to be almost incidental in a speech of sturdy Imperialistic tenor. "Next year," he stated, "there will be placed on the statutes beneficial legislation that is going to cost the Government a great deal of money. This decision has been entered into, not recklessly, but after a careful survery to get the very best conditions for our aged and needy people. This Province must keep abreast of the most advanced conditions in the world."

In Co-operation With Ottawa

Although elaborating no further on the proposal than that in his speech, the Premier was later interviewed. He stated that the Ontario pension scheme would certainly be one in co-operation with the Dominion Government's plan.

The Premier's reference to old-age pensions occurred in a part of his speech regarding the different sources from which revenue was sought for general services of the Government, such as public health, education and agriculture. These sources were natural resources, great corporations, inheritance tax and liquor sales.

High Standard of Living

Ontario, he had learned at Geneva, led the world in its high standard of living. Referring at greater length to his trip abroad, the Prime Minister dwelt upon the splendid fortitude and ability shown by the British in working themselves out of economic depression. "We must strengthen the British fibre in this country," he affirmed. More should be done and less said about inducing British immigration, he felt. Increase in British capital invested in this country would naturally, he argued, increase opportunities for newcommer from the Mother Land.

It was with gratification that he noted the borrowing of the Province in Great Britain—indicating the latter's "come-back" as the world's financial centre. "We should be thinking," quoth he, "of the best means of strengthening the various sections of the Empire—not as independent national units, but as one Imperial family.

Minden Farmhouse Is Struck By Lightning

LINDSAY, Oct. 13.—During the severe electrical storm which passed over Victoria and Haliburton on Thursday night, the main barn of Henry Loucks, Minden Township, was struck by lightning and destroyed, together with its contents, the season's crop. Mr. Loucks was alone at the time as Mrs. Loucks is at present in Lindsay with her son who is in the hospital.

The loss, though partly covered by insurance, is a severe one, and the family have the sympathy of the community.

GREATER ROCKFORD FLYERS ARE WELCOMED AT HALIFAX

Hassell Declares Another Attempt Will Be Made Next Year.

VIA GREENLAND.

Convinced That the Northern Route is the Only Feasible One.

HALIFAX, Oct. 13. — (Canadian Press.)—"You can walk fourteen days but you cannot swim fourteen days. That is the reason I think that via Greenland is the safest trans-Atlantic route and I am more convinced of that now than before I started," said Bert Hassell, on arrival here today aboard the liner Frederick from Copenhagen. Hassell, co-pilot of the plane Greater Rockford, came to grief in Greenland during the attempted flight to Stockholm last August, was accompanied by Parker Cramer, second pilot, and Elmer Etes, of Rockford, Illinois, who participated in the airmen's rescue. Hassell was greeted by his wife and two sons, John 5 and Victor 3, and the party proceeds together to New York. Hassels said another attempt would be made next year.

The plane had hopped successfully from Illinois to Cochrane, Ontario, and then essayed on the long hop from Cochrane to Greenland. "I have been away so long that I do not know the disposition of my financial backers towards another flight, but I can say that Cramer and I are going to try again next year If we fail we are going to make another attempt and we are going to keep on doing that until we get across. From what we learned on this flight Greenland is the most feasible trans-Atlantic route. If we had flown by way of Newfoundland we would have been somewhere at the bottom of the Atlantic by now. Cramer was equally enthusiastic regarding another flight. The flyers were extended an official civic welcome.

BIG RALLY IS BEING PLANNED

United Churches in the City to Join Forces For One Week.

NOTABLE SPEAKERS.

Throughout the week of November 4th to 11th, the six United Churches of Peterborough will join forces for every evening of the week except Saturday. All their regular mid-week services are being cancelled, and in their place there will be a great united gathering of the different congregations each night in one of the United churches. These gatherings of themselves alone should lead to an increased fellowship, which will be a help to all.

There will be a special program for each evening, and arrangements have been made to have such outstanding speakers present as: Dr. George C. Pidgeon, D.D., pastor of Bloor Street United Church, Toronto, ex-Moderator of the General Council of the United Church of Canada. Rev. J. W. Pedley, ex-President of Toronto Conference of the United Church of Canada; Dr. Alfred Gandier, D.D., Principal of Emmanuel College, Toronto; Dr. W. T. Gunn, D.D., Moderator of General Council United Church of Canada. They will have messages which should result in a greatly increased inspiration and lead to greater opportunities for Christian service.

These meetings will be under the auspices of the Men's Associations of Peterborough's United Churches, and they are extending a cordial invitation to all to come and hear these men who have devoted their lives to the cause, and who have a rich fund of experience and knowledge to draw from.

COLLEGIATE WING PROVIDES VARIOUS VOCATIONAL COURSES

Auditorium, Gymnasium and Offices Complete Appointments of Extensions.

HEATING PLANT A FEATURE.

Well Finished Rooms and Corridors and Up-to-date Equipment in New Building.

An achievement of the builder's art, and one that will live through the years as a memorial to the vision of present day citizens of Peterborough, is the $300,000 new wing added to the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. One of the most complete educational plants of its kind in the Dominion, it stands, completed and awaiting formal opening while, already, hundreds of students pass through its corridors daily, bent on the studies of the domestic science, wood-working, machine shop, electrical and commercial departments which it houses. The new building with its facilities for the education of Canadian youth challenges description—and triumphs.

A joy to the eye when viewed from the outside, the new building, when inspected from within seems to combine every ideal, what with its three stories of splendidly appointed teaching rooms, offices and corridors, theatre-like auditorium and double gymnasium, through and among which has been built a ventilating, heating and lighting system, the full advantages of which are not apparent to those unschooled to appreciate them.

Unprompted by anyone particularly associated with the new building, the visitor cannot possibly n ote all the features of the new wing, but he may spend a most interesting hour or even two hours. Perhaps for the sake of variety, he "begins at the top and works down"; that is, he enters the old Collegiate and ascends to the old assembly hall, only to find that it has been appointed and partitioned into four or five new rooms that include a laboratory (incomplete as yet), a biology and an art room. Turning west, entrance into the new wing is rendered unmistakeable by the new marble composition flooring, freshly finished walls of stucco and plaster, with fumed oak satin woodwork that pertain throughout.

Perhaps the visitor opens a door that is part way down the new corridor, and lo, he passes in a "picture room," intended for the housing of movie machines, for it has a concrete floor, and the necessary openings that look down into a large new auditorium—but m re of that later. There are other rooms intended for teaching, and then he asses down the steel staircase to th second, or what is really the main floor.

Domestic Arts.

There, he chances to look into a room on the north side, ot discover that it is a large, bright and completely equipped household science room, boasting some twenty-four individual gas stoves, large range and ovens and other facilities for the teaching of domestic arts to the pupils that come to Miss S. Kendall, teacher, during the day, whether from the academic, industrial, or commercial courses. A demonstration room is adjacent to it where a Murphy bed is kept for instruction in home nursing.

Miss H. Gerrard is in charge of the sewing room, which occupies the north-west corner of the floor. There a fleet of sewing machines, cupboards, folding ironing boards, and sewing tables are to be found, all of value in the teaching of this pleasant course.

No Cloakr ms.

Perhaps the visitor wonders at the absence of cloakrooms, but if he is sufficiently observant he will note groups of steel lockers, stalling well over three hundred, ranged at convenient intervals throughout the main corridors. And making good use of them are the large number of students who pursue their commercial studies in this part of the building. Mr. Jamieson's offices (he is head of the Commercial Department) have been carefully laid out, as have the seven rooms on the two floors, devoted to his department.

These include a typing room in which approximately forty typewriters are to be found.

The Auditorium.

The auditorium, which replaces the old assembly hall, as well as filling a long-felt want, is one of the most complete of its kind to be seen in any school in the Dominion, for it boasts a seating capacity that must reach the twelve hundred mark. One balcony and the main floor look down upon a sunken orchestra pit and a stage equal to any presentation however large, while a special interior finish has been applied to walls and ceiling that will add to the accoustic properties of the auditorium. And above the stage, in gold lettering, where all may read, are inscribed the words of Rudyard Kipling, "Stand to Your Work and Be Wise. Certain of Sword and Pen Who Are Neither

Harold, a Brother, Resides Near Campbellford; Holds a Faint Ray of Hope.

PIONEER FAMILY.

Mother Died Since Her Son Left On Trip to Northland.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, October 13.

Hope, though faint, that more welcome news may yet be heard of Joseph James Rutherford, reported dead in the region surrounding Chesterfield Inlet on Hudson Bay, is not yet dead. The missing man is a native of this locality, and is one of the most respected of its citizens. For practically thirty years he has not been a resident here, but frequently spends a vacation of several weeks with his brother Harold on the old homestead. To the brother during this time of distress, much sympathy is tendered by a host of friends.

Little did Harold Rutherford expect that such a beautiful morning was to bring such sad news and in such a brief, unsatisfactory form. Nor did he suspect the press accounts which appeared on the front page of practically every morning daily in the district. The message came in the form of a telegram and carried the news that Joe Rutherford was dead some three hundred miles west of Chesterfield Inlet on Hudson Bay. Less than six weeks ago the wires to the north carried sad messages between the Rutherford brothers. This was just previous to the death of Mrs. Robert Rutherford, their mother. Joe was at the time preparing for the trip which has, it appears, proved fatal. His brother sent him a telegram saying that his mother was very ill. The reply came back that it was impossible for him to return since he was contracted to go with the party to Hudson Bay. Later, the boy at home wired that their mother was very low, but the wire was never delivered. It came back.

The only communication which has come from the missing man was a letter written from Chesterfield Inlet and dated the first day of September. Among other things, it said that he, Joe, had arrived that same day. In his letter he inquired for his mother. That was the last heard from him directly till the fatal wire arrived. It was an official announcement, wire-lessed from the radio station at Chesterfield Inlet and picked up at Le Pas, Manitoba. From there it completed its journey to the operator at Bonar Law as a telegram.

Harold Rutherford came to Campbellford yesterday morning to attend to certain affairs arising out of the situation. He did not believe his brother knew that his mother was dead. Although Harold seemed to take it generally that Joe was dead, there was still a flicker of hope predominant in his tone and a chance word dropped occasionally, led a listener to believe that there was still a hope there.

Pioneer Family

Joseph James Rutherford is the son of one of the pioneer families of the district and of Highland Scotch ancestry. He is a man of large stature and powerfully built muscularly. His mining life had taken him practically all over the western portion of the North American continent, and his years of bush experience are many. Although referred to as a mining engineer, he was never in attendance at any university. After receiving his ordinary public school education at the Rylestone school, he desired a business course. ELEVEN KILLED IN COLLISION

Three Trains Collide On Birmingham-Bristol Railway To-day.

TERRIBLE IMPACT.

GLOUCESTER, England, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—At least eleven persons were killed, with the possibility that the complete toll will be twenty, in a triple train collision on the Birmingham-Bristol line to-day. The bodies of the victims were so mutilated that none had been identified by afternoon.

An express train collided with another train, and the tragedy was heightened when a third train on a parallel track crashed into the wreckage. Three coaches of the express telescoped. The impact was so terrible that wreckage flying through the air carried away part of a highway bridge. A fire followed the fatality.

Mother Anxious About Lady Hay; Sends Love

LONDON, England, October 13. Mrs. S. T. Lethbridge, mother of Lady Drummond Hay, who is a passenger on the Graf Zeppelin, was in a state of great anxiety to-day for the safety of her daughter. Mrs. Lethbridge, who tried vainly to dissuade her daughter from taking the trip, said to reporters at Hampstead, her home: "I think the danger is tremendous and I am in a terrible state about Grace."

In order not to worry her daughter, Mrs. Lethbridge sent a radio message to Lady Hay saying: "You are 'orgiven. Much love." Mrs. Lethbridge said that she had a reassuring reply from the Zeppelin.

TAX RESOLUTION PASSES.

Delegates To Board of Trade Meeting Inspect Ferguson Highway.

Peterborough delegates returning from the Seventh Annual Conference of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in North Bay, October 9th and 10th, report considerable progress made by the Association and much business of importance transacted during the short convention.

Resolutions passed to be forwarded to the proper authorities included:

Resolution of the Timmins Board of Trade, requesting a provincial highway from Sudbury to Timmins.

Resolution by the Collingwood Board of Trade, calling for protection of Canadian ship building and ship repairing industries.

Resolution by the Toronto Board of Trade, pledging the support of the Association to the Provincial Government in carrying out any well-considered plans for research in the interests of the development of Canadian natural resources, agriculture and other industries.

Resolution of the Toronto Board of Trade calling for a general reduction of income taxes.

Resolution of the Meaford Board of Trade calling for standardizing the wheel tread gauge of vehicles using the highways winter and summer.

Resolution of the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce having reference to increased protection at railway level crossings.

Resolution of the Kitchener Board of Trade suggesting the appointment of a Royal Commission to fully investigate the question of the cost of government and to formulate and recommend such action as may be necessary to increase the efficiency and materially reduce the cost of both Federal and Provincial governments.

Resolution of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce with reference to municipal borrowing powers.

Resolution of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce calling attention to improper use of the national flag.

Resolution of the Haileybury Board of Trade with reference to the development and settlement of Northern Ontario. This resolution provoked much discussion and resulted in the formation of a special committee to enquire into the whole matter. The delegates present expressed themselves as being entirely in sympathy with the various settlement problems of Northern Ontario.

Tax Resolution Upheld

The report of the special commission appointed in 1926 to enquire into the taxing of Crown property was adopted by the Convention despite the spirited objection from the floor of the Convention by the Peterborough delegates and many others.

The sympathy of the Convention was entirely with the people of Northern Ontario who presented the report in an effort to enable them to tax railway properties in various sections in the vicinity of Cochrane. It is not expected that the adoption of the report will carry any weight with the Provincial Government, owing to several reasons, chief of which is that it is unconstitutional and contrary to the provisions of the British North America Act to tax Crown property. Various power plants, transmission lines and so forth of the Hydro Electric Power Commission come under the heading of Crown property. Consequently it is not for a moment anticipated that the Commission would agree to waiving their rights under the British North Am-

Dirigible Reports Damage

Asks Vessel Nearby To Follow Course During Repairs.

SPEED REDUCED.

Big Airship Drops To 35 Knots After Long Stretch at 85.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—The Navy Department received a radiogram from the Graf Zeppelin saying she was damaged on the port horizontal and repairs were being effected but requested a surface vessel in the vicinity to follow its course. It was proceeding to an air speed of 35 knots.

1,500 Miles from Bermuda

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—With her five 530 horsepower motors droning a steady song of power and speed, the Graf Zeppelin had raced over the Atlantic to-day at between 75 and 85 miles an hour, headed for Lakehurst, N.J., by way of Bermuda. Advices of unfavorable weather to the north caused the big airship to pursue a round-about southern course. Dr. Hugo Eckener, builder and commander, hopes to land at the United States naval air station at noon to-morrow with his cargo of twenty passengers and mail from Germany, demonstrating that crossing by airship is no longer an adventure, but a commercial undertaking.

Good weather aided the airship in making up for the time lost in buffeting headwinds over the Mediterranean after leaving Germany early on Thursday.

In swinging south to Madeira the dirigible entered a region of light variable winds, which made passage easier. The airship will have required 88 hours for the long voyage if she reaches Lakehurst by noon on Sunday. The distance will have been about 5,400 miles, four thousand over the Atlantic.

After the craft passed Madeira Islands yesterday nearly three thousand miles of open water lay ahead of her until Bermuda was reached, and then another eight hundred to the States.

The passengers were exceedingly air sick, though Lady Grace Drummond Hay, the only woman passenger, wirelessed her mother she found the journey very interesting.

No Cause for Alarm.

NEW YORK, October 13 (Canadian Press). — The New York American, in a copyrighted radio despatch from its correspondent on the Graf Zeppelin to-day will say that "there is no cause for alarm and the damage is being repaired." A further message said the aircraft's stabilizer was "off" 'and that her speed was now forty miles an hour.

BAND FOR FAIR WELL TRAINED

Shows Good Form in Old Favorite Selections in Final Practices.

TO LEAD PARADES.

Mingled with the sound of the saw and the clip-clip of the tack hammer, busy at the task of getting booths in shape for the big affair next week, was the sound of marching feet and tootling mouth-organs, played at the Armories last evening by the members of the Kiwanis Harmonica Band.

Managed and marshaled by C. S. Thompson and H. McCannan, this ambitious organization of tuneful players of an instrument that is old and famous, whether known by the name of harmonica or the more familiar cognomen of mouth-organ, is going to be one of the liveliest attractions of the many varied interests of the Kiwanis Club's Produced-in-Canada Fair. All the old favorites, such as "Oh, Susannah" and "My Wild Irish Rose," "Yankee Doodle," "Turkey in the Straw" and "My Love She's But a Lassie Yet," will resound in valiant choruses next week, when the fifty or more members will be at the top of their form. They range in size from a small eight-year-old laddie to several tall veterans of the musical instrument that has so much spirit and vim in its sweet melody. The Danforth Y.M.C.A. Band in Toronto has loaned the local organization a number of uniforms, which will also be on view next week as the band marches each evening (exclusive of Saturday) at seven o'clock from the Empress Hotel to the Armories.

On the evenings of Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, from 8.15 to 8.30, programs will be given by the Harmonica Band, which will also take part in the step-dancing and harmonica contests on Thursday and Friday evenings at 9 o'clock in the Band Room at the Armories.

Forty-Three Killed In Submarine Tragedy

FRENCH CRAFT IS RAMMED OFF COAST OF PORTUGAL BY GREEK CARGO CARRIER

Nine Days Elapsed Before Captain of Freighter Reports Accident.

ON TRIAL CRUISE.

Ship Newly Built For Service in the French Navy.

PARIS, Oct. 13 (Associated Press).—The submarine Ondine, which was to have been the newest unit of the strongest arm of the French navy is at the bottom of the ocean and all her crew of three officers and forty men are dead.

The Ministry of Marine learned to its consternation last night that the tragedy occurred about midnight on October 3, when the submarine was rammed off Oporto by the Greek cargo carrier Aikaterini M. Goulandris.

Word of this came in brief advices from the French Consul at Rotterdam.

The Ministry was totally at a loss to explain why the captain of the Greek steamer waited until yesterday to report the accident. They were dumbfounded too by the fact that he abandoned a search for survivors or wreckage within two hours after his steamer hit the submarine. By the captain's own admission, the night was clear and the sea was fairly calm.

The Ministry was prepared to hear bad news respecting the Ondine because she was three days overdue at her destination, which was Bizerta, the seaport of Tunis, on the north coast of Africa. She was heading there on a trial trip which started at Cherbourg on October 1.

Official communiques of the past three days had expressed optimism because of the known ability of the Ondine's commander.

Breakdown in Machinery.

It was assumed, however, that a breakdown in machinery had delayed the boat and also prevented her from communicating with shore stations.

The naval officials were not at all prepared to learn that nine days had elapsed before report was made of the fate of the vessel.

They were astounded at the conduct of the Greek captain in this respect, and they made no bones about criticizing him for abandoning the search for the 43 helpless members of the crew after what was considered only a cursory effort to find them.

The meagre advice from Rotterdam arrived just before closing time at the government offices. It was circulated rapidly in the various departments but came too late for the evening press and the Parisian public, which has grown decidedly uneasy about the Ondine, probably will not learn her fate until the morning papers appear.

Certain Ondine Lost.

An official of the Ministry of Marine told the Associated Press last night that the Navy was certain that the Ondine was definitely lost, with all hands. He acknowledged that the message from the Rotterdam Consul commissioner yesterday as Judge Lanthe Greek captain does not specify whether he actually saw the submarine go down or whether the collision was violent enough to send the naval vessel straight to the bottom.

This official added that the Ministry of Marine had asked the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to instruct the French Minister to the Netherlands to make urgent inquiry respecting the collision from the Greek captain.

Vessels Combing Seas.

In addition to sending the second destroyer squadron of the Atlantic fleet to search off Oporto, all the vessels which have been combing the seas from Cherbourg to Bizerta, have been recalled. These included fourteen warships and two squadrons of hydro aeroplanes.

The telegram from the French Consul at Rotterdam was made public by the Ministry of Marine last night. "The commander of the Greek steamer Aikaterini Goulandris on arrival at Rotterdam declares that he collided at 11 p.m. on the 3rd of October off Vigo with a submarine, whose nationality he was unable to distinguish. He added that he tried in vain to aid the submarine and failed even to find it again. He cruised over the spot two hours before continuing his course."

The Ondine, which was the first of a series of 600-ton submarines destined to strengthen coast defence, belonged to a new type which had given full satisfaction on trial runs. She was making an endurance run with a naval crew before being officially accepted by the Navy.

CAR TURNS OVER AT SHARP BEND

Several Young People Driving To Lindsay Badly Shaken Up.

BETHANY NEWS.

(Examiner Correspondence.

BETHANY, Oct. 13.— On Sunday last a company of young people who were on their way from Bowmanville to Lindsay, driving a large car, made the wrong turn at Neal's corner, going east instead of west. Before coming to O. H. Magills there is quite a sharp turn in the road and the car turned completely over across the road. Elmer Rowan, seeing how fast they were going, stopped to see how the turn would be made, so he saw the trouble at once. He got help and the car was got back again. No one seemed to be badly hurt, only shook up. The car was a little damaged, and the people were able to go on to Lindsay.

Two gangs of men for the Bell Telephone are in the village repairing the lines.

The farmers are taking advantage of the fine days and are getting their potatoes dug; a number are complaining of considerable rot. A lot of threshing has been done. The yield is not up to last year.

Mrs. Cecil Waite, of Brampton, spent a couple of days in the village among old friends.

Miss L. Westlake, of Toronto, was a visitor to the village on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wilkinson, of Millbrook, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Reynolds on Tuesday.

Mr. Albert Reynolds and sister, Miss Lizzie Reynolds, were visitors to Fraserville on Sunday.

ASPIRIN

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If the name Bayer appears, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Aspirin—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) indicating Bayer Manufacture. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assure the public against imitation, the Bayer Cross" trademark.

Confesses To Crime For Which One Man Is Already Serving Term In Penitentiary

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Brooding for a period of ten months over the picture of a man suffering the lash and confinement in St. Vincent De Paul penitentiary for a crime of which he was innocent finally proved too great a burden for a Montreal bus driver, he told police yesterday when he confessed that he and Henry Caisse, 22, a former ticket agent for the Montreal Tramways, had planned the robbery of $1,380 from the Victoria Avenue offices of the company last Hallowe'en for which crime George Starke, 24, was sentenced to two years and twenty lashes, half of which he has already suffered.

Starke, who desperately maintained his innocent, with an alibi and appealed his conviction only to lose out, was convicted mainly on the evidence of Caisse who identified his picture as being that of one of the two Pierrott costumed men whom he had sworn had attacked him in the Victoria Avenue office of the company, bound and gagged him and stolen $1,380.

Caisse was arrested yesterday after the bus driver's sworn statement had been made before the investigation officer of the company. The bus driver had not been arrested for his confessed complicity in the crime. Caisse was arraigned yesterday on a charge of theft and another of perjury in connection with his evidence at the trial of Starke.

RECORD CROWD ATTENDS ROSENEATH FALL FAIR

Eleanor Mae Wins Three Heats of 2.20 Race.

LARGE ENTRY.

Baby Show Makes a Big Hit With Large Crowd of Spectators.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

ROSENEATH, October 13. — The village of Roseneath proved effectually that the last is not necessarily the least. Yesterday was the occasion of the annual fall fair held under the direction of the Roseneath Agricultural Society. This year the Roseneath Fair far exceeded all former events of the kind, as it has been many years since the village contained as many people. More than seven thousand people paid their admission at the gate, and when the parking area inside the grounds was filled to overflowing, the roads and streets of the village and the adjacent fields were pressed into service. All roads led to Roseneath, and the crimson tail lights of the retiring motor cars formed an unbroken string along the three main highways when darkness set in and the visitors began to leave the village.

Roseneath Fair of years past and the fair of the present season are two different events. Formerly there was practically no accommodation for the smaller exhibits, such as domestic science and garden produce. It was practically impossible for the exhibits to be shown to the best advantage due to the limited space. But this has been overcome to a large extent this year. To replace the old weather beaten building that was once the exhibition hall, there has been erected an entirely new and modern structure of wood and steel at a cost of more than three thousand dollars. A new and modern ladies' room has been installed and room made for the increased popularity of the baby show. This event takes place this year where the fancy work was formerly put on exhibit. The horse barn, the judges' stand, and the secretary's office have all been repainted and decorated to match the new exhibition building. The predominating colors are old ivory and light red. This gives a particularly prosperous appearance to the grounds. The poultry building has been moved to a point further east than its former site. In anticipation of the very best horse racing, the track this year has been thoroughly prepared. This presented an excellent surface, and the racing was fast and the most interesting that any lover of the sport could possibly desire. There were fifteen horses entered in the four races. More interest was shown in this feature at Roseneath than at any other fair in the district. For the complete and overwhelming success that the Roseneath fair enjoyed, the major portion of the credit must be given to F. J. Slade, president of the society, and his executive, which consists of C. W. Varcoe, vice president; H. Mouncey, 2nd vice president; M. Davey, treasurer, and J. T. Drope, secretary, and the directors of the various branches of the fair.

Horse Races

The horse races were the feature of the day. Thousands lined the stretch in both directions, and on both sides of the track from the judges' stand. The fashionably attired ladies and the well-dressed men, might well have formed the holiday crowd at any of the world's leading tracks. Art Blade of Peterborough either let the horse go or he didn't. But this was not according to any fanciful whim. Unless the start was strictly according to the Canadian National ruling, he rang the bell, addressed the drivers generally or one in particular, and sent them back to try it again. The judges had more to concern them than just to stand in the porminent position afforded by that stand and appear to understand it all. The judges were James Thomas, Arthur Phillips, and Edward Quinn, all of Colborne. Charles Armstrong of Havelock, George Caldwell and Charles Moyse of Port Hope, were the timers, and the official record was kept by R. N. Nattrass. There were twenty-one horses entered in the four races, which were divided into the 2.12, 2.30, 2.25, and 2.30 classes. The 2.25 class drew the largest entry with seven horses starting. Four horses in the 2.20 class formed the smallest field. This was the first race to finish and the honors went to Peterborough, when Eleanor Mae, owned by E. Jones, captured three firsts and stepped the mile in one minute fifty-five and one-half seconds. Fred Patch, owned by McNaught of Tweed, lined up three seconds and second money. Dick Sunday, owned by McCracken of Trenton, captured third money with a 3, 4, 3, score. Donna

Outbreak Of Rabies Located Near Ottawa

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press.)— As the result of investigations made by the Federal Department of Agriculture, an outbreak of rabies in Gloucester township has been detected, and prompt action is being made to combat it.

Steps to cope with the disease will likely be taken by the Gloucester Township Council to-night when a by-law ordering all dogs tied or confined will come before it. The Department, it is understood, requested such action as a means of protecting cattle in pasture.

One woman and a child are receiving special treatment for the disease, having been bitten by a small dog which in turn was infected by a black spaniel, which went through the district some weeks ago. The woman received a slight bite while tying her shoes, and the child was bitten later. The condition of the victims is not serious.

MID-HASTINGS TEACHERS MEET

Annual Convention Held in Marmora United Church Hall.

ATTENDANCE LARGE.

MARMORA, Oct. 13 (Examiner Correspondence).—Under the presidency of James Collins, B.A., principal of Marmora Continuation School, the annual convention of Centre Hastings Teachers' Institute was opened in the United Church, Marmora, at 10 a.m. on Thursday. The attendance was practically one hundred per cent.

Rev. C. J. Beckley took the opening exercises. Following usual routine business, Mr. Collins gave an address on the history of the teaching profession. He traced teaching back to the days of the cave men. The address was exceptionally fine, revealing deep thought.

Comprehensive reports were given by Miss W. Taverner and A. McCutcheon, delegates to the meetings of the O.E.A., held at Toronto last Easter.

Community singing, led by Miss Lois Richardson, was the next item on the program. Miss M. C. Topper gave a splendid demonstration of primary work with a class.

Remarks by Inspector McGuire preceded adjournment for lunch.

At the afternoon session, Mr. S. H. Connor of Tweed dealt with "Aids in teaching history and geography," showing individual development of the subject through years of practical work in a way which every teacher present would doubtless receive very useful knowledge. The work in history as to the use of obsolete maps in making maps of the voyages, battlegrounds and charts made famous through history was ably dealt with.

The subject, "The teaching of literature," was handled in an interesting and humorous manner by Mr. A. Macdonald, M.A., of Peterborough Normal School.

The general encouragement of school fairs and the assistance of teachers in making such successful were urged by J. Wilson of Stirling, local agricultural representative.

Miss Lulu Ross of Madoc, president of the Women's Teachers' Federation, was the concluding speaker of the afternoon. The evening session took the form of a high-class concert in the Town Hall, the building being filled to utmost capacity for the occasion. Royal Bluejackets Orchestra having played selections, Mr. Collins, in charman's opening remarks, tendered thanks to the audience for so largely turning out. Rev. A. B. Caldwell spoke a word of welcome on behalf of the village council; the two school boards and the citizens of Marmora. He considere that parents should teach their children to respect their homes and their teachers, and that they should instil common sence into the young lives. Mr. J. F. Baker and Mrs. E. C. Prentice were then called upon for a duet and sang, with pleasing voice, "When My Caravan Has Rested." Eight young girls in a Black Cat drill took the stage next under supervision of Miss M. Topper, and their number was well applauded. Miss Genevieve Shannon was also good in her rendering of the vocal solo, "The Desert Song."

Mr. Macdonald Speaks

Suggested by Robert Burns' poem was the address given by Mr. A. Macdonald, M.A., of Peterborough, entitled, "Seeing ourselves as others see us." Because of the sound advice thereby given and its blending with a real humor, the address was well taken. Three things were emphasized in its course.

1.—Those in the teaching profession are a little apt to fall into intellectual snobbishness. They should remember that other brains can get material out of other things besides books. Great things are somethimes done by bookless brains.

2.—Teachers have the unfortunate necessity of repressing youth. Sometimes this becomes a habit with a teacher, who becomes then a wet blanket generally.

3.—The truth about us is what those who love us, see in us.

TEACHER TRAINING COURSE AT WARSAW

Great Amount of Silo-Filling and Other Work Keeps Attendance Down.

Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Oct 13.— Owing to so much silo filling and threshing, many who wished to attend the teacher training class could not. The larger class is of the younger students, who study the story telling conducted by Mrs. White.

Little ones need to be in a room by themselves. They cannot keep still, they need theier own little worship service, and need to be able to sing. Once a teacher who could not get on with her class in the open room, took them to her own house a few doors away. Some of the men found fault, with the result that they looked the church building over and found a hall and very large coal bin. By using part of the hall and taking part of the too large coal bin they had a nice, well-lighted room for the primary children. Mrs. White told an amusing story of a little girl's idea of the covenant with Noah. The idea was true, but couched in far from Biblical terms. Stories should be kept within the experience of the children to whom they are being told. The little ones should have comfortable, low seats so that their little feet may not be dangling. Change the program, for little ones are active. Their experience, even in the home, is limited. For the primaries, little things that appeal in the home may be used bring in the Bible story. The general worship service should be one which appeals to the little ones, and the adults as a wall around them should enjoy it. Have the pupils tell stories about things they see and show how God takes care of all. The juniors may be taught in the open room if necessary, and nature study may be introduced and great lessons of life taught.

Silos Being Filled.

Silo filling is in full swing. The rains of last week delayed the gangs which were at it then. On the whole the corn crop is quite good. Allan Payne did not have sunflowers in his ensilage this year, and no one has reported putting sweet clover into silos.

Money Taken.

A fairly large amount of cash disappeared from the till in one of the stores recently.

Warsaw cheese factory was closed on Wednesday for the Norwood fair.

Seeks Permits.

A plain clothes inspector has been asking car drivers for their permits recently. Many have been neglecting their permits.

Mrs. White is staying with Mrs. Robert Payne.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. E. Choate are moving to Peterborough this week.

Miss Verr Miller visited at her home on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Jos. Tedford is still in Nicholls Hospital.

Charles Foster, accompanied by Wm. Davis, motored out through Haliburton on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mrs. Mervin and daughter, Mrs. Painter, with her little daughter Joan, visited friends in Warsaw on Wednesday afternoon.

Quite a number of dishes have disappeared from the United church basement since July the twelfth. The United church people have always been kind about loaning their equipment and it seems too bad to find things missing just before they need them.

A sudden turn in the market puts some store in a position to offer you goods of the highest repute and quality at a bargain price. Read the advertisements and save money.

W. I. MEET AT CAVAN

Hold Meeting Earlier Than Usual Date Because of Pressing Business.

CELEBRATE HALLOWE'EN.

(Examiner Correspondence).

CAVAN, Oct. 13.—A meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon at Mrs. L. McNeil's home, at which there were nineteen present.

The Institute had been by the president, Mrs. R. M. Howden, called to meet a week earlier than the usual date on account of business which had to be brought before the members.

The roll-call was supposed to be answered by Hallowe'en legends or suggestions. To this a number responded with interesting items about this old custom of celebrating the last night of October.

By young people it is looked forward to as a time for harmless pranks and a general good time; and even the older folk enjoy the roast goose with its accompanying menu as well as the fun.

One item of business discussed was the purchasing of bulbs for the members. It was decided that each member should receive twelve bulbs.

The report of the social evening in the Community Hall was given. The receipts were fifty-two dollars and twenty-five cents.

The Institute discussed catering for a banquet and social evening for the Kiwanis Club, Peterborough.

They decided to undertake is—the banquet to be held on Friday evening, October the 26th, in Cavan Community Hall.

Miss B. Touchbourne, Mrs. H. Seeney, Mrs. White and Mrs. Perrin were appointed a committee to look after the tables.

Mrs. C. Carr, Mrs. D. J. Hunter, Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. Perrin, a committee to look after the menu.

The Institute and families, alone, are to be invited.

Mrs. H. Seeney and Mrs. R. Syer were in charge of the program for the meeting, but as the business had occupied a longer time than usual it was decided to withdraw the program and the two ladies were requested to give it at the November meeting which will be held, by invitation, at Mrs. J. W. Perrin's home.

Four ladies assisted the hostess Mrs. McNeil, to serve lunch, and a social time was enjoyed around the tea tables.

Among those present were: Miss J. Shaffeur, Mrs. D. J. Hunter, Mrs. D. White, Mrs. Carpenter, Miss L. Syer, Mrs. H. Seeney, Mrs. R. M. Howden, Miss A. Kelly, Miss F. Hunter, Mrs. J. W. Perrin, Mrs. R. Syer, Mrs. E. Fallis, Mrs. Purser, Mrs. M. Matchett, the Misses Nettie and Irene Sutton, Mrs. Sutton and Miss B. Touchbourne.

Sour Stomach Sign of Carelessness

POLITE society frowns on those whose stomachs "grumble." For careful people heed this warning that the contents of the stomach is sour and fermenting. Those who don't, may some day develop gastritis—or even ulcers.

Nine times out of ten indigestion and allied stomach disorders are due to excess stomach acid, which impedes normal digestion and forms sour gases that cause intense pain. To restore good digestion you must eliminate this cause. A tablet of "Pape's Diapepsin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain.

So, do buy a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapepsin" today. This not only means instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach a little "Pape's Diapepsin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent various disorders.

GREAT SERMONS
BY GREAT MEN

The Prodigal Son

BY VERY REV. C. J. VAUGHAN, DD, Dean of Llandoff.

LUKE XVI.—11-32.

THE passage opens with the gathering of one of those remarkable throngs that assembled to hear the Saviour wherever He went, and that increased in the later months of His life until they became so unwieldy as to be positively dangerous. "Then drew near unto Him all the publicans and sinners for to hear Him." It is not a mere matter of fine criticism that emphasizes such words as, "Then drew near unto Him;" they are words which carry, in connection with many other elements, the impression which is produced upon the minds of all who study the personal habits of our Saviour. There is abundant evidence that He never stood afar off, as if in merely official relations; that He never made such a separation of Himself from His people as is implied by audience and speaker according to ordinary modern usages. He went with the throng. We have little hints which show that when He wrought His miracles, they were wrought in the way of affection and personal attention. If a blind man was to be healed, He took him by the hand, and led him out of the town and then healed him. He would go near to persons, and put His hands upon them, and pronounce the sanative benediction.

So there gathered about Him, wherever He went, those who were attracted by the singular power which He had, and of which sympathy was largely the secret. There gathered about Him a large class of people; and not only did they stand and look afar off, held back by a certain awe, but they came where He was. They came, even unbidden, into the dining halls. They came into His very presence. They wept upon His feet. They touched Him. They indulged in various familiarities toward Him. And when it is said, "Then drew near unto Him all the publicans and sinners for to hear Him," we are to imagine that He stood in a throng of these worst men—as they were esteemed by the genuine Jew.

The publicans were hated because they were foreign officers. Usually they were Jews; but what business had a Jew to be collecting taxes from his own people to put into the treasury of imperious, haughty Rome? He turned against his own kind, and became the instrument of a foreign despot. Aside from any extortion that they might practise, the ignominy of serving an enemy toward whom the Jews cherished the utmost bitterness and hatred rendered the publicans, the tax-gatherers, the most despicable of men to the patriotic feeling of the Jewish nation. The sinners were men and women of an abandoned character; men and women that had lost moral restraint, and had gone to the very extreme in vice—the outcasts, the undone; the wrecks of society. Here was a goodly audience gathered about Him of these publicans and these sinners; and you may well suppose that the orthodox Jews felt the utmost horror of it. "The Pharisees and Scribes murmured." That is, they whispered, muttered. You know that sometimes good men are apt to do that when things do not go to satisfy them. There is a great deal of talking behind the back, and a great deal of criticism and whispering going on, about persons who are not, according to their views, sound, and right, and safe. So was it with these men who had spent their whole lives in being good, and were so proud about being good that they had not got past the body, and had not had time to attend to the inward man, the soul—these men, who were so exceedingly scrupulous, who knew the truth, who had found it out—who knew to a line just what the Church was, and just what Church should be; and who had complied with the requirements, who had fulfilled the law, they thought, in every jot and tittle. If anybody did not know what the flavour of piety was, they could tell them. If anybody wanted to know anything about God and the eternal government, they were the ones to inform them. They were the favourites of God. They had the law, they had kept the law, and they knew what it consisted in. When they went after our Saviour, and looked upon His methods of teaching, and listened to His discourses they went as critics; and seeing about Him this great unwashed throng, this great crowd of men vomited out of the waste places of Jerusalem, or of the Galilean cities, that surrounded Him, they said: "This Man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them."

Now, they could have got along with Him very well, probably, if He had kept a good distance off, in pontifical robes, or with an air more impressive than any pontifical robes, and had laid down the law to those wicked men out there; but He made Himself as one of them, and they came close up to Him, and He made them His fellows; He received them not simply into His presence, but into His company. They sat at the table with Him; and in that oriental country, to eat bread with one was to recognise him as a friend. He not only talked to them, but He ate with them; and that was thought to be as bad as to commune with them at the same table, He belonging to one sect and they to another.

Then it was that our Saviour uttered this exquisite parable of the Prodigal Son; and we will follow the course of the Prodigal Son, for the sake of bringing out, afterwards, several points that may well occupy our attention.

The point that He makes, and what may be considered as the text, is: "I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."

In another place, the same thing is said in another way: "Likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons which need no repentance."

This is the text—Divine sympathy with broken down, sinful men, and Divine joy in their recuperation; the sympathy of God and the helpfulness of God to all that have sinned, and are making even the feeblest strife to regain themselves. God is on the side of every sinner that desires to cease sinning. "A certain man had two sons: and the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of good that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living. And not many days after, the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country."

It is a striking fact that the first step that was taken amiss and downward (the first impulse probably anteceded this, but the first actual downward) step was the one of no longer desiring to abide under the parental roof. The bonds of affection were slackening. The wish to be his own master was growing in him. A vague and wild curiosity to know what was in the world was stimulating him. He could not bear the routine of morality in his father's house. He could not endure the restraint of his father's eye and voice. Therefore he determined to take his possessions and go and see the world. There have been thousands since his day who have wrecked and ruined themselves because they wanted to see what was going on among men. So he took his property and went forth from his father's house, and came to a far-off country, where he could not be sent for nor interfered with. He had wild liberty. He had absolute confidence in himself. He felt perfectly certain that he knew enough to take care of himself. "Let those remain tied to their mothers' apron strings who want to," said he; "I am a grown man, and I know a thing or two." No doubt if any counsel had been offered him, he would have thrown it off indignantly. He was going to a far country where nobody could oversee him. He sought liberty, but it was the liberty of the lower nature. It was not the liberty of the moral sense, striving to disengage itself from the thrall of superstition. It was not the liberty of a noble nature, seeking other channels for sympathy and beneficence. It was not the liberty of a generous soul who, seeing the truth, is resolved to break through old accustomed ways, and give up the world, though it should cost him his name or his life. It was not the liberty of the upper man. It was the liberty of the lower man. It was that kind of liberty which is called licence; and he soon became licentious—for it is said, "He took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living." He poured out freely his means upon the cup. He indulged in the wildest and merriest dances. He was full of gaiety, because he was full of youthful spirits. He denied himself nothing that his eye saw, that his ear heard, or that his heart coveted; and his passions became his counsellors. "When he had spent all (and it did not take him a great while to do it), there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want." Of course now there was nothing for him to do but to ask assistance from those neighbourly fellows who had met him so often, and enjoyed his hospitality. The moment he made his necessities known to them, of course they would succour him. Not so. When he sought their aid, they were nowhere to be found. Those who had shown him so much friendship, admired him, walked with him, coquetted with him, gone into every excess with him—they, surely, by their loving sympathy, would bear up a fellow-sinner. No, they had other friends now. They could not attend to him. All hiscompanions were gone. There was none who cared for him.

There is many and many a young man who is walking on the same track in the world. To-day he has friends enough. Just as long as his pocket holds out, his company will be sought; but when his pocket gives out, he will be abandoned. No selfishness is so hideous as the selfishness which prevails among the passionate who, having enjoyed all the wild delirium of pleasure with each other, heartlessly abandon one another in the hour of extremity. "When he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want. And (since he could do nothing else) he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine."

He went into the saloon to begin with, and he went into the pig-pen to end with. It was not a long reach from the glory, the dazzle, the pride, the vanity, the lust and the licence of his youth, to the humiliation and the shame, the degradation and the want, of a swine-herd. There is no recall of him, no yearning after him. But there are a great many men that spend their substance and their youth and their health in riotous living who have a heart left. There are many bad men who have much in them that is good—who have a sense of honour lingering in them; who have aspirations, and who have yearnings for things high and noble. There is many a man who has philosophy with which to reason on his own mistakes, and who longs to reascend the path by which he descended so swiftly.

So was it with this young man who had spent all, and began to be in want; and who went and joined himself to a citizen who sent him into the fields to feed swine. He went, and for aught that we can see, he did his work faithfully. He began to be sensible at last; for when a man has gone down by false steps of self-abuse, it is something if he accepts his situation, and sets up, in the low depth to which he has sunk, some foundations for renewed life.

Well, you will observe how this young man is spoken of, as if he had been insane. It is said, "When he came to himself." He had not really been himself. Every man has an equator, and all below that line is animal, while all above that line is himself. The upper manhood, the higher nature, is not the animal in you. It is that which allies you to the angelic, to God, to the invisible and eternal world. There is many and many a man who lives in his lower nature, and who is, as it were, insane, but whose sins, whose remorse, and the misery which comes from these, begin to bring him to his higher and better nature. He has proved the lower nature, and found its falsity, its oppression, and its danger; and through the suffering which comes from the wild indulgence of his lower nature—that which he is to leave with the dust when he dies—the door is open to that which is higher. "He came to himself." As a man that has been insane is, by some cooling draught or potion, brought to sanity and reason again, and is softened, and made rational, so this young man was brought to himself.

Blessed are they who, after following temptation and solicitation, and reaping misery, learn by that misery what is the royalty of their better nature, and are ashamed of sin and of sinning. Such was his extremity of suffering, that he "would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat; and no man gave unto him." He was alone; he was uncared for and unprovided for. Those sweet and edible pods which were fed to the swine he would have chewed for his own sustenance.

Well, he had time for one thing—he had time, amidst his grunting charge, amidst the chanking swine, to think; he had time to suffer; he had time to be sorry. There are a great many men who have not time to be virtuous, who have not time to be religious, who have not time to do a great many things; but there is no man who does not find time, by-and-by, to be very sorry, very sad, in his adversity. So did this young man, "when he came to himself;" and I do not know that there is anything in this world more touching than that vision of home which rises, in their extremity, upon the wicked, either to torment them, or to lure them, by the hope and promise of sympathy and succour.

I have stood by the side of those that were sick, and I could bear to witness their pain; I could harden myself, as a surgeon would, to perform all the offices that were needful for their restoration; but when, in the midst of their trouble, when perhaps unconscious of what they were saying, they would call out, "Father! father!" or "Mother! mother!" it was more than I could bear. The going back of those who have gone through a career of licence and wickedness to the visions of childhood, its sweet innocence, the security of home, and the joy and pleasure of household fellowship—I think there is nothing that touches a sensitive person more than this.

And so the Prodigal Son, when he was reduced, through indulgence, to extreme distress, and when no man would show him any charity or any succour, began to bethink himself of his own father's house; and he said, "How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger! I will arise and go to my father, and I will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against Heaven and before thee."

Now, that is honest; that is manly. He did not say, "I will arise and go to my father, and I will state the circumstances." Oh, no. If there is anything in this world that is the devil of the casuist, it is "circumstances;" but he was not so bad as that. Having sinned, he had courage to look upon his sin and call it sin, and know that it was sin, and take it in all its magnitude. He attempted no acquittal, no palliation, no excuse, no piteous fear, addressed to the compassion of his old father. "I will arise and go to my father and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against Heaven, and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son."

Here begins to spring out the exquisite delicacy and sensibility of a heart that is returning to a wholesome repentance, to nobility and to truth. He is already partly reformed whose soul begins to move to higher instincts. "I am no more worthy to be called thy son; make me as one of thy hired servants." Beautiful that is in its simplicity and humility. He knew how to go down, and, blessed be God, he knew how to go up too; but there are a great many men who know how to go down, but do not know how to go up.

Well, how fared it with him? "And he arose, and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him."

Men see a great way with telescopes; eagles and vultures see a vast distance; but I take it that there is no eye that is so unerring, and that sees so far and so sure, as a parent's eye looking for a lost child. "When he was yet a great way off, his father saw him." And he saw all that was good in him; for fatherhood in its purest form is the truest expression, as it is the sign and symbol of the Godhead. "When he was a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him." He waited for no word. He put him upon no conditions. There was no preparation. His father did to this son that returned just that which God does, and to all eternity will do, to every erring or struggling spirit that uprising, goes to Him—he gave him something of Himself. He gave him acceptance; he gave him sympathy and kindness. It is the nature of God, it is the nature of every true father, to do it.

The beauteous child, flattered and deceived, in an evil moment flees and wanders, and goes from bad to worse; and the mother's heart is sore through years, hearing from her and yet not being able to recover her; but at twilight, on some evening, as the mother sits and sees things darkling, there comes a form, ill-clad, with feeble step and sunken cheek, through the open gate. The mother knows her, and with open arms rushes to embrace the child that has come back. No word is spoken. Both hearts are pouring out a sacred tide. She bears her child to the house. "Mother, I have come home to die." "My child, live." Ought not the mother to say, "The public sentiment of this neighbourhood requires that I should call out from you some token that you have repented?" Ought she not to put her on some condition? Would it not be a violation of public sentiment to take her back without words? Nay; is there anything that cleanses away the sin of a child so fast as the loving heart of a parent? Men seem to think that there must be some preparation through which a man shall come to God. Yes, the That is the preparation. It is the heart and soul of Divine love that quickens to remorse the hearts of men that go wrong; that brings light to their darkness; that sees them afar off; that draws them by the cords of love; and that takes them then with a heart overflowing with forgiveness, not because they have done this, that, or the other thing, but because God is infinite in sympathy and in love; because God's nature, the moment your soul is open to it, pours a stream of cleansing redemption into it. God forgives from what He is, and not from what you have been.

The young man had come, you know, with a good orthodox confession; and he was going to pour it into his father's ear; but he found himself embraced, and wept over, and kissed. He struggled through, and said, "Father, I have sinned against Heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son." He could not get out the other part—"make me as one of thy hired servants." He was smothered in his father's embrace, and he could not get it out.

What was the father's reply? He did not hear what the son said; it all, as it were, went to the wind; and he called to his servants, in fatherly gladness: "Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him, and put a ring on his hand (that scrawny hand which had just come from the husks and the swine), and shoes on his feet; and bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat and be merry." And the reason was: "For this my son was dead, and is alive again."

That was reason enough for you and me, and for every noble man and woman, because God has lent us a little of His own feeling. There is no other argument.

Our Father in heaven is purer and better than earthly fathers; and if an earthly father knows how to bear and forbear, and wait to be gracious, and, with a generosity of love, to forgive those who have gone wrong, how much more shall God forgive, and cherish, and build up to eternal life, every one that comes to Him, or that desires to come to Him.

Well, this is a beautiful picture; but still, we must finish the whole scene. There was one other son. We have now, next, one of these perfect folks who censured Christ for eating with sinners; one of these pharisaic precisionists; one of these men who thanked God that they never stumbled; one of these men that knew what was right, and always did it. The story is in this language: "This my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry." The old house shook. The lights glanced through the windows. The music was wafted into the field, where this exceedingly good elder brother was. "Now, his elder son was in the field; and as he came and drew nigh to the house (he could not imagine what they were about there), he heard music and dancing (it seems to have been a long time since there had been anything of that sort in the old house); and he called one of the servants, and he asked what these things meant. And he said unto him, Thy brother is come; and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, because he hath received him safe and sound. And he was angry, and he would not go in: therefore came his father out, and entreated him. And he answering said to his father, Lo, these many years do I serve thee, neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment; and yet thou never gavest me a kid that I might make merry with my friends; but as soon as this thy son was come, which hath devoured thy living with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf."

Well, now, I would rather be the repenting prodigal son than the elder brother. Was not he a mean sneak? and was it not designed that these two brothers should stand over against each other and teach the world? The contrast between a man who by strong and impetuous inclination is led to sin, as the publicans sinned, as the sinners sinned, as the harlots and courtesans of Galilee or Jerusalem sinned—between a man who is carried away by his overpowering passions, but who, when he sees the final results of his wicked course, rebounds, and goes back, and frankly, honestly, acknowledges his sin—between such a man and one like this elder brother? Is not that character painted so that it seems a great deal more admirable than that of this precise fellow who never sinned at all, to his own thinking? He never got drunk—no, he was too stingy to get drunk. He never could afford wine. He spent nothing on courtesans. He was too cold, too unsympathizing. He did not give a loose rein to passion. It was the very pride of his life that he never did wrong. He was one of these locked-up, tied-up Pharisees, who are so afraid of going wrong that they do not go anyhow—who are so afraid of doing wrong that they do not do anything. He was self-contained, self-worshipping, and exceedingly proper. He was going toward heaven stiff, stingy, lean, mean, selfish. He was going to heaven like a mummy. And when his brother went away, he probably damned him in his heart right orthodoxly; when he heard how he was going on afar off in foreign lands, no doubt he had a very great horror of sin, in other folks; and when he heard that he had come back again, doubtless he said, "The beast of burden back on my father's hands! Now he will be dividing his substance with him, and I shall have less. Besides all that, look at the difference between us. I never ran away, and he did. I never fell into any impetuosities, and he did. I never squandered anything upon harlots, and he did. In all my life I have never done anything that was improper. I am made like a clock, having a stroke at every hour, being

Stories For Little People

David and the Giant Goliath.

I. Sam., xvii., 1-37.

You remember who the Philistines were. They were wicked people who lived in some of the cities of Canaan. They often fought against the Israelites.

One day a great number of Philistines came and placed their tents on the top of a hill in Canaan. When Saul heard it he came with a great number of Israelites, and they placed their tents on another hill. The Philistines and the Israelites could see each other in their tents; and they intended to fight against each other; but they did not choose to fight immediately.

There was one man among the Philistines whose name was Goliath. He was called a giant, because he was very tall indeed. He was ten feett high.

He was very strong and big, and he could fight well. He wore armour. What is armour? Clothes made of iron and brass; people used to wear armour, that arrows, and swords, and spears, might not hurt them easily.

He wore a cap of brass upon his head, and he wore a coat of iron; his a great spear in his hand, and he had legs were covered with brass. He held a great sword in a sheath by his side; and a man went before him with a shield. What is a shield? It is a great piece of iron, or brass, like a large tray, which men used to hold before their faces in battle to prevent the arrows hurting their faces.

The giant Goliath thought that no one could kill him. Every day he used to call out with a loud voice, "Will one of the Israelites come and fight with me? If he be able to kill me, then all the Philistines will mind the king of Israel: but if I kill him, then the Israelites must mind the Philistines. Is there any man that will fight with me?'

Would any of the Israelites fight with the giant?

No, not one. When Saul heard the Philistine giant, he was frightened and all the Israelites were frightened. They all thought they should be killed, if one of them fought with the giant. And do you think that if one of them had fought with him he would have been killed? Could not God have helped the Israelite to conquer?

Where was David? Was he among the tents of Israel? No; he was feeding his father's sheep, but David's three elder brothers were in the tents.

One day old Jesse said to David, "Go to the tents of Israel, and see how your brethren are; and take with you some corn, and ten loaves, as a present for your brothers.

So David rose up very early, and left his sheep with another shepherd, and took the corn and bread with him, and went a long way till he came to the hill where the tents of the Israelites were. Then he ran to look for his brothers. As he was talking with his brothers, he heard a man speaking in a very loud voice, saying, "Who is able to fight with me?" It was the giant Goliath. David had never heard the giant speak these words before, but the people who were near David told him about the giant, and they said, "King Saul has promised to give any man who kills the giant a great many things as a reward."

David was surprised that people should be afraid of fighting with the giant, because he knew that God could help an Israelite to conquer him, but he knew that the gods of the Philistines could not help them, because they were only idols; so David said, 'Who is this Philistine, that he should speak in this manner to the people of God?' And David felt in his heart that he would not be afraid to fight with the giant.

One of David's brothers heard what David said, and he began to mock David: 'Why did you come here? Why did you not stay with your sheep?' But David answered his brother very meekly.

Very soon some one went and told Saul that there was a young man come to the tents, and that he said he would fight with the giant. So Saul desired the young man to be brought before him; and David came to Saul. Saul had seen David before; but Saul had forgotten him. Saul was surprised that David, who was so young, should wish to fight with the giant; and he said to him, 'You are not able to fight against that Philistine. You are very young, and he has been used to fight.' Then David answered, 'Once when I was keeping my father's sheep, a lion came, and took a lamb out of the flock, and I went after the lion, and met him, and took the lamb out of his mouth, and when the lion tried to kill me, I caught him by his hair, and killed him. And once a bear came, and I killed him too. I shall kill this Philistine as I killed the lion and the bear. It was God who delivered from the paw of the lion and of the bear, and he will deliver me from the Philistine.

You see, my dear child, that David was not proud of his strength. He knew that it was God who had helped him to kill those beasts, and he felt sure that God would help him to kill the giant.

Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee.—Ps. cxix, 11.

But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name. Jno. 1, 12.

THE PENNY BANK.

The visit to Peterborough of J. R. Littleproud, inspector of the Penny Bank for Ontario, brings to attention the fact that the local operation of the Penny Bank system has been splendidly successful.

When it is realized that nearly 2,300 Public School pupils have saved $8,600 since the bank opened here last January and that this sum would otherwise have been, for the most part, frittered away, the value of the system can be appreciated.

The most important feature of the Penny Bank, however, is not the total amount saved, but the regularity with which deposits are made, clear evidence that habits of thrift are being inculcated in many of the pupils.

The fact that hundreds of children are putting away a little bit each week is a very significant and encouraging sign.

Few things that are taught in school will prove of greater benefit than the development of a thrift habit among the pupils.

The success of the scheme locally is gratifying and it is to be hoped that even more satisfactory results will be noted with the passing years.

THE PLIGHT OF THE FRUIT GROWERS.

Further efforts are to be made by Canadian fruit and vegetable growers to have the Canadian market protected against "dumping" from foreign countries.

Undoubtedly the fruit and vegetable men in this country have been seriously affected by American growers dumping their surplus products into Canada.

Western papers declare indeed that the fruit growers here cannot survive unless their market is saved for them.

They are face d with a situation in which the United States growers, in order to protect their own home market and obtain a profitable price therefrom, are shipping their surplus into Canada, using the Canadian market without regard to the loss they may take.

Obviously the quantity they dispose of in this way does not worry them in the least, seeing that they obtain a good market at home by thus preventing overflooding there.

Canadian investments in fruit and vegetables run into many million dollars, and the growers who intend to wait upon Premier King as soon as he returns from the Old Country will have a very strong case to present.

THE NORWOOD FAIR.

Secretary John E. Roxburgh of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society supplies official figures in regard to the Norwood Fair, which show a paid attendance of 8,019 on Wednesday.

Such patronage must have been gratifying to the fair officials, and will do much to offset the disappointment caused by bad weather last year.

The Norwood Fair, in operation since 1868, is one of the best of Ontario's smaller fairs, and the attendance this year, the quality and quantity of the exhibits, and the remarkably large number of concessionaires made the 1928 one of the best in the history of the event.

The fact that an admission price was paid for 601 cars indicates the number of patrons who came from a distance, and there were, of course, hundreds of other automobiles parked outside the grounds.

The officials of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society are to be congratulated not only upon the most excellent fair held this year, but upon the unmistakable proof offered by the attendance of the reputation the Norwood Fair enjoys over a wide section of Ontario.

THE EVENING CLASSES.

The opening of the evening classes in the Peterborough Vocational School is announced for the week after next, and thus the door of opportunity is opened for all citizens, old or young, to add to their technical or general knowledge.

The new Vocational School building with its splendid facilities makes it possible to greatly enlarge the scope of these night classes and to include new courses that should be of much benefit to Peterborough citizens.

The syllabus is varied enough to appeal to a large number of people.

There will be classes in cookery, dressmaking, millinery, English, machine-shop mathematics, woodworking and building construction, draughting, auto mechanics, bookkeeping, stenography, typewriting and office practice, and an effort will be made to establish other courses for which there may be a demand.

Those who wish to enter any of these courses are given an opportunity to register next week, and the response should be sufficiently large to show that Peterborough citizens appreciate the advantage of the fine new Vocational School.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC LIFE.

Mr. E. W. Beatty does well, as Chancellor of McGill University, to urge upon those who are now attending the universities to pay greater attention to public affairs after their graduation and not to become so absorbed in the businesses or professions which they enter that they neglect to perform their share of the task of carrying on the government of the country.

The man or the woman who attends a university possesses a definite advantage in the additional knowledge that he or she acquires and has a rare opportunity of placing that knowledge at the disposal of his or her country. And yet the mind of the average English-speaking undergraduate is turned more often towards the place which he hopes to occupy in his profession or business than towards any contribution which he may be able to make to the government of his country. There are comparatively few men in Canada who have proceeded, from youth up, with the fixed idea of entering public life, and those who have belong chiefly to the Province of Quebec; whereas in Great Britain there are even now many men attending Oxford or Cambridge who have already dedicated themselves to the services of their country and are being prepared accordingly.

In addition to being president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, chancellor of McGill University and the occupant of many other public offices, Mr. Beatty is a member of the committee that chooses Rhodes Scholars from the Province of Quebec and thus submits candidates to an examination. In connection with the work of this committee he says:

"One of the questions we always ask a candidate is: 'What do you propose to make of the superior educational advantages you will receive after you have been to Oxford and return to Canada?' We have candidates from three general classes, those who are English, those who are French and those of Jewish nationality. In answer to this question the Jewish boy always says: 'I propose to go into community work first for the benefit of my own people.' The English boy always says: 'I propose to practise law, or medicine, or to teach or enter journalism.' The French-Canadian boy invariably answers 'I propose to use this education as a stepping-stone to public life in Canada.' On no occasion of which I am aware has the English boy or Jew ever replied to the committee that he proposed to even think of entering public life.

"This is not to be wondered at. When I was at the university, if any one asked me what I was going to do afterwards, I would have frankly told him I did not know, that it was in the lap of the gods and that when I graduated I expected then to make up my mind or have it made up for me by circumstances or parental direction. But things have changed in thirty years, and now, as in many other things, the undergraduate is ahead of the undergraduate of that period, and he is thinking of where he will land, and he is thinking, too, of the place in which he is going to work, and the problems surrounding his future career, and he is thinking, I hope, as well, that his country expects something more than the honor of being a place in which he earns a living or amasses wealth. No Canadian undergraduate can do too much thinking about his own country and its problems, even though he realizes, as he must realize, that it may be some years before he will be an active participant in the solution of those problems."

The brilliance which so often characterizes the French-Canadian in public life, his ability to conduct debate in either of the two official languages, his powers as an orator, are easily explained when it is understood that, from the time his education is begun, it is impressed upon him that he has a duty to perform to his own country in participating in the conduct of its affairs and that he is given a training to fit him for success in an administrative as well as a professional role. The great majority of the French-Canadians who are rising to prominence in public life were not precipitated into it by accident. They have undergone a definite course of training in preparation for it and, when the proper time has arrived, have realized ambitions which they have entertained from youth by becoming the occupants of seats in either the Provincial or Federal Parliaments. And when they reach Parliament their success is all but assured by the careful training for it which they have received.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

A PRAISEWORTHY PLAN.

The Hon. Robert Forke, Canada's hard-working and heavily-criticized Minister of Immigration, announces that his department is working out a scheme by which Canadian boys will be aided in locating on farms and in that way receive the same privileges that are granted British lads brought to this country under the arrangement made some time ago. Mr. Forke's proposal includes plans for financial assistance to Canadian boys who show they have an aptitude for agricultural careers.

There must be plenty of city-born Canadian lads who have a hankering for life on the farm. One meets them every now and then. In nearly every one of us—no matter how many generations of the family may have lived in town—there is a love for the land and a desire, at some time or other, to get back to it. The best proof of this is found in the fact that city men, after achieving success and financial standing, in one line or another, so often gratify their taste for the free life of the farm by buying property and establishing rural homes. In all too many cases, however, this move comes so late in life that the years are too few for the long-planned enjoyment. The real time to start a farming career is in the days of youth, and if Mr. Forke can work out a system by which hundreds of town and city lads will return to the occupation of their grandfathers, he will have done something splendid for the boys themselves and for the country at large. Canada, considering her vast area and fertile lands, has far too many families in the urban districts and far too few on the land. Anything that the Minister of Agriculture can do to secure a better balance in this regard may be set down as national accomplishment of a most praiseworthy character.—Border Cities Star.

A Thought

OPPORTUNITY SEEKS YOU

Opportunity is looking for the man with initiative. She needs him even more than he needs her. He is the man who can do the right thing, at the right time, in the right way, without being told. He is the man who does not wait upon his "boss" to tell him now, when and what to do.

Initiative is the power to create, all else is but the ability to imitate. For each person who can move forward on his own impulse, there are scores who can og ahead only if someone who can go ahead only if someone Cultivate, therefore, the habit of being a self-starter both in thought and action—J. Ogden Armour.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., October 13 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in wheat here yesterday was quiet owing to the somewhat indifferent attitude of English importers, but there was some demand from the Continent for Canadian Western barley and sales of several loads of No. 4 grade were made at 11½ cents per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, f.o.b. New York. There was no change in the market for car lots of grain, prices generally being steady under a moderate demand.

A fair amount of business was done in spring and winter wheat flour and values were firm.

An active trade was done in all lines of millfeed and the undertone to the market was steady. The tone of the market for standard grades of rolled oats was firm.

The jobbing trade in fresh and storage eggs was good and values were unchanged. The receipts were 294 cases.

There were no further developments in the market for imported beans, but the undertone continued strong on account of the limited supplies available. Sales of choice white hand-picked in small quantities were made at $4.40 to $4.60 per bushel, ex-store, and car lots of Canadian beans were quoted at $4.35 per bushel, ex-track.

The inquiry for butter was fair and prices were steady. The receipts were 867 packages.

A feature of the cheese trade was the firmer feeling that developed, and prices were marked up another ¼ cent per pound. The trade was quiet. The receipts were 8,992 boxes.

BUTTER AND EGGS

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—Egg quotations on the wholesale markets in Toronto yesterday were unchanged at the previous day's rise. There is quite a wide range in the prices being paid to country shippers, however, due to the fact that only about one or two of the large Toronto wholesale concerns are paying the top prices now quoted. Receipts of eggs are reported to be rapidly declining in Ontario and the general situation so far as the Province of Ontario is concerned, is quite steady. It is expected also that in about a week or so dealers in Toronto will be drawing quite liberally upon storage stocks.

Butter quotations are unchanged.

GREAT SERMON

regularly wound up, and keeping time; but that fellow has been through all sorts of circumgyratory courses of evil. My father has made for him a royal feast, but he never made a feast for me. He never gave me even a kid, but he has given him a calf"—and he was so mad!

Where was that brother's heart? Where was his love of the cradle? Where were his childhood memories? Where were those ties of kinship and blood relationship that should have stirred every man to gladness who had a spark of manliness in him, on hearing that the prodigal had come home? Where was that impulse that should have led him to rush into the house and greet his returned brother, and say, "Let me help you"? He would not go in. He stood off, and grumbled. The salvation of his brother from destruction, his restoration to honour and love, the repairing of the breach in the household—all these things fell on him without producing any more impression than they would produce upon a stone. And yet he offered his sacrifices and rattled through his prayers every day, and kept, he thought, a pretty correct account in his bank up above. O Pharisee! Cold, unsympathizing moralist! How can one help despising such a man? You despise him when I am describing him. There is not a man, woman, or child, who does not feel, as I do, that this kind of dry morality is hateful. You feel that a man without any heart, without any pulse, without any warmthin his blood, hardly belongs to the human family.

And yet, many of you will walk in the street, and when you see some poor, drunken, filthy, ragged fellow, who has fallen step by step all the way down, and is trying to reform, I am afraid you will pass him by without a thought of sympathy—without one yearning. Yea, I do not know but you will thank God that you are not as other men are. Perhaps you will say, "I might have fallen into such wickedness, but I was strong, and so was saved from it."

When we see these flaunting mistresses of the street, there is much that shocks our delicacy; yet I never look upon them but, inside of me, there are not tears which move as from a fountain. When I see them, I see the mother; I see the childhood; I see the girlhood; I see the sad days of neglect and abandonment; I see the dying; I see the cheap funeral, with no mourners; and not only do I see the things that are visible, but I see the inner and spiritual reality. Do you see these things? Does your heart go out toward strict people, and orthodox people, and Church people, and your set of people in your denomination? and do you look upon those who are outside of your denomination, upon those who are not Church people, upon worldly people, upon people who have made mistakes in life, who have stumbled and gone to the ground, degraded and ruined, from a high point—do you look upon these with coldness, and even with bitter contempt? Then you are the elder brother.

If there be any meaning in this parable, it is that if a man stands where he probably thinks he is proper and right and virtuous, and has no compassion for his fellowmen who are in distress or want, even though it is by reason of their own folly, then he is the elder brother. Such a man is more despicable than he who has sinned more grossly, and yet seeks to repent. That is the meaning of our Saviour when He said, on another occasion, to these proud Jewish religionists:—"Verily I say unto you, that the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you." It is as if He had said to them, "Their chances are better than yours." Hardness of heart, the want of charity for others, lack of sympathy and genuine beneficence—this is a crying sin; and against no class in Judaea did our Saviour hurl such anathemas as against cultured people, whose consciences were educated, but who were hard-hearted toward their fellow-men, and whose piety was without sympathy.

Dissipation through the basilar passions is not less bad than you think; it is worse than you think; but the dissipation of the upper nature, by which all that is Divine in a man is turned to coldness and selfishness, is a worse dissipation than the other.

In closing, I will add a few points. In the first place, let me say that according to this narrative it is never too late to mend. Perhaps there are some persons who have strayed in here who have been thinking to themselves, "What did he pick out that subject for? I wonder if he knew that I was coming. He has described my case exactly. I have been running away from my parents, from my instructors, from my own self. I have slipped and slipped; I have lost my name and position; I am hovering between life and death; and it is strange that he should have selected such a subject as that." No, it is not any more strange than that God should think of you, and by His providence should draw you where you hear such themes cussed. And I have a personal message for you. I have to say to you, to-night, you are a great deal worse than you think you are; you are a great deal worse than you yourself can measure or understand; and yet there is mercy in the heart of God for you. It is not too late for you to turn round and go back to your Father and say, "I have sinned against Heaven, and in Thy sight!"

I have to say, secondly, to all such persons, and to all who are struggling to amend their mistakes, and to rise to a true life, that the heart of God is in its full tide of sympathy, and that those who need His help will receive it. "The bruised reed shall He not break, and the smoking flax shall He not quench, till He shall bring forth judgment unto victory."

Do you remember that remarkable scene which took place when our Master, a month or two before the crucifixion, was for the last time going from Galilee to Jerusalem? As He came to a Samaritan village, the people refused to give Him shelter, or food, or drink. The disciples had been sent forward to prepare for His stay there over night; and John, whose name is now synonymous with the most perfect gentleness and love, but who had a fiery temper, said, with James, "Lord, wilt Thou that we command fire to come down from heaven and consume them?" And the Master rebuked them, and said, "Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of; for the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them." Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners. Jesus Christ came to teach this grand revelation of the universe: that in spite of all the dark appearances of things, regnant in the centre of all power, in the midst of all that wisdom, whence issues that which controls all laws, there is a Heart that is full of compassion. The law of the universe is to restore, to recuperate; and the heart of God is on the side of every man who needs Divine love, Divine pity, and Divine mercy. You have not the power in yourself to do everything. You can do something; but, after all, the great work, the transforming work, the blessed work that is done in us, is the pouring out into our souls of the nature and inspiration of the love of God manifested to us through Jesus Christ.

Not only is God's heart on the side of the poor and needy: it is on the side ofthose who have stumbled by reason of strong drink, by reason of dishonesty, or by reason of headstrong passions and lusts. If you have gone through every one of the grades of defilement, and you find yourself at last among the swine, the heart of God is still on your side. It is on the side of the off-scouring and the most wretched of creation. Are you without a friend and without a benefactor? God is your Friend, and God is your Benefactor. "Yes," you say, "He would be if I would repent; but I do not feel like repenting." God is your Benefactor, repenting or not repenting. Repentance does not change Him; it changes you. When the son was yet a great way off, and before one word had entered into the father's ear, the father ran to meet him; and if you have in your soul one single movement toward hope; if there begins to be in your soul a letting go of things that are past; if there begins to be in your soul one aspiration, one yearning; if you say, "If I could only try; I have tried once, and failed, and it is of no use for me to try again; but yet I cannot give it up, and I would be glad to try again," those thoughts in you are the fruit of the Spirit. They are the result of the moving of the Spirit upon your understanding, and conscience, and heart.

Now, I beseech of you, grieve not the Spirit of God; for what is He? He describes Himself as one whose tenderness and gentleness are such that the bruised reed He will not break, and the smoking flax He will not quench, till He brings forth judgment unto victory. That is, He is so gentle in His dealings with men whose integrity, whose standing, is liable to be cast down as is the tallest reed that is the least able to stand against the wind—He is so gentle in His dealings with them, that He will not overthrow them. So gentle is He in His dealings with men, that in no way will He make it hard for them to stand or to recover themselves.

You know, when the flame is first lit on a candle how faint it is, and how reluctant it is to burn; so that the least breath of air, caused by the movement of your body, blows it out; and if there is in your soul the beginning of a desire for a better life, no larger, no brighter, than just the tip of the flame kindled on the wick of a candle, so gently does God deal with this merest speck of light of another and better life, that He will not quench it till He brings you through all the stages of reformation.

You have gone wrong, all of you. There is not one here who cannot lay his hand on his heart, and say, "I am a great sinner, and it is the grace and forbearance of God that give me life and mercy." There is not a single one of you that cannot say, "Lord, I have sinned, and I am not worthy to be called Thy son;" and yet you have the assurance that God's heart forgives, that God's love strengthens, and that God's wisdom will guide you till you are brought through various states of development to that condition in which you may be transferred to the heavenly land, and begin again, with ampler power and a better guidance, to reap nobler fruits and an eterna blessedness.

OBITUARY

DANIEL O'NEILL.

(Examiner Correspondence)

KING'S WHARF, Oct. 12. — The death of the late Daniel O'Neill on Oct. 3, at his home, 16 Ridout Street, Lindsay, came as a great shock to his friends and relatives here. Although not in the best of health for the last three years, his death was unexpected.

The late Mr. O'Neill was born here at King's Wharf 58 years ago and lived here all his life until three years ago, when he was obliged, owing to ill-health, to sell his farm and move to Lindsay, where he has lived since.

The deceased was well and favorably known both in Emily and Lindsay, as shown by the number of spiritual and floral bouquets and large numbers who attended the funeral on Friday last.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and one son, Fergus, at home. Also five brothers—William, Michael and Patrick, of Emily; Thomas, of Lindsay, and Morgan, of Seattle, Wash.—and six sisters—Mrs. Patrick Milloy, Mrs. Frank Gillece and Miss Julia, of Lindsay; Mrs. Edward Hoolihan, Mrs. George O'Connell and Mrs. John Corbett, of Emily.

The late Mr. O'Neill was the first member to die of a family of 12, six boys and six girls.

The funeral took place Friday morning at 8.45 from his late home, Lindsay, to St. Mary's Church, where requim mass was sung by Rev. Father Walsh, and thence to St. Mary's Cemetery, Lindsay. The pallbearers were: Messrs. Patrick O'Neill, William and Michael O'Neill, of Emily; James Robertson, of Lindsay; Edward O'Neill, of Kinmount, and Levi Brick, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Those from a distance to attend the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Levi Brick, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. William Irwin, of Omemee; Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Neill, of Kinmount; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Duffy, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Perdue, Messrs. John and Robert Sullivan, William Powers, Peter and Vincent Perdue, Michael O'Neill, Mr and Mrs. Thomas J. O'Neill and Mrs. John McLaughlin, of King's Wharf; Mr. and Mrs. John Perdue, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Carroll, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. J. O'Leary, Mr. and Mrs. George O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs. M. O'Neill, Mrs. Lillie Lucas, Messrs. Patrick Harrington, William O'Brien and Mrs. John Morrissey, of Downeyville.

MRS. MARY HURLEY.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary Hurley took place from her former home in Asphodel on Thursday, Sept. 27, to St. Paul's R.C. Church, Norwood. A solemn requiem mass was celebrated by her nephew, Rev. A. J. Hurley, of California, assisted by Rev. P. Galvin of Downeyville, as deacon, and Rev. V. McFadden of Trout Creek as sub-deacon. Rev. J. V. McAuley of Ennismore acted as master of ceremonies.

Rev. P. Costello, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterboro, paid tribute to the deceased, stressing the noble and charitable life of a truly Christian mother, as exemplified throughout the life of the late Mrs. Hurley.

Miss Lillian Hurley, organist of the Cathedral, and Mrs. E. J. McCarthy, nieces of the deceased, were present in the choir.

Many spiritual offerings and beautiful floral tributes were silent tokens of the esteem in which the deceased was held.

The services at the cemetery were conducted by Rev. P. Galvin, assisted by Rev. J. J. McCarthy, P.P., of Norwood, and Rev. A. J. Hurley.—Norwood Register.

This Man

is saving Motorists Millions of Dollars each Year

. . . with a wonderful invention that banishes the four major motor troubles—cleaning carbon—grinding valves—excessive upkeep—periodic lay-ups

A Tribute to Charles Y. Knight

Of all the remarkable automotive inventions, and all the mechanical progress which has been made to date, the contribution of one man stands out head and shoulders above all others.

This man, Charles Y. Knight, realized that so long as carbon troubles and valve grinding were necessary, motorists could not hope to enjoy constant, carefree performance; nor an endless and even flow of power.

The World's Simplest Engine

His invention—the patented, high-compression sleeve-valve engine—is acknowledged by engineering experts to be the simplest and most efficient of all automotive power plants. It has automatically added scores of thousands of extra miles to the life and usefulness of a motor car—and at the same time has saved its owners their share of the $420,000,000 our which motorists on this continent paid last year for the correction of damage done by carbon troubles and valve grinding.

The sleeve-valve engine is simplicity itself. In each cylinder two metal sleeves, one within the other, move silently and smoothly up and down in a protective film of oil. There is no complicated valve mechanism with springs, tappets and cams. The sleeves combine with the spherical cylinder head to form a perfectly sealed combustion chamber. As a result, the Willys-Knight engine gives high, uniform compression—maximum power with velvet smoothness—at all times, at all speeds, and with any gas.

Fewer Parts

The Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine has from 118 to 158 less parts than any other type. You never have carbon troubles. There are no valves to grind. Thus you need never be disturbed about the weakness common to all other cars—the tendency to become noisy, less powerful, less efficient, after a few thousand miles.

In addition to its exclusive sleeve-valve engine, it has 7-bearing crankshaft, oil rectifier, 4-wheel brakes and many modern features. Willys-Knight Sixes range in price from $1395 upwards. F.o.b. factory, taxes extra.

Arrange for a demonstration today.

Demonstrations

Dull, indeed, the soul of the visitor that would not stir at sight of the many demonstrations in the Fair! Jewellery will be made before the eyes of the visitor; Indians will demonstrate basket-making; there will be lightning sketching, and permanent waving, and half-a-dozen other demonstrations.

Some of the prizes are: Electric irons, toasters, lamps, heaters and curling tongs; wonderful cushions, blankets and sets of dishes. This is the opportunity of a lifetime!

HARMONICA CONTEST

There are many entries in this most unusual competition, and a rare treat awaits the audience in the feats of eight-year-old Orval Wainman.

AT THE PRODUCED IN CANADA EXHIBITION NEXT WEEK

FRY BUSINESS 200 YEARS OLD

Famous Chocolate Firm Was Established in Reign of George II.

GROWTH PHENOMENAL.

Two centuries ago there was a little shop in Fine Street, Bristol, Eng., "next door to the Crispin Inn," to which the bloods and dandies of the day loved to resort. Its owner was a young Quaker Doctor from Wiltshire, England, somewhat grave in aspect, but energetic in word and gesture, and with keen well-formed features, expressive at once of force and refinement of character. He traded in many sorts of goods, but his staple commodities were "chocolate nibs and cocoa," and the fragrant aroma of the roasted bean enveloped his shop like a cloud of incense.

Time went on and the throng of customers grew to such an extent that in 1777 we find our enterprising trader—still phenomenally active, but now mellowed in voice and feature and a little greyer at the temples—removing to less confined premises in Bristol, which had just then been constructed. And then for another ten years we see the business growing under his fostering hand and the virtue and charm and the new delicacy and beverage, taking a firm hold on the people. Then, in 1787, full of years and civic honors, history tells us, the Quaker merchant died, not probably without a vague, prophetic feeling that he had founded a house and an industry destined to play a great part in modern commercial history.

The Quaker merchant was of course JOSEPH FRY—the founder of one of the largest industrial undertakings. But it is hard to realize, as one is conducted over Messrs. Fry's factories at Bristol—handsome as Cathedrals, firm and solid as pyramids, covering several acres of ground, and rising eighty sheer feet into the air—that anything so fixed and so imposing could had so modest a beginning.

The firm of J. S. FRY and SONS, Ltd. has been fortunate in the great Captains who have been at its helm during its two hundred years of history. Its founder was a man of versatile genius under whose hands almost any concern would have prospered.

Hardly less remarkable was his son and successor, Joseph Storrs Fry, who died in 1835. He was at once essayist, theologian, author, manufacturer and scientist.

Francis Fry, who ruled as head of the concern till his death in 1886, developed the business into one of world-wide fame and was one of the pioneers of railways in Great Britain. Next in order came Joseph Storrs Fry, the second, and in him the Company has had at its head a captain of industry who falls in no way behind his distinguished predecessor. No more sagacious brain has ever guided the the growth of a great business concern. Under his guidance the firm was turned into a private limited liability company, and several of the modern factories were built up.

Next in order came Francis James Fry, son of Francis Fry and he was head of the Company from 1913-18. He was succeeded by his son, Roderick James Fry who retired in 1925. The present chairman of the Company, Cecil R. Fry, is the son of Roderick Fry. Cecil Fry represents the sixth generation of this remarkable family who have controlled this world-wide business for two hundred years.

During the last five years the firm has acquired over 500 acres of land near the City of Bristol, and have built a model factory in a garden, with the latest and more up-to-date improvements known to the industry. With railway sidings and river transport passing right by the works the factory is served with the best possible transport facilities.

The first block of new factory buildings has been completed, and is working at full speed to take care of the enormous increased demand for the company's products. Other blocks are in course of construction and will be completed shortly. Model dwellings have also been erected on the estate for the use of the employees.

After 200 years of continuous progress the firm of Fry & Sons Ltd. are more busily engaged in extension than ever in its history.

Such is the progress of a firm whose history has been one long example of what sterling quality and modern ideas in commerce—combined with the good will of its employees and customers—can achieve.

The Canadian Plant is a Branch Factory of the famous English House of Fry in Montreal.

It represents an investment in Canada of over one million dollars in the most modern and up-to-date Machinery.

The high traditions for purity and quality which have made the Firm so well known the world over, are carefully guarded and maintained in the Canadian Works by an expert staff of Chemists and Engineers. These experts have the added benefits of the extensive research work constantly being carried on by the English Company. Purity and quality are the first considerations here as in the Old Country.

IN TOILS AGAIN.

George Edward Harlton, alleged bad man, killer and fugitive, sought many months, is found in jail at Ottawa. A fugitive from Middlesex County Jail, London, Ont., for the murder of County Constable Waddell in 1925, he has been a prisoner in Carleton County Jail since September 4, but it was only recently that he was identified by the Criminal Identification Department of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Harlton was sentenced under the name of Henderson to four months hard labor after being convicted of placing a barricade across the tracks of the Hull Electric Railway and the C.P.R. He was calmly sitting on the bank to see what would happen when his arrest took place.

NAUGHTY! NAUGHTY! HOOCHIE-KOOCHIE!

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—What do you mean American morals are on the downgrade and the rising generation is going to the gosh-awful-bow-wows? No such thing.

The New York State Board of Censors has caused to be erased from a film of the gay nineties, antics of Fatima, who was all the rage of the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893.

The protectors of modern civilization could see all sorts of harm in permitting the public to view the hoochie-koochie as portrayed by the famous Oriental dancer of 35 years ago.

NOTED PIANIST COMES TO CITY

Jean Buchanan Will Play at Produced in Canada Exhibition.

WORLD FAMED.

Jean Buchanan, pianist, who will play for Peterborough audiences at the Produced in Canada Exhibition, is lauded the world over.

Some newspapers have said:

National Zeitung, Berlin—Miss Buchanan is musical to her finger tips. This young pianist played three Concertos with flawless technique, and completely entered into the spirit of the music. Her conception of the E flat Beethoven Concerto showed a very big and understanding grasp of this work.

Potsdam Zeitung—Miss Jean Buchanan dazzled with her positively admirable technique, and also used every opportunity for artistic expression. She brought out the rugged torrential character of Beethoven, and gave individual stamp and colouring to the impressive Chopin Nocturne in C minor. Jean Buchanan has the material to become really great.

Vossische Zeitung, Berlin — Miss Jean Buchanan is musically very talented and possesses an unusually good technique.

Berliner Tageblatt—Miss Buchanan is a pianist of temperament. Her passage work is clear, and she infuses life into her Cantilena.

Allgemeine Musik Zeitung—Miss Buchanan is decidedly talented, has a pearly technique and a tender poetic tone.

Breslauer Morgen Zeitung—In Miss Jean Buchanan we have an artist who is to be considered among the best of pianists. She played the piano part in the Cesar Franck Sonata and a Theme and Variations by Xaver Scharwenka with great bravura, thematic clearness and musical feeling.

Schlesische Zeitung, Ernest Flugel—Miss Jean Buchanan showed a thorough grasp of her instrument and a musical nature. In Scharwenka's difficult Variations she proved herself to be a finished, elegant concert player, who possesses a most faultless "staccato." The ensemble playing of the artiste might be taken as a pattern.

Breslauer Zeitung—Miss Buchanan is a virtuoso pianist whose technique and power are not met with every day. Scharwenka's Theme and Variations require bravura treatment and a refined taste to show up their beauties. This Miss Buchanan did, besides that she possesses the rare gift of accompanying perfectly.

SPARE THE PUPS

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 13.—Sam Gorman's dog had bitten two children and three adults, and was ordered shot by Judge Donovan. But just a few days before, the dog brought six puppies into the world. "Judge," said Sam, "that dog has six puppies. What am I to do about that?" So the judge granted the dog a stay of execution until the puppies were able to get along without their mother.

There were 35,917 searches for fingerprint identification in Scotland Yard in 1927, of which 17,427 proved successful.

Taxi Driver Was a Banker; Banker Was a Taxi Driver

He drove to the C.P.R. station with Hon. Mr. Heenan, and was standing near his car when some ladies came along, seeking a taxi. He touched his cap, saw them safely seated, and drove up to the Empress Hotel. On the way he apparently surprised the ladies by trying to raise a conversation.

At Kiwanis luncheon to-day the story was told, to the amusement of the ladies, who were guests.

TUG REACHES PORT SAFELY

Government Vessel Overdue On Hudson Bay Reaches Port Nelson.

NO WORD OF SCHOONER.

OTTAWA, October 12 (Canadian Press).—The Government tug George Yates arrived at Port Nelson safely to-day, the Department of Marine was advised by wireless. The boat had been overdue, and fears for the safety of the thirty-three men on board were growing. It is assumed the boat encountered contrary winds and fog, which delayed her.

Among the men on the tug was R. W. McLachlan, chief engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, in charge of work on the Hudson Bay Railway.

No further word has been received with regard to the crew of the schooner Patrick and Michael, which went aground at the entrance to Baker's Lake, at the end of Chesterfield Inlet, where one man lost his life.

LARGEST AND FINEST OIL TANKERS SAIL UNDER CANADIAN ENSIGN

With the launching in England on September 14th of the motor tank ship "Calgarolite," Canadian interests which already own and operate the world's largest tank ship, claim also the most modern and efficient of tankers, and a Canadian tanker fleet wins further eminence as one of the major oil fleets of the world.

The "Calgarolite" slipped from the ways at Haverton Hill-on-Tees with Miss Eleanor Ross, daughter of Victor Ross, Vice-President of Imperial Oil Limited, acting as sponsor. The "Calgarolite" is a 15,600 ton vessel with an indicated horsepower of 6,500, which makes her one of the most powerful and fastest tankers of her size. She is guaranteed a service speed of 12 knots. She is 540 feet long with a 70-foot beam and moulded depth of 38 feet 9 inches. Her modern equipment will permit loading and unloading of 120,000 barrels of oil in twenty-four hours, and so she will be almost continuously in transit, serving much as an "oil ferry" between Talara in Peru, Cartagena in Colombia, and Montreal and Halifax. She will establish new figures for economical transport of petroleum.

Replace Torpedoed Ships

The "Calgarolite" is the last of three large modern sea-going tankers and one lake tanker which were laid down some time ago in British shipyards for Imperial Oil. Preceding her in launching were the "Windsolite" for lake service, and the "Victolite" and "Vancolite." The flagship of the fleet in which she will serve is the world's largest tanker, the "C. O. Stillman." The three sea-going ships just built in the British yards replace three Imperial vessels which went to the bottom at the hands of the enemy while transporting petroleum for the allied cause. They were the "Luz Blanca," the "Retlaw" and the "Palacrux."

Unload in Twenty-four Hours

The motor driven tanker of today is a highly specialized vessel which is designed to move a great volume of petroleum at maximum speed and with minimum delay at loading and unloading ports. A few years ago three days was considered a quick "turnaround" for a tanker. Today, with modern pumping equipment, a tank ship turns around in twenty-four hours. That is to say, twenty-four hours after she arrives in port she has taken on or discharged her cargo and is again at sea. Consequently the modern tanker is moving practically all the time and, more than any other type of ship, is the actual home of her crew. To compensate for the more continuous service, the crew is accommodated in a style that would turn the average tar green with envy. Nothing is overlooked to provide complete comfort and the sailors enjoy quarters and cuisine that compare favorably with passenger accommodation on many liners.

The Imperial Oil fleet now comprises nine large ocean-going motor tank ships: the "C. O. Stillman" of 22,715 tons, the "Victolite," "Vancolite," "Calgarolite," "Montrolite" and "Canadalite" of 15,600 tons; the "Ontariolite" and the "Reginolite" of 12,000 tons, and the "Trontolite," formerly a steam turbine vessel, which was converted into a motor ship, with a tonnage of 9,150. The combined motor tank ships carry 1,016,000 barrels of oil which they load and discharge at an average port time of twenty-four hours. It is estimated that these ships carry for about 25 per cent. cheaper than steamships of corresponding size.

Large Lake Fleet

In addition to the ocean tankers, Imperial Oil is operating six canal size steam driven ships on the Great Lakes. These move refined products from Halifax to various ports in the Great Lakes and to Fort William, serving the Halifax, Montreal and Sarnia refineries. Most of these vessels tie up during the winter but in the summer it is a rare thing for one of them to have more than eight or ten hours in port. On the Pacific Coast the SS "Imperial" and two other steam vessels transport petroleum products for the company, and there is also the small motor ship, the "Marvolite," with a capacity of about 1,000 barrels. The combined capacity of the entire Imperial fleet is approximately 1,100,000 barrels; sufficient to fully load more than 5,200 tank cars, making a train 36 miles long.

The modern ocean-going tank ship contrasts interestingly with the shallow draft river boats which are used by the Imperial interests on the Magdalena River in Colombia, and which resemble in appearance the old stern wheelers Mark Twain once piloted on the Mississippi.

Correct Answer Unknown

To guarantee to every one taking part in this contest that no one holds the correct answer to the puzzle, several figures were erased after the original drawing was made and before the puzzle form was printed. These figures were removed by Messrs. Perry J. Giffen, Toronto Star Weekly; William Houston, Regina Leader-Post, and T. B. Godfrey, chartered accountant, who kindly consented to act as Judges of the contest. The figures were removed from the chart at different times, and the Judges hold the total of the numbers which they erased. No one knows what numbers were erased. Notes of the missing numbers were made and are now under lock and seal. When the contest is over, the numbers erased from the puzzle chart will be added together and subtracted from the original total. The contest department knew the correct answer before the figures were taken out, but now nobody knows the correct answer. The answer now will be the sum total of the figures appearing in the chart above.

There are no tricks to this contest. It is merely a matter of skill in finding all the numbers shown and then adding correctly. We wish it clearly understood that there are no hidden figures. Every number can be plainly seen. The degree of your care and skill will determine the prize which you will win.

The ONLY requirements for entry to contest are those listed here. You will note their extreme simplicity, and a careful reading now will avoid any possible confusion later.

$350 SPECIAL BONUS PRIZES

Twenty times the subscription remittance will be paid to the candidate sending in the first correct or nearest correct answer to the puzzle, received in Goblin Contest Office, not later than October 13th, 1928. Bonus not to exceed $200.00.

Goblin is the most strikingly original publication in Canada. Its humor is native and spontaneous. The drawings interpret with kindly wit and whimsey, the more amusing episodes of our daily life. It is thoroughly Canadian in its entire viewpoint. It is wide-awake in its outlook, penetrating, yet always fair in its criticisms, and the most entertaining and amusing publication in the Dominion. Goblin reflects in humorous perspective the life and thought of this country, as seen through the vigorous pens and brushes of many gifted Canadians.

Through this Great Contest you will secure the most brilliant of Canadian publications at the regular subscription price, and at the same time, if you are accurate, win one of the major prizes absolutely without cost.

In this, Goblin's Fourth Great Puzzle Contest, the value of the awards has been increased to over $16,000.00; this is the greatest Prize List ever offered in Canada. In a few weeks the division of these prizes will be made. Someone will win this luxurious, magnificently appointed La Salle Car. Will it be you? UNCLE WIGGILY

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SOUR SNOWBALL

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

"You're smart and clever; aren't you, Daddicums?" asked Tingle one of the little bunnies in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow on a cold Saturday morning when it had been snowing the night before.

"Well, I wouldn't want to call myself too smart," said Mr. Longears with a smile beneath his pink, twinkling nose, "for sometimes the Bad Chaps get the best of me for a time. But what makes you think I am clever?"

"You made sweet icicles," said Tingle, who was Tingle's sister.

"I didn't exactly make them," laughed the rabbit gentleman. "I forgot and left the bag of sugar on top of the wood box near the Hollow Stump School, and the sugar melted when the snow turned to water, and when icicles froze of course they were sweetened."

"Well, it was just the same as if you made them," said Tingle, "and we were wondering if you could make some sweet snowballs."

"Why, I suppose I could," said Uncle Wiggily who liked to please his little bunnies. "If you will roll some snowballs I can melt some sugar and when the syrup is cool I can pour it over the snowballs and they would be sweet."

"Oh, please do it!" begged the forty twelve little rabbit boys and girls, for there was no school that day and they wanted to have some fun.

So Uncle Wiggily, having bought more sugar to take the place of the pound that melted into sweet icicles, made some sweet, thick sugary sirup in the kitchen when Nurse Jane Fuzzy

Up slipped the Woozie Wolf.

Wuzzy was up stairs shaking the beds.

While Mr. Longears was doing that, all the rabbit boys and girls, not forgetting Baby Bunty, made white, glistening snowballs.

"All ready! Bring them to me!" suddenly called Uncle Wiggily, coming out on the back steps with the bowl of sweet sirup into which, now that it was cool, he had put some canned strawberry juice, making it a lovely red color.

Up hopped the little rabbit boys and girls, one after the other, holding snowballs in their paws and over each white ball Uncle Wiggily poured the strawberry sirup until all had been served.

"Oh, they're as good as ice-cream cones!" cried Bumble.

"They're better!" cried his brother Stumble.

Uncle Wiggily was glad he had made his little bunnies so happy; and they were happy. You could tell that by the way they nibbled the sweet snowballs as they hopped around and ran off to play.

Uncle Wiggily had poured out the last of the strawberry sirup and he was looking at some half-squeezed lemons on the back porch when he happened to think he had had no adventure that day. The lemons, with quite some juice left in them, had been put out on the porch by Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy after she had made a lemon pie that morning.

All of a sudden, as Uncle Wiggily was going to hop back into his bungalow to get ready to go adventuring, he heard a scuffling sound in the snow and before he could hop in and close the door, up slipped the Woozie Wolf and had caught the bunny uncle by the back of his neck.

"Now I have you!" growled the Wolf. "You can't get away from me this time."

"Don't be so sure of that!" said Uncle Wiggily who was very brave. Even now he was thinking of a way to fool the Bad Chap. "What do you want?" the bunny gentleman asked the Wolf.

"I want a snowball like those you made for the children first," said the Bad Chap. "After I eat that I'll nibble your ears."

"Oh, will you?" asked the rabbit, sly like. "We'll see. But if you want a fancy snowball you must first make it and I will do the rest."

"That's fair," growled the foolish Wolf who did not know all the tricks a rabbit can play. So Mr. Wolf made himself a snowball and while he was doing that Uncle Wiggily squeezed a lot of sour lemon juice into the bowl which had held the sweet strawberry sirup. And the bunny poured this sour juice on the Wolf's snowball.

"Now for a treat and then for your ears!" howled the Wolf. But no sooner had he taken a bite into that sour snowball than his face puckered up so much that he couldn't open his mouth again and so of course he couldn't bite the rabbit gentleman.

"Ha! Ha! I fooled you!" laughed Mr. Longears as the Wolf ran to fill his mouth with other snow to take away the sour taste. "Ha! Ha!"

A Story of Revenged Love, by Ruby M. Ayres.

THE STORY THUS FAR

GILES CHITTENHAM, on his way back to England from the United States, where he has made an unfortunate marriage, goes to Switzerland with his friend HARRY LOMBARD. There he meets JULIE FARROW, for love of whom his young half-brother RODNEY has recently killed himself. Giles is surprised to find her the hardened flirt he had expected. But his heart is filled with bitterness toward her, and as a revenge for Rodney's death he plans to make her fall in love with him and then spurn her. He dares her to let him go with her on a motor trip through the pass of St. Bernard and back again. She is making the hazardous trip on a wager with BIM LENNOX, a straightforward, boyish girl who is her loyal friend.

Presently Julie looked at the man beside her. He was intent on relighting his cigarette, which had gone out, and he seemed calm and preoccupied. He was a good-looking man in a very masculine way, with strong features, a firm mouth and closely-cropped hair, just going grey over the ears and temples. His recent sea voyage had tanned him deeply, and there was a certain aloofness and indifference in his whole bearing that had interested many women besides Julie. As she looked at him she remembered Rodney had said to her months before:

"He's the kind of chap who could have any women he wants and he doesn't want any of 'em! Wish I'd got his chances!"

Julie had laughed at the time, but now she felt that she understood, and a little pulse in her heart jerked as the words he had just said echoed through her mind.

"I do not suppose I am the first poor devil who has been fool enough to look into your eyes and say: 'I love you!'"

He had not been serious, of course—or had he? Julie was surprised and a little afraid, because she longed desperately to know. Chittenham seemed to read her thoughts, for he said quietly.

"Well, what is the verdict?"

"What do you mean?"

"Have you made up your mind as to whether I am in earnest or not?"

"I know you are not."

Chittenham laughed.

"You mean you think I am not, but all the same you hope I am."

"Mr. Chittenham!"

There was anger and amazement in her voice and her cheeks grew suddenly scarlet.

"I thought you liked plain speaking," Chittenham said calmly. "If I am mistaken, I apologize," He glanced at his watch. "We ought to be at Martigny in half an hour unless you have another skid and land us upside down in the ditch."

"We will be there in twenty minutes," Julie said with a little savage intonation, and they were.

There was a smile in Chittenham's eyes as Julie dashed into the village, along the quiet street with its border of cherry trees, sending the muddy water spurting up from the puddles beneath her wheels.

"May I suggest that the best place for breakfast is further along on the left-hand side—yes, this is the place," he said.

Julie brought the car to a standstill with a little spiteful jerk, and there was an angry gleam in her grey eyes as she ignored Chittenham's offered hand and climbed out of her seat.

Chittenham ordered coffee and rolls.

"Or would you prefer anything else?" he asked.

"I don't mind what it is," Julie answered shortly.

"Don't quarrel with me before we are half way there! If you go on getting angry at this rate you will skid on the edge of a precipice and that will be an end to both of us."

Julie began to pour out the coffee which a waitress had brought on a blue-planted tray.

"The rain has stopped," Chittenham said presently. "Look! That's the first ray of sunshine we have seen."

But it was a very watery sun that shone upon them when they started away, and great banks of clouds kept drifting up threatingly, enveloping the patches of blue sky that timidly appeared now and again.

She glanced up at the sky.

"It's no worse than it was."

"I think it is. Look below now."

She glanced down into the valley on their left and gave a little startled exclamation. They could see nothing for the clouds which lay spread out everywhere like an enveloping blanket.

"Doesn't it look strange?" she whispered awe-stricken.

"It will make it difficult driving back," he answered.

Julie rallied herself.

"Oh, it will be sunny and bright by then!" she said.

Chittenham did not answer.

"Don't you think it will?" she urged.

"I'm afraid not. I know these mountains rather well, and I know just what unkind tricks they can play on the optimistic traveller. I should slow down a little if I were you, Miss Farrow; there is a nasty corner here. It turns very sharply to the left, and there is a big drop on one side."

"Charon and I understand one another perfectly," Julie declared. "We—oh!"

"Yes, I should not take that risk again if I were you," Chittenham said, dry after a moment.

She had just pulled the car round in time, and her face was white.

"Would you like me to drive," he asked quietly.

She recovered herself with an effort.

"And lose my bet? No, thank you!"

"Well, at any rate, rest for a moment. The road is wide enough here to allow anything to pass."

"I am not tired," she insisted.

"Nor going to faint?" he asked with irony.

Warm color splashed her pale cheeks.

"It gave me a shock. I did not expect to find such a dreadful corner."

"I warned you," he reminded her.

"I know, but you do it in such a way—it only makes me want to defy you. I have never met a man like you before."

"That seems to be a doubtful compliment?"

"It's not a compliment at all. It's just the truth."

"In what way am I different?"

Julie hesitated, biting her lip, then she told him.

"One moment you pretend to make love to me, and the next you sneer at me."

"And which do you prefer?"

To his amazement he saw the tears spring to her eyes.

"Do you imagine that I like either?" she faltered.

Chittenham leaned forward suddenly and kissed the hand nearer to him that rested on the steering wheel.

"I am conceited enough to think that I could make you like being made love to," he said quietly, and then, as she did not answer, he asked: Will you dare me to try?"

"No."

He cleaned back in his seat resignedly.

"Then we may as well go on."

The road was steeper and wilder. There was very little vegetation on the bleak sides of the mountains, and what there was was short and stunted, cowering away from the bleak wind that swept down upon them.

"It's wonderful to have ever made such a road!" Julie gasped.

"There's a hairpin bend on the left," Chittenham said casually, "and after that we begin the last climb. Have you noticed that we haven't met a single soul going this way since we left Martigny?"

"Is that so extraordinary?"

"I think it probably means they are expecting bad weather. The ordinary excursion cars never come when the weather is likely to be bad."

Chittenham said no more, and they began the last perilous zig-zag climb leading up to the hotel and the hospice. As they climbed higher out of the valley the wind grew colder and more cutting.

Julie was very cold, and there was a set, strained look around her mouth. She had not expected the road to be so bad, and once or twice at a particularly bad corner she caught her breath with a little gasping sound.

He hardened his heart to the little quiver in her voice when presently she asked if it was much further.

"Another fifteen minutes, I think. Would you like me to take the wheel?"

"And lose my bet for the sake of fifteen minues? No thank you!"

Chittenham folded his arms. The little car was steadily grinding its way upward, and far below them the snake-like, winding road was swallowed up in a mass of angry, grey-looking clouds.

Julie frowned and pressed her lips together, and it seemed a long time before she asked in a tired little voice.

"Is it much further, Mr. Chittenham?"

Chittenham glanced quickly at her.

"One more bend—only one, and then you wil see the hotel. Are you all right? Would you like me to drive?"

"No."

But she was almost done, and Chittenham knew that it was by sheer will-power that she kept up until they had traversed the last steep mile, and reached the narrow, bottle-neck passage between the hotel and the hospice which led down to the lake on the other side and into Italy.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1928

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

Many benefic aspects are strong today, which should be a time for religious observance and outdoor recreation, according to astrology.

Under this planetary government the mind is believed to be open to spiritual impressions and to respond to all forms of beauty.

Neptune is in a place making for intuition and for the understanding of things usually hidden from minds bent on material things.

Constructive planning and even practical work along the lines of charity or philanthropy are well directed.

Nurses should benefit at this time when there will be an excess of interest in hospitals and an increased desire to safeguard against disease.

The end of the winter may be marked by a serious epidemic for which preventive preparation should be made by sanitary precautions of the most thorough nature, the seers prophesy.

Great progress will be made by the modern astrologers who will find their adherents multiplying at an amazing rate. Women will excel in spreading knowledge of this oldest of sciences, it is foretold.

Youth now comes into better understanding, the stars presage, and there will be a growing respect for modern ideals of life and art.

The men and women of the next decade are to prove that they have super powers, the planets seem to foreshadow and among them will be great scientists and artists who belong to a higher plane of being than their forefathers.

Persons whose birthdate it is may make unexpected trips in the coming year, which will develop new domestic interests. These subjects of Virgo probably will learn many lessons in unselfish service before the end of their careers.

Children born on this day probably will be reserved in nature, but stable and trustworthy. They may have mathematical talents and boys may seek naval service. These Virgo folk usually aim high and hit the mark. The girls have a special charm and are are invariably popular.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1928

Astrologers read this as a fortunate day for most Earth activities and counsel progressive work of all sorts except in the early morning hours.

There is a good sign for initiative and there should be a positive effort as a beginning of the week, which may be unusually eventful.

This should be an auspicious rule for signing contracts or agreements unless they concern the theatre or motion pictures.

Real estate is subject to the best possible direction of the stars and many important or record-breaking transfers may be expected in American cities.

All the planetary aspects appear to indicate a tendency to enlarge all business so that organization reaches a peak never before attempted.

Workers should benefit in the next few months, but they are warned to conserve their earnings.

Women are to follow the example of men in developing their business interests so that they expand into many branches, it is prophesied.

One of the anomalies of trade will be the multiplying of small shops while the great department stores grow and expand, it is forecast.

Again the seers prognosticate for American women added beauty and charm, for they are to return to the cultivation of natural loveliness as they eliminate cosmetics. Thus history repeats itself.

Elegant simplicity is to rule, if the stars are rightly read, and there will be a turning toward culture instead of entertainment.

According to ancient lore this should be a lucky day for engaging women employees, especially those who belong to the higher vocations.

Women lawyers are to benefit at this time from the planetary government which presages success and high honors.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have exacting problems to meet in the coming year which will bring out shrewdness and resourcefulness. These subjects of Virgo usually attain their ambitions through their own hard work and intelligence.

Children born on this day probably will be endowed with keen intellects and great charm of personality. Many succeed as dramatists and girls who belong to Virgo are generally gifted with talents as actresses. Beauty is one of the attributes that belong to them.

HUDSON SUPER 6

ABSOLUTELY - the most thrilling performance of my experience . . . and then think of the price . . . . .

Thus, thousands are voicing their new discovery!

And the occasion—a nation-wide program of personal demonstrations on the greatest scale in Hudson history.

New thousands literally "discovered" Hudson for the first time.

For the first time they travelled so fast with such safety, smoothness and exhilarating ease.

For the first time they met tall hills that seemed to vanish under Hudson's mighty power.

For the first time they sprang lengths ahead at the getaway, with no sense of mechanical exertion.

For the first time they witnessed incomparable performance delivered with a fuel economy that averaged from 16 to 18 miles per gallon, according to the local conditions of demonstration.

And the concrete results were the largest proportion of Hudson retail sales of any demonstration program of all time.

Won't you take a ride? Perhaps you too will discover in this moderately priced Hudson a performance, smoothness, and riding ease that even the costliest cars cannot surpass.

QUOTH THE RAVEN

We boys built a big campfire down on the river bank on Monday, right after school, because we haven't put up the stove in the clubhouse yet, and the weather is getting pretty raw. Gee! but the wind blew cold—I had my short overcoat on, and believe me, I wished it was longer, so it would cover my knees. I was glad to stand up close to the fire and warm myself.

Doc Waters came down to the river bank, and when he saw us standing around our fire, he came right down to us and I knew right away something was up. He never comes down unless he wants us to do something for him, or to give us the dickens for something we did. He didn't let on like there was anything wrong at first—he just joked about us boys and warmed his hands by the fire. But soon I saw him wink at me and walk up the bank, and I knew he wanted to talk to me alone, so I followed him up.

"Hawkins," he says, "Judge Granbery gave me orders to have your clubhouse torn down and to make you boys scatter away from this river bank."

"Why," I said, "what's wrong now, Doc?"

"The Judge thinks one of you boys has been sneaking in his house," answered Doc; "he found tracks leading up to the window—it was a boy's footprint, and there are scratches on the house where a ladder leaned up against it for him to climb into the window. The Judge is getting pretty tired of all the foolishness that's been going on around here, and he says the best way to put a stop to it is to break up all the gangs of boys around this old river bank."

"Well, Doc," I said, "what makes him think one of our club fellows did it? There are a lot of other boys around here, and you know it and the Judge knows it."

Doc started to walk away. "I've got no more to say, Hawkins," he says; "I've told you what's what, and if you can figure it out and fix things with the Judge, all right. But if not, why the Sheriff and I will have to get rid of your clubhouse, and this time I mean it, Hawkins."

With that, then, he walked on up the bank. I told our captain and the other fellows what Doc had said. Of course, they were all indignant about it. "There's only one thing to do if we don't want to lose our clubhouse," said our captain; "We've got to find out who it was that sneaked into the Judge's house. Hawkins can figure it out better than any of us, so we will leave it to him."

Sure! I knew it! By Jinks! I knew right away they were going to pick me out for that nice little job. Believe me, there's nothing happens but what I've got to figure it out and tell 'em the answer.

On Tuesday, right after school, Jerry Moore and I were the first ones down to the river bank. Doc was waiting for us. "It's all up, Hawkins," he says. "The Judge isn't going to stand for it any longer—"

"Well, we boys aren't goin' to worry about it—go ahead and tear down the clubhouse," I told him; "I guess we can hold our meetings down here on the river bank with a big fire burning to keep us warm."

Doc looked a little hurt. "Hawkins," he says, "I'm sorry about it, but I'm not the one who has ordered it—you know me."

"That's all right, Doc," I said; "we ain't goin' to hold any grudge against you for it."

"Suppose you come up with me to the Judge's house?" suggested Doc.

"No," I said, "I don't care to see the old grouch—he's always pickin' on us fellows."

"Go on up, Hawkins," says Jerry Moore; "you've got a way with you that makes the old Judge change his mind—I'll stay here and wait for the other boys."

After a little more talk, I finally consented to go with Doc later in the evening, and Doc said for me to meet him about seven o'clock at the Judge's house. I had to do a lot of night work and study some pretty hard lessons, so it was about eight o'clock before I got out, and when I arrived at the Judge's house, Doc and the Judge were waiting for me. Doc had a smile for me, but the Judge had his old grouch on—I could see that the moment I stepped in. They were sitting in the room where all the Judge's relics were—the stuffed birds and the alligator and the glass bowls and the stone idols and other things. The Judge was seated at his table.

"Well, Hawkins," he says, "you boys have been a nuisance to this town ever since you were big enough to run on your own feet."

I tried to smile as I said: "I guess so, Judge. We've been pretty lively."

"Well," he says, "I'm going to bust up your gang."

"If you don't mind Judge," I says, "we are not a gang—we don't like that word. We never have done anything wrong—"

The Judge bellowed and jumped out of his chair. "What!" he roared. "Listen to that, Doctor Waters—listen to him talk!"

"Yeah," I went on, "we helped you out of a hole many times. How about that time when we found that fellow who was going to put a bomb in your window? And how about that time we caught that bird you were so glad to get, and that raven you've got stuffed up there on your bookcase, and how about those brass doorknobs which were stolen off your front door, and we got 'em back for you?"

* * *

The Judge looked at me a while, and then he smiled a slow smile. "By George!" he says, "I guess you're right, Hawkins, boy—I guess I am a little hard on you boys—I guess I let loose of my temper too quick—"

"No guessing about it," I broke in; "I know it."

"Well," says the Judge, "you understand how it comes about. There's too much trouble around here. But if you boys will help me out just once more—"

"Nevermore!" came a strange, hollow voice, all of a sudden.

We all looked at each other. Then the Judge and Doc both turned their eyes on me.

"That wasn't me," I told them, quickly; "I didn't say that."

The Judge looked up at the stuffed raven that was sitting upon the head of a statue that had "Pallas" carved under it, on top of the book case. Then he slowly turned his face toward Doc Waters.

"That's the second time I heard that!" he said. His voice was a whisper. His hand was shaking as he pointed toward the stuffed bird.

"That's strange!" exclaimed Doc, slowly; "sounded as if that bird spoke."

"Boloney!" I says. "You don't think a stuffed bird can make a sound, do you?"

"No," said Doc, with a shake of his head. "It couldn't be."

"There's some monkey-business going on here," I said, and I walked over to the window and looked out. There wasn't a soul around. I put down the window and walked over to where the Judge sat.

"Hawkins," says the Judge, "there's been somebody sneaking around this house—at first I thought it was one of you boys, but I guess I was wrong about that."

"You certainly were," I said; "Doc can tell you we boys would never play any tricks on you, Judge. Maybe it was the Pelham fellows from across the river—"

The Judge pounded his fist upon the table. "I think you're right," he says, in a loud voice; "those Pelham kids don't like me—they'd be just the ones to torment me with things like this, and if you will find out for me, Hawkins—"

But I held up my hand. "I won't promise anything," I said; "I'm no detective, what do you think I am? But I will scout around and see if I can find out who is snooping around your house at night."

"Good boy!" says the Judge, and he shook my hand. "And if you will help me out just once more—"

"Nevermore!" came again in the strange, hollow voice from the stuffed bird upon the statue. We all stiffened again and stared at the thing, as once more it spoke. "Nevermore!" it croaked, just like a parrot, or as you would expect a trained raven to say it.

"Take down that old bird Judge," I said, "and throw it out, and then you won't have any more of this foolishness."

Doc Waters started over to take down the stuffed raven. But the Judge jumped up and held him back. "Don't!" he yelled. "Don't touch that raven! I wouldn't take a hundred dollars for it."

I was disgusted. I went out into the hall, and Doc soon joined me, and we walked home together. "The Judge is a funny fellow," said Doc.

"You might call him that," I said, "but I've got another name for it."

* * *

Then I went home, but I couldn't get to sleep right away. I was trying to figure this thing out. And the next day, as soon as school let out, we boys met again on the river bank, and I told our captain that Jerry Moore and I were going over to spy on the Pelhams. We went across in my little red canoe, and talked with Briggen and his gang, but they were careful about what they said. I knew that they were on to us, that we wanted to find out all we could from them. They swore up and down that they didn't have any grudge against Judge Granbery, and that they were playing no tricks on him at this time. And Jerry and I went back to our canoe, feeling safe in our belief that whatever was pestering old Judge Granbery, the Pelhams had no hand in it. Jerry and I landed and put the canoe away, and then struck out through the willows toward the hollow, where the shack of the Three Wild West fellows stood. "I wonder," I said, "if those three boys know anything about it? One of those three owned that raven, before it died." But Jerry wouldn't go in with me. He said he didn't trust those Wild West fellows, with their guns. So he waited and I went on and shoved open the door of the shack. Nobody home. There was some paper and a pencil on the table, and a few books. I leaned over and looked at the writing on the paper.

"More poetry," I said to myself; "well, those Three fellows are still here."

I looked at the book that was open on the table, and my heart gave a jump. It was a poem called "The Raven," by Edgar Allen Poe.

"Aha!" I said to myself, "I believe I can figure this thing out now." Just then I heard steps outside. I jumped back and sat down on one of the boxes they used for seats. Hardly had I sat down, when in came one of the Three Wild West fellows—it was the one who said he was a poet.

"Why, hello, Hawkins!" he sang out. "Been here long?"

"No," I answered; "I just this minute got in."

He didn't seem to hear me—he walked quickly over to the table and closed the book and put it and the pencil and paper away in a box.

"We didn't go away yet," he says, turning to me.

"That's very plain to see," I said, with a grin. "But you promised you would."

"Listen, Hawkins," he says, holding out his hands, "we want to get away and go back home, but there's only one thing that keeps us here."

"What's that one thing?" I asked.

"Well," he says, "I want that raven that you sold to the old Judge. It was a pet of mine before it died, and I think a heap of it, and I want to take it home with me, and put it up in my room where I write poetry."

I smiled at him. "You think you can write better poetry if that old stuffed bird is looking down at you?" I asked.

"That's it!" he says; "you know how it is."

"No, I don't know how it is," I told him, "because I don't have any wish to write poetry. But one thing I can tell you—the old Judge wouldn't part with that stuffed raven for a hundred dollars."

"I know," he says, nodding his head. "I know. But he will after he finds out what a haunted bird that old raven is."

I asked him just what he meant by that. But he wouldn't say any more. He lit a pipe and sat down to smoke it. I heard Jerry calling for me. I told the fellow goodbye and beat it. I told Jerry what the fellow had said, but Jerry didn't seem to be able to make heads or tails out of it. But I was beginning to figure it out myself.

Two days passed. And then Doc Waters came down to inquire just what I had found out. I told him I was getting along, but I didn't have enough time yet to make a report to the Judge.

"Well," says Doc, "it's getting pretty bad—that old stuffed bird's been saying a lot of new words the last few nights."

"Doc," I said, "you know that stuffed birds can't talk. Why don't the Judge take it down and take a good look at it?"

"I did that myself," said Doc; "I went there this morning, after the Judge had gone, and I took down the stuffed bird and looked at it, but it's no different than any other stuffed bird up there."

"Well," I said, "I'll come up tonight and keep an eye on the place. You tell the Judge, and try to be there, too, Doc."

And we parted, Doc going to his office, and I down to the fire on the bank, where I told all the boys what I intended to do that night, and how they must help me.

As soon as the evening meal was over, I met all the boys up in the Judge's yard. I put each one in a place around the house, behind the bushes, behind the big flower pots, and made a ring around the lawn. Then I slipped in. The Judge and Doc Waters were sitting in the room where the relics were.

"All right, Doc," I said; "you and the Judge go into the other room. I want to wait here and see who comes."

"You won't see anybody," said the Judge, as he started for the door; "nobody comes. All you will find will be the bird saying some queer things." And then he went out, Doc following, leaving me alone in the room with the stuffed raven. I said to myself: "By Jinks! I never saw a man act like the Judge—he really believes this stuffed bird can talk." I pulled my chair up close to the book case and watched the old stuffed raven. I got tired looking at it. I turned my face away from it for a while; but when I looked back at it, it seemed to me as though its head had been turned a little to one side. I hadn't noticed it before. And then, all of a sudden, came a squeaky voice:

"Nevermore!" it said.

I smiled, and waited, as though I hadn't heard anything. I looked toward the window, wondering if the fellows out there behind the bushes and flower pots had seen anything. Then came that croaking voice again, a little louder, saying:

"Nevermore!"

All of a sudden I saw a shadow moving along the wall—at first I thought it was a long snake—and it even frightened me, too—but then I saw it plainly—it was like a thick string from the raven to the window. I turned out the light and went back and sat still. But nothing further happened. Whatever it had been, I had frightened it.

* * *

I sat there, silent, however, patiently waiting; it must have been half an hour, I guess, because I knew I began to think the fellows down there behind the bushes would get tired and go home. And just when I was about to give up myself, there came a sound in the dark, and presently I saw a leg shove itself over the window sill and then a fellow jumped quietly onto the carpet. I saw his dark shadow move slowly across the room. I made a quick step to the electric button and switched on the light, and—

There stood the poet fellow, holding on to a cord that reached up to the stuffed raven.

"Stop!" I said, as he started back to the window. "What have you got there, Rufe?"

He turned around and looked at me—and I could see he was frightened, now.

"Don't give me away, Hawkins," he whispered. I reached for the cord he had—and found it was no cord, but a thin rubber tube, with a mouthpiece at the end of it.

"So," I said, "it was your voice that spoke through the raven?"

"Yes," he said; "I hoped the Judge would get tired of hearing it, and would throw the raven away so's I could get it without having to steal it."

"Well," I said, "that was better than stealing it, although you had no right to play such a trick on the old Judge. Where did you go to perform this trick, Rufe?"

"On the roof," he answered. "I climbed up the water spout every night, and I just about had the old Judge believing the bird was haunted—but now you've spoiled everything for me."

I stood on a chair and reached up for the raven. It was stuck pretty tight, but I got it loose and gave it to him. "Here," I said, "take it and get down that water pipe as quick as you can."

I knew our boys would grab him as soon as he reached the ground. I left the window open and ran back to my chair and pretended as though I were asleep. Because I heard Doc and the Judge coming. The door opened.

"Well, Hawkins," says Doc, "what did you find out?"

Before I could answer him the Judge gave a loud yell. "It's gone!" he roared. "Look, Doctor, my raven's disappeared."

I rubbed my eyes as though I were just waking up, and said: "Yeah, he flew out the window."

The Judge came over and stood in front of me. I could see he was terribly angry.

"Listen, youngster," he says, "do you think I believe that bird flew out the window?"

"Well," I says, "you believed he could talk, didn't you? Then why couldn't he fly out the window?"

The Judge didn't answer me. Doc laughed. But I scooted out of the room as fast as I could and ran downstairs and out into the yard. The boys were at the gate, in a bunch. "We got him, Hawkins," says Jerry Moore, as I came up; "he was just coming down the water pipe, and he stole the Judge's raven."

"Not guilty," I said, with a grin. "I gave it to him."

The poet fellow looked at me and smiled. "Good old Hawkins!" he says.

"Forget it!" I said. "Now, look here, Rufus Rogers, you get back to your shack and don't say a word about what we boys did for you tonight. And don't you ever get caught near the Judge's house again."

"Nevermore!" croaked Rufus, with a grin, as he held up his right hand.

We all had to laugh as he ran down toward the hollow. And we went to our clubhouse, and they all watched me as I pulled up a plank in the floor and took out our money box.

"What you doin'?" yelled our captain.

"We've got to pay a debt," I says; "we got ten bucks for that raven, and it wasn't ours in the first place, and that poet kid liked it well enough to get in trouble over it, and I think we've got to take this ten that the old Judge gave us for it, and hand it back to him."

Which we did.

A Letter From The 'Seckatary'

Dear Club Members:

Here we are again, and here's another competition, right on the eve of the big Produced in Canada Exhibition. It's different, too, this week. You don't have to write a story, or letter, or draw a picture. All you have to do is get new members—and you have a chance to win a greater prize than we have yet offered—A REALLY-TRULY WRIST WATCH, donated by Mr. Tully, the Charlotte street jeweller. If you are not fortunate enough to win the first prize, you may still win one of the three books I'm giving—three big 300-page books of adventure, nicely bound.

You will find the rules in another column, but just in case there might be some mistake, I'm going to tell them again here. First of all, please notice that entries MUST NOT be addressed to me at The Examiner office. All the names of new members during next week MUST be handed in at The Examiner booth at THE KIWANIS FAIR in the Armouries, if you wish to compete for the wrist watch.

Next, note that you do not have to stop when you get the first sheet filled. You may call at The Examiner booth and get another sheet, or you may get one at The Examiner office. You should fill three or four if you can—because it's going to be a real competition with such a fine prize.

The contest will close at 10:30 on Saturday night, October 20, when the Kiwanis Fair ends. If the names can be counted in time, the prize winner will be announced on Monday following.

Remember that you must not just write down names—you must ask the boys and girls if they wish to join and if they will keep the motto, "Fair and Square." Then get their full names, addresses and birthdays, just the way these are printed on the form. Please make sure they are right, because we don't want our birthday cards to be sent on the wrong dates or to the wrong houses!

I think that covers all the rules. I wish everyone could win, but since that's impossible here's hoping you all come near winning!

Our Weekly Meeting

Now, let's open our weekly meeting with the announcement of the winner of the "Day in October" competition.

The prize goes to Gwenyth Boorman this week for her story, which tells in a few words about a little girl, her school work, a problem, "A Day in October," the solution of the problem, and a deed of kindness. Here is her story:

"Dear Seck:

I decided I would write a story. I am trying very hard to get that wonderful book of yours. This story is original and I had no help from grown ups. Here it is.

A Day in October.

The sun shone brightly on the porch on which Betty Fox sat. There was a contest at school in art. As Betty had a great talent for art she decided to enter.

"Oh, Mother," she sighed, "I don't know what to paint."

"Why don't you take a walk in the woods?" asked her mother.

"I'll do that," said Betty.

She walked in the woods by her beautiful home. The leaves in red and gold were falling. A pretty brook babbled on to a little waterfall. A merry wind blew the leaves around.

"I'll paint that!" said Betty.

She called the beautiful painting "A Day in October." Betty received the $25 as reward for her work. She gave the money to the poor.

Yours fair and square,
Gwenyth Boorman."

Peterborough, Ontario.

Here's a new member who starts right in by coming near winning a prize—and she sent in a new member's name, too. Isn't Marion Turnbull's letter nice?

"Dear Seck:

I see your club is increasing wonderfully and I have decided to join your club. I am anxious for one of your prizes. I have a new member. Here is my story.

A Day in October.

When October comes, you don't know how jolly everyone feels. Nature is so beautiful. The trees turn to a pretty red colour. The corn, vegetables and flowers are ready to be brought in. The grass turns to a beautiful gold colour. The maple trees have turned red and look pretty mixed through the evergreen trees. Every heart is overflowing with joy. Then Hallowe'en comes in October. What a wonderful time that is. We always make a quantity of taffy and we dress up and go to people's houses. We make them think we are someone else. Some people put large pumpkins on their gate-posts. Some bad boys take off people's gates and take them away and do not put them back, but anyway they must have some fun, I suppose. We always have plenty of fun in October.

Well Seck, I am greedy with the room. I am enclosing a two cent stamp for my badge and pin. You must be real busy, Seck. By-Bye.

Yours fair and square,
Marion Turnbull."

Helen Cameron won a book with her story on "A Rainy Day," and you can see that she liked it a lot. There are six different books, Helen, all just as good as "The Yellow Y."

"Dear Seck:

Just a word of appreciation of the splendid book which I received for "A Rainy Day" contest. I am enclosing another story on "October" and would just love to get a book.

My friend, Margaret Lancaster, won 1st prize last week on "Birthday." Her book was the same as mine, the "Yellow Y." It certainly is a delightful book and if they are all as good as it, I am going to try and get them all. Well, it's bedtime now, so I will close.

Yours fair and square,
Helen Cameron."

Birdsall, Ont.

Here is Helen's story:

A Nutting in October.

Jack and Billy, the Brown twins, were going a nutting with Frank and Tom. They were up very early one Saturday morning. They ate a hearty breakfast, as most boys do, and started for their two mile hike to the hickory tree. Each was supposed to have a delicious lunch, and they had their pockets filled with apples.

Of course it did not take them long to reach the tree with the delicious nuts on it and the boys set to work with a will to fill their own basket.

When the baskets were nearly full, Tom, who was rather plump and thought a great deal about his meals, took out his watch and informed the other three that it was twelve o'clock and he was hungry. The others said that they were too. So they opened their pails. When Jack opened his he gave a gasp. The others peeped in and began to laugh, but Jack didn't. He only sat there, looking very glum. However, his good nature came back when everybody generously offered him some portion of his dinner, even Tom promised Jack half a piece of his pumpkin pie.

When they finished their lunch they lie down to rest. Then they filled their baskets and went home. That night the Browns went over to the Aires' home and it was a happy gathering that parted that night after a good feed of hickory nuts, and you may be sure that the boys ate no small share.

Yours fair and square,
Helen Cameron."

Birdsall, Ont.

We're mighty glad to hear from Earnest Halcrow and to have Roland as a member. I hope they both enter the wrist watch competition next week.

"Dear Seck:

It gives me great pleasure to belong to the Seckatary Hawkins Club. This is my first letter to you, hoping it will prove successful. Well, dear Seck, there are two days in October I am looking forward to, and they are my birthday and Hallowe'en. My birthday is on October 24, and I am expecting many presents and to have a good time on my eleventh birthday.

I am looking forward to Hallowe'en for its fun and candy and also for The Examiner parade, hoping Seck and his gang will be there. I wish to inform you that I proposed Roland Halcrow to the Club, he having sent in his coupon Saturday night. I guess I will bring my letter to a close now.

Goodbye Seck.

Yours fair and square,
Ernest Halcrow."

Dorothy Disney has written some nice letters, but none nicer than this one about the little girl returning from hospital in October.

"Dear Seck:

I haven't written a letter for a long time, but when I received your letter I decided that I would write. Enclosed you will find an extra two-cent stamp for a pin as I lost mine, and also the names of six new members.

Gwen Parnell is very lucky getting twenty-three members. Most of my schoolmates are fourteen and fifteen and they are a little old to join your Club.

I read the Junior Examiner and enjoy it very much. I am writing a story and hope it will win a prize. Here it is:

A Day in October.

How good it was to be home after being in a hospital for six months. The October breeze blew across her cheeks and mussed up her hair. It was little Betty Smith's first day home since the accident in which she had been severely injured and now the trees were a bright red and some leaves were falling to the ground.

All around her home were beautifully colored trees and the hot sun shone down on the picturesque landscape while the blue sky tried to welcome little Betty home in a hearty way.

It certainly was an ideal day in October, at least Betty thought so.

Yours fair and square,
Dorothy Disney."

What a wonderful day Beatrice Kidd had, gathering apples and nuts! Certainly it was a nice "Day in October."

"Dear Seck:

I have decided that I must be a member of your jolly Club. I saw one of your prizes and I would like to have one also. Here is my story.

A Day in October.

This is Thursday. We are out of school to-day because the teachers are away at the Convention and we don't have any school anymore this week.

I got them all picked up. I counted them to see how many baskets I had and there were eight eleven-quart baskets. Then I emptied my basket and went over to the butternut tree and got half a basket of butternuts and then I got some red leaves coming home. When I got home it was dinner time.

And this is my first letter.

Yours fair and square,
Beatrice Kidd."

And Teresa Perdue, too, knows how to enjoy October days, even in the city. I think it's the grandest fun, making leaf houses!

"Dear Seck:

I am just joining your club. I have been reading your page every week and I like it very much. I am writing this story, hoping to win a book. Here is my story.

A Day in October.

One day in October some of my school chums and I went for a walk through a wood and saw a most beautiful scene. There were many kinds of leaves of different colours. The leaves of the maple tree were coloured very beautifully in colours such as red, yellow and golden brown. We went on through the woods until it was time for us to go home.

We raked up all the leaves off our front lawns and made houses of them. We played until dark. Then we made a bon fire of them. We watched it until it blazed out. Then we parted and went home. We had enjoyed the day very much.

Yours fair and square,
Teresa Perdue."

Donald Owens is very fortunate—he can go out into a field and pick pumpkins for his Hallowe'en parties. Who wouldn't wish to live in Campbellford?

"Dear Seck:

I hope this will win a prize. If it does not, I will try again.

One Day in October.

One night after school a crowd of us boys went to the field to gather pumpkins for that night was Hallowe'en as you may have guessed. We got some fine ones and made faces. And we had a fine time that night in our costumes at a party.

Yours fair and square,
Donald Owens."

Campbellford, Ont.

Say, Roland just reminded me that we will soon have to start thinking about the Hallowe'en party. I just hope the night is nice and dry, don't you?

"Dear Seck:

There is one day I am looking forward to in October and that is Hallowe'en. I am looking forward to The Examiner parade and hope Seck and his gang will be there. I am looking forward to the Produced in Canada Exhibition. I guess I will close now. Goodbye Seck.

Yours fair and square,

Here's a letter from Ilene Bowler, who has sent in 44 names of new members. Isn't that wonderful? And don't you think if Ilene did this last week you can do even better next week—with a special prize waiting? Thanks a whole lot, Ilene.

"Dear Seck:

I am sending in 22 names to join our Club. I sent in 22 before and I am very glad to know I got a special prize. I am also sending in a story. Here it is.

"A Day in October"

One day in October Jean and I went out for a walk to the woods. As we neared the woods we were delighted at the grandeur of all the pretty trees. We sat on a rock and looked up to see the pretty colors of red and all the varied colors too, made them look very pretty. The weather was a bit chilly but we did not mind. At last we began to gather those pretty leaves which I think sometimes are a lot better than flowers. After we had gathered a bunch each, we started home and we decided to go there a good many more times in October while the leaves are as pretty as they were then.

Yours fair and square,
Ilene Bowler."

A Day in October.

A day in October! how bright it seems,
The brightest of leaves, airiest of dreams,
As they come swirling through the air
Down to others already there.
Flush-faced children are seeking therein
For some nestled chestnut, for some fancy whim.

The golden leaves and crimson ones too,
They seem to me, do they to you?
Like dancing fairies in bright hued dresses,
Who came fluttering down to the brown earth's caresses.
A bright sunny walk on an Autumn day,
Will surely chase all your troubles away.

—Jeanne Gray.

Here is a poem from Ada M. Riel, Lakefield. Ada has sent in two or three.

A Day in October.

I looked out of the window,
One clear October day;
The sun was brightly shining,
All nature seemed so gay.

The noisy creek of a cricket,
The lonesome song of a bird,
The caw of a crow in the distance,
Were some of the sounds I heard.

The brook was merrily rippling,
As it, winding on its way,
Passed beneath a weeping willow
That grew near an eddying bay.

And as I sat listening
To the blackbirds ukilee;
And the robin's cheery chirp,
From a fruitless apple-tree;

I thought of winter coming,
With the snowflakes soft and grand;
These birds would still be singing,
In another sunny land.

—Ada M. Riel.

Thanks, Charlie, for those names. I'm surely glad to see so many members from Bonarlaw. Write again soon and join the contests.

"Dear Seck:

I read your page every week and I think that it is great. So I thought that I would write you a letter. I have a little team of colts and I call them Rex and Rody. They are black and brown, and will eat sugar and grain out of my hand. Well I will have to close for this time. I am sending in a few who wish to join our club.

Here's a dainty verse from Gwen Parnell which I am very glad to print. I hope Gwen sends me some more.

"Dear Seck:

I am sending in a little poem which I hope I will see in print.

October has come, has come,
The leaves are falling all round,
The light green grass
Is turning fast,
October has come, has come.

Yours fair and square,
Gwen Parnell."

I'm sorry to learn that Alma Thompson has been ill, but I think she is a good sport to send in six names in spite of that.

"Dear Seck:

I am sorry for not writing sooner, but I have been sick most of this week. I have your letter. Yes it certainly would be a good idea to print two stories sometime to make up for last Saturday. I enjoy reading them very much. I am sending in six new members.

Yours fair and square,
Alma Thompson."

And Dorothy Weese, too, did not lose any time about sending in the six names.

"Dear Seck:

I received the letter you sent me on Wednesday. I thought I would write. As you said in the letter if I got six more children to join the club I would get a picture of the gang which I would like as I have got six new members.

Yours fair and square,
Dorothy Weese."

Attaboy, Earl! I'll be looking for a lot of new members from Campbellford. Gather up a couple of hundred and bring them to the Kiwanis Fair.

"Dear Sec:

I received your letter yesterday and got my sister to join the Club. I hope to receive a picture of you. I noticed the printers left out the letters on Saturday as you said. I am going to try to get five more members for the Club.

Yours fair and square,
Earl Wood."

Campbellford, Ont.

And that's all for this week. Will have our meeting on this page as usual next week, in spite of the Kiwanis Fair. Don't forget the wrist watch that's waiting for some live member to win.

Special Competition!

This week there is a very special competition. There is no story to write, no letter, no drawing to do.

Mr. Tully, the well-known jeweller, likes our club so much that he asked if he could give a prize to the members. The Seckatary said "Certainly"—and so Mr. Tully is donating a to the boy or girl who hands in most names of new members at the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition next week.

And just to show that we appreciate the kindness of Mr. Tully, the Seckatary is also offering special prizes of three books to the second, third and fourth highest.

In addition, every boy and girl handing in the name of one new member will be given a picture of the Seckatary, and for six new names we will give a big picture of the gang.

HOW TO WIN

Clip out the big coupon you will find printed in The Examiner: fill in your own name and address at the top. Ask your friends if they would like to join. Fill in their names and addresses and birthdays. Take the form to the young lady at The Examiner booth at the big fair.

No forms will be received in this competition by mail—they must be handed in at The Examiner booth in the Armouries. Only names handed in next week will count.

Only members may compete, so if you have not yet joined, rush in your application.

Members may fill in as many forms as they wish. All particulars must be given. Contest closes Saturday night, October 20, at 10.30. Result will be announced on Monday, October 22.

It's Time to Get Busy Now!

It Never Occurred To Rose

By FANNIE HURST

THE Mayton sisters were twins, but, except for the identical hour of their birth, the similarity stopped.

Rose was dark and had flaming red cheeks that without benefit of the slightest make-up looked as if they had been rouged. She had a round face, a nose that remained babyish even into maturity, and fly-away black hair that she was always brushing away from her eyes.

On the other hand, Lilly justified her name. Even as a child, she had a beautiful, slender kind of sinuosity, eyes that were violets and candy-colored hair that, from the low, draped way she wore it at eighteen, made her look like a madonna.

THERE seemed to be never the slightest hesitancy on the part of destiny as to the fates of these two sisters.

When she was eighteen, Rose was snugly, smugly and happily married to Theodore Bristow, a successful young lawyer in the small and thriving town of Adalia.

When she was that same eighteen, Lilly, with a coloratura voice, had already attracted more than local attention. Her father, one of the first physicians of the town, was planning to send her to New York to study.

There was between these sisters not the slightest element of envy. From the very first, Rose had been proud, even a little vainglorious of her sister's talent. From the very first, Rose had deferred to this talent. Lilly was obviously one of the chosen ones; the gods had picked her for triumphs that were strange and alien to the narrow life of Adalia. Even so far back as their early days in the local high school, Rose had deferred to Lilly in the matter of clothes, flowers and all of the tremendous trifles that go to make youth important.

Lilly was always permitted first choice, and it must be said for her that she took it with a kind of sweet humility. She was not a demanding girl. It was just that life had apparently chosen her as one of its takers. Rose was a giver.

FROM the very first year of her married life, this aspect of her began to emphasize itself. She married a man who loved her passionately, but who demanded her time, her energy, her vitality, her concentrated interests.

Then in the second year of her married life, her daughter was born. A pale child with what seemed a promising endowment of Lilly's fair loveliness.

And so while Lilly was off gaining a musical education, toward which her father, her brother-in-law, the lawyer and her sister Rose contributed, the latter was already taking up the mundane responsibilities of the life of an average woman of an average town in the Middle West of these United States.

The development of Lilly toward the brilliant goal that was ultimately to be hers was consistent and unswerving. When Rose's Lalite was four years old, Lilly was granted an audition and the following year was singing major roles in the Metropolitan Opera Hoouse. Five years later, she was a recognized, an established and brilliantly successful prima donna, as well known abroad as in her own country—idolized, lionized, arrived.

And Lilly wore the full paraphernalia of her eminence in a fashion that was dramatic beyond anything that had ever dawned upon the pleasantly phlegmatic township of her nativity. Her visits home were matters of anticipation long before they took place and subjects of discourse for months afterward. She travelled with an entourage. A private car steamed into the station of Adalia when Lilly arrived.

Cut flowers shipped from her own florist in New York banked the rooms she was to occupy in the town hotel. Lilly had long since outgrown the possibilities of her sister's modest home. Every honor that the town had been able to bestow upon its daughter had been laid at her feet. The mayor presented her with the key to the city. Every organization of local repute had conferred its highest mark of distinction upon her.

AND in Lilly's reflected glory, beaming, proud and always marvelling, there walked the plump and matronly little figure of her sister Rose, who had fattened where Lilly remained slim; who had become highly localized where Lilly had become international. And as Lilly ascended higher and higher toward her zenith, the little slender figure of Lalite, who was moulded so charmingly in the image of her aunt, began to mount not only on the horizon of the town's activities, but on the horizon of her mother's hopes for her.

Lilly wore the full paraphernalia of her eminence in a fashion that was dramatic beyond anything that had ever dawned upon the pleasantly phlegmatic township of her nativity. Her visits home were matters of anticipation long before they took place, subjects of discourse for months afterward.

Then Lalite came along, with promise of being a greater Lilly. But Lalite rebelled. Lalite, who could have been Lilly, was throwing that opportunity away.

"Why not! Lalite had Lilly's beauty, perhaps even plus, and at sixteen the bird-like notes in her voice were already making themselves apparent as they had done in the case of her distinguished relative.

The town began to wag excitedly. Was lightning about to strike the same family twice? It looked that way. The father and the grandfather, the mother and the grandmother and Lilly herself began to bend excited eyes upon this child who promised much.

FROM the time she was ten to fourteen, it was as if Rose was determined to rear her daughter precisely in the image of her sister. In an age when young girls wore their hair neatly clipped, Rose had insisted that Lalite's hair should be long and worn in the madonna-like braids that Lilly had bound around her head when she was Lalite's age. Lilly's teachers were chosen for the young Lalite. It looked as if the mills of the gods were grinding again.

If the strenuosity of having beheld a sister reared into eminence and then in turn rearing a daughter toward those same high places had been somewhat hard on Rose, she did not show it.

At thirty-five, the brilliant color was still high in her cheeks and her eyes were as bright as wrens' eyes. If she had stoutened, she had done so, as her husband affectionately put it, in the way a rose spreads itself at maturity. She was full-blown. She was fertile-looking and she was full of the capacity for endurance. She ran her household. She did her own gardening. She prepared her own wholesome meals and she presided at local clubs. One Spring, when Lalite was fifteen and there was a painters' strike on, she mounted a ladder outside the house, looking charming in denim overalls, and painted the shutters their bright, perennial green.

If she dreaded the inevitable period of separation that came with Lalite's plans, to continue her vocal studies first in New York and later in Paris, there was never a word out of her.

THANKS to the largesse of her aunt, Lalite's education was less a matter of sacrifice than Lilly's had been. When she was sixteen, and her voice developing in a way that thrilled and excited the township, the final arrangements were made for Lalite to depart.

And then the blow fell. Lalite did not want to go. The reason was simple enough. It was an age-old reason. Lalite was in love. With a next-door neighbor, too. The only son of a family named Lathrop. His father was a large stockholder in a local street-car company. Howard Lathrop was out of State University two years and junior partner in a local law firm.

It was the most devastating thing that had ever happened to Rose. She saw ahead of her a Lalite destined for the hum-drum routine of life in Adalia; she saw this lovely offspring of hers with endowments which in every way matched her fair sister's and with twice the opportunity to cultivate them, caught in the trap of mediocrity.

Lalite, who could have been like Lilly, was deliberately throwing that supreme opportunity away.

IN vain, through hours of tears, of imploring, of vivid word-pictures, more tears, Rose tried to bring the vision of her destiny if she married Howard before the enchanted eyes of her daughter. And Lalite, who could have been like Lilly, looked at her mother finally; her eyes were still enchanted and her determination unshaken.

"Doesn't it occur to you, Mother," she said. "you dear, darling babe-in-the-woods, doesn't it occur to you that I don't care about being like Aunt Lilly nearly so much as I care about being like you?"

It had not ever occurred to Rose. That was part of the preciousness of her. FANNIE HURST.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

Amity.

Shipments of ore to Noranda smelter are reported as again being resumed by Amity Copper this week. The first car which has already gone forward consisted of high grade development ore from the 375 foot level and was expected to show higher assays than those obtained from any of the seven cars previously shipped from other parts of the mine. Good drifting progress is being made on the 375 foot horizon and good widths and grade of ore are reported. All the ore which has been sent to the smelter has been from development work, which in the ordinary course of events would have been put on the surface. Returns from this have almost paid operating expenses.

Don Rouyn.

According to advice from Dr. Pattie, president of Don Rouyn situated west of Noranda Mines in the Rouyn mining district, who has been on a visit to the company's property, the outlook there is greatly improved. The shaft which it is intended to sink to a depth of 100 feet is now down 80 feet and in the last ten feet of sinking the ore has become richer than at the higher levels. Before proceeding with diamond drilling it is the intention to continue rock tunneling across the mineralized zone to the east line of the property.

Newbec.

According to official advice, the last drill hole at this property which was 500 feet east of the shaft intersected the porphyry zone which previously had been found to overlie their ore. The manager, Mr. Smith, is now of the opinion that the ore has a somewhat steeper dip and allowance for this is being made in the drill hole now started 600 feet east of the shaft.

Amulet.

An exploratory diamond drilling campaign has been started on this property under the direction of Mr. J. C. McGregor, consulting geologist. Three drills will be in continuous operation for the purpose of locating new ore. Mr. McGregor has given particular study to the ground near the old No. 2 orebody, and feels confident that an entirely new body will be opened up here in the near future.

Winze on Kirkland Lake Mines Down to 3060 feet Towards Next Objective at 3100 feet.

Steady progress has been made at Kirkland Lake Gold Mines and results have continued satisfactory. New levels have been opened up, revealing marked improvement in mineral conditions. While good milling ore was developed on the 1850, 1975, 2100, 2225 and 2850 ft. horizons. Now word has been received that the drive at 2975 feet, which has been in pay ore practically from the end of the crosscut from the winze to the ore body, has entered the main enrichment. The vein now shows 12 feet width of high grade ore.

The Financial News Bureau is informed authoritatively that at the 2850 ft. level, the enriched section of the ore body had been developed for a length of over 200 feet, that it is about 20 feet wide and that values average $15 per ton. Somewhat similar conditions were found at 2725 feet and the 2600 ft. levels which have been all opened up this year, but dimensions have shown a tendency to increase with each level. It is pointed out that no attempt has been made to explore the extent of the ore bodies fully on any of the levels mentioned.

Sinking of the winze below the 2975 ft. horizon is proceeding rapidly. On Tuesday last it was down 85 feet to a depth of 3060 below the surface. The next objective is 3100 feet, where a station will be built without delay and lateral work done to open up the ore at that horizon.

The foundation forms have been completed for the new hoist, which will be established at the top of the winze at 2475 feet depth. This will be equipped to raise ore from 5000 feet depth. Delivery of this hoist should be made within 5 or 6 weeks. This installation will not interfere in any way with developments and production.

Kirkland Lake Gold Shares have declined in the past year from a high of $3.06 to $1.25 in face of the developments at the winze mine noted above.

Millheads were down in September, because low grade ore broken down first in the 2975 ft. level was low grade. This month's average mill broken heads are up to about normal again, as higher grade ore is being taken from the lowest level.

Sudbury Basin's Newest Subsidiaries Have Great Possibilities.

Sudbury Basin Mines Ltd. has an immense stake in the Sudbury area. Not only does it hold a proven property and well located prospects in the leadzinc zone along the northern rim of the Norite formation, but important ground in the nickel-copper section as well. These are in addition to its various interests outside the Sudbury field.

The management has been criticized in some quarters as having too many irons in the fire. Such an argument appears rather far-fetched. The policy of the management, perhaps, would be better viewed as having a wider range of possibilities, as a result of its acquisitions. This is an area of exploration as well as development in Canadian mining and the companies that look ahead and acquire control, under option or otherwise, of favorable ground have the best chance of making good in a big way. Once properties are proven of merit, it is not difficult to finance them to production. The cost of proving base metal enterprises is not great, and when proven they can be disposed of at a good profit, or subsidiaries formed, to be financed independently.

Sudbury Basin Mines Ltd., has secured groups of claims running into many thousands of acres. Furthermore, the people behind the enterprise are strong enough to command support, as proven mines are developed.

Among the most recent and important developments in the company is the interest it is assuming in Sudbury Nickel-copper Mines Ltd., which is regarded by reputable engineers as having very real possibilities.

The Sudbury Nickel-Copper Mines has two groups, one known as the Bowsell near the north range, where conditions closely resemble the Creighton. Asseries of holes will be out down here. The other group, Young-McFadden, adioins the Murray Mine on the northeast, and has similar characteristics. Diamond drilling will also be done here. The subsidiary company formed has a capital of 5,000,000 shares of $1 par value.

Another important development has been the acquisition on behalf of Sudbury Basin of a controlling interest in Longyear Nickel property in Falconbridge. The company has the right to take up stock in this new enterprise on favorable terms, without any obligation, outside the taking up of stock, when the enterprise is proven. The first development here is a 1000 ft. shaft, involving an outlay of $500,000.

In connection with the Longyear property, it is noteworthy that the Royal Commission of Ontario Nickel in its official report on the industry back in 1917 made definitely favorable references to this group. It says in its summary "The apparently important discovery by the Longyear syndicate, during the last few months, of nickel ore bodies underlying the heavy covering of drift in the township of Falconbridge, east of the Carson Mines, should also be mentioned. The discovery was made by means of diamond drills and proves, what the geological conditions would suggest, that not all the nickel deposits of the district are exposed at the surface."

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

"Looking for Special Distribution on Dominion Bridge."

The impressive buying of the stocks of Dominion Bridge and its subsidiary, Dominion Engineering, is looked upon in many quarters as a reflection of the belief that some particularly favorable development will be announced shortly. Directors of Dominion Bridge are scheduled to meet on Tuesday next, and it would not be a surprise to the street if some form of special distribution were decided on, in view of the tremendous amount of profitable work now on the books of the company, and the prospects for a continuance of this condition for some time to come.

Since the raising of the dividend on Dominion Engineering from $2.00 to $3.00 per share it has been generally expected that Bridge shareholders would be in line for similar action. Most of the increased revenue from the higher rate on Engineering will accrue to Bridge, which holds the large majority of Dominion Engineering stock. With the plant of the subsidiary keeping pace in the matter of production, the larger earnings of Bridge from its operations will be steadily enhanced from this source; and it is expected the benefit of the steadily increasing earnings will be passed along to shareholders, possibly in the form of a bonus.

Steel Output Rises; New Record Likely.

New York.—A notable cheerfulness characterizes the weekly reviews of the iron and steel industry. Steel production is rising to what promises to be a new record figure, it is pointed out while consumer demand shows unexpected buoyancy and the price structure continues to strengthen. Mill operations are still expanding, it is noted, the average being 90 per cent. or more of capacity. In view of the large volume of orders on mill books, October is expected to be the high month of the year both in output and shipments. Moreover, there is now every assurance that total production for 1928 will establish a new record, since the last quarter need only exceed the relatively poor performance of the same period of 1927 by 1 per cent. to effect that result.

Specifications for various light and heavy finished steel products attained considerable volume in the last half of September and gave the mills heavy backlogs, while further extending delivery periods. Despite the advance of $2 on some finished steel products for the fourth quarter, the first week of October brought in more new business, at the higher figures, than any other week this year. As a result there is less uncertainty than in weeks about the market.

Brokers' Holdings in Steel Common Up.

New York.—The floating supply of United States Steel Corporation common stock increased 82,053 shares during the third quarter of the current year. Brokers' holdings of common on Sept. 30, totaled 1,704,434 shares, or 23.95 per cent. of the total issue. This compares with 1,622,381 or 22.79 per cent. in the previous quarter and 1,828,290 or 25.69 per cent. in the September quarter last year.

Holdings of common stock by investors at the end of the past month amounted to 5,411,801 shares, or 76.05 per cent. of the total common stock outstanding. This compares with 5,493,854 or 77,21 per cent. on the previous quarter and 5,287,945 or 74.31 per cent. in the third quarter of the preceding year.

Credit Demands Wane.

New York.—The height of the seasonal demand for commercial credit now has been passed, according to banking executives, and they expect no further disturbances to the money market, other than possible flurries incident to the midmonth settlements next week and similar temporary developments. The high point of Federal Reserve purchases of bills, however, is not expected to be reached until December. This situation, to many participants in the stock market, is as satisfactory as would be a decline in the official rate, since such an occurrance probably would result in the withdrawal of funds from a call money market by out-of-town banks and other outside interests.

Good Traders in Railroads.

New York.—It was generally remarked Thursday that, despite the numerous setbacks to their carefully worked-out plans, no one can accuse the Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland of not being good traders. The opinion expressed in the financial district about their coup in quietly acquiring control of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh was that it had given them another and most important seat at the railroad conference table, when the Eastern trunkline situation as a whole must inevitably come up for discussion and settlement. The price was admittedly high in relation to earningsof the railroad, but nevertheless it was felt that it might be discovered, when the Van Sweringen scheme for consolidation was finally made public, that they had bought a bargain.

Argentina Wheat Crop Prospects Are Excellent

CHICAGO, Oct. 13. — (Canadian Press.)—Wheat prices turned downward to-day after a show of firmness at the opening. The standard declines were ascribed to reports of excellent crop prospects in Argentina and to denials of frost there. Opening unchanged to ½ to ⅝ up wheat later showed a setback all around. Corn, oats and provisions tended upward, with corn starting at ⅜ to ⅝ to ¾ advance but subsequently reacting somewhat. Opening prices:

Wheat, Dec. 117 ⅝, March 121¾
Corn, Dec. 80⅝, March 83¼. Oats, Dec. 42⅝, March 44⅛.

CHEESE MARKET.

U.S. OIL FIELDS MOST INTERESTING

S. D. Carver Tells The Examiner of Trip to Bradford, Pa.

The source of supply of the gasoline, motor oil, coal oil, etc., which Peterborough people use so blithely in such large quantities, was visited by Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Carver, Provincial Highway, recently in the course of a motor tour to New York and Pennsylvania points. Mr. Carver brought back with him samples of crude oil, taken as it comes from the wells in the vicinity of Bradford, Pa., and a piece of pure white wax, such as is used for sealing bottles of jelly.

Old Time Torture No Worse Than

Mr. McArthur's experience with inflamed kidneys.

Gin Pills brought relief

Hospital loomed up in front of William McArthur, of Saint John, N.B. Life was one long misery.

As he himself puts it, "I suffered for 6 months with kidney trouble. Doctors said I would have to go to a hospital before I could go back to my heavy work in the machine shops." Fortunately, at this critical time, his druggist suggested Gin Pills. What a boon! "After taking 3 boxes," Mr. McArthur concludes gratefully, "I had no more trouble."

Gin Pills have relieved countless cases of acute kidney condition similar to this. Before serious trouble can develop, take this reliable remedy—at the first sign of bad backache, stubborn headaches, brick dust in urine, swollen joints, dizziness, a burning sensation attendant on scanty or too frequent urination. At your druggist, 50c. a box. National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada Limited, Toronto, Canada.

This he got as it came out of the refinery apparatus.

The refinery which Mr. Carver visited has a capacity of 5,000 barrels a day. Most of the wells in the vicinity are independently owned, although the huge Standard Oil Company owns the land all around them. The wells are about 5,000 feet deep, ending in oil-bearing sand. Never in the history of Bradford has a dry well been bored.

The crude oil which Mr. Carver brought back is of a greenish-brown color, looking very much like motor oil, which is one of its ingredients. The wax is softer than that sold for preserving purposes, apparently because that has been pressed, while what he has is just as it comes off the oil.

Mr. and Mrs. Carver also visited the great park, partly in Pennsylania and partly in New York, where the wild animals who formerly roamed all over that part of the country live in their natural state. English pheasants have been introduced and are multiplying rapidly, their killing being forbidden. Deer, bear, and partridge are also numerous.

MUSIC CLUB OPENS SEASON

Miss Marjorie Shuttleworth, of Toronto, Vocalist, Delights Her Audience.

AT CONSERVATORY.

(By Jeanette)

With a visiting vocalist whose brilliant voice and charming personality made her program delightful in the extreme, a good attendance of members and a pleasant tea hour at the conclusion of the program, the season's first meeting of the Women's Music Club, held yesterday afternoon in the studio at the Conservatory of Music, was a very successful opening to the scheduled events for the coming winter.

Miss Edythe Marjorie Shuttleworth of Toronto, dramatic soprano, was the soloist of the afternoon, and her vocal numbers were received with enthusiastic appreciation by her audience. It is not often that dramatic ability is allied to such a degree with a voice of pure soprano timbre. Miss Shuttleworth held the rapt attention of her hearers, both by reason of a superb vocal organ and by the histrionic quality of her presentation of a varied program.

Her voice has a wide and pleasing range and is used very effectively, with most of the emphasis on the "head" tones. Unaffected, effortless, high and sweet, it rings out in broad bursts of rich tone or lingers like an echo in long-sustained finales.

Miss Shuttleworth's most pleasing group was possibly her trio of foreign songs, with two numbers in French and the last in German. These were Arthur Coquard's "Hai-Luli" ("Ah! qu'il fait triste sans mon ami!"; Delibes' "Bonjour Suzon," a dainty, whimsical thing picturing the coquettish disdain of a maiden whose lover complains of her coldness, and Brahms' "Disappointed Serenader.

"Angels Ever Bright and Fair" and "One Fine Day" (from "Madame Butterfly") were lovely openiig selections and the third group included three old English songs. These were "The Nightingales of Lincoln's Inn," that fascinating bit of melody that needs a certain temperament in a singer to interpret most effectively. The insistence on clear-cut consonants that went so well with the vocalist's foreign songs was not so well suited to the dreamy mood of this wistful composition.

The other two songs in this group were charming things: "The Pirate's Dream" and "Robin, Robin, Sing Me a Song," the latter ending with a dramatic and triumphant flowering of swift, high notes.

Miss Shuttleworth closed her interesting program with an encore in Curran's "Dawn."

Mrs. Agnes Logan Green played accompaniments for the vocal numbers with her familiar ease and charm, and Miss F. Gladman played for the opening of the program, in the National Anthem.

Miss Mabel Clarry, president of the club, who spoke in terms of high appreciation of the vocalist of the afternoon also made several announcements with regard to the season's program. The meetings will be held once a month during the winter, instead of fortnightly, as formerly, and afternoon tea will be served at the conclusion. Two extra recitals will be given by outstanding artists.

Miss Clarry also told the members that Miss Shuttleworth leaves next week for two years' study in Paris and Milan.

Afternoon tea was served later.

ENTRANCE PUPILS GIVEN CERTIFICATES

Chief Gimblett Discusses Fire Prevention With School Association.

The prettily decorated kindergarten room of the Queen Alexandra school was the scene of a pleasant event on Friday evening, October 12, when parents and friends gathered to join in the presentation of certificates to the successful Entrance pupils.

Fire Chief Gimblett gave an instructive talk on fire prevention and distributed pamphlets containing instructions on fire prevention to everyone present.

A solo with guitar accompaniment, given by Marvin Hamilton, was much enjoyed.

Piano solos by Mrs. E. Rowe and vocal solo by E. Rowe were heartily applauded.

Vocal solos were charmingly rendered by Mrs. Hohner, accompanied by Miss Mildred Hetherington.

Misses Hamilton and Marvin Hamilton delighted the audience with Hawaiian selections.

The presentation of certificates being the main feature of the evening, M. H. Park, the principal, was called on to address the pupils and after giving some kindly advice and congratulating the boys and girls on their success he presented certificates to the following pupils: Gladys Bebee, Phyllis Bebee, Inga Birkhof, Jennie Butcher, Edna Calvert, Margaret Curtis, Gladys Dafoe, Elizabeth Harrison, Helen Humber, Florence Lemmings, Marjorie Nesbitt, Gladys Peryer, Shirley Pettit, Hilda Philipp, Irene Pogue, Agnes Purdy, Alice Shurty, Mary Terrace, Delphine Spring, Fraser Bradshaw, Eric Goodwin, Marvin Hamilton, William Irwin, Kenneth Johnston, Reginald Kingdon, Lloyd Lewis, Ray McLaren, Grant Morrow, Lloyd Parnall, Basil Stephens, John Telford, Eric Westbye.

Dainty refreshments were served and a social hour spent together at the close of the program.

WHEN YOUR BABY CATCHES A COLD

In spite of all precautions little ones will take colds—especially during the changeable days of our Fall season. When the first symptoms appear—sneezing, redness of the eyes, running nose—Baby's Own Tablets should be given at once. They will rapidly break up the cold and prevent more serious complications.

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the home always feel safe. In fact they are like having a doctor in the house. They are a gentle but thorough laxative that sweetens the stomach and regulate the bowels, thus driving out constipation and indigestion and relieving the baby of the many childhood ailments which are the direct result of a clogged condition of the bowels or sour stomach. They are absolutely safe—being guaranteed to contain no drug at all harmful to even the youngest babe. They cannot possibly do harm—they always do good.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RECORD CROWD

Belle, owned in Hastings by Beevis Brothers, also ran an dtallied 4, 3, 4. Three heats were all that were necessary to decide the honors.

Seven Entries.

Seven horses entered the contest in the 2.25 class. Hal E, a Keene horse owned by A. Elmhurst, ran first in the first heat and was scratched. This gave the honours to Mac Dale, owned by Fife of Keene. Mac Dale won first money with three firsts and did the mile in 1.58. Second money went to Frankford, when Leo Stewart, owned by P. Sullivan, ran up a score of 2, 3, 2. Della J. a Cobourg horse owned by Charles Fife, counted 6, 2, 5, in the three heats and ran for the third money. Hal Direct, owned by E. Jones, of Peterborough, also ran, and came in for a count of 3, 4, 5. Alkie Silk also owned in Keene by Charles Fife, scored a 4, 5 and 3 record. This race caused considerable interest, due to the keen competition displayed in all the heats. Driving finishes featured and a special clerk was called on to note the names of the horses as they went past all in a bunch under the wire. Intense silence fell when the second lap finished and The Limit did not appear. This horse had been generally picked as a likely winner by the thousands along the stretch. Hundreds of people running to a point on the north turn signified an accident and at once the word came down that The Limit had fallen. A few minutes later the once sleek, beautiful horse, was led past the stand, coated in dust and with considerable damage done to harness and bike. Just what was the cause was not officially made known to the judges. But at the time of the accident the horses could be seen all in a bunch rounding the turn and coming fast.

Four Heats.

The 2.12 class race was the third to finish and required four heats The third heat caused more interest than any other event of the entire fair. Hal Poitner, driven by Craig of Smith Falls, who is also the owner, collected the honors with a score of 1, 2, 1, 1. He did the mile in 1.56 Just at the finish of the third heat, the spectators were amazed to see what appeared to be and was later sustained as a distinct foul right under the wire. The honors seemed to be for either the Smith Falls horse or Peter Direct, owned and driven by Bennett of Fort Hope. It was claimed that Bennett touched the nose of a horse behind him with his whip. The judges saw it and wondered at such a thing. They were unanimous that the deed must be punished and Peter Direct was set back to last, sixth, place instead of the pole which he had won. The spectators from the opposite side of the track surged forward calling loudly for the judges' decision. Art Blade announced that the horse had been set back and his words apparently met with the approval of the crowd on the track. There was applause when he finished speaking.

But the incident only lent more zest to the finishing heat. It was described as the best of the entire program and there was little difference between any of the horses. But the Craig horse held first place in a beautiful racing finish and Peter Direct landed second and second money with a score of 2, 1, 6 and 2. Lu Grattan, a Peterborough horse, owned by Charles Scholey, counted 4, 4, 2 and 3 and collected the third money. Alfred Elk, owned by Jones, of Peterborough, counted 3, 3, 3 and 4, Minnie Patchen, a Port Hope horse, owned by Bennett, ran 6, 6, 4 and 5 in the four heats and Jim Todd, another Peterborough horse owned by A. Johnston, came in fifth in the first three heats and did not run in the final.

First money for the 2.30 class went to Hastings when Richard Walsh's horse stepped the mile in 1.57 and counted 2, 1, 1, 1. Red Peter has been a favourite during the present racing season. Second money was won by Lena Direct, owned by Elmhurst, of Keene. Her score was 1, 2, 2, 3, Jones of Peterborough, also got in on the bacon when his Gypsy Wilkes drew down third money with a score of 3, 3, 4 and 2. Rose Direct, owned by Elmhurst, of Keene, also ran and her score was 3, 5 ,3 and 4.

Mrs. Chandler Wins.

Race horses were not the only attraction in front of the stand. Art Blade, the starter, was generous with his compliments at intervals. Between heats, two fine horses, each hitched to separate buggies, passed by along the stretch. In each were seated a gentleman and a lady. Applause marked their passing. Mr. Blade announced that the exceptionally fine horses which had just passed were owned, groomed and driven by the lady seated in the rear buggy. She, personally, attended her horses. Another burst of genuinely appreciative applause preceded the words, "Mrs. Chandler of Peterborough." It was noticed that both horses carried red ribbons.

Another event was a novel attraction which required the contestant to harness and hitch a single horse to a vehicle, drive once around the track, then unhitch and unharness his horse. George Gummow of Warkworth was the winner.

This year the baby show was bigger and better than ever before. The infants were lovely and any mother might well be proud of her child that was among the entries. Unfortunately there was not a first prize for all. It was part of the requirements to combine health with beauty. The first class was for infants six months and under. Ona, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Stewart of Centreton, won the first award. The second went to Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Del Briston of Roseneath. A Baltimore baby was in third place. He was Donald, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Ball of that village.

The next class was for infants nine months and under fifteen months. Bernice Longmuir was first prize-winner, while her cousin, Charlton Longmuir, came third. Second place was won by Victor Hope. But Charlton Longmuir was not content with a mere third prize. He smiled sweetly and took the silver trophy donated by Mr. Hopper of Cobourg for the "Smiling and most contented baby."

Rolling Pin Contest.

Just as the men of Auld Scotland win prowess by tossing the caber, so some of the ladies stepped into prominence yesterday afternoon by hurling the rolling pin. Whether or not there was any particular motive behind the contest was not announced for the press. Mrs. J. H. Knox of Baltimore was the lady who hurled the combination utensil and weapon the greatest distance, and Mrs. Alex. Merrill of Dartford was a close second.

The old time fiddlers held their own before a large and interested audience. When the judges had got their heads together and considered all the points of this ancient and honorable art, Donald Beamish of Hastings was given the first prize, while Thomas Johnston of Norwood was second. Fred McMullen of Campbellford was third.

Public speaking by public school students was also an item of interest. Reta Preston of Elgin won the contest. Her subject was Canada and Confederation. Helen Bray of Birdsall was second. She spoke on School Fairs and the benefit which was to be derived from them. Virginia Lobb, another young lady from Birdsall, was third, and her theme was the Trent Waterway. Virginia Lobb was more successful with her singing. She was awarded first prize for the best child singer, and Avis Towns was second. There were only two prizes and five contestants.

This year there was a start made at exhibiting Persian cats. Two fine specimens, locally owned, were entered, and each was awarded a prize. Mrs. Davie and Mrs. Varcoe are the owners.

Out on the grounds there were several major attractions, and a host of smaller concessions. Joyland Shows, with its midway provided amusement for young, and those who still felt the spring of youth. This form of amusement continued to do capacity business even after the crowds began to leave and until closing time later in the evening. Music for the afternoon was by the Cobourg Kiltie Band. own the row of new motor cars on display, the fair goer was more than ordinarily aware of the excellent models to be investigated. There were on exhibit, various makes of Chandler, Whippet, Nash, Ford, Dodge, Oakland, Knight, Chevrolet, Durant, G. B. trucks, and Chevrolet trucks. Meals on the grounds were served by the ladies of the United Church, and the charge for an excellent fowl dinner, served piping hot, was only a half dollar. The attractive price and more attractive meal assured good business during the entire day.

LITTLE SONGS OF LOVE

"THEREFORE PRAY"
(Contributed by Quo Vadis.)

I do not know, why there should come to me
A thought of someone, miles and years away,
With swift insistence on the memory;
Unless there be some need that I should pray.

He goes his way, I mine, we seldom meet
To talk of plans or changes day by day;
Of joys or sorrows, triumphs or defeats
Or special reasons, why 'tis time to pray.

We are too busy to spare special thought
For days together of some friend away.
Perhaps God does it for us, and we ought
To read his signal as a call to pray.

Perhaps, just then, my friend has fiercer fight
A more appalling weakness, a decay
Of courage, some lost sense of light,
And so, in case he needs my prayers I pray

Dear, do the same for me, if I intrude
Unasked upon you, on some crowded day.
Grant me a moment's prayer, as interlude
Be very sure I need it, "Therefore Pray."

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

WHAT a wealth of delightful sentiment and sense we have had in the letters on "After Five years!" How intimate each expression of opinion has been! How helpful to all who seek the success of the home above all else!

* * *

There is not much that I can add to the symposium. I have not that ripe experience with matrimony attributed to me by Bobbie, who seems, herself, to understand human nature so well. I have read books, it is true, but what can one find anywhere in books half so interesting as these letters from our neighbors? Or, I venture to say, half so intelligently appreciative of the causes of marriage's pitfalls?

* * *

There is one letter in particular that lingers in my memory, because it touched on one of the most common causes of dissension, whether in home or business life. It had to do with the care needed to guard well the tongue lest it give offence.

* * *

Certainly, there is nothing hurts deeper or leaves a more lasting scar than a harsh or unkind word. Robert Browning writes, in "A Lovers' Quarrel":

"Dearest, three months ago
When we loved each other so,
Lived and loved the same
Till an evening came
When a shaft from the Devil's bow
Pierced to our ingle-glow,
And the friends were friend and foe!

Not from the heart beneath—
'Twas a bubble born of breath,
Neither sneer nor vaunt,
Nor reproach nor taunt.
See a word, how it severeth!
Oh, power of life and death
In the tongue, as the Preacher saith!"

* * *

And then there is the beautiful poem, "Therefore Pray," by Quo Vadis. I don't think I have read any that touched my heart like this, or any that was so fundamental in its advice. Who can imagine dissension, or lack of love, in the home where that last verse is observed?

"Dear, do the same for me; If I intrude
Unasked upon you, on some crowded day.
Grant me a moment's prayer, as interlude,
Be very sure I need it, Therefore Pray."

* * *

Read again that letter of Bobbie's, in which she says: "Marriage is the beautiful unfolding of many years; we are not married on any day, but all along."

* * *

If marriage is to be successful and happy, can we ignore the advice of Constance, "Forgive us; we forgive?"

* * *

That letter of Dagmar's is a veritable mine of pure-gold nuggets for those who would make married life brightly successful.

* * *

And all of this is not wisdom from the pen of some highly-paid feature writer living no one knows where, no one knows how. The letters were written from the depths of their experience and understanding by your neighbors and mine. Treasure them well! This makes them doubly—nay, a hundredfold precious.

* * *

I sincerely hope that the opportunity arises soon again to call forth another series like this. The Examiner is proud to have the letters, and I am more than glad that our page has been honored by carrying them to all the other neighbors.

* * *

This is the last Whatnot before the opening of the Produced in Canada Exhibition, and I just wish to call attention again to the wonderful array of entertainment and educational talks arranged for women. On Monday afternoon, Mrs. T. L. Crossly, President of the North Toronto Home and School Association, a past President of the American Women's Business Club, will speak on "The Business of being a Club Woman." We are all interested in club affairs, and should find the address very useful. Mrs. W. R. Morris will also give an address, but I have not been told her subject.

* * *

The exhibit of painted fabrics, too, should be attractive. This is a wonderful industry, born of the travail of war. The men who work these wonders with fabrics are all amputation or paralysis cases. They have been taken from the slums of Britain and now maintain their families in ideal homes. Their handiwork has been accepted by British society, and their garments are worn by Princess Mary, Lady Willingdon, and scores of other notables.

* * *

I don't think any of us will ever understand the mind of the soldier, least of all how he can come back from the shambles of France to design and paint these wonderful pictures, the antithesis of war. I was talking with a Peterborough soldier a few weeks ago, endeavouring to get a sidelight on the experiences of the front, and I simply couldn't compass his viewpoint.

* *

He wouldn't say much about the fighting, but I drew him out on one charge, in which he had to leap, with his comrades, into a trench bristling with enemy bayonets. "What," I rashly enquired as he hesitated in his story, "Did you think of then?" "I was afraid of hurting them when I jumped on top of them" was his startling reply.

* * *

All this question of understanding the returned men, by the way, reminds me of one of Robert Service's inimitable war poems, "Afternoon Tea." It describes a young officer on leave, enjoying tea in one of the many British homes thrown open to the men from the front.

"As I was saying. . . . (No, thank you;
I never take cream with my tea;
Cows weren't allowed in the trenches,—got out of the habit, y'see).
As I was saying, our Colonel leaped up like a youngster of ten:
'Come on, lads!' he shouts, 'and we'll show 'em,'
and he sprang to the head of the men.
Then some bally thing seemed to trip him, and he fell on his face with a slam . . ."

* * *

So unconcerned in telling of a man killed! Light jest and tragedy in the same breath! And the young officer ends:

"And now, by Jove! how I've bored you,
You've just let me babble away:
Let's talk of the things that MATTER — your car or the newest play."

* * *

When we think of it all; the indomitable spirit of it all; the terror and filthiness of it all; and then look at these marvellous painted fabrics from the hands of men who have been through it all, we are forced to admit that we know very little. Yes, it will be worth while for us to see and ponder over the painted fabrics.

* * *

You will recall that a few days ago I wrote something about the cookery book by Mrs. Glasse, written 140 years ago, seen by me in a Peterborough home. I promised at that time to give some of the recipes.

* * *

Here is a hint from the book that will not come amiss to many housewives of this modern age. It is an idea for keeping meat hot. "The beft way to keep meat hot, if it be done before your company is ready, is to fet the difh over a pan of boiling water; cover the difh with a deep cover fo as not to touch the meat, and throw a cloth over all. Thus you may keep your meat hot a long time, and it is better than ovre-roafting and fpoiling the meat. The fteam of the water keeps the meat hot, and don't draw the gravy out, or dry it up; whereas, if you fet a difh of meat any time over a chaffing-difh of coals, it will dry up all the gravy, and fpoil the meat."

* * *

In this paragraph, you will notice besides the use of "f" for "s" in certain cases, the use of "don't" for "does not," not sanctioned in Canada as it is in United States. There is a bill board in the city with an advertisement for tobacco, on which is printed, "It don't bite the tongue." When one reads "do not" for "don't," the mistake is apparent.

* * *

I wonder how many persons have noticed the mistakes in spelling on the bill boards? One is used to typographical errors in newspapers, excused by the high speed at which newspapers work, but they are out of place on so carefully wrought works as posters.

* * *

On one, for instance, seen on George street, the printer has put only one "l" in "install," contrary to common usage, and at the corner of Hunter and Rubidge I saw the possessive "its" spelled "it's."

* * *

Here's one case where I find it hard to differentiate between the "f" and the "s" of Mrs. Glasse's writing. The recipe is for chicken water. "Take a large cock, or large fowl, flay it, then bruife it with a hammer, and put it into a gallon of water, with a cruft of bread. Let it boil half away, and ftrain it off." Now, tell me, does she mean "slay it" or "flay it?"

* * *

Don't forget that little SOS of my own for help in preparing instructions for making Christmas gifts at home. I will have the ideas printed for circulation during the week October 22 to 27, which will give you all time to work them out for Christmas giving. If you know of any little article that can be easily made at home, please tell me all about it, so that I can pass on the information to the neighbors.

* * *

And if you would like to make the little flower bouquets for coats or sweaters, offered this week, send the coupon at the same time. The flowers are of wool, easily made, and add a spot of color to winter garments.

* * *

In browsing through the library the other day I thought of all the wealth of entertainment waiting there for the women of Peterborough. The use of these thousands of books is absolutely free, and two may be taken at a time for a period of two weeks. This is a source of winter enjoyment that should not be overlooked.

* * *

There is a splendid index, on the card system, but if you cannot find what you desire, the young ladies or Mr. DelaFosse will gladly help. You will find them go to infinite pains to assist.

* * *

Then there is the children's section, which should furnish an antidote to those rowdy evenings every mother must find trying. Every child will appreciate an attractive book.

* * *

The library services are open to persons living outside town, on payment of a small fee, I believe.

* * *

And now, at the end of another week, I wish to thank all those who sent unsigned helps—recipes and hints and letters. I appreciate every one, and I know, by letters I receive, that they are appreciated too, by a wide circle of neighbors.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

Lace scarf worn in the new way for evening.

Squares, triangles, oblongs—they are all here for the autumn and they ar all fashionable. And you may suit yourself about how you arrange them over your shoulders or tie them round your neck. There are all sorts of queer shapes besides—oblongs with curiously curved ends, shaped scarfs that remind you of mid-Victorian costumery. And yet as you review all the new scarfs that the fashionable shops have to offer you realize that here is a new note that in some way makes all your last season's neck accessories look rather out of date. There is a subtle delicacy and richness of color, a beauty of texture, something that is much easier to feel than to explain.

Everywhere I go to see the new frocks, hats and accessories this season I feel this note of something different that defies description or explanation. Fashions are not so very different, there is nothing in cut or silhouette that was not at least suggested six or twelve months ago, and yet after you see all the new things you go home and feel as if the clothes you have left over from last season are somehow banale and out of date.

The difference, I think, is due to the fact that all along the line from the master designer to the maker of the smallest accessory, the idea has spread that nothing merely effective, nothing second rate, nothing but the very best would answer the purpose. There is a beauty of texture about even the simplest of fabrics and a subtle blending of tone and color about the least pretentious design. This is fashion's new exaction.

With this general raising of the standards of fashion has come a revived interest in lace—real lace. It is used rather sparingly to form collars and cuffs and sometimes a jabot frill; more generously in the form of deep berthas or deep collars to trim velvet evening gowns, or if you like added separately to the evening ensemble in the guise of triangle or oblong scarf. And when the fashionable woman speaks of lace this season, she means real lace. She is no longer content with cheap make-shifts.

ENTERTAINING GUESTS

A Series Giving Hints on Arranging Parties.
By LAURA.

HALLOWE'EN

Only two more weeks until we will be parading around in disguise to some of our friends' parties, for Hallowe'en is almost here. Don't forget The Examiner's party, too, by the way. Invitations are now out for two or three parties that I know of, so you see someone must have been thinking of the approaching event even if we haven't.

It is rather difficult to find a suitable entertainment for everyone, for some will be having it for young, some for old, some for school, church and club parties, so I thought I might try to describe an eventful Hallowe'en which I had the privilege of attending. Invitations were issued in mysterious forms with a verse, which went something like this:

On Hollowe'en at half-past eight
You're bidden to a novel fete.
In sheet-and-pillow case disguise
Present yourselves—if you are wise.
Your future we'll to you disclose
Where Jack O'Lantern's garden grows;
And other things may happen, too,

On Hallowe'en to each of you!

The party was given in a huge farm house, one to which everyone was always welcome, and where everyone always had a good time, or it wasn't the hostess' fault. When we arrived, we were directed to enter through the cellar, which of course, had an outside entrance. On the huge lawn in front of the house, weird-looking ghosts paraded around, and even ventured onto the road, but one always happened to be near the door when you arrived in case you thought you might sneak in the back door. The stir in the cellar to the kitchen of the house was, to make matters worse, as far as it could possibly be from the entrance. We were guided along by another mysterious form and were permitted to touch a rope now and then to keep in line; for you understand, the cellar was absolutely dark, except for a momentary flash of a flashlight. Just as we went by a door in the passage, a long hand, or rather two appeared and we were pulled and yanked into space, only to be let go and pushed on as mysteriously as we arrived. Our hands grimly touched some poor fellow's brains (cold spaghetti); his eyes (inside of grapes).

Upstairs we found everyone having a most wonderful time. As the house was one with a centre hall plan and a huge size, our hostess only used one half it, so we were privileged to enjoy ourselves in the other part. First, of course, we had the promenade, and the judges looked gravely upon us. No one was admitted who was not in costume. In one long room, dancing was enjoyed, while Hallowe'en games passed the time merrily in the rest. The best person in the community was procured for the fortune telling, and was attractively centered in a corner of the huge hall. Tubs of apples in water, hanging apples and the usual Hallowe'en games were enjoyed.

Lunch was served in still another long room, from the table which was centred with a huge pumpkin and surrounded with autumn leaves, and consisted of sandwiches, doughnuts, and pumpkin pie. It would have been rather difficult to serve a more elaborate lunch because there were almost a hundred and fifty people there.

AFTER FIVE YEARS

Views of Examiner Readers on How to Make Married Life as Happy After Five Years as After Five Months.

The prizes in the "After Five Years" contest go to "Dagmar" and "Councillor," first and second respectively. Will "Councillor" please send her name, so that the prize may be sent—she omitted it from her letter.

"Dear Marion:

This is my first letter to your page. I am so interested in the problem of married life that I am sending my views on the subject of happiness after five years of married life.

I am married myself, but not five years. Perhaps I'll have different opinions of things then but just now I believe that the wife has a great deal to do with the success of marriage.

I believe that a man and wife should try to be as polite and to consider each other as they do their friends and strangers. This is the very best start I can think of. A few careless remarks quite often wound our loved ones very deeply.

The wife should be as neat as possible and do the same tidying up before her husband comes home or be as neat at the breakfast table as she would have been if she had been seeing him at such hours before marriage.

She does not need expensive clothes to do this. Becoming colors and girlish styles of washable materials are quite all that is needed. Four or five of these will help to keep her looking clean and attractive.

I don't believe in letting my house run me. I run it and do it so that I have some time every day for myself. Now I know that children take up a great deal of time, but just remember not to forget your husband for children or household. He fell in love with the girl who is now his wife, not the house or the baby.

The husband can help a great deal by doing or saying all those little things he plans to do but never does. After the work has gone wrong all day it is wonderful how it helps to have the husband come home with maybe a kind word or a suggestion of some sort of amusement for you. Perhaps you decide not to go, but just to know that he still thinks of your happiness helps a lot.

I've come to the conclusion that men will never remember where they put things or to put them at all, so you may as well make the best of it, and save a great deal of nagging or talk by doing it yourself. Then when he says, "Where is"? you know.

I get a great deal of satisfaction from the fact that I can remember where, even if the lordly male can't.

Of course, there is the question of money. It seems that some husbands have a very poor idea of their wife's judgment in this matter. Some of them don't use much judgment, but perhaps if they got the chance they could do just as well as some of the men do. I have no complaint here at all myself. I have the handling of the money and paying of the bills but I pay them every one. I also have an account of every nickle I have or do spend so if I'm ever asked what I've done with a certain dime I can hand over my account book and it speaks for itself. I know that to the person spending a dollar it isn't nearly as large as to the one earning it. In some cases it is the girl's fault if she has no money for her needs, because in the start they made no arrangement as to money and things just drifted along until now the money drifts from his hand to his pocket.

I don't believe in each one going out with their friends as much as they did before. I think that your husband or wife should be your best pal and friend. In this way they both have the same friends and interest. When each one has his own particular friends and amusements in a very short time, if they have to spend an evening or holiday together, they have nothing interesting to both that they can do or even talk about.

Now if I can just do all these things and they work out as I believe they will, then my home will be a place where happiness is after five years or even twenty-five years.

Yours hopefully,
Councillor."

Dear Marion:

I know many instances of young people having a cottage of their own or nearly so, who were satisfied to begin married life with three rooms.

I know of others who began in style but their grocers could tell of heavy bills against them.

How many doctors and ministers do we know who were once school teachers, earning only three hundred or little more a year, who saved on this and put themselves through a university course. Seldom do you hear of these thrifty people getting a divorce. What is the argument? It seems hard work and economy do not make for unhappiness.

Then it must be laziness, waste and style that does. Ay! that's the rub—a great deal.

How shall we make one another happy after marriage? How do you make Mother and Father happy? (Did you ever?) Honor them of course. Well, don't all of you see a thousand chances a day to do little acts of honor? The same way brothers and sisters can live together a lifetime. It is all common sense and if there is any religion in you—it is "superlative common sense." You will disagree sometimes but remember how you pray—"Forgive us, we forgive." I believe in people being frank and talking clarified life over before marriage. You can always give each other credit for being open minded. If fortune sends ill luck, bear it together cheerfully.

—Constance.

YOUR friends will soon tell you how much better you are looking when you begin the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This is the best proof that it is no imagination on your part and that this restorative treatment does positively restore health and vigor to the nervous system.

Women's nerves seem to be set at a very high tension. They are kept up by excitement but when the reaction comes there is liable to be a collapse of the nerves.

Then there comes weeks of struggle to regain health and vigor and to get free from headaches, sleeplessness and feelings of discouragement and fatigue.

But happily the old system of deadening the nerves with narcotics has given way to the rebuilding of the depleted nervous system by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

The results accomplished by this popular restorative are truly wonderful and swiftly the word is passed from one to another so that many thousands of women now know just what to use when feeling tired and nervous.

WARSAW

Just the day after the twenty-fifth celebration of the W.I. in Warsaw, a letter was received from Mrs. Gale, Saanich, B.C., in which she wrote: "I wish to congratulate you in having reached this, your twenty-fifth anniversary, and would like very much to be with you that day on such an occasion, and help celebrate. Although I cannot be in person, I will be in spirit. I am proud to think I was one of the organizers, and am proud of what you have done in the past and look for even more in the future.

This letter to be read at your anniversary meeting.

Again wishing you one and all every success.

I remain,
An Old Friend,
NELLIE GALE."

It is Mrs. George Weller, president last year, to whom the idea of a banquet for the celebration is due. Mrs. Weller's name was unfortunately omitted from those of the past presidents.

It was well after ten o'clock p.m. before the last number on the program was reached and Dorcas Lloyds recitation, "The Cattle Thief," had to be omitted.

Dr. Munro, as toastmaster, spoke of the long, long time to look forward to twenty-five years, and the very short time it seems to look back. The Women's Institute is of use to the community as the Ladies' Aid is to the church. All are benefitted by what they have done.

Mrs. Ellen Brown, one of the first seven members replied to the toast to the first members. She well remembered the first meeting, and since moving away from Warsaw has always kept in touch with the Institute. She takes The Peterborough Examiner, and always looks for the news. She considers the Women's Institute the greatest institution on the face of the earth, and it is now well over the whole earth. Then she spoke of the need of a proper hall.

She read a short story of a young Scot, who was slow at proposing.

There was community singing, "Maple Leaf" and "We'll Never Let The Old Flag Fall."

Reeve Hawthorne replied to the toast to the municipal council. He appreciated anything done for or by the Women's Institute. He was glad to be at the banquet, where there was such a gathering together, and so much good fellowship. The Women's Institute ask the council, and the council asks them, and they are always willing to do all they can.

Mr. C. A. Crowe, a representative of Douro, brought greetings. He was born in Dummer, and thought a great deal of Dummer. He might have been an Abraham Lincoln if he had had the chance. He was proud of the people of Douro.

In her reply to the toast, Mrs. Thomas Cooper said we owed a great debt of gratitude to the pioneers. As a member of the confederate board, she brought greeting from that body, and gave a good recipe for happiness.

Mrs. Adamson (nee Cressa Crowe) recited "The Mustard Plaster."

In replying to the toast to the men, Mr. Rufus Payne said a man could not be a good husband without being a gentleman, and went on to say that the women must remember it is a sacrifice to have them go to these meetings.

Mr. Henry Batten sang "Mary of Argyle." In his reply to the toast to the clergy, Rev. H. B. Herrington stated that their work was principally trying to keep people straight. A minister's work is to seek to stimulate visions into fellowship with God through Jesus Christ. If not doing that he should be at some other task.

Mr. W. S. Anderson told two of his inimitable stories.

Mr. E. Hawthorne replied to the toast to Canada, the best country we know. It is the biggest subject one could have. Nothing to compare with it, Canada stands alone. The homes of Canada make the country, and the Women's Institute works for the homes and for the country.

He explained a few things about the Farmer's Institute, but it became involved in politics. He warned the Women's Institute to keep out of politics. The men are glad to help the women, for they know what they are getting at the meeting will reflect in the home. He spoke of the hall, and told of the previous halls, suggested getting something ahead for a hall of proper dimensions.

Mrs. Charles Foster sang "Just A-Wearying For You."

Mr. and Mrs Rufus Payne sang "Love's Old Sweet Song."

Mr. John Rose had travelled a long way but was glad to get back to Warsaw, no prettier spot. He, too, praised the W.I. and spoke of the need of a proper hall.

Tommy Davis gave a violin solo.

In replying to the toast to the Institute, Mrs. David Miller expressed gratitude to those who were present, to the first members who had blazed the way. The Institute means so much, gives such an opportunity to the mother with children at school, gives an opportunity for all to meet on equal ground.

The men who helped did not think of sacrifice, they had come gladly, and seemed to enjoy themselves. It was impossible to get all who had ever been members, for the hall would not hold them, but an effort had been made to have members of the first year, and all the presidents and secretary-treasurers there. It was to be regretted that Mrs. A. F. Choate, first president, was unable to be present, the two next presidents were too far away, Mrs. Arthur Edwards, war-time president could not come; Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Weller were present. Some of the old members had passed away, some were too far away, some were ill, or caring for those who are.

Dr. Munro spoke of the beauties of Warsaw. People go long distances, but fail to see the beauties lying near our home.

Bobbie Burns would find abundance of material here.

The Institute Ode and "Auld Lang Syne" were sung, and a successful evening came to an end.

A Correction.

In last week's historical review it is regretted that the name of a past president, Mrs. George Weller, was inadvertently omitted.

LAKEFIELD

At an early date which will be announced shortly, the committee on Historical Research will present a report on their work at an open meeting of the Institute to be held in the Town Hall in the evening and to which all persons interested will be invited, and more especially, the older inhabitants and those associated with Lakefield's early history, for one can only feel that the report is the beginning and not the end, and that from the testimony of "old timers" the report will be enriched and improved. An opportunity will be given for reminiscences and no doubt they will prove a highly interesting feature. The programme will be informal and ample opportunity for discussion will be allowed. The fact that the old records were destroyed in the Town Hall fire ten years ago makes the work rather more difficult, but all available sources of accurate information are being tapped, and one hopes for an interesting evening.

One paper will be devoted to interesting people who have lived here and when one considers the many lines in which Lakefield's sons and daughters have distinguished themselves, one feels the list will be lengthy and full of local interest.

Lucky?

When she comes to the footlights to acknowledge Broadway's applause of her marvelous dancing in "Sidewalks of New York," theatre-goers sit forward to admire her youthful charms; the fresh crispness of her rose-petal skin and her gleaming black hair. She's Virginia Clark, of 143 Twenty-Third St., Jackson Heights, New York City.

"When friends say I'm lucky to have such clear skin and soft, shining hair" says Miss Clark, "I have to tell them it isn't luck at all. In my case, it's the result of care. For my hair, I use the simple method that's all the rage among New York girls now. It's so easy. All you do is put a little Danderine on your brush each time you use it. This makes my scalp feel just grand and keeps away all dandruff. It keeps my hair and scalp so clean I don't have to shampoo nearly as often as I did. It makes my hair soft and easy to dress; holds it in place; and gives it more lustre than brilliantine!"

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair; brings out its natural color; makes it fairly sparkle. Dandruff disappears when you use Danderine. Waves, set with it, stay in longer. It isn't oily and doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles. Over five million used a year.

Miss Milly Wilson acted as bridesmaid and wore a becoming gown of old rose colored georgette trimmed with satin faced canton crepe of the same shade. She wore a fur necklet and her hat was rose color of contrasting shades.

She carried a bouquet of pink ophelia roses and fern. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Thomas Busby who carried out the duties of best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parent on Wilson avenue. The decorations were carried out in pink and white streamers festooning the living room and forming a large cluster over the bride's cake which occupied the centre of the table. Mr. and Mrs. Busby left amid showers of confetti and good wishes by the 3.30 train C.P.R. for Toronto, for a short wedding trip. On their return they will reside on Frank street. The young couple have been the recipients of a large number of pretty and useful gifts including a table lamp from the bride's former fellow workers at the Westclox and a casserole and silver stand from St. George's A.Y.P.A. of which organization the bride held the office of vice-president for the past season.

CRAIGHEAD—ALLISON.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday afternoon at 1.30, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Allison, in the presence of the immediate families, when their elder daughter, Mabel Lexa, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Reginald S. Craighead, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Craighead, Campbellford. Rev. J. E. Todd officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked very pretty in a dress of biege lace over peach crepe. She carried a bouquet of butterfly roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Elva Nugent played the wedding march and during the signing of the register Miss Freda Allison sang very sweetly "At Dawning."

After a buffet luncheon, Mr. Craighead and his bride left amid showers of confetti on their honeymoon to Ottawa and Montreal. The bride travelled in a tailored gown of midnight blue cloth, with fox fur.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Craighead will reside near Campbellported wounded a second time.

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday at 1 o'clock in St. George's Anglican church, when Mabel Loretta, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scott, of 3 Wilson avenue, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Arthur Busby, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Busby, Cottesmore avenue. Rev. J. L. Hughes, rector, officiated, and Mrs. R. King presided at the organ. Vases of chysanthemums and dahlias had been placed on the altar and plants arranged on the chancel steps.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who afterwards gave her away. She wore a pretty gown of biege colored georgette with silver trimming, the skirt being caught up in front to form a

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"DEAR MARION,

I understand your daily page in The Examiner is a Women's Page, but I believe the men share equally with the women in the treats received from this most interesting page. Therefore I am going to beg space for a few lines just to prove the ladies are not alone interested in the daily reading, letters, recipes, etc.

The one thing I regret about the Women's Page is that it had not started long ago. The housewives have been trying out the various recipes, and, speaking from experience, because I have tested quite a number of them, I can assure you they are excellent. I do not believe that men who live in homes where The Examiner is read will any longer find it necessary to dine in restaurants in order to get a good meal, because excellent meals are now being prepared at home.

I fully believe that the Women's Page is one of the most interesting ventures The Examiner has yet set out to accomplish.

Wishing you every success with your page,

I remain,
One Greatly Interested."
Bailieboro.

This, indeed, is nice. Praise from the lordly male is praise indeed! I'm very glad to know that the recipes sent in by the neighbors have helped solve that difficult problem, "Why do men eat downtown?" And I'm pleased, too, to know that some men read the page. That's why I'm encouraging the women to tell here their opinions of menfolk—perhaps the messages may get across.

"Dear Marion,

If the enclosed is of use to you, I am glad to be able to send it. You are certainly a welcome addition to our 'own' paper. We needed a Women's Page. The Globe has the Homemaker; the Mail has Bride Broder, and now we are on an equality. We have Marion.

May your shadow never grow less.

Again thanking you for all previous helps,

Yours truly,
Quo Vadis."

Thank you for your appreciation, Quo Vadis, but especially for the sweet little poem. I shall use it on Saturday, gladly—I don't know when I read anything with so much feeling. It is so sweetly poignant.

Indeed, there's no fear of my shadow growing less—I'm afraid this work agrees with me so well that I'll have to start a diet. And Christmas just around the corner with all its boxes of chocolates! Isn't it awful?

"Dear Marion,

I hope these few helps may be of use to some one. So far I have done very little for your, or our, page, but I enjoy it very much.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. M."

Qmemee.

Indeed yes, Mrs. M., your helps are much appreciated. The recipe for Hungarian Goulash looks particularly tempting, and that stove polish idea looks really worth while. Thanks a lot—and write soon again.

"Dear Marion:

I am another young girl, who enjoys reading your page, I think it is the best page in the paper. You have such a nice way of expressing things. I think everyone should read it. I noticed some say they like to read your page first, but I like to leave it until last, and read and re-read it.

I am very fond of sewing, so am sending in the coupon for some helps. I will close with best wishes to you. The neighbors too, who are so good to send in their ideas and recipes.

Flora."

Yours is a very nice letter, Flora, and I thank you very sincerely for it. I hope the helps are just what you want.

"Dear Marion,

I am glad to help by passing on the following:

If in breaking eggs you get in a bit of shell, just take the edge of the egg-shell and it will pick it up, and when baking cake, cut a piece of wax or wrapping paper to fit the bottom of pan, do not grease or flour the latter.

Mrs. Wm. K. Long."

Havelock, Ont.

Thanks, Mrs. Long, for your hint. I'm sure the neighbors will find it useful.

"Dear Marion,

I saw a letter sent you by a lady, telling how she cured her child of infantile paralysis, and now I cannot find the paper it was in. Have you still got her letter? I save up my papers as a rule, but fail to find the one that was in, and am very sorry I did not clip it out then, as sometimes our neighbors get the paper and forget to return it. I thought the item valuable information, as it's a very dangerous disease.

I hope you will still have the letter and can send me a copy. I have several young grandchildren that might take the disease, and then I would know what to do. You see, I am an old grandmother.

I turn to your column soon as the paper comes in, and enjoy all of it. It is a helpful one too. I will fill in the coupon for your helps this week, as I make little things for my grandchildren.

Wishing your column success,
I remain, yours,
Mrs. W. L."

Havelock.

I am delighted to have your letter, Mrs. W. L., and to be of this small service to you. A copy of the paper referred to has been mailed to you. I'm glad you find the page helpful.

Thanks for the hint on breaking eggs, which I will print soon. Do write soon again, a longer letter.

"Dear Marion,

Would you, if it is possible, please send me the instructions for making a camiknicker, also the coolie coat, which I would like very much.

Could you suggest any nice Christmas gifts I could make at home? Some are for my school chums and others for correspondence friends in a club, all girls between 10 and 14.

Margareta."

All the helps on hand have been sent to you, Margareta. As for the gifts, I am preparing a "help" to be issued soon, telling about home-made Christmas gifts. There's a lot of work in it, and I'm really rushed, but I expect to offer it week after next, which will give time for you to work on it. I'll send you a copy just as soon as it is printed. Pen wipers made from flannel, linen handkerchiefs with the desired initial worked in the corner, or a bouquet of wool flowers, instructions for which are offered this week, would be good, don't you think?

"Dear Marion,

I am glad to help by passing on the following: For the little people whose hair will catch in bib strings, use one wide piece of tape with a buttonhole made at one end to fasten to a button placed on the opposite side of the bib, instead of the usual two strings.

Lorraine."

Thanks, Lorraine. I'm sure a lot of mothers, AND little girls, will appreciate this hint. Write again and send more ideas like it!

The Picture Explained

The picture above a portion of the plans of a long-hidden treasure which consisted of six heavy chests each filled with bars of solid gold. The Adventurer who buried the chests kept this record of the contents of each one.

Which are Equal—What is Total

Two of the treasure chests contain an equal number of bars of gold. Can you find the equal chests? Start at No. 1 and total the figures on the outside of the chest, then do the same with each of the rest. When you find two that total the same, write their numbers down. ALSO, underneath, write in figures the total of the whole treasure. Note that all the figures are single, running from two to nine, and there are no ones. FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS and if you are correct and win, your prize will be a treasure indeed. RUSH YOUR ANSWER.

Follow These Rules to Win

1. Find the two chests containing equal amounts and also find the total contained in all the chests.
2. Write the numbers of the two equal chests (such as, "One and Five") in ink plainly and neatly in the centre of a square sheet of paper, and underneath write in figures the total of the whole treasure.
3. Write your name (Mr., Mrs. or Miss) and full address, also the name of this paper, in the top right hand corner.
4. No one connected with our Company may compete.
5. In case of a tie the Judges will be allowed to state whether a final decision shall be reached through general appearance or a new six-hunchee puzzle.
6. The Judging Committee will consist of three gentlemen in no way connected with us. Their decision shall be final.

Absolutely No Selling to Do

YOU WILL POSITIVELY NOT HAVE TO SELL OUR GOODS TO WIN. Our Company has paid THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS TO HUNDREDS OF SUCCESSFUL PEOPLE during the past year just for advertising purposes. Contestants will be asked to make a very small sample purchase. RUSH YOUR ANSWER — YOU HAVE EVERYTHING TO GAIN. PLEASE SEND STAMP FOR REPLY.

Every qualified contestant will receive an immediate reward (value 50c to $5.00) regardless of any other prize.

Are You Ready When your Children Cry for it

BABY has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is a vegetable product. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea which must be checked without delay. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

DR. R. J. CONROY HIGHLY PRAISED

Jackson County Medical Association Passes Resolution of Regret.

HE WAS ITS FOUNDER.

Appreciation of the efforts of Dr. Robert J. Conroy, formerly of this city, was expressed in a motion passed by the Jackson County Medical Society on receipt of news of his sudden and accidental death. Mr. Conroy was largely instrumental in organizing the society, which forwarded a copy of its resolution of regret and condolence to his parents in this city.

The Jackson County Medical Society, in regular session, Wednesday, evening, September 20, 1928 unanimously approved the following resolution:

Whereas, Robert J. Conroy, M.D., was the physician directly responsible for the organization of the Jackson County Medical Society, the first meeting being held at his suggestion and at his invitation in his home in Medford, Oregon, on the evening of May 13, 1921, and:

Whereas, Dr. Conroy always manifested the most lively and active interest in the welfare of the Medical Society, being one of the most faithful in attendance at the meetings and in many other ways showing his deep concern for the advancement of medicine and surgery; and:

Whereas, now, by the interposition of Divine Providence, he has been removed from the sphere of earthly activities;

Be it resolved by the Jackson Medical Society, in regular session assembled:

That the medical profession and particularly the Jackson County Medical Society, has lost a valuable member in the death of Robert J. Conroy, and that each member of the Society feels a sense of personal sorrow at his death.

Also, be it resolved that the Jackson County Medical Society hereby extends to the bereaved family, especially to Mrs. Conroy, and to his parents, the sincere sympathy of all the members.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be spread on the minutes, a copy to be sent to Mrs. Conroy, and to the parents of Dr. Conroy; also, copies shall be sent to the local papers.

By order of the Jackson County Medical Society.

By the Committee:

Wm. W. P. Holt,
E. W. Shockley,
James C. Hayes.

A HALLOWE'EN PASSWORD

Our password last week was "Gratitude." It was the easiest one we had this year. I think most of the members guessed it because the title of our contest was "One Good Turn Deserves Another."

Well, now that everybody is thinking about getting ready for Hallowe'en, we must have a password that is fitting to the occasion. So here it is:

My FIRST is a boy's name; my SECOND is the fifteenth letter of the alphabet; my THIRD is something in which a light is carried. My WHOLE is something that is common on Hallowe'en.

Now, make a guess! And don't all shout at once—it's so easy that it's hardly any riddle at all. If you can figure it out, drop me a postcard with it written out and tell me if you like this kind of a password better than the jumbled-up-letter passwords that we have been using heretofore.

HUNTERS TAKE NOTE

That the dates of the open season this year for deer, moose and caribou are:

North of the main line of the Canadian Government Railway, from Quebec to the Manitoba boundary, September 15 to November 25, inclusive. North of the Mattawa River and main line of Canadian Pacific Railway to Heron Bay on North Shore of Lake Superior and South of main line of the Canadian National, October 20 to November 15, inclusive. North of Lake Nipissing and French River and South of Canadian Pacific main line to Heron Bay on North shore of Lake Superior, November 1 to 25, inclusive, except on St. Joseph's Island in District of Algoma where season is November 10 to 25 inclusive. South of the French and Mattawa Rivers, November 5 to November 20, inclusive.

Meteorologists predict very pleasant weather this fall with no likelihood of an early freezing and oldtimers say the game is universally plentiful.

If you require information regarding the best locations, about game laws, licenses and train service to the hunting country, ask any agent of the Canadian Pacific. Booklet on request.

IN POLICE COURT

W. H. Merrell, an agent for the Gardner Seed Company of Rochester, N.Y., appeared in police court this morning before Magistrate O. A. Langley charged with falsely advertising seed. A plea of not guilty was entered by the defendant's lawyer, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K. C., and after all the evidence had been heard, judgment was reserved until next Friday. Last May the government inspector visited the store of R. C. Heard, where Mr. Merrell kept some of his seed. He took a sample from a bag of alfalfa seed which had been opened and was marked Number 1. The inspector had the seed examined and found that it graded Number 2 and instead of being stained as all imported seed is required to be under the Seed Act it was the natural color of the Ontario seed. When the inspector examined the seed, he said, he found dodder weed seed in it. The market price for Number 1 seed, witness said, was $21.50 and Mr. Merrell was charging $22.50 a bushel for what he was selling.

R. C. Heard and William Succee both denied selling any of this alfalfa seed. Mr. Gordon asked for a dismissal and did not offer any evidence in defence but put in several judgments by other judicial officers. From the evidence submitted it would appear that although Mr. Merrell was delivering inferior seed, according to the analysis of the department, he was only acting as agent for the Gardner Seed Company, which is in the United States.

Elwood Northey appeared on a charge of criminal negligence while driving his car on Charlotte street on the night of September 19 and was bailed for trial to come before His Honor Judge Huycke at the December Sessions of the Peace. Bail of $1,500 was required.

A local man pleaded guilty of being intoxictaed in a public place and was fined $10 and costs.

Hon. P. J. Veniot, postmaster-general, who says he will resign if overruled in the Simcoe, Ont., postmaster dispute.

WORK AT KNOX ALL COMPLETED

Halls and Meeting Rooms Re-Decorated To Correspond With Church.

DR. ENDICOTT COMING.

All the work of decorating and furnishing has been completed in Knox Church. The halls and various rooms at the rear of the main auditorium have been painted and decorated to correspond with the main building.

Messrs. Boreham and Morrisson, a local firm, were in charge of this work, and have made a fine example of their craftsmanship in colors and finish.

Since all the work is now finished to the satisfaction of those entrusted with planning it, the congregation is looking to take on a new era of activity in the various departments of church work. The ladies are preparing for the Laymen's Supper meeting next Thursday night, and the Church will be opened to welcome all who can come to hear Dr. James Endicott, Ex-Moderator of the General Council, who is to give the main address that evening.

WILL ATTEND JAMBOREE

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—At a conference here of Boy Scout Commissioners of the various Provinces at Dominion Headquarters of the Boy Scouts' Association it was decided that Canada would be represented next summer in the gathering of 30,000 Scouts, brought from all over the world, for the great jamboree to be held near Birkenhead, England, to mark the twenty-first birthday of scouting.

Plans were made for a minimum of two complete Scout troops, the final size of the contingent to depend upon the number of boys it was possible to send from each Province. Boys will be selected for their records as Scouts, at school, and in employment, and must be at least 14 years of age on Jan. 1 next. The contingent will assemble for training and embarkation at Montreal.

Tries To Take Cannon From Citadel Joke Victim Sues Officer When Stopped

QUEBEC, October 12. — One of these gentle jokers, surely a descendant of the famous New Yorker who sold Brooklyn Bridge to a corn-fed visitor, has just given local courts its strangest case, through persuading a perfectly respectable resident that, if he coveted for his front lawn one of those pre-conquest cannon, that peer over citadel battlements, all he had to do was to ask for it.

For, as the covetous one was stopped when trying to "pry a cannon loose," he promptly claimed $60.00 from an officer of the garrison for time and effort wasted.

Before Magistrate Gagnon, the evidence showed that, after the joker had handed out his priceless "tip," his victim at once went to the drill hall and asked the officer if he could carry home one of the old guns. Being a genial soul and thinking the whole thing was a joke, the officer replied "Sure, if you can take it." With that, the collector started work that lasted four days, trying to move the weapon from its concrete base. Then he was notified his farce had gone far enough.

But he was taking the thing seriously. Hence the court claim.

"There is no man of sense in Canada who would think that the citadel cannon belong to those who can carry them away," was the court's judgment, as the claim was dismissed.

For the sake of all concerned, the names of the parties have been suppressed.

CHRYSLER genius produces a wizardry of Style and Value

New Chrysler "75" 5-passenger Coupe (with rumble seat), $2250
(Wire wheels extra)

IT IS PERFECTLY apparent that the new Chrysler "75" and "65," in the richness of their dress and the marvelous efficiency of their performance, reach upward and outdo cars far, far beyond them in price.

They are readily singled out by a host of distinctive features of the style that re-styles all motor cars—new slender-profile chromium-plated radiator, "arched-window" silhouette, unusual grace in the sweep of the "air-wing" fenders.

The new Chryslers also have the "Silver-Dome" high-compression engine using any fuel—counterweighted 7-bearing crankshaft—unusual safety and ease of internal-expanding hydraulic 4-wheel brakes, efficient in any weather, and shock absorbers.

There is no wizardry in such additions of greater value—they have their source and explanation in the solid, substantial manufacturing policy of Standardized Quality, originated by and peculiar to Chrysler, which passes on to its cars of lesser price the quality features of it cars of highest price.

If there is the shadow of a doubt in your mind of the working-efficiency of this unique principle—closely compare the "75" and "65" with the best cars you can find selling for hundreds of dollars more.

New Chrysler "75" Prices—Royal Sedan, $2250; 2-passenger Coupe (with rumble seat), $2250; Roadster (with rumble seat), $2255; Town Sedan, $2420.

New Chrysler "65" Prices—Business Coupe, $1490; Roadster (with rumble seat), $1485; 2-door Sedan, $1515; Touring Car, $1525; 4-door Sedan, $1620; Coupe (with rumble seat), $1620.

JOHNSON MAY RETURN TO SENATORS

MAY SUCCEED 'BUCKY' HARRIS

Up To E. B. McLean Whether Baseball Player Is Given Release.

HAS YEAR TO GO.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (U.P.).—Paul Block, owner of the Newark baseball club, yesterday left it to Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, to decide whether he should release Walter Johnson, Newark Bears manager, to manage the Washington Senators next season.

Block said that McLean had been instrumental in getting Johnson for Newark, and he thought McLean was the man to say whether Johnson should go back.

Block said he would not stand in Johnson's way, and that if McLean decided Johnson, in his own interests, ought to accept, Johnson was free to do so.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (U.P.). — Clark Griffith, president of het Washington Senators, will sign Walter Johnson, former National pitcher, to manage the club next year if he can obtain his release from the Newark club of the International League, he said yesterday.

"I certainly would like to have Johnson if he can get his release," Griffith said.

The Senators' president, however, indicated that he would take no part in negotiations Johnson may have with Paul Block, owner of the Newark team, toward obtaining his release.

Johnson's contract as manager of the Newark team still has a year to run.

BEST IN GAME TO MATCH WITS

Genaro Says He Will Punch Belanger Full of Holes On Monday.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—If Manny Seamon lines up behind Frenchy Belanger on Monday night when he fights Frankie Genaro for the world's flyweight championship, and "Doc" Casey seconds the champion, who arrived yesterday morning, the two best handlers of boxers in the ring will match wits on that memorable occasion.

Monsieur Casey was in Jack Delaney's corner in all his principal battles, and also seconded Andre Routis, the new featherweight titleholder. Joe Glick has also enjoyed the benefit of his sage advice.

Seamon was Benny Leonard's chief adviser when he was monarch of the lightweight division, and it is significant that he was never defeated. The retired champion always gives Seamon credit for much of his success. There is one thing sure, and that is that Belanger will have no reason to complain of his handling if Seamon swings a towel for him at the Coliseum on Monday night.

Genaro looks to be in what "Doc" Casey calls the "peak of condition." He will punch holes through Belanger this time, according to Casey, and remove him for good and all from the ranks of the contenders. "Genaro in my opinion, and I have seen them all from Jimmy Wilde's time, is the smartest piece of fighting machinery in the ring. Belanger is in for a lacing."

All of which may be so, but Davy Garrity naturally dissents. The manager of the challenger points out that Frenchy, when he was right, edged a decision over Genaro, and would not have lost to him in their second meeting if he hadn't been stale from overwork. He will be right for the third clash.

Belanger will return to-day from New York, where he has been doing his training. All reports from the camp are of the most encouraging nature, and it will be a different and better Belanger who will box Genaro on Monday night from the washed-out boy who lost his championship to him some six months or more ago.

MID-HASTINGS TEACHERS MEET

the audience with a piano solo "Dancing Waves." Two violin solos played with marked ability and calling for an encore were then listened to. The violinist was T. Llewellyn Jones, and the accompaist, Mrs. W. Litt. The numbers were "Andante Pettit Rondi (Charles Danila), and "Canzonetta" (D. Ambriosi," and the encore, "Humoresque," by request. This was the second appearance of Mr. Jones before a local audience as violin soloist, an dthe triumph scored by him on Thursday evening marks him out as an artist of whom more will in future be heard. "Souviner De Sorrento," by Guido Papini, and "Tarantelle," by Ignaz Lachner, were other numbers played by him before the close of the program, for which he was accorded a great ovation.

Eight scholars trained by Miss Reta Kennedy, put on a very pretty Butter Drill which won much applause.

Mr. J. F. Baker contributed further to the success of the concert by singing, "I Love a Lassie."

Miss Elsie Williams and Mrs. (Dr.) D. Thomson were able accompanists for some of the numbers.

Inspector McGuire moved, and S. H. Connor seconded a vote of thanks to those responsible for the splendid concert, and the session adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem. The teachers to the number of more than one hundred appeared to be very pleased with the various arrangements made for their stay in Marmora.

EASTERN GOLFERS LEAD MONTREALERS

Andy King and Jimmy Johnstone Beat Murray and Wakelam.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—Andy Kay of Lambton, and Jimmie Johnston of Rosedale, Toronto professional golfers, will go into the second eighteen holes of the 72-hole match with Charlie Murray of Royal Montreal, and Ernie Wakelam of Brockville, at Brockville, today with a three-hole lead. Yesterday over the Royal Montreal course Kay and Johnston finished the first eighteen holes of the match with a three-hole advantage over their opponents. The third eighteen holes will be played at Lambton in Toronto on Monday, and the match will be finished at Rosedale, Toronto, Tuesday. The match calls for a side wager of $500 a side.

The Kay-Johnston duo led Murray and Wakelam one up at the end of the first nine, and increased this margin by two on the incoming nine. Murray and Wakelam got away to a good start, winning the first hole, when Wakelam shot a birdie four. From then on, however, they failed to win a hole. The Toronto pair evened the match on the sixth, when Jimmie Johnston took a par four. They took the lead on the ninth after halving the seventh and eighth when both Kay and Johnston sunk par fives against Murray's six and Wakelam's seven.

The tenth was halved, but the Ontario pair increased their lead by winning the eleventh. Neither team scored on the next four holes, but on the sixteenth both Johnston and Kay shot par fours to increase their margin to three up. The 17th and 18th were both halved.

HOLMES HEADS TORONTO CLUB

Former Hockey Player Will Manage Millionaires This Season.

DELSON FOR COUGARS.

HAMILTON, Oct. 13.— Harry Holmes, who has been protecting nets in professional hockey for some eighteen winters, is really 'Happy' Holmes now. He is through with the game as a player, having been granted his unconditional release by the Detroit Hockey Club, and now he is the manager of the Toronto Millionaires.

During the two years Detroit has enjoyed N. H. L. campaigning, Holmes has been the regular goaltender, missing only a game or two. He led the tough life of a net custodian on a losing team the first seeason, but he survived and helped in the all-round improvement of last winter.

Th' spring, however, "Hap" made up his mind to look for a berth on the bench. He didn't have to look, for "Teddy" Oke, owner of the Kitchener Millionaires at that time, came along with a managerial offer. Holmes accepted conditionally and applied for his release, while Oke proceeded with his plan of moving the Millionaires to Toronto. Finally, at a conference the other day, the Cougars handed Holmes his release and wished him luck as a pilot.

Going to Toronto as a mentor, "Happy" will be back in the city where he played his first pro hockey and where he played lacrosse as well. He plans to move from Windsor to the Queen city next week and take charge of the hockey workouts at once.

Dolson To Get Job?

The release of the veteran means, apparently, that the Cougars will rely entirely upon "Dolly" Dolson for the 1928-29 goal-tending. Dolson, purchased this spring from Stratford, has never played a game of National league hockey, but he was the outstanding minor league goalie last winter, when he never allowed more than three shots to beat him in any game. The Detroit Hockey club, of course, also owns Herbie Stuart, first-string goalie with the Olympics, and "Porky" Levine, his understudy.

Manager Jack Adams landed in Detroit Wednesday and will be busy signing up his talent for the next few days. All players have been ordered to report for training next week.

Another puck-chaser who makes his home on the border will be appearing in new company this season. Charlie McVeigh, the popular "Rabbit" of the Chicago Black Hawks, has been sold to the New York Americans. He has been ordered to report to Manager Tommy Gorman at New Haven on October 25, Charlie has been working at the Ford plant in Detroit all summer.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By a Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, the question of the week seems to be if Mister Babe Ruth could do what he done with 1 bum knee what would happened to them St. Louis Cards if Mister Ruth hadda gone into the serious on crutches? Him and Mister Lou Gehrig, which I call Columbia Lou, just naturally made a mess outa perfectly good world's serious, and while everybody is calling the Yanks a great ball team and everybody is right, did you ever stop to figger that if Mister Ruth and Mister Gehrig hadda changed places with Mister Bottomley and Mister Hafey the Cards woulda come close to copping? Nobody on either team did any hitting to shout about except them lambusting laddie bucks, but what they did was plenty for a coupla teams.

To be honest, Mac, I was a Card rooter in that serious, but I'm glad for 1 thing the New Yorkers made a clean sweep. It left them birds what is always figgering out these world's serious games is all fixed so as to get the most money outa the customers without a leg to stand on. You know in that last game when Mister Hoyt uncoiled a crazy throw to 2nd and 1 little old Mister Maranville, which I call the Rabbit, hobbled in with a soft run, you could hear some of them 1-min.-eggs say: "What did I tell you? He threw that 1 away so they'd hafta play another game." But Mister Ruth knocked that crazy idea right over the right field pavilion at St. Louis. And that was that.

By the way, Mac, I listened to Mister Graham McNamee broadcasting them games. Ain't he got a style all his own? For instance, suppose Mister McNamee was reporting a meeting of the Peterborough City Council, we'd go along something like this:

"Hello, folks, here we are. . . . I wish you could see this Council Chamber. I'm sitting right here at the front of the room and near me is the Mayor's seat and then the aldermen's desks, and back of them the seats where the citizens sit and think, that's if they ever think. . . . And outside you can hear the traffic on—what's the name of that avenue—oh, yes, Simcoe avenue. . . . Wait a minute, folks, until I get this straightened out. . . . It's Simcoe street—not avenue. . . . Here comes Mayor Rolly Denne and Ald. Phelan. . . . Just a minute—no it isn't. . . . I musta been thinking of two other fellows. . . . The city clerk has just come in. . . . One-Eyed Connelly has crashed the gate. . . . The aldermen are all in their places and I think the session is going to begin. . . . Yes, the Mayor is clearing his throat. . . . Will, you tell me why Mayors always want to clear their throats just whtn the show is going to start? . . . Well, anyway they're ready, and they're off. . . . Oh. Phil!"

Yes, Mac, we ain't got no baseball championships. Them Copper Cliff lads took the long jump down here last Sat., and when they pulled out the next a.m. the intermediate title went with them. On the day's play they earned the laurels. They's many a way winning a championship, but not many a pennant is win by fellows with their bat on their shoulder while the 3rd strike is smoking over. This Mister Cloutier struck out 19 of the Rays, and I ain't never seen so many birds take the last strike without a swing. Any time a heaver gets almost a score by the air route he's about entitled to win his ball game, and Mister Cloutier did, with something to spare. He got much help from Mister Charlie Drennan what used to shortstop for Cobourg when Dick Turpin's town was something more than just a bumper to keep the ferry from running up on shore, and from the half-pint manager. Mister Bert Flynn, an old stable mate of our own Mister Shiner Johnston. Mister Drennan did some damaging hitting, while Mister Flynn ran bases like a scared jack-rabbit and wound up as a pinch catcher. Anyway the Rays has hadda great season and deserve all kinds of credit.

Oh, yes, speaking of hockey, I hear the wheels is beginning to move. We'll be in there all right. More in my next.

In the meanwhile, toodle-loo.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

EXPECT AMATEUR ATHLETIC MEET. DECEMBER 6-8

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 13.—Although it has not yet been officially announced, and the announcement has to come from John Leslie of Edmonton, the secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, who has been taking a mail vote as to the dates, it is fairly well understood that annual meeting of the union will be held on Dec. 6, 7, and 8. The place as announced will be Port Arthur.

meeting is likely to be a stormy one.

Walter Hagen Leads In Exhibition Play

RYE, N.Y., Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—Walter Hagen, British open champion, shot a 71 to lead three other professional stars in an 18-hole medal play exhibition at the Westchester-Biltmore Club here yesterday. The exhibition was for the benefit of the Catholic Writers' Guild of America.

The Haig was out in 36, even, par figures, and came back in 35, one under par. The 71 total was three strokes better than the next best score, made by Johnny Farrell, American open title holder. Billy Burke, north and south champion, was third with 75 and Leo Diegel trailed with a round of 77.

PANTHERS READY TO BEGIN SEASON

Bert Corbeau Has Many Good Players Lined Up Now.

HAMILTON, Oct. 13.—Officials of the London hockey club are not alarmed over the report that the Pittsburgh Pirates, of the National Hockey League, hope to receive surplus players from the Toronto Maple Leafs. Bert Corbeau, London's new hockey manager, has completed plans to take over several of the Toronto players and has definitely announced that London will be the "farm" for the Maple Leafs. Corbeau has had several conferences, with Manager Connie Smythe and Assistant Manager Frank Selkes with regard to players and, in fact, the London leader is at present in Toronto completing plans for the season.

Corbeau has great faith in youthful hockey players, and one needs only to glance over the list of six players retained by the London club to support this argument. Four of the players retained by Corbeau have played but one season in minor pro hockey. They are Grant Moore, Fillmore and King. Groh has played for two seasons, while Stan Jackson has been in the game for several seasons. Jackson and Corbeau were team mates when they played with Toronto St. Patricks, of the National Hockey League.

Deal Unheard Of.

A deal whereby Voss would be sent to London by Toronto in exchange for Stan Jackson has been rumored, but the directors of the London Hockey club would not sanction such a deal. Jackson is a valuable defence player and is popular with the London hockey fans. A defence with Jackson and Corbeau should be sufficiently strong to break up the attacks of the opposing forwards. A substitute defence with "Buck" Moore and Carl Voss would also fit in well.

Alvin Groh, who was injured last season when he received a stiff body check from Bert Corbeau, who was then with the Ravinas, has recovered entirely from his injuries. Groh has spent the summer months in Western Canada, and, according to a letter received by the hockey officials, is in the pink of condition and is awaiting the opening of the training season. Groh started off last year like a whirlwind, and up until the time of his injury looked like one of the most aggressive forwards in the Canadian pro circuit.

Tom Fillmore, right wing player, who is a graduate from the London 13th Battery, club and a London product, was the leading goal scorer of the London pro club last season. During the summer months he has been assistant pro at the London Hunt and Country Club and finished among the leaders in the assistants' professional golf tourney held at Toronto. Fillmore should fit in well with the 1928-29 hockey club.

Wes King, who played with the Montreal Victorias prior to turning pro last December, is not a stranger to Manager Bert Corbeau, who has watched King as an amateur as well as a pro. Corbeau speaks highly of King's ability.

Owen Sound Kids.

Benny Grant and "Buck" Moore have already discussed the hockey situation with Manager Corbeau. These two lads were with the Owen Sound Greys two years ago, when they won the Junior Dominion title. Moore was used freely during the latter part of last season. Grant was only used in the nets a few odd times.

Manager Bert Corbeau has good connections with the clubs of the National Hockey League and will not suffer from a lack of hockey players.

Six or more well-known amateur hockey players will be out next week for workouts. These players will not work out with the professionals, but will complete in private practices. If the newcomers appear as good prospects they will remain and sign contracts, while if they do not appeal to the management they will return to their homes and their amateur standing will not be affected.

LINDSAY MEN PRIZE WINNERS

SOME GOOD THROWING.

They gathered in large numbers in the Peterborough curling rink on Thursday and Friday evenings, and there was much keen rivalry. In place of the customary stones they threw horseshoes, and threw them aplenty for this was the horseshoe throwers' "bonspiel," sponsored by the King Edward Park Pitching Club, which has a thriving organization since the Kiwanis club started it going early in the summer.

On the invitation of the Peterborough pitchers, teams were present from Lindsay, Lakefield, Janetville, Young's Point and many other centres as well as from Peterborough, and during the two evenings, some very skillful throwing was seen. There were over sixty men taking part and it was not until ten o'clock last night that they finally left off tossing the shoes.

The Prize Winners.

To Bert Courtney and George Langdon, of Lindsay, went the honor of first prize, while G. S Walwin and T. Richardson of Janetville, ran them a close second. Bert Padgett and Bry Flemming, of Peterborough, came third while the special prize for the most ringers out of twenty throws went to Percy Reed of this city.

So successful was the entire event that further tournaments are likely to materialize before winter comes.

COLLEGIATE WING

Children Nor Gods, But Men in the World of Men."

The Gymnasium.

A gymnasium that may be divided into two sections, one for girls, the other for boys, is situated beneath the auditorium and when all the equipment has been installed, there will be no excuse for lack of physical training among the students. It has a balcony extending across the north end and along the east side and many other features that must be seen to be appreciated. Showers for boys and girls are found at either end.

Other Features.

The machine shop, motor mechanics, carpentry, drafting and electrical departments have been thoroughly equipped, with a special effort being made to secure British Empire goods.

The main entrance is a strikingly beautiful one with Tennyson quoted on the wall immediately at the head of the short flight of marble stair, "Self Reverence, Self Knowledge, Self Control, These Three Alone Lead Life to Sovereign Power."

The Principal's offices and board room (which will also be used as a library) are also situated in the new wing.

Throughout the building has been built a chain of air columns by which the air is heated, cleansed and changed and sent to the rooms where it is thermostatically controlled. In the boiler rooms is a formidable arrangement of air and water pumps, two large boilers and the necessary apparatus for the thermostatic control

A bin, capable of holding three hundred tons of furnace coal, appeared well filled, while two other bins, one for waste paper, the other for sawdust, etc., from the woodworking departments, are placed at the bottom of chutes which carry those materials from the higher parts of the building.

MANY MOTIONS

erican Act, knowing full well that the taxing of Hydro properties would result in a substantial increase in the cost of power.

Resolution of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce with reference to Daylight Saving in a Provincial way was referred to the Convention Executive for study and necessary action. Sentiments in favor of Dayligh Saving were expressed by many of the delegates present from such places as Ottawa, Hamilton and Toronto. The Peterborough delegates felt that they were particularly fortunate in having the matter referred to the Convention rather than having it thrown out altogether as on every hand one hears of the antipathy of the farmers towards such a measure.

Another resolution introduced by the Peterborough delegates having regard to the protection of salmon trout during the spawning season was passed unanimously by the convention. Many members expressed gratification in supporting the resolution which, when considered and favorably passed upon by the Governments, should have the effect of holding, if not increasing, our share of the tourist patronage. With the consent of the delegates from Peterborough, the convention added a clause to the resolution calling for much more rigorous enforcement of existing laws with reference to fish and game.

Owing to the fact that time did not seem to permit, the third resolution from Peterborough with reference to Interprovincial Division Courts was not discussed by the Convention but held over for action in the near future.

Trip North Enjoyed

The second day of the convention was taken up by a motor trip arranged by the North Bay Board of Trade over the Ferguson Highway to Martin Lake where the delegates were the guests of the Canadian Timber Company at a shanty luncheon at the camp five miles down Martin Lake from the point of embarkation. The delegates were transported over the Lake in the familiar long, wide and roomy lumbermen's punts, towed by a miniature cruiser built in the same style. The Ferguson Highway, contrary to popular belief, proved to be a dirt road in none too good repair at this time of the year. At one place in a valley the water was lying over the road to a depth of possibly three feet and several cars were put out of commission temporarily owing to the drivers' having forced them through the water too hurriedly thereby causing the electric equipment to be damped.

JOSEPH RUTHERFORD

satisfied his desire. But he realized that he was not designed for indoor life and yielded to the call of the great open spaces.

Mining fascinated him, and although at various times in his career he has deserted the profession and gone at something else, he invariably returned to the one thing he loved best in the world. Cobalt, Porcupine and Red Lake, all know the name of Joe Rutherford as one of the originals. Nor is he a stranger to the mines of Colorado. Dakota was also his home for several months during his earlier travels. While in British Columbia, the opportunity presented itself for him to go north to Alaska. He went and suffered some of the real hard luck for which that country was noted in the early days. A broken shoulder and other lesser injuries brought the powerful man to a low ebb financially and physically. But his stout heart and indomitable courage carried him through to better times ahead.

With Royal Engineers

He was in Porcupine before the war, and for many years was an employee of Dome Mines Limited. Socially he was well known there and was largely responsible for the wonderfully successfully Porcupine Bachelors' Insomnia Club.

During the war, Joe did not wait for a uniform from his native land, but paid his own passage across the Atlantic and enlisted with the Royal Engineers in London, England. But a Canadian did not seem to be properly cast in the uniform of a private soldier, and before long the stripes of a non-commissioned officer appeared on his sleeve. For four and one-half years he served his country with all the loyalty, bravery and devotion that human being could command. At the end of that time, the war long since ended, he received his discharge as a commissioned officer with the rank of Lieutenant. On his breast were ribbons to show that he had won the Military Medal, the Distinguished Conduct Medal, the Mons Star and two other decorations for bravery. Almost immediately upon his return to Canada, he went to his beloved north country, and to the Dome Mines. Red Lake was his next place of abode, and the district surrounding. His last trip was the tragic flight to Chesterfield Inlet with the Air Survey.

Joe Rutherford was unmarried and was in his forty-seventh year. When in civilization or anywhere near it, he attended the Presbyterian Church. Although it is not yet established, his brother is of the opinion that he was a member of the Masonic Order. Joe had never worn any Masonic insignia when at home that he had noticed, he said. But when Joe spent his vacation at the homestead last May, he chanced to drop the remark that he was probably considered a very poor Mason since he had hardly ever attended lodge since he had been initiated into the Order. The statement did not call for any explanation since it was evident that he was seldom any where near where there was a Masonic lodge being held.

Reports have been current about town that the body of the missing man is to be brought here for burial. As nearly as can be learned, the body or the man have not yet been located. No arrangements have been made as yet, Harold Rutherford stated yesterday afternoon. He can take no definite action till further information is forthcoming.

ALLEY CHATTER
By PIN BOY.

With the progressing of the league more of the boys on the C.G.E. Engineers' team seem to be finding their bowling arms as three more have been able to raise their average over the 170 mark, while Benson, who topped the average column for the first three games, is still maintaining his position although having dropped down to 214.

The fact that there is three bowling in the 200 class acted like a shot in the arm to several of the players who jumped up several points, one having increased his average from 153 to 175 in the last three games.

DODGE BROTHERS
NEW VICTORY SIX

Smarter in Appearance ~ More Luxurious in Appointments ~ With Increased Room and Still Finer Performance

Style stands out in all nine new Victory body types. There is an inviting swagger in the sweep of the improved one-piece fenders, an assurance of power in the higher and more massive radiator and hood lines.

Bodies are not only smarter, but larger, providing increased head-room, leg-room and seat-comfort. Deeper, softer cushions and specially selected hardware and upholstery sound a distinctive note of interior luxury, while higher and wider doors facilitate entrance and exit.

The new Victory Six emphasizes the unusual structural advantages first introduced in the original Victory. The chassis frame is so bolted to the body that it literally becomes a part thereof—a simplified, more rugged, and squeak-proof construction that reduces weight, eliminates rattles and lowers the center of gravity.

This unique Victory design provides roadability and riding ease as remarkable and unusual as Victory pick-up, power and flexibility.

There is just one way to find out how different and better Victory performance really is. Drive the car yourself!

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE SHIELD OF HONOR."

Never has the inside workings of a metropolitan police force been so vividly portrayed as in "The Shield of Honor," which comes here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to the Capitol Theatre.

Dan McDowell, veteran officer, and his son Jack, who is to be the first flying officer in the force, are being honored at a celebration of the addition of the aviation division to the department. Gwen O'Day, daughter of a wealthy jeweler, christens the new plane and Jack immediately becomes interested in her.

Shortly after the celebration O'Day asks Jack to assist him in solving the disappearance of numerous diamonds which his customers have been losing. After much research Jack places suspicion to Robert Chandler, O'Day's business advisor, but evidence is not sufficient to press the charges.

In the meantime Dan McDowell has his sixty-fifth birthday and through a new regulation he is retired from the force but he is quite active and O'Day gives him a position as a night watchman in his jewelry store. Here Dan works with Jack on the cast and numerous clues lead to the exposure of Chandler's nefarious operations.

Jack soon discovers that Rose, a stenographer in O'Day's store, and Red, the janitor, are also members of the Chandler's gang and when they make a final raid on O'Day's diamonds he corners Chandler with the goods.

A thrilling climax with a spectacular airplane race and air fighting galore furnish this picture with some of the most melodramatic plots in the history of the aviation division of the law. The stellar cast embraces such well known players as Neil Hamilton, Ralph Lewis, Dorothy Gulliver, Thelma Todd, Joe Girard and a host of others. Emory Johnson directed the picture.

That funny team of comedians, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, will also be seen in a side-splitting comedy entitled "Early to Bed."

AT THE REGENT.

NO CLASSES OR PROFS IN FILM OF COLLEGE LIFE

A close-up glimpse of the side of college life that has nothing to do with studies, but a lot to do with the general education offered in an institution of higher learning, is shown in B. P. Schulberg's newest screen play, "The Plastic Age," which comes to the Regent Theatre on Monday.

What do the students do during their spare time? This question has caused a lot of worry for interested parents. Some of the things that they might do are presented interestingly in the Schulberg picture. It is an adaptation of Percy Marks' lively novel of college life and youth in general, directed by Wesley Ruggles.

Primarily the picture is a rollicking comedy, crammed with all of the thrills that make up college life, but it also offers many dramatic moments and has much romantic interest.

Clara Bow and Donald Keith, who scored such a hit as the Apache couple in "Parisian Love," play the romantic leads in this picture, and their work is said to be the best that either has done to date. Gilbert Roland, a new youth recently signed to long term contract by Schulberg plays a "sympathetic heavy" role which stamps him as an actor of unusual ability.

Other featured players in the cast are Mary Alden, Henry B. Walthall, David Butler, Joan Standing, J. Gordon Edwards, Jr., and Felix Valle.

The picture was photographed by Al Siegler and Gilbert Warrenton. "The Plastic Age" is one of the really significant films of the year.

Indigestion
Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn — now — why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggist.

District Churches

BETHEL, OTONABEE.

OTONABEE, October 12. — Choosing the Scripture lesson, I. Corinthians 3, 9-19, Rev. E. F. Swayne, of Fraserville, preaching at the morning service of the centenary celebration at Bethel, Otonabee, used the subject, "Builders," a very appropriate one for the occasion, for his splendid sermon. All the great peoples of the past have been builders—the Greeks of art, the Egyptians of the mighty pyramids, the Romans of roads, etc. We are all builders of character, not reputation. The speaker gave a very apt definition of each word, showing clearly the difference, thus: Reputation is what men say about you; character is what God knows about you.

Warning his hearers of the fallacy of building for earth lone, he said: "Do not attempt to build on wealth. Do not attempt to build on fame. Do not attempt to build on work. All earthly things are transient; one is famous to-day and forgotten to-morrow, wealthy to-day and poor to-morrow. There is only one foundation—the one mentioned in the text, 'Other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ.' So one should build on Christ: build for permanency, build for beauty, and build for righteousness.

Evening Service.

In the evening Rev. William McDonald, B.A., B.D., of Peterborough, preached a powerful sermon on the subject of consecration. He commenced by congratulating the people of Bethel on the celebration of the centenary. The speaker stated that he also was interested in an anniversary that day, as in the little village on the Ottawa where he was born, there was a celebration commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the building of the present church.

Bethel means House of God, and is a beautiful name for a church. The consecration of the forefathers of those present made possible this fine church. If you have a people consecrated to God then you have continuity of religious services. Referring to the Scripture lesson which he had read, he spoke of Moses' whitehot anger at the idolatry of the people. He bade them smite those guilty of idolatry. So to-day the church in a community stands for common decency. Despite changing customs what was wrong one hundred years ago is wrong to-day. Our lives should be consecrated to good works done for God.

ARE YOU AFRAID OF YOUR MEALS?

Proof That the Stomach is Weak and Needs Toning Up.

Are you one of the many sufferers who dread meal time? Hungry, and yet afraid to eat, because of the pains and discomforts that follow. When the stomach is out of order the whole sytsem sufferers, and as the blood becomes thin and waters it becomes increasingly difficult to correct the digestive disorder. There is no tonic for the stomach that is not a tonic for the whole body; thus a blood-building tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, not only relieves indigestion, but adds to the general strength. Mr. D. J. Shaw, Selkirk Road, P.E.I., has proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a severe case of indigestion and relates his experience for the benefit of other sufferers. Hay says:—"I suffered from indigestion for a number of years. My case was so bad that words fail to describe it. My appetite was gone, constipation was present, and my nerves were all on edge. I could not sleep well at night, and the world was a dark spot for me. I tried a number of remedies, but without any benefit. Then Dr. Williams Pink Pills were recommended, but without much faith, after so many failures, I decided to try them. After taking three boxes I noticed a change for the better. Then I got three boxes more and found I had a genuine remedy. I continued the treatment, took moderate exercise, could take plain food without suffering as formerly, and proved that these pills make good blood, and that this good blood will restore the stomach and nerves. Anyone suffering from stomach or nerve troubles will make no mistake in giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Wiliams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Write to-day for a copy of the free booklet "What to Eat and How to Eat."

PUPILS RECEIVE CERTIFICATES

Seventy Pupils From Prince of Wales School Passed Entrance.

PROGRAM PRESENTED.

The presentation of certificates to the pupils of the Prince of Wales School who passed the entrance examinations in June featured to the regular meeting of the Home and School Association, held in the kindergarten room of the school on Thursday night. Mrs. G. L. M. Kirkwood, the president, handed over the meeting to G. S. Mattice, principal of the school.

Valedictory remarks by Katie Cherney of Mr. Kerr's class and Jeanne Harvey of Mr. Mattice's class opened the program, followed by a violin solo by George Gatfield and a vocal solo by Mildred Rowan. The teachers of the three entrance classes, Mr. Mattice, F. E. Kerr, and D. Munro, spoke briefly, congratulating the pupils on their good showing. A piano solo by Nancy Hopwood, a vocal solo by Marion Ralston and a reading by Verna Huffman preceded a short address by Inspector A. Mowat and congratulatory remarks by parents of the pupils.

Mrs. W. R. Morris presented the certificates to the seventy two successful pupils, remarking on their privilege of attending the Collegiate Institute now that it has been extended and new courses provided Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. McWilliams and her committee, assisted by twelve of the senior girls of the school.

AFTER FIVE YEARS

ried life, or after forty years is for both parties to observe the golden rule, 'Do unto your mate as you would be, or she would do unto you.' No set of rules will fit every circumstance. But, the golden rule is applicable to all types. If a husband would resent his wife staying out late at night, drinking, flirting or whatever men do who stay out late, then he should not do these things himself. Neither should a woman do the things which are antagonistic to her husband. 'It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, whereby thy brother stumbleth or is offended, or is made weak.' Marriage is a partnership 50-50. Whatever one does is bound to affect the other. My father used to tell us there were two bears in marriage, without which it would not be a success. Bear and forbear. Bear one another's burdens. Take an intelligent interest in one another's problems whether it be what the boss said to George, or where Alice will find the money for Johnny's winter coat. Forbear to point out one another's defects, especially in front of others. When you cheapen one, you cheapen both. Men and women having an entirely different viewpoint, will never thoroughly understand one another. That is the unconscious attraction one has for the other. But try to have an understanding heart. Do not degrade yourselves. Do not let one do all the giving and the other do all the taking. Do not nag. Our Saviour said, "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another." That and the golden rule, a marriage will be a success for time and for Eternity. —Quo Vadis."

"Dear Marion:

As a solution of the 'After Five Years' problem I would suggest that the love which led to the forming of the union is 'To be continued.' Re responsibility: As it takes two to make a fight, so also it takes two to keep the peace.

Yours for others,
Sunshine."

Dear Marion:

You see I am accepting your invitation to enter the "After Five Years" competition for I may have a few different thoughts to pass on, even if my experience with matrimony hasn't reached so ripe a span of years.

Home has come to mean to us the most sacred of places—for it is here that love is fostered, that character is moulded, that life learns its lessons of discipline and strength.

Much has been written these days regarding the maintaining of connubial happiness. There are some who avow that if woman but keep the charm of youth, be becomingly gowned and manicured, her pumpkin shell immaculate, she becomes a panaces for the ailments of married life; others paint man as a fickle creature—a born hunter, one with whom we must ever flatter if we would keep his love. But it seems to me that we cannot justly blame the defects of marriage exclusively on any one sex. There are men, we know, who are guilty of inconstancy, who could not be true to any woman; and likewise there are women who are so encased in selfishness that there is little left for admiration.

Between these extremes are the ordinary mortals like most of ourselves who have their bright days and a few clouds too, just to make the sun look better when it does shine. Perhaps some wonder why married life is not as happy after five years as five months. How do you know that it is not? I rather think that most of our critics come from those who are not themselves married and I can quite understand their viewpoint. We look at the Jones' and wonder what Mr. J. can ossibly see in such a homely woman. And we feel so sorry for Mrs. Smith who has three little children, rarely gets to a party and who hasn't had a new dress for an era. Sometimes we are too lavish with our sympathy—Mrs. Smith may just possibly be pitying you.

You see happiness cannot be measured in terms of good times or new dresses, or motor cars or French doors—sometimes it is, but not necessarily so. They will be just as varied as people themselves.

What then does bring happiness? Love must be the corner-stone on which the home is built. Without it there can be no true marriage. But someone says—"We were so much in love at first and now it is so different." Of course it is different. That is natural and only as it should be. Nothing is more beautiful than a baby or a rosebud, but they do not always remain so, nor do we wish it. The love of two young things for each other is also beautiful, but it too will pass through its metamorphosis, and can do so without producing unhappiness.

One thought we must keep in mind—"Marriage is the beautiful unfolding of many years; we are not married on any day, but all along."

You see marriage is a growth—a growing together of two hearts, two souls, two lives. So, if we continue to grow in mental stature, in our appreciation of whatever things be good and true and noble, why then it cannot be just the same, to all outward appearances after five years as it was at five months or before marriage. You do not love the same things now as you did at sixteen—we outgrow our old pleasures and find new ones, so it is all along the way. But the change must come in unison and that can only be accomplished by a constant exchange of thoughts one with the other. If we do not grow together mentally and spiritually, then it is quite possible for husband and wife to become strangers, even though living in the same house.

Then the question arises as to what we can do in order to keep marriage at its best. Is it beauty, or daintiness or good housekeeping or homemaking? Perhaps it may be one or a combination of these things. If love springs only from a lovely face or an attractive figure, then we face an eternal combat with old age. The secret must come from the soul and if the soul remains pure and sincere and loving through the years, all other necessary virtues will be added thereto.

I have heard women say that they liked to keep their husbands guessing as that was the way to hold their love. Some believe that when a man is once sure of a woman she ceases to interest him and he turns to fresh game. Personally I prefer not to use these methods, but it may work in some cases.

Mary Garden (unmarried) says, "Marriage! Do you know what it generally stands for? It is like the hand-organ, a name for worn-out music, when it should be, like the Riff wars, full of colour and dash and feints and sorties. The surest things to anaesthetize a marriage are habits, making your gestures wearisome so that you spell boredom for him. Such marriages are beaten before they step out on the path."

I'll admit a bit of colour is a splendid thing—some require a good deal more than others, but I'd hate to feel that I must always be playing a game to attract attention in order to keep the love of a worthwhile man. Personality ought to do the trick—unselfishness, sincerity, tenderness and enough ordinary intelligence to be a good pal.

We must both be willing to sacrifice something, our opinions and lots of other things. It is all very well to cry out for individuality, but you know if both preserve it intact, a true union can never result.

Let us not be afraid to give up the little things, but be tenacious of the tenets of principle and character.

And in closing I think we who are still optimistic about the married state and those who are just a wee bit discouraged might well build our future happiness on the principles that are advocated by Him who blessed that institution.

Faith—husband and wife in each other, in his business dealings, in her household affairs, in their social adventures—and—no secrets—even if the skies break over your heads—still, no secrets.

Hope—that your marriage at last will be just as fine in its fundamentals at five and twenty years as it was in the beginning.

Love—on which your home is built, love that brings the precious little lives into your keeping—ah! that is one of the great secrets of happiness. My sympathy always go out to those who do not want children or who are not fortunate enough to have them—for they are Love's greatest gifts.

And love means service, because love desires to serve. We all crave affection—remember we must give as well as get.

And to all these may I be pardoned for adding another—"a sense of humor." It will often save the day when all else fails.

Faith, Hope, Love, these three, and the greatest of these is a sense of humor! —Bobbie."

CONGRATULATIONS

Among the many expressions of goodwill and congratulations that spontaneously came to Mr. Fair, the following is a much appreciated sample. The publication of this one is accompanied by Mr. Fair's heartfelt thanks to all who gave him their friendly greetings on the occasion of his 45th anniversary in business.

Peterborough, Ontario,
October 11th, 1928.

Mr. Robert Fair, President,
Robert Fair and Company, Peterborough, Ont.
Dear Mr. Fair,—

I just thought I would, on this occasion, like to drop you a line complimenting you on your forty-five years of established business in Peterborough.

During that period many old and representative faces have disappeared from George Street, but from what I can learn the firm of Robert Fair and Company is more deeply than ever established in the hearts of not only old residents of the city, but new-comers as well, than ever before.

Your manner of doing business, the stock you carry, the values you give, are an assurance, so far as any numbers of your friends can see, of continued successful business as long as you desire to carry on.

With best wishes that you will have good health to enjoy the business that you have built up and carried on for so long, I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

Established 1868

"There Is None Better"

IN MEMORIAM.

Lines on the death of Dorothy Louise Laing:

Asleep in Jesus.

She has fallen asleep, in Jesus,
And she is now at rest,
Close folded in His tender arms
Safe on His loving breast;
Aye, silently the summons came,
At first faint flush of dawn—
One gentle pang, one fond farewell,
And she, from earth, was gone.

From long weary months of sickness,
(Ever borne most patiently),
The Father—in His own good time—
Has set the sufferer free.
To Heaven above unceasingly
Arose our heart-wrung prayer
That the life of her, we held so dear
Kind Heaven would, deign to spare.

But, ah, in dim eclipse has set
'Ere noon, life's glorious morning sun.
God gave, and took, He knoweth best,
His holy will be done;
We can not tell, we may not know,
Why this disease, and dire decay
Should waste 'ere full time's blighting frost
Her life, and youthful bloom, away.

For she faded as sweet flowers fade
'Neath chilly autumn skies,
But yet, to bloom, more beautiful,
In sunny Paradise;
Why should we weep, for one whose pain,
Weakness, and weariness, are o'er,
Nay, but rejoice, that she is now
At rest, where sickness comes no more.

Ours is the loss, and loneliness
The sorrow, and the tears,
But hers, the glad, and glorious gain
Of never ending years;
Fair flowers enwreathed around her bed
Though but of earthly bloom
Bespeak affections riven ties,
Renewed, beyond the tomb.

Although so brief, her life, she walked
With God the rugged road,
Which leads, or straight, or winding to
The Spirit's blest abode.
And some happy day we'll meet again
With her, we loved on earth, so well,
And in our Father's mansion home
In bliss eternal with her dwell.

—Mrs. A. F. Calder.

Obituary

BABY GEORGE LEONARD

After four weeks of watchful care, George Leonard, six-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Leonard, of 111 Sophia street, passed away in St. Joseph's Hospital at noon on Friday, October 12.

The funeral took place from the family residence, Sophia street, at 4 p.m. to-day, interment being made in St. Peter's Cemetery.

MRS. ELIZABETH MILLER.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, 274 Hunter street, will take place from St. Peter's Cathedral to St. Peter's cemetery on Sunday at 1.30 p.m.

She leaves to mourn her loss one daughter, Marjorie, her mother, two sisters, Mrs. C. Chowen and Miss M. Riley, and three brothers, Mr. Lewis Riley, Jack Riley and Ed. Riley.

MRS. WILLIAM J. PAUL.

On October 6, 1928, the death occurred of Isabella Grant, wife of Mr. William J. Paul, of Drake, Sask.

She was the daughter of the late Robert and Mary Grant, whose farm was on the Chemong Road, in Smith Township, where the late Mrs. Paul was born.

After their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Paul lived in Midland for some years, where Mr. Paul, with his brother Joseph, operated a large planing mill. Feeling that the West provided greater opportunities for a growing family, Mr. and Mrs. Paul moved from Midland to the Qu'Appelle valley, where they farmed, Mr. Paul working occasionally at his trade as a carpenter. They lived at Lannigan, Humboldt, and finally at Drake.

Mrs. Paul's health had been failing for some time. She put up a strenuous fight, but failed to totally recover after a recent operation, which gave her only temporary relief.

She was a member of Lakevale Presbyterian Church at Fowler's Corners in early life, but later became a member of the society called Christians.

She was a loving and kind wife and mother, was held in high esteem in the community, and was well beloved by all with whom she associated.

She leaves a sorrowing husband, along with five sons and three daughters, also one sister and one brother, Mrs. William Ball and James Grant, of Bridgenorth, Ont.

She was buried on October 8, in Drake, Sask.

Made-in-Canada Exhibition Is Formally Opened

Luncheon Held at Fair

Sir Joseph Flavelle is the Speaker at Gathering To-day.

RECALLS OLD DAYS.

Kiwanians and Guests Overflow Band Room at Armories—Many Visitors.

"It is my duty to declare this Made-in Canada fair officially open, which I now do," said Sir Joseph Flavelle, at the conclusion of the joint meeting of Peterborough Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, which was held in the band room of the Peterborough Armouries. Indicative of a truly splendid community spirit which the two service clubs share, the luncheon meeting today brought together well over one hundred and twenty-five business and professional men. It was a proud moment for Chairman Joe John of the Kiwanis club, President W. R. Morris of Rotary, and most of all for the genial manager of the Made-in-Canada fair, Dr. J. J. Craig, as the distinguished visitor, accompanied by several honored guests from Toronto, moved to the head table and sat him down in company with that younger generation of Peterborough men that builded upon the foundation which Sir Joseph and fellow townsmen began years ago.

Present at the head table were Sir Joseph Flavelle, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, His Worship Mayor Denne, the Club Presidents, the Rev. Father Paul Costello, George Gillespie, James Dutton, president of the Chamber of Commerce; the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, Dr. J. J. Craig, and the delegation from Toronto: J. M. MacIntosh, Secretary, Ontario Division, Canadian Manufacturers' Association; Col. C. W. Watts, Canadian General Electric Company, Limited; W. H. Lytle, A. R. Clarke Co., Limited; C. S. F. Mitchell, Canadian Chewing Gum Company, Limited; C. V. Syrett, C. V. Syrett Co., Limited; W. A. Craick, Editor, "Industrial Canada," Canadian Manufacturers' Association; G. C. Bernard, Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The Canadian Singers, of Toronto, contributed three of their delightful numbers during the luncheon and won instant approval as entertainers not only to-day but throughout the fair week. Introduced by Mrs. L. A. Hamilton, they contributed the following numbers:

"Tho' Philomela Lost her Love."

"Tyrle, Tyrlow—old English carol by Dr. Healey Willan.

"Drink to me Only with Thine Eyes"—Old English

The personnel of the Canadian Singers is:—Miss Betty Gemmill, Florence Glenn, Margery Baldwin Doreen Hillary and Margaret Stephen.

Mayor Roland Denne

His Worship Mayor Denne, who accompanied Sir Joseph, spoke briefly at to-day's luncheon, declaring that what the Peterborough of to-day has need for is young men of vision. He included the service clubs as assisting to supply this need and referred to the coming of more young men to the city as a strong argument in favor of a new and enlarged Y.M.C.A. building.

Another thing which he wished to boost was the 1929 Old Boys' and Girls' Reunion, which is already being planned. His Worship concluded by extending to all a hearty welcome to the city "which has something well worth while to show you."

President Joe John extended felicitations from his club to the guest club, the Rotary, and in response, President Morris volunteered the whole-hearted support of his club for the Made-in-Canada Fair.

In response to President John's words of welcome, Mr. McIntosh spoke on behalf of the Toronto visitors and congratulated the Kiwanis club on this, its major activity.

Dr J. J. Craig

In a way, it was Dr. J. J. Craig's day for all present joined in commending him for his unselfish devotion to the Made-in-Canada fair cause. He, in reply, expressed the joy that this day had brought him after the hard work and criticism incidental, and only incidental to the staging of the fair. He went on to review the many features of the big show which he claimed had two main purposes—to bring to the people an education in Canada's products and to boost in a substantial manner the club's Community fund

A Flood of Memories

"You will not consider it unnatural that a flood of memories came to me as I reflected upon what I should say to you to-day," began Sir Joseph. "Peterborough as it was 40, 50, 60 years ago, of my home, of the church in which we worshipped— of the men and women whose personalities impressed the small boy—of the school, the Union school as then called, where as boys we

10,000 Feet Of Lumber Used In Monster Fair

10,000 feet of lumber;
3,600 feet of beaverboard;
500 feet of ten-test;
200 pounds of nails.

This is not a list of requirements for a new building of massive dimensions—

It is a list of the amount of material in the booths at the Produced in Canada Exhibition! From this, the magnitude of the exhibits may be judged. And the progress made by the Fair is indicated by the fact that in the first Exhibition in 1926 only 4,000 feet of lumber was used.

The figures are given by the contractor, Harry C. Huffman, who is as much amazed as a Kiwanian as he is a contractor.

GEORGE NURSE FOUND DYING

Man Missing Since Last Wednesday Dies Soon After Being Found.

FELL CLIMBING FENCE.

Lying in a ditch by the side of a fence, one rail of which had broken as he was climbing over it, George Nurse, who vanished from the home of his sister, Mrs. William King, near Plainville on Wednesday afternoon last, was found by a party of searchers about 11.45 on Sunday morning —still alive, but in a serious condition. His death took place in Port Hope Hospital last night, following his removal to that institution immediately after he had been found.

Nurse, a man of great stature (he was fix feet four inches tall), had gone, with his wife, from their home in Bridgenorth last Sunday to visit with his sister, Mrs. William King, who resides near Plainville. On Wednesday afternoon, between four and five o'clock, he wandered away, suffering, it is thought, from a lapse of memory, such as he has suffered off and on during the past twelve years. Search parties were immediately organised, for it was not yet dark, but no trace of the missing man was found.

As the days went by, the alarm spread and by Sunday, the case occupied the attention of a large number of neighbors, and indeed, officers of the law. Almost one hundred searchers were busy, re-working a section that had been gone over before, when the unfortunate man was found in a ditch on what was the family homestead, now operated by John Nurse, not far from Bewdley. The two Clayton brothers, who reside nearby, made the discovery.

Dr. Diamond, of Port Hope, who is coroner for the district, took the case in charge, but despite all medical attention, Mr. Nurse passed away last evening.

The late Mr. Nurse had retired from active farming many years ago and had made a wide circle of acquaintances in the district surrounding Bridgenorth. There was no family, but he is survived by his sorrowing widow, four brothers, Robert, Alex. and Robison, of Saskatchewan, and John, of South Monaghan; also two sisters, Mrs. William King and Mrs. Landers of South Monaghan.

The funeral will take place on October 17, from his late residence, Bridgenorth, at 2 p.m., proceeding to Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

PERMIT NECESSARY FOR BURNING LEAVES

Citizens Wishing To Have Bonfires Must Notify Fire Department.

Fire Chief George Gimblett, through The Examiner, this morning wished to warn all citizens against burning fallen leaves on the streets without permission from the fire department. This comes under the same ruling which makes it necessary for permission to be granted before rubbish may be burned in back yards, etc. The Chief hopes for co-operation from the citizens in this regard. A phone call to his department is all that is necessary.

NO GARAGES.

Other Three Permits Call For Repair Work and Alterations To Dwellings.

The housing problem in Peterborough is not likely to become any more acute despite recent figures which showed a considerable increase in the city's population. A glance over the list of building permits issued from the City Engineer's office during the week of October 7 to 12, reveals that of the eight permits, five provided for the erection of dwellings, representing a total estimated expenditure of $14,400.

Charles H. Huffman and Sons applied for permission to erect a residence on the north-west corner of Smith Street and Benson Avenue, to be 32 feet in length and 26 feet in width, with concrete foundation and brick walls, with lath and plaster interior walls. The new dwelling will be two stories high with six rooms, the interior finish being of gumwood and basswood. A hot air heating system will be installed and the entire job is to be finished on or about January 1, 1929.

M. McIntyre, contractor for John Taylor, will erect a dwelling near the corner of Hunter and Rogers Streets, which will be 28 feet by 26 feet, on a concrete foundation. The exterior walls will be of brick veneer, while the inside will be of lath and plaster with hardwood floors and pine trim. This house will also be of two stories and six rooms, with wood shingles and asbestos paper for roofing. A coal grate fireplace and a hot air system connected with two brick tile chimneys will account for the heating of it. April 1, 1929, has been set as the date of completion, while the estimated cost is $4,000.00.

Yet a third dwelling will be erected by S. H. Abbott at 176 Lansdowne Street at an estimated cost of $1,800. A concrete foundation and brick and stucco exterior walls will enclose one story of four rooms. The roof will be of asphalt, while one brick and tile chimney will be erected. Lath and plaster with pine trimming will form the interior walls, while an electric fireplace and a hot air system will be used for heating. The date of completion has been set at February 1, 1929.

On Lot 13, adjacent to the corner of Romaine and Pine Streets, John R. McDonald will erect two dwellings, each at a cost of $1,800. They will resemble each other, but one will be 32 feet by 23 feet and the other 34 feet by 24 feet, with the larger of the two having five rooms to the smaller one's four. Both will be of one story on concrete foundation with brick veneer, lath and plaster finish, walls and interior finish of fir. Each will be equipped with hot air heating systems and electric fireplaces and each will have wooden shingles and asbestos paper roofing. January 1, 1929 has been set as the date of completion in both cases.

George Sloan and Son hold the contract for the erection of a summer kitchen at 22 Aylmer Street; Fred Finney applied for permission to replace a back kitchen at 501 Aylmer Street by October 13, and a terrace at 132 to 140½ Park Street will be reshingled for Bert Allen by F. Rowan at an estimated cost of $375.00.

FALLS FROM ROOF; IS SERIOUSLY HURT

Francis A. Dalton Injured While Repairing Chimney of His Home.

While doing some repair work to the chimney of his house at 274 Dalhousie Street on Saturday afternoon, Francis A. Dalton fell to the ground, and was seriously hurt. Although no bones were broken, Mr. Dalton was considered to be in a serious condition and did not regain consciousness for some time. No one saw the accident happen, but several neighbors heard him fall on the ground.

Dr. G. S. Cameron, who is attending Mr. Dalton, told The Examiner at noon to-day that his condition showed improvement. Mr. Dalton is a workman in the Peterborough Canoe Company factory.

HAWKINS CLUB CONTEST OPEN

Wrist Watch Is Offered As First Prize in Easy Competition.

THIS WEEK ONLY.

The contest for a wrist watch, donated by V. J. Tully, the jeweller, went over the top on Saturday evening, and hundreds of girl and boy members of the Seckatary Hawkins Club are gathering names of new members.

This contest is very simple. All that the contestant has to do is collect names of new members, asking each to join and abide by the Club motto, "Fair and Square." These names are to be written on a special form and handed in at The Examiner booth at the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition. None will be accepted at the office, and any sent by mail will not count.

Children in the district should fill the sheet sent out on Saturday and the sheet printed on Saturday, and send for more sheets as needed. Then they must bring the completed sheets to the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition when they come, and hand them in at The Examiner booth. Or they can collect the names on blank sheets, and fill in the official forms here when they come to the Fair.

Every member has been sent one printed sheet, and should clip the sheet printed on Saturday. Remember, blank sheets may be obtained at The Examiner Office or at The Examiner booth, but completed sheets must be handed in at the booth. Particulars of name, age and address must be fully given on the sheets.

Other Prizes.

Besides the grand prize, a wrist watch donated by Mr. Tully, Seckatary Hawkins will give three books to the next three competitors having the highest number of new members. Only members of the Club are eligible to compete, but anyone who becomes a member this week may take part.

Members of the Seckatary Hawkins Club are eligible to compete for weekly prizes; each member receives a Club pin and a membership card; when a birthday anniversary comes around, members are sent birthday cards; and pictures are given as prizes for obtaining one and six members. There are now nearly a thousand local members, and many thousands of members all over the world.

THE WEATHER

On Sunday morning there was evidence we had had a severe frost the previous night. Many tender plants were blackened, and there was thin ice on exposed water. The thermometer registered 28 degrees; the lowest to date. This morning it was at 32 degrees. The highest point Sunday was 61 degrees. The countryside is now most beautiful with its autumnal tints.—W.P.

HOLY NAME VOWS RENEWED AT DIOCESAN RALLY SERVICE

Large Congregation of Men and Boys Hears Inspiring Sermon.

CATHEDRAL CROWDED.

Rev. Father Kehoe Is Special Preacher—Bishop O'Brien Heads Parade.

Catholic laymen from many of the parishes of the Diocese of Peterborough crowded St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday afternoon after parading from Confederation Square in a solemn, public demonstration of reverence for the name of Jesus Christ.

It was the annual rally of the Holy Name Society, including contingents from Lindsay, Cobourg, Downeyville, Ennismore, Douro, Norwood, Hastings, and Campbellford. Every seat in the nave and choir gallery was occupied, and other men and older boys filled the transept seats. At the conclusion of a stirring sermon by Rev. Father Kehoe of Toronto, the Holy Name pledge was renewed. With their right hands raised the entire congregation, priests and laity, repeated after Rev. J. V. MAculey of Ennismore, diocesan director of the society, the pledge, as follows:

"I believe of Jesus that Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. I proclaim my love for the Vicar of Christ on earth. I believe all the sacred truths which the Holy Catholic Church believes and teaches.

"I promise to give good example by the regular practice of my faith. In honor of His divine name, I pledge myself against perjury, blasphemy, profanity and obscene speech.

"I pledge my loyalty to the flag of my country and to the God-given principles of freedom, justice and happiness for which it stands. I pledge my support to all lawful authority, both civil and religious. I dedicate my manhood to the honor of the sacred name of Jesus Christ, and beg that He will keep me faithful to these pledges until death."

M. H. Gainey was the marshal-in-chief of the parade, which included at the head His Lordship Bishop O'Brien and Rev. Paul Costello, pastor of St. Peter's Parish, and Rev. Father McAuley. The processional music as the men entered the church was played by Miss L. Hurley at the organ. Congregational singing was a feature of the devotions.

Praised by Preacher

Father Kehoe's text was the first verse of the Eighth Psalm: "O Lord our Lord, how admirable is Thy name in the whole earth." As a preface to his sermon he congratulated the men upon their large assembly. "I praise you for this demonstration of loyalty to your Savolur and mine, for your love of Jesus Christ," he said, and swiftly sketched the modern spirit of unbelief and irreligion.

TWO CARS CRASH AT INTERSECTION

Both Badly Damaged at Corner of Park and Hunter Streets.

Two automobiles, one driven by J. F. Strickland and the other by Maxwell Tully, of Selwyn, collided at the corner of Park and Hunter Streets last night about 5.15. Mr. Strickland was driving west on Hunter Street and Mr. Tully north on Park, and right on the centre of the intersection the two collided. No one was hurt in either car, but both cars were considerably damaged, Mr. Strickland's having the rear fender badly smashed and Mr. Tully the front of his car broken.

Big Dirigible Sighted From Mainland at Ten Near Chesapeake Bay

Flies Steadily Northward To Lakehurst, Apparently Freed From Weather Troubles Which Delayed Voyage Across the Atlantic—Maneuvres Easily in Spite of Damage.

GREETED VOCIFEROUSLY BY BIG CROWDS AS SHE PASSES OVER EASTERN CITIES

Due at Berth at Lakehurst at 4 O'clock This Afternoon, 110 Hours After Taking Off From Friedrichshafen, Germany For Long Journey.

The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, bringing the first trans-Atlantic air passengers to the United States to-day, was showing them some of the chief sights of the mid-Atlantic seaboard, and at the same time satisfying throngs who had awaited her coming from Friedrichshafen.

The biggest airship of the day first passed over American ground after her long ocean voyage at about ten o'clock this morning, near Cape Charles, the northern sentinel of Chesapeake Bay.

A radio message from her said that she would visit Washington, over which she passed at 12.21, Baltimore, and Philadelphia, and would reach the waiting hangar at Lakehurst, at about 4 p.m.

To supplement the radio, there came frequent reports of her progress fror Virginia and Maryland towns as she passed up Chesapeake Bay toward Washington.

All was in readiness for her arrival and berthing beside the dirigible Los Angeles and fast airplanes were on the mark to give her an escort on the last few miles of her journey.

A radio report states that the dirigible reached New York at 6 p.m.

Crosses Washington.

WASHINGTON, October 15 (Canadian Press). — The giant dirigible Graf Zeppelin, which for four days has battled through stormy weather over the Atlantic en route from Germany to Lakehurst, N.J., to-day arrived over Washington at 12.21 p.m.

The big craft was sighted from the east and approached the city over the Capitol building. The sky was overcast.

The airship was travelling rapidly assisted by a tail wind of approximately twenty miles per hour. She loomed up in the east when thousands of spectators from the roofs of buildings were looking toward the south and south-east for her.

Changing her course to the west she headed right over the city toward the White House. Her silver nose began to glisten as the outlines became more definite and she seemed to be manoeuvring without any difficulty. Apparently freed from the elements that attempted to stay the progress of her record-breaking trip across the Atlantic, she almost gaily roared her way over the United States capital.

As the Zeppelin circled over the capital a large hole in the port horizontal stabilizer was plainly visible through it and it was obvious that some observers said they could see considerable damage had been done to that important part of the control apparatus. The ship appeared to handle with perfect ease, however Naval experts said the hole was about thirty feet long and fifteen feet wide.

Greeted at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., October 15 (Canadian Press). — The Graf Zeppelin passed over Baltimore at one p.m., and was hailed by an uproar of whistles from shops and harbor boats.

Fuel Exhausted.

Hugo Allen, an official of the Goodyear Zeppelin Company, estimated that the supply of Ben gas had been exhausted about midnight this morning. From then on he said, it would be necessary to run the motors on gasoline. When midnight passed the airship had been in the air 94 hours on a trip which her commander estimated would take between 80 and 85 hours.

Edward Warner, assistant secretary of the Navy in charge of aeronautics, said that the Graf Zeppelin would exceed the world's endurance record for rigid airships if she stayed aloft until this afternoon. The ill-fated French airship Dixmude once cruised for 104 hours.

Experts in Berlin thought that the sixty persons aboard, including one woman, Lady Drummond Hay, might have light rations. Food for the trip has been carefully estimated on the basis of 7¾ pounds of balanced food for each person for 100 hours.

Daring Repair Work.

The repairing of the damaged horizontal fin in mid-air after it had slowed up the dirigible when 1,500 miles due east of Charleston, South Carolina, was regarded by officials and engineers at the Friedrichshafen Zeppelin works as one of the most daring engineering feats in the history of aviation. They were informed that only one man was able to work in the interior of the fin and that others hung outside on the wind-swept struts while the job was being done.

PETERBOROUGH MAN IS KILLED

Norman L. Sarginson Falls From Sixth Floor of New York Building.

CLIMBING ALONG LEDGE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The victim of a hazardous climbing stunt which sent him hurtling to the street from a four-inch ledge outside a window of the apartment of his friend, Mortimer K. Wiske, on the sixth floor at No. 140 East 46th street, Norman L. Sarginson, 23, an advertising salesman of Toronto and formerly of Peterborough, Canada, lay dead yesterday in the morgue.

Sarginson, according to detectives of the homicide squad, came here recently to visit Wiske, who is an advertising illustrator. Saturday night Wiske gave a party in Sarginson's honor. Among the guests were Constance Ford, musical comedy actress; Mrs. Dolores Cushing, of Sands Point, L.I.; Mrs. Edith Lewis, Charles Reisen of Brooklyn, and Al Powell.

The party was just sitting down at dinner at 10:30 when Miss Ford went into another room. Sarginson excused himself also and went into still another room. A few minutes later Roland Palmer, the doorman, burst into the apartment and announced that Sarginson had just crashed dead at his feet in front of the building.

Investigation by detectives of the East 51st Street Station showed that the young man had climbed out to the narrow ledge by the window.

Footprints indicated he had clambered along the wall as near as possible to Miss Ford's room. Inspired by his ardor to scorn danger, he then leaped seven feet through space to the ledge of the other window. He managed to clutch it with his fingertips, but lost his hold. His hands were scratched and bleeding when examined.

After being questioned until seven o'clock yesterday morning the guests went to the morgue, where Miss Ford made the official identification.

Norman Sarginson was well and favourably known here. He was born in this city and received his education at the Central Public School. He moved with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Sarginson, to Toronto five years ago and was employed in the freight office of the C.N.R. for several years. After leaving the employ of the railroad he travelled considerably, working in Windsor and many American cities. He returned periodically to visit his many friends in Peterborough. The last time he was in the city was last Christmas when he made an extended visit and worked for the local firm of Riley and Hickey.

Mrs. Fred Sanderson, 191 Brock street, is an aunt and left yesterday for Toronto. The young man's body will be conveyed to the Sarginson home, 152 Rusholme Road, Toronto, and the body may be brought to this city for burial.

Mr. Anderson said that he had received a letter from the unfortunate young man only a week ago in which he stated that he was doing splendidly in New York and had received an offer to enter the movies.

France Winner of Oratorical Honors

Dominion Placed Third

American Countries Capture All Other Honors in Field of Eight.

UNITED STATES FOURTH.

Paris Youth Awarded Honors On Opinion of Judges.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. — (Canadian Press.)— Canada's cup, emblematic of 1928 international oratorical contest goes to France as a result of the award by five judges in Washington Saturday night of the highest place to Rene Fonthieu of Paris, France's representative in the contest.

American countries captured all other honors in the field of eight contestants Jose De Tomasco, Argentine, was second, William Fox, Jr., of London, Ontario, Canada, was third, and John Moore, Kentucky, U. S.A., was fourth.

First Ballot Was Tie.

The auditorium was crammed for the occasion and the great crowd sang "O Canada" lustily to greet Fox as he arose to speak on Canada's future. The result of the first ballot was a tie between Canada, France and Argentina. Each had an equal number of points. The judges, four professors from American universities and one from the Paris School of Psychology, retired to consider points further and finally submitted a second set of ballots which gave first to France, second to Argentina and third to Canada.

De Tomasco took for his topic the confraternity of the Americas, the greatness of the United States imposed certain duties on her principally in South Africa, he said. Some Latin American countries had not kept pace with the stride of the United States which should lend to her weaker neighbors a helping hand. "Do notdo this if it requires more of the rifles of your soldiers than of the good will of your civilization," he said. In the Argentine the situation in Nicaragua had "provoked an evident uneasiness, a moral anxiety and had given rise to unfavorable interpretations, "De Tomasco said, Argentinians had a great admiration and affection for the United States and believed the North American countries would some day be united in friendship with the Latin American countries in a great federation of all American countries dedicated to peace and progress.

Thousands Of People Wait In Vain For Sight Of Transatlantic Zeppelin

HAVAL AIR STATION, Lakehurst, N.J., Oct. 15.—(Associated Press).—Thousands of people waited all day long for a sight of the trans-Atlantic Graf Zeppelin and waited in vain.

In late afternoon with arrival time estimated ranging from 11 o'clock last night to well along into to-day, the crowds began to disperse, clogging the roads with cars and giving marines and state troopers such a traffic problem as they had faced before only in dreams.

There were a few authentic reports of the progress of the Zeppelin, but these were far outnumbered by the countless rumors that sprang from nowhere and spread everywhere.

A wireless intercepted at Norfolk which did more than anything else to start the waiting crowds homeward reported that adverse winds had held progress down to almost nothing and that the Zeppelin was still in the neighborhood of Bermuda at noon.

The more optimistic, however, gave full credence to "inside dope" reputedly from a source close to unnamed powers said to have the Zeppelin's speed under control. This "dope", was that the ship was being idled out of sight off the American coast and would slide into Lakehurst for a mooring at 11 o'clock last night.

Believers in this rumor hung doggedly on, crowding the hangar where the navy dirigible Los Angeles awaited its big young sister from across the seas and the field prepared for the reception of the visitor.

Estimated 60 Miles Away

Position Plotted By Officers Off Cape Hatteras On Virginia Coast.

280 MILES FROM HANGAR.

Huge Crowds Which Gathered at Aerodrome Yesterday Still Jammed Along Roads.

NEW YORK, Oct 15.— (Canadian Press.)—With her rations running low and her supply of specially developed gas fuel estimated to be exhausted, the Graf Zeppelin was stubbornly winning the fight against adverse winds and the handicap of a damaged port horizontal this morning and by eight o'clock Eastern Standard time was only sixty miles off Cape Hatteras.

After day and night of painfully slow progress and long hours of meagre information concerning her whereabouts, the airship was about 280 miles south-east of Lakehurst, making fair time against a ten to twelve knot wind

At that time she appeared to be covering an average of forty miles an hour which would bring her into the naval air station approximately at three o'clock this afternoon

At two o'clock this morning the ship had been in the air 96 hours, with the likelihood that the entire trip would take her about 109 hours.

All through the early hours of Saturday night and for a great part of Sunday the ship hovered in the region of the Bermudas, fighting winds and seeking to find a more favorable course. For a time she even flew in a southerly direction in order to gain better conditions.

Only the meagerest information was coming through, and it was not until noon yesterday that the ship was definitely located about eighty miles east by north of Bermuda.

At 3.55 p.m. yesterday she was sighted by the steamer Pafcomo sixty-two miles east of Bermuda, and at six pm. she passed over Hamilton. From then on her progress was more steady and at four this morning she was sighted about 430 miles south-east of Lakehurst. Four hours later she was reported 280 miles east of the air station.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (Associated Press).—Struggling against adverse winds, with her flying speed reduced, the Graf Zeppelin, en route from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, apparently has made little progress since 11 o'clock last night.

Admiral Charles Hughes, chief of naval operations, estimated that it could not reach Lakehurst before 8 a.m. to-day.

The Navy Department was informed in an official message from the big airship yesterday afternoon that its position at noon, eastern standard time, was eighty miles east by north of Bermuda, and that it was "running

Brothers Meet On Farm Near Trent River After Forty-One Years' Separation

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, October 15. — Mr. Frank Haughton, Toronto, travelling salesman for printers' ink, was a recent visitor with his aunt, Mrs. H. H. Pollock. Some time ago Mr. Haughton visited Havelock and there learned of the whereabouts of his brother Charles (who lives on a farm recently purchased from Jason Rowe, of Belmont Township), after being separated for forty-one years. Mr. Frank Haughton was born in Seymour Township, on the old Oliver Tyler farm, now occupied by Kenneth Glenn, and when he was only six weeks old went to Toronto, where he has resided ever since. Frank Haughton during his recent visit here went out to see the place of his birth, and also visited Centre Church Cemetery, where his mother and sister were interred years ago. ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED FOR ANNUAL FOWL SUPPER

Ladies' Aid Society of Millbrook United Church To Hold Social.

CANVASS REPORTS READ.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 15—(Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. C. C. Garside was hostess for the October meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the United Church, the Vice-president, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, being in the chair.

The principal business before the meeting was the completion of arrangements for the annual fowl supper, which is to be held this year on Tuesday, October 23, beginning at 5:30 p.m., and continuing until all comers have been served.

Reports from the various canvassers were received, and the lists checked up, the result showing that ample provision is being made for serving an abundant supper, and that even if the usual large crowd should augment its numbers this year there is apparently no likelihood of the supply of provisions being exhausted.

Workers and their committees, were appointed to look after the various details of the activities which holding the supper involves, a well-arranged organization of those serving in any capacity being essential to carrying off the event smoothly and successfully.

The program, which will be given in the church auditorium following the supper in the basement, is under the supervision of a competent committee, and will include one or two visiting artists besides local talent.

The tables, which the Ladies' Aid have had built, will be in use for the first time at the fowl supper, and new table linen and cutlery has also been provided.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. George motored to Roseneath on Friday and attended the fall fair; they will be guests over the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Millen, of Campbellford, and Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson, of Burnbrae, returning home on Wednesday.

Messrs. A. J. Fallis, J. Tate, and Harold Tate went to Toronto on Friday and attended the funeral of William A. Tate, who died in his 75th year on Wednesday, October 10; the funeral was from Chalmers church, and interment at Mount Pleasant cemetery. Deceased was a brother of Mr. John Tate, of South Monaghan, and his wife, whose maiden name was Julia G. Winslow, was sister of the late Jennie Winslow, of Millbrook. He belongs to a pioneer family of Cavan township, but had resided in Toronto for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Challie, and their two sons, Clendon and Orville, spent a few days in Toronto last week, the trip being made by motor.

J. H. Anderson, who was a member of the public school teaching staff here for the past two years, is attending Victoria College, Toronto this term.

12 Tons Of Honey Shipped From Stirling

STIRLING, October 15.—Twelve tons of honey were shipped from Stirling last week when a car of sweets went out of this village. Eleven tons of the shipment were produced by B. O. Lott's bees, of Halloway. This is one of the finest apiaries in Ontario. The balance was made up by other district beekeepers. The honey industry is developing considerably, as the product commands a good price, excellent financial returns are assured.

NEW PUPILS ENTERTAINED

Senior Classes of Campbellford High School Arrange Social.

INITIATION ABANDONED.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 15 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — New students at the high school here this year and the champions and prize winners at the field day were guests of the other students at an informal party held in the auditorium of the school on Friday night. The custom is of fairly recent origin here and serves to replace the old-time initiation that was one of the high spots in the life of the students of the old high school.

Dancing was the popular form of entertainment, with the music furnished by a local three-piece orchestra. The new comers to the school this term were not asked to assist in any way with the party. The others girls provided the lunch and the boys attended to the other details. The cups and prizes were presented by E. H. Greig, Principal of the school.

DR. N. H. SUTTON ADDRESSES INSTITUTE AT LAKEFIELD

Talks On Public Health Nurse As Asset to the Community.

EUCHRE PARTY HELD.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—Dr. N. H. Sutton of Peterborough gave an address at the Woman's Institute at their Stepember meeting held on Thursday afternoon in the Memorial Hall, on the subject of the Public Health Nurse as an asset to the community. The public health nurse includes in her program all ages of human life and is invaluable. The appalling figures in the government report show an increase in maternal and child mortality and in many cases the primary cause is a lack of proper prenatal care. Prevention is better than cure, and the nurse can give practical help to expectant mothers by gaining their confidence and giving them a few simple rules which will be of value.

Then a public health nurse can help a mother take proper care of her baby, so that it can avoid the dangers which menace the first year of a child's life.

The nurse also can detect contagious diseases and prevent them becoming epidemic, as too often carelessness in the home in the matter of so-called children's diseases leads to a serious outbreak. A nurse in the school will examine the children for bad teeth, diseased tonsils or adenoids. At the school age where children are intimate contact with ane another, there are greater dangers of disease and very often children develop valvular heart trouble. There is a great lack of practically applied health knowledge, and the public health nurse helps to remedy this condition.

Government Gives Grant

A public health nurse would have to be employed by either the council or the board of health, and the government would give a $500.00 grant yearly toward her salary, which would amount to $1,500.00 per annum. If the nurse was expected to serve the district outside the village limits a motor car should be provided for her. In order to qualify as a public health nurse, a graduate must take up the special courses at the University, for the ordinary graduate nurse gets little if any training in this special line.

Dr. Sutton thought it probable that grants might be obtained from the neighboring townships.

A vote of thanks was proposed to Dr. Sutton by Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. A. E. Higgins.

Mrs. J. W. Ridpath presided at the meeting in the absence of the president. The attendance was about forty.

Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. C. L. Harrison were appointed delegates to the convention in Toronto. It was decided to purchase a wreath of poppies for Armistice Day, to be placed on the temporary cenotaph.

A donation of cash to a family who recently had their home destroyed by fire was decided on.

Ten tables of euchre were played at the first of the series of card parties held on Thursday evening under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. Prizes were won by Miss Grace Watson and Mr. Lawrence Charlton; the consolation prizes were won by Mrs. W. Watson, Jr., and Mr. C. C. Stenner.

NEW ORGANIST BEGINS DUTIES

Mr. Nesbitt Has Charge of Music at St. Andrew's, Campbellford.

CHOIR TO RE-ORGANIZE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 15 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Members of the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here yesterday morning were pleased to see that one of the two vacancies in the church had been filled. For several weeks the church has been without either minister or organist. At a meeting held recently, the Rev. W. J. Mark of New Westminster, B.C., was unanimously chosen as minister following the resignation of the Rev. James C. Grier, who accepted a call to Lindsay.

Mr. Nesbitt, who presided at the organ several weeks ago and who gave a most acceptable piano recital after the evening service, took charge of the music for the services yesterday morning and evening as the official organist of the church. There were only fourteen members of the choir present, but this circumstance will be improved before the next Sunday. The announcement has been made that the choir will meet to reorganize at half - past seven Friday evening. The regular practice will be at eight. All choir members are expected to be present.

Change Of Altitude Cause Of Damage

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—(A.P.)—The great strain caused by a sudden change of altitude was the probable cause of the damage to the port horisontal of the Graf Zeppelin in the opinion of Ludwig Duerr, constructor of the big dirigible. He said that considerable pressure was created by such a manouver. Herr Duerr saw no occasion for worry about the incident

"The Graf Zeppelin carries no reserve material for repairs of this nature. But the worst that could happen would be that a gap or hole would be left in the horizontal."

W. A. DISCUSSES WINTER WORK

St. John's Women Will Study Book On India This Season.

RUMMAGE SALE PLANNED.

The devotional and business meeting of St. John's W. A. was held on Tuesday afternoon in the ladies' parlor of the Parish Hall. There was the usual large attendance. The president, Mrs. A. W. Turner, occupied the chair, and after the secretary's and treasurer's reports had been received and adopted, the winter activities were discussed. The mission study book for the year is on India, and it will be taken up by Mrs. G. S. Cameron.

It was decided that the annual rummage sale would be held on Wednesday, October 17. Mrs. G. T. Melton was appointed as convenor.

A Hallowe'en tea and a sale of work at the end of the month was also decided on.

Mother Anxious About Lady Hay; Sends Love

LONDON, England, October 13. Mrs. S. T. Lethbridge, mother of Lady Drummond Hay, who is a passe er on the Graf Zeppelin, was in a state of great anxiety to-day for the safety of her daughter. Mrs. Lethbridge, who tried vainly to dissuade her daughter from taking the trip, said to reporters at Hampstead, her home: "I think the danger is tremendous and I am in a terrible state about Grace."

In order not to worry her daughter, Mrs. Lethbridge sent a radio message to Lady Hay saying: "You are forgiven. Much love." Mrs. Lethbridge said that she had a reassuring reply from the Zeppelin.

A STRANGE COINCIDENCE

Film Clouds Teeth

You must remove it

Film, too, is the source of serious tooth and gum disorders. Dentists urge special film-removing dentifrice

THE way your dentist tells you to combat serious tooth and gum disorders is the way screen stars tell you to keep teeth white and gleaming.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel a film. It absorbs stains from food and smoking and turns white teeth dull. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Film must be removed each day. Ordinary brushing fails to do it successfully. So dentists urge the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

No other way will make teeth as sparkling white. Write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 191 George St., Toronto 2, Ont., Canada, or ask your druggist for full-size tube.

Think twice before you risk teeth with cheap dentifrices. Millions would purchase Pepsodent at any price as the highest scientific safeguard known.

CONTRIBUTION MADE TO HELP FAIR BOARD

Stocks Bread, Ltd., Sends Cheque For $15 To President Denne.

The following letter has been received by the Exhibition Board:

Dear Mr. Denne:

It is somewhat late to be writing you regarding the 1928 Exhibition, but I felt I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate you and your Board of energetic Directors on the splendid showing made in every department of your organization. I think the stock exhibited in the various classes was the finest I have ever seen, and the whole tone of the various shows as I saw them was of a high order.

It was unfortunate that weather conditions were all against you and I dare say that you must have incurred some loss on this account.

I am enclosing herewith our cheque for $15.00 in order to help lighten the load.

With very best wishes for the future success of the Exhibition, I am,

Yours sincerely,

JAMES DUTTON.

"WE MODERNS"

AT THE TABLE

EVEN our daily diets are catching the "modern" spirit to-day! We eat, to an alarming degree, foods which are "highly refined," deftly prepared to appeal to our appetites—with the age-old demands of Nature for proper nourishment, practically forgotten. And that is why malnutrition has crept into so many homes to-day—leaving men, women and children open to all manner of more serious illnesses.

But a modern food has been created to overcome this modern diet evil. It is one of the most delicious foods you ever tasted. It is easily digested. And note the precious balanced nourishment this food—Grape-Nuts—gives your body! It furnishes dextrins, maltose and other carbohydrates for energy; iron for the blood; phosphorus for teeth and bone; protein for muscle and body-building; and the essential vitamin-B.

Your grocer sells Grape-Nuts—in wax-wrapped packages. It is ready to eat, with milk or cream. And it is most inexpensive. Four teaspoonfuls, costing less than one cent, is an average serving.

Grape-Nuts is Good for Your Teeth!

Doctors and dentists everywhere stress the importance of including crisp foods in your daily diet to give healthful exercise to your teeth, gums and facial muscles. Also because chewing prepares the digestive secretions of the stomach for their work. Grape-Nuts is deliciously crisp—you like to chew its golden kernels.

LORD NELSON LODGE HOLDS FOWL SUPPER

225 People Sit Down To Enjoyable Repast; Excellent Program.

On Friday night Lord Nelson, L.O.L. No. 2440, held their annual fowl supper in their hall near May's School, and from every angle the entire affair was a decided success. Mrs. George Land, as convenor, and Mrs. W. Lockie, Mrs. George Sexsmith, and Mrs. T. Mennie, certainly made a fine committee, and the nicely decorated table, loaded to capacity with everything from entree to dessert, the splendid comments of the 225 people who enjoyed the chicken supper, gave evidence that the Lodge was wise and fortunate in having such a capable and efficient committee. There, of course, was the band of waiters, who surely deserve credit for their quick and splendid service. Rev. Mr. Dudgeon, of St. James' United Church, gave a brief but instructive address and Mr. J. Worrall delighted the audience with a number of vocal solos. Neil F. Porter acted as accompanist. After the program and supper, Mr. Ore as violinist and Mrs. Rutherford as pianist supplied music for dancing until midnight.

Thus closes another year in the history of L.O.L. No. 2440, where prosperity has surely dwelt when we consider that fifteen years ago the first sod was turned. Then followed the years of struggle, 1914-1918, when everyone who was eligible from the ranks of its number donned the uniform of His Majesty the King. Then to return to almost the beginning again. Now there stands a fine hall, with a good basement, and the smell of paint in the main hall gives evidence that the "bigger and better" slogan still predominates.

The entire membership expressed their appreciation for the splendid attendance and to all those who in any way helped to make their fifteenth anniversary such a success.

WEDDING BELLS

ARBOUR—CONDON.

A very pretty wedding took place in St. Brigid's Church, Toronto, on September 3rd, when Miss Lillian Condon, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Condon of Lakefield, became the bride of Edward Joseph Arbour, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfonse Arbour, of Midland.

Rev. Father Hayes said the nuptial mass and performed the wedding ceremony. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary McCarthy, cousin of the bride, while the groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Edsel Arbour.

After a dainty wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Arbour left on a motor trip to Niagara Falls, Midland and Lakefield and on their return to Toronto will reside at 134 Westlake avenue.

TO-DAY'S VISITOR.

In securing the presence of Sir Joseph Flavelle for the formal opening of the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition the Kiwanis Fair Committee made a happy choice.

That distinguished native son of Peterborough was undoubtedly glad of the opportunity to visit his old home town under such circumstances, while it was a pleasure for the business and professional men comprising the membership of the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, who lunched with Sir Joseph to-day, to welcome an ex-Peterboroughian who had climbed high on the ladder of success and done so much in many ways to make this country greater.

Sir Joseph's record of public service in connection with education, particularly in regard to the University of Toronto, his work as chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board during the war, and his present most important post as head of the Research organization from which Ontario expects much, make him one of Canada's outstanding public men, while his business career is just as fully studded with triumphs.

He was a peculiarly suitable selection for the duty of formally opening Peterborough's Produced-in-Canada Exhibition, and the evidence his visit gave of the still warm interest he has in his native town despite his absence of over 40 years will be appreciated by the citizens generally.

AN IMPORTANT JUDGMENT.

The judgment of Mr. Justice Rose in a traffic accident case heard here last week is a finding that all motorists should study with the greatest interest.

It should do much to correct the impression some drivers seem to have that so long as they do not exceed the legal speed limit they are immune from blame in the event of an accident.

"I think it is the duty of the driver turning into such a street as Wellington street," said His Lordship, "to be sure that the way is clear, and in order to be sure he must reduce the speed of his car to its lowest point."

With some motorists the tendency is to take a chance, to assume the way is clear and to drive accordingly.

Such drivers turn corners too rapidly, drive too fast in school zones and in heavy traffic, and while they may keep within the speed limit, rarely have their car under such control that they can avert an accident in the event of an emergency.

The judgment of Mr. Justice Rose shows how driving of that kind leaves the offender liable in case of an accident, even although the injured party, by his own negligence, may have contributed to the mishap.

That is a point that all motorists should keep in mind; failure to remember may some day prove costly.

ONTARIO FALLS IN LINE.

Premier Ferguson has announced that Ontario is to fall in line with other Provinces and participate in the old age pension system, taking advantage of the Federal offer to meet one-half of the cost.

The decision of the Government will meet with widespread approval.

It has been a source of wonderment why there has been so much hesitation to act in this matter of assisting the needy aged of the Province when the opportunity was open to have fifty per cent. of the pension costs taken care of by the Dominion Government.

With several Provinces already operating the system, the people of Ontario have to pay their share of the 50 per cent. paid by the Federal Government to cover the expenditure on pensions in those Provinces, and had Ontario continued to hold aloof from participation in the scheme we would have gone on helping to pay for the aged poor in other parts of the Dominion, while our own old people would not be receiving any profit.

The operation of the old age pension plan in Ontario will involve a heavy yearly expenditure, greater here than in any other Province, but the financial condition of the Province is such as to justify the assuming of this obligation.

The pressure of public opinion favored Ontario's entry into the list of old age pension Provinces, and Mr. Ferguson has seen the light at last.

His announcement will be glad tidings for many of the older residents of the Province.

A HELPFUL SPEECH.

Premier King's splendid speech to the Canadian Club in London the other day when he told his hearers that "no bigger untruth was ever offered in respect to a nation and a country that to say that Canada does not wish to have immigrants from the British Isles," has met with widespread approval in Canada, even among those not often inclined to speak favorably of the Premier or his Government.

Thus the Ottawa Journal, while claiming that the Government's immigration record "has been generally bad," says "that record, bad and barren though it is, has never included antagonism to British immigration. How that notion—the notion that there was a conspiracy somewhere in Canada hostile to British immigrants—came into being we cannot for the life of us understand."

Mr. King's words on this occasion will be endorsed by the great mass of Canadians, as they have been by the Ottawa Journal.

Surely there are few people who will believe that Britishers are being discriminated against.

As a matter of fact, the Parliamentary Committee which investigated this whole question found that more money was expended to get British immigrants than any other class of settlers.

Another quotation from the Journal in closing:

"Mr. King's speech, which is bound to carry authority, and to be given wide publicity, is certain to do good. It may not convince or silence a certain class of people both in this country and in the Old Land with a propensity for hearing themselves talk and for making trouble, but it ought to satisfy most people whose opinions matter, thus smoothing the way for future plans for the securing of British settlers."

DO MACHINES CAUSE UNEMPLOYMENT?

Economists and industrial leaders have recognized of late the importance of weighing the effect of increased productivity upon the labor market. The question has been definitely raised whether there is such a thing as "technological unemployment"—that is, unemployment caused not by seasonal recessions of credit or of demand by consumers but by the immense development of machines and automatic tools. Mr. Hoover and others take the position that labor displaced by machinery does not remain idle long, but is absorbed by new industries and additional jobs in expanded old industries. Certain limited industrial surveys have tended to verify this view. It is conceded, however, that the matter requires further investigation and deeper study.

Dr. Julius Klein, director of the Federal Bureau of Foreign Commerce, has thrown considerable light on the question. Granted that several million workers have been released since 1920, what has become of them? asks Dr. Klein. In answer he points to the following figures as illustrative of a general situation: More than 1,280,000 persons have found employment since 1920 in driving or otherwise attending to automobiles; the number of insurance agents has increased by 100,000; the country's teaching force has been augmented by 180,000. Radio, motion pictures, mechanical players and talking machines, good roads, restaurants, road houses, the telephone and other public utilities have provided additional jobs by hundreds of thousands. Improved living standards have created a demand for better housing, better furniture, better clothing and labor-saving devices in the kitchen. All these things involve a demand for skilled and unskilled workers.

How speedily the slack due to technological advance is taken up by new industries or by the expansion of old industries is a different question and is not easily answered. Industrial and social readjustments may be attended by much inconvenience and suffering. It is the business of the engineer, the economist and the progressive statesman to reduce this incidental suffering to the minimum. It is, however, reassuring to learn that in the opinion of competent observers increased productivity, mainly through the marvelous effectiveness of modern machinery, is not a source of serious unemployment.—Chicago Daily News.

LABOR IN AUSTRALIA.

Reading the accounts of the labor troubles in Australia, Canadians may feel tempted to lay the flattering unction to their souls that there are some things we do better in this country. It is certainly a matter for congratulation on the part of employers and employed alike that a condition which seems to have become chronic in the Commonwealth is exceptional and, in some of its phases, impossible in the Dominion. For, though there have been occasions here when industrial differences threatened danger to the community and disaster to those affected, the spirit of conciliation, which finds expression in our statutes, has seldom failed to bring about peace before much damage was done.

Australia's experience has been much more unfortunate, and the explanation is to be found in a variety of circumstances. First, there is the difference which exists, as between the Commonwealth and the Dominion, in the method adopted for the settlement of labor disputes. Here, the key to industrial peace has been found in a policy of conciliation that seeks to bring the contending parties together in conference with a representative of the Labor Department, whose duty it is to elicit the facts so as to enable the public to form a judgment upon the rights or wrongs of the dispute. It is a form of arbitration which binds neither of the parties to the acceptance of an award, but which allows for sensible compromise, and the exercise, if necessary, of a salutary pressure of public opinion. As instruments of mediation, our conciliation boards have, on the whole, been most effective.

It is different in Australia. There, the principle of compulsory arbitration is the medium adopted Under the law, arbitration courts are set up to deal with labor disputes, with judges appointed to make awards that shall be binding upon the parties concerned, certain penalties being provided for rejection of the court's decision. To judge from the Australian record of labor troubles in recent years, it can hardly be claimed that the Commonwealth's method has proved an unqualified success, though it would be rash to assert that its failure to avert friction and serious conflict is altogether the fault of the system, or of the principle upon which it is based.

There are other factors to be taken into account in seeking an explanation of the industrial warfare that perennially afflicts the Commonwealth, and unquestionably, the most sinister is the unbridled militancy of the Australian labor organizations. In no other part of the Empire, not even in Britain itself, has trades unionism developed a more aggressive and defiant spirit than in the land of the Southern Cross. Its ascendancy for many years has been such that employers of labor have really been "the under dog," their one and only privilege being to pay out wages and own a business, in the running of which they are permitted little or no say.

Nor are the unions "down under" content merely to intimidate and bulldoze those whom they denounce as capitalists. They arrogate to themselves the right, not only to dictate the terms and conditions under which the industries of the country shall be directed, but to flout constitutional authority and defy law and order. It was this contempt for government and civil rights, inflamed, as was said at the time, by "outside influences," which brought about the national shipping strike three years ago, and it is the same rebellious spirit, fanned by hot-headed and irresponsible extremists, that has asserted itself in the strike and subsequent outbreaks of the past few weeks.

When Premier Bruce declared that other day that the law must be obeyed and constituted authority maintained, he was merely repeating what he said with greater emphasis when he made his last appeal to the electors. The issue before the people, as he then put it, was "whether they desired to be governed by Parliament or by outside influences," the outside influences being "irresponsible extremists working insidiously through industrial organizations by fomenting strikes, direct action, job control and general industrial unrest with the object of achieving their sinister aim."

These were strong words to come from the leader of a democracy which prides itself upon its progressiveness, but not too strong to qualify the actions of those who, by their defiance of law and authority, and their reckless attacks upon Australia's most vital industry, exhibit trades unionism at its worst, and labor run mad.—Ottawa Journal.

A CIVIC BAND.

Dear Mr. Editor,—Some time ago there was proposed a civic band; what has become of the proposal?

Surely Peterborough is big enough and progressive enough at heart to support a community musical organization of merit? Is it that we are lazy? Or do we lack leaders in civic enterprise?

It is mortifying to see smaller cities, towns, and even small villages, with their brass bands carrying off prizes at big exhibitions and festivals, while Peterborough has for so many years been definitely out of the arena.

Would not this be a worthy endeavour for your journal? And can't the city council do something about it? Surely such an organization would be an advertisement for the city, as well as being a delight to the citizens.

Yours truly,
Civic Spirit

THE COLLEGIATE HALL.

The Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The autocratic action of the Board of Education in refusing to rent the new Collegiate auditorium to Kiwanis Club seems to call for an expression of public opinion. After all, that is our hall, built with $300,000 or more of our money.

It seems to me that Kiwanis Club is an important enough and worthy enough organization to receive a little special consideration, if such were required. In this case there is no need for special thought. "It's our show against yours," as an expression of opinion from the chairman of our Board of Education, if you quoted Dr. Craig's report correctly, is indicative of poor spirit. Is the strutting of its stuff by the Board of Education in platform speeches more important than the welfare of the children of the Jackson Park summer camp, supported for two years past by Kiwanis Club? Can the parading of their achievement in spending $300,000 of the people's money by the members of the Board of Education make up for the loss of money sustained by Kiwanis Club money that might, as in the past, have saved some poor child from life-long misery on crutches?

No thinking man will put pomp before service; ostentation before community work. But that is what the Board of Education has done in this case.

Have we any civic spirit in Peterborough? Is there any of the old-time cohesion of the units in our civic life that calls for the unity of the many against the usurpations of the few?

And, finally, where will this autocracy of public bodies end?

Yours faithfully,
JAMES PIDGEON.

A Thought

A HOME RUN.

You often wonder how the famous writers get in the limelight so soon, but it is the easiest trick in the bag.

Bernard Shaw turns the spot-light on himself by saying: "No man dare write the truth about marriage while his wife lives."

Even Tolstoy, that dear old soul, made the sun shine on his gray hair when he wrote: "I will tell you the truth about women only when I have one foot in the grave. I shall tell it, jump into my coffin, pull the lid over me, and say, 'Do what you like with me now!'"

Personally, I am always amused and delightfully entertained by the conjurer's tricks. Sleight of hand is always interesting to me, because I do not understand it, and so women are always miracles to me for I do not understand them. Neither am I anxious to learn legerdemain. The things that I perfectly understand are not always so interesting.

But a woman, she knows the trap-door, the sliding-panel, the false-bottom, and the make-believe of man—she knows all his hocus-pocus, all his handkerchief tricks, and the funny part of it is, the man feels that she does not know and that he is very slick at sleight of hand.

We men do not need to know all about women. What we should know is that women know all about us, and are wise enough to make us think we are wows.

Socrates said something like this: "Why should I concern myself so much about women when my own socks need darning!" And Shaw might have said: "No man dares write the truth about himself while his wife lives."

We are not so much interested in the radio folks being able to extend the ether as we are in having them chloroform some of the announcers.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ills., Oct. 15 (Canadian Press).—Frost reports Saturday from Argetina had a boomerang effect on the wheat market here. The frost reports were quickly denied, and the selling that ensued was given added impetus by word of good rains in domestic wheat territory southwest and west, relieving apprehension as to drought.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, ⅞ to 1¼c net lower, with corn also ⅞c to -¼c off; oats unchanged to ¼c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 25c.

Sensitiveness of the wheat trade here to news at present regarding crops in the southern hemisphere was well illustrated by the prompt manner in which the Chicago market at the opening Saturday reflected temporarily dispatches asserting that frost had appeared in South Argentina. These dispatches, however, were quickly followed by other reports explaining that low temperatures in the section named were really without significance, inasmuch as the critical area is Central and Northern Argentina, where wheat is now at the jointing stage. Furthermore, authoritative cables to leading Chicago houses came later, saying that the wheat crop outlook for Argentina as a whole is first-class, and that frost reports were unfounded.

News that rains in Kansas and elsewhere southwest and west were dispelling fears that Winter wheat acreage would be seriously curtailed on account of persistent dry weather were a further bearish influence, and early gains in price here were soon more than wiped out. There were likewise advices from India telling of timely rains. Meanwhile, big receipts of wheat acted also as a weight on values, and predictions were current that to-day's figures on the United States wheat visible supply total would exceed previous records by at least 20,000,000 bushels. In contrast with such factors, however, were indications that export demand for wheat from North America was of greater volume than of late, and that Europe had bought for shipment from this side of the Atlantic two million bushels in the last forty-eight hours.

Increasing arrivals of new corn, eleven cars Saturday, all grading unusually well for this time of year, brought about enlarged selling pressure in the corn market. During the early dealings, though, there were transient upturns in price on account of wet weather prevailing over the corn belt and regarded as likely to hinder the crop movement somewhat. Oats were dull, and quotations kept within narrow limits.

Provisions declined at the last after having averaged firmer on account of scattered commission house buying.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

IN OUR grandmothers' or possibly our mothers' earlier days, September and October meant the end of summer and the beginning of the busy season of sewing, pickling, and setting things in order for the coming winter months.

• • • • • • •

Probably some Peterborough housewives think the same thing, but the modern mother and housewife has learned the value of fresh air and sunshine, and so want to stretch the summer months out as long as possible.

• • • • • • •

Surely Thursday and Friday of last week suited our imagination!

• • • • • • •

When such days as those appear one wishes that he might be able to drop all the routine work of the day and run to the country and romp to our heart's content among the rustling leaves.

• • • • • • •

Out-of-door meals should be continued as long as possible. Try to keep the meals in the house as simple as you can, too, so that you need not be in attendance in the kitchen very long.

• • • • • • •

There is much discussion in Peterborough just now over housecleaning. Occasionally you see some energetic person at it, but there is much in favor of delaying the fall cleaning until November. Then you can leave the summer curtains as long as the window might be open, so that your heavier, more expensive draperies will be lovely and fresh for Christmas.

• • • • • • •

Don't forget to fill in the coupon for this week.

• • • • • • •

Speaking of Christmas, does it seem possible that it is only ten weeks until Santa will be makig his appearance again? Think of all the lonely and sad little children there might be if there were no Kiwanis or Rotary Clubs in Peterborough. So with Christmas and the coming sultry days of next summer in mind, the Kiwanians through the Produced-in-Canada Fair are endeavoring to be of use to the children of our city who would otherwise be neglected.

• • • • • • •

We hope you'll continue the good work.

There seem to be millions of helps floating around in Peterborough, but it is only once in a while that we catch one, although our readers are coming out a little more in helping us out.

• • • • • • •

The latest one which has come to my notice is patching linoleum. When one wished to renew a worn spot in linoleum, you should cut out a piece in the centre of which the hole is located, carefully following the lines of the design. Using this worn piece as a pattern, lay it on the piece to be used as a patch in such a manner as to duplicate the design as far as possible; then cut it to the exact size and shape.

• • • • • • •

She then tells us to cut a piece of strong muslin larger than the hole left in the floor covering and push it under the hole so it lies smooth and projects a few inches under the linoleum all the way around the opening. Apply glue to the under side of the linoleum over the muslin and press down upon them to glue the two together. Then apply glue to all edges of the patch and on its under side and slip it into the hole which it should exactly fit. Wipe any surplus glue and place a weight over the patch and leave it over night.

• • • • • • •

I would imagine, of course, that it would be best to use linoleum that has had about the same amount of wear as the floor covering. It might, if none other is to be had, be taken from some inconspicuous place where new material can be substituted without attracting much attenion.

• • • • • • •

You've been in some houses in Peterborough, haven't you, where one strip starts at the door, and goes along the much-trodden path to the stove, or another door(and then maybe there will be a rag rug on top of that. I pity the housewife who has to lift all of this every day or maybe twice a day to sweep it.

• • • • • • •

This week's help is a close-fitting hat made of beige wool jersey imported from France. The diagram pattern shows just how the pieces should be cut and the directions tell you how to put it together. It is most convenient for sports wear or motoring, and made of jersey to match your autumn suit, makes a neat and comfortable little street hat. Just send the coupon and a stamp to cover postage, and one will be sent by return mail.

TO-NIGHT'S SPEAKER.

MRS. T. L. CROSSLEY

President of North Toronto Home and School Association, who will speak at the Women's Section of the Produced in Canada Exhibition to-night. Her subject is "The Business of Being a Club Woman."

PAINTED FABRICS TO BE SEEN HERE

British Soldiers, Disabled in War, Send Exhibits To Kiwanis Fair.

The other day the Prince said "Women have a gift of sympathy and self-sacrifice that carries all before it."

An outstanding example is Mrs. Geoffrey Carter, M.B.E., of Sheffield, England. This little woman, a clever artist, early in the war sought to interest some of the disabled men by teaching them to decorate fabrics. When the men began to be discharged from hospital, they found themselves unable to resume their pre-war occupations and appealed to their friend for help. A small committee was formed; three little rooms, one above the other, in a narrow alley, in Sheffield, were taken and several of the men were installed under Mrs. Carter's supervision. For nearly six years, Mrs. Carter worked without a week's holiday, designing and supervising, giving all her time and her great talent to the work.

Mrs. Carter found an able supporter in Miss Edith Jagger, whose brothers are world-famed as sculptor and painter, respectively.

Now there is a model village with fine workshops, recreation rooms, playground for the children and gardens, and forty-seven men, who can muster only fifty-six undamaged arms and fifty whole legs, are now producing the beautiful things known as painted fabrics. It is earnestly desired that more men may be employed—for there are still many thousands in England who are struggling along with their wives and families under slum conditions.

Among others interested in the work and wearing the products are H.M. The Queen, H.R.H. Princess Mary, patroness of painted fabrics, H.M., The Queen of Spain, H.R.H., Duchess of York, H.R.H., Princess Beatrice, while the home of H.R.H., the Princess of Wales, is decorated with pieces of household furnishings.

In Ottawa, on April 23rd, the first exhibition of this work was opened, under the patronage of their Excellencies the Governor-General and Viscountess Willingdon, by the Rt. Honorable F. A. Anglin, P.C., Chief Justice of Canada. During the preceding week members of the May-court Club, of Ottawa, appeared at the Keith Theatre afternoon and evening, wearing some of the creations.

George R. Spragg, late of the Sir Frank Benson Shakespearean Company, is touring Canada from coast to coast with the exhibition of this work, speaking at club luncheons, in theatres and wherever the opportunity offers, and holding exhibitions in leading stores of about thirty of the largest cities and towns which include the following: Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Port Arthur, Fort William, Hamilton, Kitchener, London, Windsor, including Riverside, Ford, Walkerville, Sandwich; Objibway, Quebec, Vancouver, Victoria, Halifax, Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Niagara, St. Catharines, Kingstone, Brantford and St. Johns. He will be in Peterborough with his exhibit during Kiwanis Fair week, October 15 to 20.

This effort of Mr. Spragg's has the warm support of the headquarters of the Canadian Branch of the British Legion. In England, the late Earl Haig was one of its warmest supporters, and Major Melvill, of the Canadian Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment, is also warmly in sympathy with the movement. Mr. Spragg is hoping to visit all the centres of effort for the Canadian disabled.

Her Excellency the Viscountess Willingdon is wearing a beautiful shawl of painted fabric and Mrs. Phillips, wife of the United States Minister of Canada is also keenly interested.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

Your appeal for some little poems in Saturday evening's Examiner sent me delving into an old trunk. I am enclosing the partial results of my search, the tangible evidence of the days when I communed with the Muse. No time for that sort of thing now.

Your page is wonderful—keep up the good work. Your endeavour to have the readers help supply some of the material for same is a good move.

All luck to you.

Thanks, question mark, for the poems, which are lovely. I shall use them every Saturday as long as they last, with appreciation and gratitude.

"Dear Marion:

I wrote you recently to request a copy of a letter from a lady that had cured her children or child of that dreadful disease, infantile paralysis, but as yet have not received your reply.

Perhaps you did like I did, mislaid the letter, or perhaps I should not have made the request, as I know you are very busy. I think you got my letter as the Household helps Coupon I sent came, and I am sending for this week's help. I was pleased to see that it was so kindly offered as it's what I would love to know, how to make is wool flowers, and thanking you in advance for the idea. Sometime ago you wrote me a nice letter; that was nice of you. I will always keep it, to remember the author of 'Whatnot.'

I hope yet to receive that coveted copy and will paste it in my memorandum book right away if I do be fortunate enough to get it. Hoping I am not putting you to too much trouble,

Yours,

Mrs. Wm. K. Long."

The requested paper was sent to you some time ago, Mrs. Long. If it did not reach you I shall be glad to mail another copy. I am just as prompt as I can be, with all my hundreds of letters!

X—EGGS

Eggs are rich in fat and protein,
Iron and phosphorus, too;
While the essential vitamine
They also furnish you.

Someone has said, "An egg is a hope" and, though that was considering them entirely from the 'lay' standpoint, it is also true that, because of the properties enumerated in the rhyme above, they are one of the important foods around which much of the hope of many convalescents is centred.

The following is the composition of eggs:

Whole Egg: 73.7% water, 14.8% protein, 10.5% fat, 1.0% ash—75 calories.

Yolk: 50.9% water, 16.2% protein, 31.75% fat, 1.09% ash—59 calories.

White: 85.7% water, 12.6% protein, 0.23% fat, .59% ash—16 calories.

It can be readily seen that the greater part of the food value of an egg is in the yolk. This is because of its comparatively high fat content.

The shell of an egg is porous. Air entering at the large end enlarges the air space; it is bacteria which may be contained in this air that are the root of all evil so far as the condition of the egg is concerned. Hence, the principle of egg preservation is exclusion of air. This explains why we should beware of an egg which is light enough to float.

Another egg which is no longer young and in its prime is the one which, on being broken, shows the yolk adhering to one side of the shell. In this case the chalaza, which, normally, keeps the yolk in position, has succumbed to the influences of time and given way.

Here are a few rules regarding the care and handling of eggs:

1. Keep in a cool place.
2. Wash just before using.
3. Eggs absorb odors readily, therefore should be kept away from strong-smelling foods.
4. Scrape shells.
5. The unbroken yolk may be kept by covering with cold water. Change every twenty-four hours.
6. If yolk is broken, mix it with sugar. It cannot be kept as long as if unbroken.
7. Keep whites tightly covered.
8. When using several eggs, break separately.

As eggs are lacking in carbohydrate, they should be served with such foods as bread, toast, rice, or the starchy potato.

HAND WORK

Fine handwork makes many a frock smart this season. Fagotting, hemstitching, rolled edges, delicate embroidery and narrow hand-made lace edges are excellent.

Bricks have been sold in New York during recent months at a price actually below what they cost to manufacture.

COLORFUL BACKGROUNDS

New evening scarfs and kerchiefs use very delicate green, flesh orchid and lemon yellow for the background on which printed floral or modernistic designs appear in darker, more vivid tones.

DIAGONALSTRIPES

The crown of an uneven-brimmed black hatters' plush hat is swathed in a three-cornered piece made of grosgrain and satin ribbon, joined to make diagonal stripes. It is tied, like a kerchief in front, with the short ends flaring.

BROKEN

A Story of Revenged Love, by Ruby M. Ayres.

CHAPTER VI.

The east wind was like a cutting knife as Julie brought the car to a difficult standstill and let her hands fall from the wheel. They had reached the hotel at the head of the pass.

"I've won so far," she said, and leaned back, closing her eyes with sudden weakness.

Chittenham uncurled his long legs and got stiffly out of the car, then he came round to Julie's side and took her hands.

"Come along. We'll get something hot to drink. By Gad! it's bitterly cold."

He half led, half lifted her into the hotel and put her down on a bench in the narrow hall.

Chittenham ordered some brandy and made Julie drink it.

"Feel better?" he asked.

"I'm all right." She looked up at him and tried to smile. "It was rather a nightmare," she admitted, "but all the same it was wonderful."

"You drove splendidly," he answered. "But you had better let me take the car back for you or is it part of the bargain that you do it all?"

"I have to do it all." But she looked white and spent, and her voice was unenthusiastic.

"Well we'll get lunch and argue about it afterwards," Chittenham said. "The place seems deserted, doesn't it?"

"Very few people to-day, sir," the waiter told them. He spoke English very well. "And we shan't get any more by the look of the sky."

"What do you mean?"

"There's snow coming, sir."

"Oh!" Chittenham went to the door and looked out. The mountain sides and the lake below looked desolate and grey. The sky was full of dark, angry clouds, and the wind seemed to cut one in two. He went back to Julie.

"It's snowing already," he said.

"Is it?" She laughed. "How funny! When it's summer down in Montreux!"

She rose to her feet.

"I'm all right now. What about lunch?"

But when it was served she could not eat.

"I'm too tired, I suppose," she excused herself. "Too tired and excited."

She got up from the table and walked to the window.

"Oh, look at the snow!" she said.

The snow was swirling against the window in a blinding smother; it was impossible even to see Charon standing at the door.

Chittenham got up and went to stand beside her.

"Now we really are on top of the world," he said. "Just you and I alone, Julie—I am sure even you have never had an experience like this before."

"No. And I'm not sure that I want it again."

"Why? You are quite safe."

"I know, but—" she laughed nervously—"I believe I'm afraid."

"Afraid of what? The snow?"

"No."

"The mountains?"

"Oh, no!"

"Of me, then?"

This time she did not answer or shake her head.

"I thought you were never afraid of anything," Chittenham said.

His own pulses were jerking unevenly. There was something so romantic and strange in the whole situation. He looked at Julie with searching eyes. She had taken off her hat, and her lovely hair was ruffled about her face and ears, giving her a very youthful appearance, and the little half-wondering, half-scared expression of her eyes made him feel almost as he would have done towards a child—as if he must take her in his arms and . . .

The woman for whose sake Rodney had gone to his death!

Chittenham pulled himself together with an effort and moved away.

"It almost looks as if we shall be here all night," he said casually. "Think it's going to last?" he asked the waiter who came into the room at that moment.

The man shook his head.

"You never know up here. Last month it snowed like this for four days. Nobody went down or came up."

Chittenham laughed and looked across at Julie.

"How would you like to be snowed in up here for four days?" he asked.

She turned from the window with a little shiver.

"I should hate it," she said sharply. "This place is like a vault."

"Better than being out in that," Chittenham said, nodding towards the window.

"It will clear up directly and the sun will shine," Julie declared. She wandered restlessly to the door.

Chittenham glanced out at the flying blizzard.

"I think it's worse," he said briefly.

She turned on him angrily, with flashing eyes.

"You're a nice Job's comforter. I wish you had not come. I wish——" She broke off, her voice quivering.

Chittenham looked at her silently, and then suddenly to his utter amazement she burst into tears.

"Julie!" He made a quick movement towards her, then stopped, shrugging his shoulders. "I don't know what you're crying for," he said sharply.

With a great effort she controlled herself.

"I don't know, either," she said between little sobs. "It's just nerves, I suppose. This hateful place——"

"It looks as if we shall have to stay the night," Chittenham answered uncompromisingly.

He walked out of the room and into the hall where another traveller who had just entered—a big, bulky man in a leather coat and a cap with ear-flaps pulled closely about his face—was shaking the snow from his shoulders and stamping his feet on the mat.

When he saw Chittenham he laughed.

"Jove, I'm glad to be out of that!" he said in a big, schoolboy voice. "Never thought we should manage that last bit. Couldn't see a yard ahead, and blowing like the devil. Looks as if we're here for keeps," he added jovially.

"Certainly for the night, I imagine," Chittenham said dryly.

The other man had struggled out of his coat and was blowing on cold fingers to warm them.

"Well, we shall be company for each other," he said.

"I've a friend with me," Chittenham said.

"Good. It won't be so dull, after all, then. My Gad! Hark at that wind."

It really sounded eerie. The wind was shrieking and whistling round the house like a maniac, shaking the doors and windows and penetrating every nook and cranny.

Chittenham went back to Julie. She was still standing by the window, staring out at the swirling snow with frightened eyes. He went up to her and touched her hand.

"There's another traveller here, so we shan't be lonely," he said.

She turned and looked at him, her eyes wet with tears.

"I suppose you think I'm a fool," she submitted in a hard little voice.

Chittenham's face softened.

"I think you're adorable," he answered.

For a moment they looked at one another silently, then Julie said in a queer breathless way:

"I can't make you out. I've never met a man like you before. I suppose you're just amusing yourself—I suppose you don't mean a word you say—that you're just flirting—"

"Is that what you really suppose?" Chittenham asked. He took her by the shoulders, turning her to him. "Is that what you really suppose?" he asked again.

"No—yes—at least——" She was like a girl, confused and shy. "Oh, did you really mean it when you said—when—you know what you said—about love at first sight—I mean—you're so strange, and I . . ."

Chittenham's pulses were throbbing in a strange fashion. No woman had ever made him feel as he felt now, and it angered him. Was this the strange fascination of her which had conquered Rodney? Was this what the boy had meant when he said: "Wait till you see her! There's something different—quite different about her from any other woman——"

They were alone in the room, he and she, alone in the world, it almost seemed, when one looked out of the window at the blinding snow. The lid of the world! High up on the mountain-tops amongst the Olympian gods. He was conscious of a throbbing excitement—almost of exultation, as he looked into Julie's tear-wet eyes. She had told him that she had never cared for anyone in all her life, that she was afraid of caring, but now something in her tremulous girlishness and faltering voice gave the lie to those words. Yesterday seemed a great way off—in another world. America and Sadie were wiped out and forgotten, even the memory of Rodney faded until it seemed only like a ghost in the background of the present unreality as Chittenham drew Julie Farrow into his arms and kissed her unresisting lips.

The position given in the Navy Department's message was much closer than might have been expected to that reported to the Radio Marine Corporation at 11.15 Saturday night.

At that time, the position was placed at 63 west longitude and 34.40 north latitude, or approximately 100 miles north-east of Bermuda.

An unofficial message picked up by a number of stations about 11 yesterday morning gave the position as 34 north 68 west, which is about 320 miles east of Cape Hatteras and 660 miles from Lakehurst. This report, conflicting somewhat with the Navy's official figure, remained unconfirmed. A later message from Hamilton, Bermuda, said the wireless station at St. George's had reported the ship at noon bearing 73 degrees from that point at a distance of fifty miles.

Officials and engineers at the Zeppelin works here said yesterday that the repairing of the damaged fin of the dirigible in mid-air and in the face of head winds had constituted one of the most daring engineering feats in the history of aviation.

From the meagre description of how the repairs were effected which has reached here, it appears that only one man was able to work in the interior of the fin and that the others clung outside on the wind-swept struts while the job was being done.

The workmen were led by Engineers Siegle and Baeurle, and Knut Eckener, 24-year-old son of Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the craft.

'He takes off his Hat to Kruschen'

Read what a Druggist says about a friend of his and Kruschen:—

"I feel I must send you this little testimonial with regard to Kruschen Salts. A friend of mine showed me a letter from his father (aged 63) in which the following sentence occurred:

"My dear old friend, Kruschen is still doing the trick for me, and whenever I see a bottle of Kruschen in a druggist's window I take off my hat and bow to it.

"I must tell you that this gentleman suffered for years with stomach and liver troubles; he was even operated on for appendicitis, but did not seem to obtain appreciable relief." J. O., Druggist.

BENSFORT CHURCH KEEPS ANNIVERSARY

Rev. J. V. McNeeley, of Keene, Preaches—Church Beautifully Decorated.

The anniversary services of the Bensfort United Church was held last Sunday, October 7th, with the special preacher, Rev. J. V. McNeeley, of Keene United Church.

The church was decorated with beautiful autumn flowers, potted plants and harvest fruits, and at both morning and evening services the choir rendered special music. Miss Ruby McAllister was organist.

Mr. McNeeley took his text in the morning from Christ's Sermon on the Mount, Matthew, 5th chapter, 41st verse: "Whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain."

Rev. Mr. McNeeley gave his inspiring message to a much appreciated audience. They were greatly impressed by his Bible lesson, which urged all to love Christ and obey His laws.

His sermon in the evening was from the Book of Exodus. He gave the character of Moses, and told how he became a real power in the hands of God, also how the disciples became teachers and workers for God's kingdom. He closed with the thought that all should be workers and lovers of God.

Mr. McNeeley made both sermons characteristic of his rich Christian experience, giving lessons which had in them a definite appealing message for young and old alike.

EXQUISITE SONGS WERE PERFECTION

Lawrence Mason Praises Singing of Miss Thomson at Banff.

Writing of the Banff Scottish Festival in the Toronto Globe last month, Lawrence Mason said:

"In this hearer's judgment absolute perfection was reached in a few memorable moments which should be recorded. One was the rendering of 'Think of Me' by Madame Jeanne Dusseau of Toronto; another was the singing of some exquisite Hebridean Songs by Marie Thomson of Edinburgh, and the third was the truly marvellous work of Miss Thomson's accompanist, Jean Buchanan, also of Scotland. The art and beauty of these performances are beyond praise."

Both Miss Thomson and Miss Buchanan have consented to come to Peterborough for the Produced in Canada Exhibition.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

P.C.I. Team Blank Oshawa Collegiate 23-0

Ottawa Lose Big Four Decision at Home

WINNERS MAKE FOUR TOUCHES BY CLEVER PLAY

Heavier Oshawa Team Unable To Get Counters Across.

FUMBLES COSTLY.

Varied Attack Ordered By Gemmell Too Much For Visitors.

Peterborough Collegiate's senior rugby team took sweet revenge for their defeat of a week ago when on Saturday afternoon at James Stevenson Park, they came through with a much finer showing than was expected of them, and brought the Oshawa C. I. outfit down for a 23—0 count. And in so doing, they played a smart game against their heavier rivals from the Motor City.

The largest crowd to turn out so far this season witnessd the game, which was played under ideal weather conditions. The same could not be said of the ground, for the baseball diamond section of the park rendered the footing far from reassuring and many a possible long run died an untimely death by the skid route.

A 23—0 count sounds rather lopsided for so keenly interesting an exhibition as was the Saturday struggle, for though the Petes retained a firm grip on their lead throughout, the score did not come particularly often at first and there were times when the hard-hitting visitors looked well seasoned for a tally or two. They boasted a couple of particularly smart ball carriers, but contrary to the dope, were not sufficiently strong on the line to stop the varied attack that Gemmell, in command of the Petes, sent at them. Fumbling of the ball at crucial moments went against them more than all else.

The Petes started out well and within a few minutes after the kick, had the visitors forced back to their own danger zone. Green paved the way by blocking a kick, and Rosy Hewett put the Homesters five up right away.

Cuthbertson, playing his usual effective game was the next to register, though it was not for some time after. He took an onside kick by Gemmell. Green forced the next point after Gemmell had booted the ball behind the Oshawa line.

In fact Gemmell's kicking played a big part in all the counting, for the Pete's twelfth counter came from his toe. A well organized line play put Armstrong across to boost P.C.I.'s balance to 17; a kick by Gemmell made it 18, and Green pounced on a loose ball after Gemmell had kicked it, to bring the total to 23.

There were no stars on the local line-up for every man played effectively. Young McGee managed to make himself conspicuous. Red Legon refereed while Armstrong of Oshawa umpired. The teams:

Oshawa.—Halves, Cornwall, Evans and Cruthers; quarter, Carver; snap, Cook; outsides, Glass and Daniels; middles, Cutter and Hele; insides, Henry and Smith; flying wing, Mundy. Subs, Bondurant, Green, Grant, Davidson, Irwin, McIntosh and Fletcher.

Peterborough.—Halves, Hewett and Cuthbertson; quarter, Gemmell; snap, Preston; outsides, Glover and Westbrook; middles, Johnson and Armstrong; insides, Hall and Wiman; Flying wings, Green and Dunkerley; subs, McGee, Lord, Reynolds and Dearborn.

SCOTTISH TEAMS PLAY 3-ALL TIE

Motherwell-Celtic Principal Fixture in Saturday's Football Program.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Oct. 15 (Canadian Press Cable). — Twenty-two thousand people watched Motherwell and Celtic battle to a three-all tie in the principal fixture of the Scottish Football League, first division, Saturday at Motherwell. Celtic were twice in the lead and after desperate rallies by Motherwell were able to save the game in the last few minutes through a penalty kick. Scorers for Motherwell were: McFadyen, Cameron and Ferrier; and for Celtic: Gray (2), and Connolly.

Crawford (2), Gillespie (2), McAlpine, and McDonald collected Queen's six goals against the Hibernians. McColl got the vanquished team's lone tally.

For Rangers against St. Johnstone the scorers were: Alan Morton (3), Fleming (3), Muirhead and Archibald. St. Johnstone made no reply.

Hearts were easy winners over Cowdenbeath, who were without their goalie, Johnny Falconer, for most of the match. Falconer was only married on Friday evening. He was hurt in a melee in the goal-mouth and had to be carried off the field on a stretcher. Miller scored two of Heart's markers, while Battles and McMillan had the other two. Wilson netted for Cowdenbeath.

The goals of Dorran and Pigg, the latter getting a couple, enabled Raith Rovers to win their second game this season. They were meeting Hamilton Academicals. Jack was successful for the losers. Jessiman scored the goal which gave Clyde a win over Ayr United, while Hamil's two tallies enabled Third Lanark to get a draw with Dundee. McNab and Craddock netted for Dundee. Falkirk earned their first point in four weeks when they drew with St. Mirren. McCrae and Connor scored for St. Mirren and Houston and Gall for Falkirk. Aberdeen earned their win over Airdrie through the two goals obtained by Cheyne. McDougall was Airdrie's scorer. After being two down Partick Thistle halved the points with Kilmarnock through the last minute goals of Richmond and Torbet. Connell registered for Kilmarnock twice.

Olympic Walker Wins Endurance Test

BALTIMORE, Md., October 15 (Canadian Press). — William Agee, sergeant in the Third Corps area, and member of the 1928 Olympic Marathon team, won the Federal Athletic Association's 25-mile endurance walk from Laurel, Maryland, to Baltimore, on Saturday. His time for the distance was 4 hours 31 minutes.

Miss Eleanor Sears, Boston society woman and noted hiker, was the first woman entrant to cross the finish line. She placed 24th, her time being 5 hours 38 minutes 37 seconds.

MONTREAL WINS FROM ARGONAUTS

Scullers' Hopes For Title Diminished By Reason of 13-6 Defeat.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—The revised, revamped, and remodelled edition of Montreal's "Big Four" football entry opened its home season here Saturday by crashing through to a 13 to 6 victory over the Toronto Argonauts, thus diminishing the visiting Scullers' title hopes to a great extent, and at the same time giving Montreal fans renewed hopes that a championship may come to Montreal after many years of waiting. The largest crowd at the M.A.A.A. grounds in many "moons" was on hand for the official opening of the local senior season, close to 8,000 fans witnessed the contest.

With the exception of the first part of the fourth quarter, when Blair, Montreal's quarter and secondary defence man, was serving a penalty, the Montrealers commanded the play. With Blair off, and Argos taking advantage of a Montreal fumble on their own 40 yard line just as the final quarter started, the Montreal wings suddenly went to pieces, and a fast running attack thrown around either end of the line had the locals baffled Led by the fleet-footed backs, Turville and Chantler, the oarsmen carried play well into local territory. The score at the time stood 7 to 3 for Montreal.

Finally, when Argos were in possession 25 yards out, Chantler sent over a placement kick for three points, to bring the double-blue within striking distance.

The visitors continued the pressure, and a 45-yard dash by Turville to Montreal's ten yard line, once more placed the Argos in promising scoring position Instead of kicking for the tying point or attempting a drop or placement kick, Argos elected to try to score a touchdown. The Montreal front rank stiffened, however, and crashed through to gain possession when Argos, as a last resort, tried an onside kick.

It was a close call for the M.A.A.A. team, which immediately took up the attack and, aided by a blocked kick, obtained possession well in Argonaut terrtiory. Wright then kicked for a rouge, and the locals had an 8 to 6 advantage. An Argo fumble then gave Montreal possession of their opponents' 25 yard line On four consecutive plays, Wright and Red Moore crashed through for a try, the redhead carrying the ball across. The convert failed. The Montrealers then had rather a safe 13 to 6 lead, and the fans breathed easier.

Argos started an onside kick attack in the dying moments of the game but it was too late to prove of any value to their score.

The Scullers started with the wind at their backs in the first quarter, and by the time the teams changed ends for the second session, had a 2 to 0 lead by virtue of two rouges kicked by Harris. However, when the locals gained the wind advantage, they immediately proceeded to pile up a seven-point total with a field goal and four rouges, Wright kicked the three-point marker, a neat effort from Argos 35 yard line. Argos counted a rouge in the third quarter, a long kick by Turville accounting for the point.

It was a fast open game in which the superior play of the Montreal front rank gained the verdict. Both back fields showed a wide open brand of play, with Chandler and Turville, the latter, especially, making some nice runs, featuring for Argos, and Red Moore, the Balmy Beach product, and Gordie Perry, former intermediate star, doing the most ground gaining for the winged Wheelers. Beano Wright, former Queen's player, also looked good on the Montreal backfield, and besides doing valuable ball carrying and sound secondary defence work, held his own with the Argo punters, Turville and Harris. There was little to choose between the fast running attacks staged by the two backfields, but Montreal had a wide edge on line play, where the local team held the upper hand practically throughout.

TIGERS PLAY OFFENSIVE GAME

Carry Play Into Ottawa Senators' Field To Win 19-7 Victory.

BRILLIAN BALL CARRYING.

OTTAWA, October 15 (Canadian Press). — Hamilton Tigers handed Ottawa Senators a thorough trimming here on Saturday afternoon in the second Big Four rugby game of the local season. The final score was 19 to 7, and the Tiger margin on the entire play was just as decisive as the score indicates. True it is that the Bengals ran their total up with a nine-point assault in the last period, but they were in command of the situation for the greater portion of the game.

Caught in a yellow and black avalanche that slowly and surely rolled them back into their own end of the field, the Ottawa team were unable to stem the weight of the Tiger offensive, and although they fought hard, and went down fighting, it was unavailing.

Brilliant ball carrying by Gibb, Small, and Boadway, backing up a terrific line assault by the front rankers, and coupled with some classical long distance kicking by Welch, spelled the downfall of the locals. Turman was not outclassed in the kicking duel, but he was out-distanced, and the Tiger wings seemed able to pierce their way through whenever those long hotsts went hurtling to the Ottawa backfield.

The Hamiltonians went on the offensive from the kick-off, and plunged for yards three consecutive times before being forced to kick. On the return kick they again made yards, and then on a fake kick formation, Gibb split the centre and galloped 20 yards for a touchdown which was not converted.

Recovery of a short kick by Bruce in Tiger territory gave Tubman a chance to kick to the deadline before the game was much older, but when "no yards" was ruled against Pinney when he floored Welch, Tigers were moving aagin and Gibb booted a field goal.

Just before the period ended, Welch droppd a ball when running back a kick and Connell tore through to boot it over the line and drop on it for a touch which he converted, making the score 8 to 7 for Tigers when the first change-over took place.

Steam roller tactics by the Tiger line put Ottawas on the defensive early in the second session and Tubman was rouged on Gibb's kick. For the rest of the period they battled along without score. The Senators came to life in the last ten minutes and Tigers were continually on the defensive. Only sensational running by Welch and Gibb kept Ottawa off the score sheet and it was 9 to 7 when half-time came.

Ernie Cox suffered a broken finger in the second period, but he was able to resume play in the third quarter. A short kick by Tubman, followed by a yard-gaining assault by Tigers, put the visitors in position to boot another rouge to Tubman early in the period, which proved to be the only point scored before the teams entered the final fifteen minutes. Departing from their line plunging plans of the previous quarters, the Senators endeavored to open up the play, but met with little success. Welch hoisted one to the dead line to make the Tiger total eleven, and after Brassington had run another sure-looking point out, he and Wright tangled and both were chased to the timers. Tubman was rouged for another point when Welch's long punt on a hurry-up formation went over his head and Welch made it fourteen with a boot that went into touch just over the line.

With minutes remaining to play, a Tiger end run went wrong and Connell and Brassington broke through, Brassington grabbed the loose ball and ran it to midfield, but it was called back. Recovering from this break, Tigers broke through and Elford, blocking Lynch's attempted onside kick, grabbed the oval and ran ten yards before passing to Denman, who went fifteen yards more for a touchdown. This was unconverted, and the final score of 19 to 7 was established.

While Tigers had a margin on the play, the breaks of the game certainly went against Ottawa. They suffered two severe penalties when Pinhey and Stanyar were judged to not give yards in succession, and the recall of Brassington's run also put a crimp in what might have been a fruitful offensive.

Tigers played all through with a confidence that was not to be denied and there was assurance in practically every move they made. Once Ottawas solved the disastrous attacking formations of the first five minutes, the game developed into a hard-fought battle without let-up until the final whistle sounded.

Welch stood out with his fine kicking, while Gibb, Boadway and Small were invaluable to the Tiger cause. The linemen all played well with the outsides featuring the play with fine tackling.

Starr and Pinhey were Senators' best. Kealey did effective work on the line, while Emerson was good offensively. Brassington was also prominent and Tubman's booting was effective, although he was not as good as usual in carrying the ball. Connell was again reserved from heavy work on account of an injury to his side, but he did good work defensively.

A crowd of more than 7,000 people enjoyed the game in perfect football weather.

"We're almost around to the basketball season again," says Dick Gibson, in the Border Cities Star, "and I'm afraid the rules are not going to be very much improved. A few minor changes in the code may help some, but there is still the danger of games being slowed up and spoiled for the spectators by continuous whistle blowing.

* * * * * *

"I've always argued that the personal foul rule is a joke and a very harmful joke. For four personal fouls a player goes off the game. And almost anything can be interpreted as a personal foul if a strict official is in charge.

"Because basketball, a few years ago, got a trifle rough, the rule makers have gone to extremes in trying to remedy that situation. Now almost any contact is a personal foul. A guard is guilty if he steps one foot to one side and touches a dribbler. And, by this winter's rules, a dribbler will be committing a personal foul if he touches an opponent without making every effort to avoid him.

"Perhaps basketball without any personal contact would be the ideal game, but it's too high an ideal to reasonably expect. Charging, tripping, shoving, slapping and holding can be spotted and penalised without making every contact a crime. However, that's the way the code is to read, and it's a great game anyway, so we might just as well make the best of it."—Hamilton Spectator.

YANKS REMEMBER HURLER'S WIDOW

Mrs. Urban Shocker Receives Players' Share of Series Money.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13. — Financial echoes of the world series reverberated from the office of the baseball ocmmissioner yesterday as Judge Landis signed over cheques totalling $176,289.37 to the victorious New York team.

The commission disposed of the New York division of the spoils in cheques ranging from $500, the amount given Mrs. Urban Shocker, widow of the former hurler, to $5,813.30, the sum received by 36 players, coaches and Manager Miller Huggins.

From the bat boy to the mighty "Babe" Ruth, there was something for all. Every player that figured in the pennant climb was remembered. Wilcey Moore, the hero of the 1927 series, came in for a full share, although he was released before the close of the season because of a sore arm. Stanley Covelski, Albert Sheely and "Rosy" Ryan, who saw only part time service with the champs, were given half shares.

It was the largest cut ever received by a team winning the world series. While having no comment to make, Commissioner Landis' beaming countenance expressed his satisfaction at the success of the 1928 series.

SARNIA DEFEAT VARSITY 16-2

Victors Linked With Kitchener As Contenders For Senior O.R.F.U. Honors.

FOR WESTERN GROUP.

SARNIA, Ont., Oct. 15. — (Canadian Press.)—Sarnia and Kitchener loom up as the chief contenders in the western group of the Senior O. R.F.U. as a result of Sarnia's 16 to 2 victory over the Toronto Varsity twelve here on Saturday afternoon. The Kitchener Panthers defeated Varsity the preceding week, 5 to 4.

Sarnia's lopsided triumph here was due in a large measure to the kicking ability of Captain Frank McPhedran. The husky flying wing of the Imperials was hoisting the pigskin from 40 to 55 yards on every foot and giving the end all kinds of time to get down and stop the Varsity backs. The visitors also suffered from the loss of Baillie, right half, who was injured and forced to leave the game at the end of the third quarter. Spencer, left half, had previously been forced out by injury.

A blocked kick gave Sarnia first blood in the opening quarter. The ball was on Varsity's 12 yard line when Snyder kicked. The ball was blocked by Manorf and it bounded back of the Varsity goal and out of touch for one point.

In the second period McPhedran kicked over the visitors' line to the dead line for a point and Baillie was rouged after receiving a punt. Varsity notched their first tally in this period when Perry was rouged trying to get out from behind his own goal line after receiving a punt. Karn was rouged in the third quarter for the second and final Varsity point.

In the final chapter Sarnia notched two rouges in the first five minutes. Perry broke away after catching a punt at midfield and ran 50 yards for Sarnia's first touchdown in senior company. Five minutes later when Wood fumbled a kick at midfield, Sarnia halves, dribbled the ball 45 yards and Stirrett, former Argo star, fell on it for another try. McPhedran converted to bring Sarnia's total to 16.

Newark Club Denies Report

NEW YORK, October 15 (Canadian Press). — The Newark International League Baseball Club has denied the report that its manager, Walter Johnson, had agreed to manage the Washington Club next year. A statement from James P. Stnnot, club president, said that Johnson had been asked to consider such a proposition, but had not yet agreed to accept.

Should Johnson decide to take the offer, Paul Block, owner of the Newark Club, would not hold him to the contract he has signed to manage Newark, the statement said.

DELORO WINS IN SEMI-FINAL

Defeats De Laval 4-2 in Peck Cup Game—Will Meet C.G.E.

KEEN CONTEST.

MARMORA, Oct. 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—Through defeating De Laval by 4 to 2 in another keen game of football at Deloro on Saturday afternoon, Deloro won the semi-final of the Peck Cup and meet C.G.E. in the final game at Peterborough.

Deloro kicked off and after both goals had been visited, the homesters forced a corner. Receiving from the kick, W. Brown scored. While both teams played with considerable dash and the goalies were kept busy. W. Brown narrowly missed another score when the ball struck the right upright. Play then became listless for a period. Finally Dyer, Jr., made use of a good opportunity as the Deloro goal underwent bombardment and scored with a clinking shot.

Yates was called upon to save shortly after when the visitors had forced a corner. He cleared in fine style. Play was taken to the other end, Brooks being conspicuous with a fast rush and sending in a shot. Fowler made a poor clearance, and W. Brown, dashing up, scored his second goal. Twice Deloro should have increased their lead before half-time came. The forwards bunched up when a good chance came and W. Brown had hard lines in receiving from another corner, a beautiful shot striking the left upright.

Half time arrived with the score: Deloro 2, De Laval 1.

The second half opened with Deloro aggressive. Their efforts were rewarded when E. Brown sent the ball between the uprights. Fowler was given his busiest period of the game at this time. First he had to deflect a shot from a team mate which was of the dangerous type. After several rushes on the De Laval goal without success, a Deloro player set the ball bouncing on the cross-bar. Pulley brought off a nice save when the goalkeeper was beaten. Play was then taken to the other end, De Laval playing nice combination. Dyer had bad luck when a goal looked certain. When play returned to the other end, Cousins was similarly unfortunate, missing an open goal. Fowler made a nice save from a kick ensuing from a corner, but a moment later he was again beaten by W. Brown. Dyer, Sr. shot wide when given a good opportunity. About ten minutes before the finish, De Laval were awarded a penalty, Dyer being successful with the kick. Play was even until the final whistle blew.

Final.—Deloro 4, De Laval 2.

Referee McKinley kept the game well under control and his decisions were satisfactory to both teams. Though again victors, Deloro on the whole did not reproduce the good play of a week ago, but against the stiff opposition which will be furnished by C.G.E., they hope to show improvement over their form in the previous clashing with this team. The teams:

De Laval.—Goal, H. Fowler; backs, R. Evans and A. Downer; half backs, J. Mitchell, H. Pulley and V. Curtain; forwards, W. Watkins, F. Dyer, Jr., F. Dyer, E. Abraham, and E. Hanson.

Deloro.—Goal, A. V. Yates; backs, R. D. Murray and C. Nicholson; half backs, W. Savage, J. Kelly and J. Hart; forwards, T. Cousins, E. Brown, W. Brown, L. Rundle and G. Brooks.

Referee: Alex. McKinley, of Peterborough.

CHIEF GIVES TALK ON FIRE PREVENTION

Addresses King George Home and School Association—Diplomas Presented.

At the monthly meeting of the King George Home and School Association, held on Tuesday evening, Fire Chief George Gimblett gave a very interesting and instructive talk on Fire Protection. The presentation of diplomas to successful Entrance pupils was made by School Inspector A. Mowat. The president, Mrs. Ada Craig, was in the chair.

A short, enjoyable musical program included a vocal solo by Berenice Doxsee, a reading by Ruth Ellis and piano solos by Gwenyth Boorman and Phyllis Starr.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, a social half hour was spent and refreshments were served.

Man Badly Wounded, But Didn't Know It; First Aid Rendered By Passerby To Motorist

Motorists who chanced to be on the Chemong Highway at about eight o'clock on Friday evening, tell the strange story of a man walking about and declaring himself unhurt while a hemorrhage formed below his knee. The arrival of a man skilled from army days in the art of first-aid alone saved him from serious loss of blood, if not death.

While details of the accident are not very clear, it appears that the injured man had been riding in a roadster, coming toward Peterborough when it crashed with a car going in the opposite direction, and turned over several times, finally ending up in the ditch.

The man had emerged from the accident with only a cut lip as outward evidence of injury, and only when the medically trained man noticed blood on his shoe did he consent to a closer examination. He was later driven to the city for medical treatment.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE SHIELD OF HONOR."

The Big Police Melo-Drama Is the Big Attraction at the Capitol To-Night. Also Those Funny Fellows, Stan. Laurel and Oliver Hardy, in "Early to Bed."

Not even a policeman will be able to find a technical fault in the manner in which the actual police drill team scenes in "The Shield of Honor," at the Capitol to-night.

They are said to be perfect in every detail for with the exception of the more prominent figures in the cast, who impersonate officers in the picture, all the other police officers are members of the Los Angeles police department and were actually on a field day when the picture was taken.

2,500 policemen were used in these thrilling scenes which were taken in Exposition Park, one of the largest and best public parks in Southern California, the men working under Chief Davis of the Los Angeles Police Department.

During the making of the picture the policemen forgot they were just acting before the camera and entered into the spirit of the thing with great gusto. They went through their manoeuvres and drills with the same enthusiasm as they put in their everyday work.

The Sheriff of Los Angeles was also an interested onlooker of the taking of the picture for his department of public protection supports an airplane and he readily appreciates what its addition to metropolitan police forces will do in checking the nefarious operations of criminals and law breakers.

The stellar cast embraces such players as Neil Hamilton, Dorothy Gulliver, Ralph Lewis, Nigel Barrie, Thelma Todd, Claire McDowell, Harry Northrup, Joe Girard and others. Emory Johnson directed the picture, which is from the story written by Emilie Johnson.

The funniest team on the screen to-day, Stan. Laurel and Oliver Hardy will be seen in a side-splitting comedy, "Early to Bed."

AT THE GRAND.

Taking the press reports of The Dumbells newest revue, 'Why Worry," from the Toronto dailies, collectively and individually, Captain Plunkett knew whereof he spoke when he titled his tenth annual revue.

One and all, they congratulate the Captain on his showmanship as evidenced by the addition of about a dozen charming Canadian girls.

They also remark the fact that he has retained practically all of the old-timers and has provided them with excellent material in the way of songs and sketches.

Al. Plunkett is credited with two of his greatest song hits, "That's My Mammy" and "You Can Feel It Doing You Good." "Red" Newman scores heavily in the sketches as well as in his vegetarian song. Fred Emney is apparently out to break all versatility records. He sings, dances, plays panologues and cavorts throughout a half dozen skit and comedy interludes, with hardly a pause except to change costumes.

JESSIE BUTT
in "Why Worry," at the Grand, Friday and Saturday

Harry Binns and Jessie Butt have two or three charming duets and Cameron Geddes is accorded the solo hit of the performance for an old de.. melody

Aileen Parker is the premiere dansuese and she contributes several delightful dance creations as well as sharing honors with Morley Plunkett in a Spanish number and an old-fashioned waltz.

With all the novelties and surprises in "Why Worry?" it still remains for Captain Plunkett and his male singers to provide the solid success of the entertainment. This is the musical act which opens the second act. Here the Plunkett Trio, The Dumbells Quartette, Howard Fogg and his violin, the piano duets of Fred Emney and Louis Crerar and the solos of Harry Binns and Cameron Geddes, combine to make the most enjoyable half hour that any lover of real music could ever desire.

'Why Worry?' will be the attraction at the Grand theatre for 3 performances, Oct. 19th and 20th, with Saturday matinee.

AT THE REGENT.

SPANIARD CHOSEN AS TYPICAL AMERICAN BOY — ALONZO, NOW ROLAND, WILL TAKE YANKEE ROLES

Conflicting a general opinion that an actor must be a certain "type" to successfully play a selected screen role, B. P. Schulberg cast Gilbert Roland, a lad of pure Castillian parentage, for the part of an "all American" youth in his newest production, "The Plastic Age," which is now playing at the Regent Theatre.

Roland is the son of Francis Alonso, a few years ago the most famous bull fighter in Spain. In this early youth Roland was trained to succeed his father as a matador, but the family was in Mexico at the time of the rebellion and was forced to leave for America. The older Alonzo had previously been badly gored in a bull fight, so all thought of returning to Spain was abandoned and Gilbert attended public schools in El Paso, Texas. He forsook a law course at the University of Texas to become a film actor.

His was signed to a long term contract by Schulberg last summer and is seen in his first big part in "The Plastic Age." At the time the contract was signed, his name was changed from Luis Alonso to Gilbert Roland. Despite his Spanish parentage Roland looks and acts like an American youth and will be presented by Schulberg in typical American roles.

"The Plastic Age" is an adaptation by Eve Unsell and Frederica Sagor of the popular novel by Percy Marks. It was filmed under the direction of Wesley Ruggles. Featured in the cast are Clara Bow, Donald Keith, Mary Alden, Henry B. Walthall, David Butler, Joan Standing and others.

HOLY NAME VOWS RENEWED BY MEN

men coming out to pay honor to the name of Jesus Christ is a great consolation. The world is moving with a rapid pace and men are flying hither and thither in confusion daily more confounded. In the midst of all this feverish quest for the things of this world one wonders whether men have lost all idea of the sole end and purpose of their lives.

"In the universal service of mammon, one asks what has become of faith. Have we lost it? It is dead? An occasion such as this gives us the true answer. Does this gathering look as if faith were dead? You have proved to-day that the old faith, which time and the age have not dimmed, still burns in your hearts. That is not only a credit to you; it is also a great consolation to us. What other interest could gather you here in such large numbers? If that be true, as we are certain it is true, what better proof could you offer to show that faith occupies the first and most prominent place in your Catholic lives?

"It is no empty show, no vain ceremony that assembles us here before this altar. It is not to honor some great man, mortal like ourselves. We are here to pay homage to that Man who was also God, whose death was the greatest triumph and whose grave the best pledge of His divinity. Nor is it only a sentimental feeling. It is indeed an act of practical Catholic faith in that name which the great apostle said was above all other names, in Jesus Christ our God."

"What's In a Name?"

Father Kehoe said it was often asked, "What's in a name?" and it was inferred that names were insignificant. "But some names count for a great deal," Father Kehoe continued. "A country's pride is often bound up in the names of that country's heroes. The names of its heroes render that country immortal. They are cut in wood and stone, and are carried along on the wings of memory for the admiration of posterity. There is glory and there is power in a great name. If all that be true of the names of men, what shall we say of the name of the Man who was also God? What shall we say of the sacred name of Jesus Christ, of its glory and power?

"The glory of Christ's name is not limited by the boundaries of this earth. It goes to the very throne of God. Only beyond the skies is that glory known, because the glory of every saint is added to the glory of Christ. It is little wonder that St. Paul said God had given Him a name above all other names; small wonder that the scriptures should tell us that at the mere mention of His name every knee should bow."

Father Kehoe dwelt upon the power of Jesus' name. It had shone forth through the darkness of paganism and rallied a sinful world, bringing it repentant to the feet of God. It had been the strength of martyrs and virgins; by that name the lame walked, the blind were made to see, and the dead brought back to life.

Defenders of Doctrine.

"Yours is the honor to stand up as defenders and apostles of that sacred name," Father Kehoe admonished his rapt audience. God alone knew how much they were needed to stand up and profess their faith in the great dogma of the Divinity, in this day when the Gospel is being torn to shreds and twisted in every way to suit the errors of decadent doctrines.

"As members of the Holy Name Society you are called upon to show forth respect and reverence for that name. Stand on a street corner and listen to the passersby. It will not be long until you hear how the sacred name of Jesus is degraded and profaned.

A Lay Apostolate

"Another obligation requires you to do all you can to avoid impure talk. If ever there was an apostolate to laymen there you have it. You go where the priest cannot go. We can preach and exhort, but we must rely on you to see that that preaching is upheld. I say to you in confidence that of all the sins man commits there is none so degrading, none that keeps him so close to the earth as the habit of trucking and trafficking in filth which decency would not even name. We have the word of God for it that the man who finds pleasure in that, thereby labels himself as impure. The things we love, we talk about. The electrician talks about electricity; the farmer talks about farming, and impure speech is but the overflow of a corrupt heart which is so full, as God tells us, that it can't contain it all., (And it is not mitigated because it may be dressed in the garb of smartness, or by having the sanction of a loose society."

Whited Sepulchres

Jesus Christ drew a perfect picture of that type of sinner, Father Kehoe said. "He used words I would not dare to utter had He not pronounced them first. He called such people hypocrites, like unto whitened sepulchres, outwardly appearing beautiful to men, but inwardly full of dead men's bones and all manner of corruption. There are men and women, too, just like that. They appear beautiful, but let them talk and soon they will reveal the corruption that lies within.

"In God's name, have not part in that. Frown it down. Be a man. The God who asks you to do it, will reward you for it. I promise you no earthly reward, but God has promised you more; for He said, 'He that professeth Me before men, him I will profess before My Father, who is in heaven'."

Bishop O'Brien, in a brief address, commended the men upon their large numbers. "It has been a magnificent tribute to your own faith and religion, a great inspiration to myself and, I am sure, to all of you. It expresses your faith in the very existence of God, and your fidelity in guarding respect and in keeping reverence for that name which every human being should be glad to honor."

IN POLICE COURT

Two workmen at the Auburn Woollen Mills pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place this morning in police court and were each fined $10 and costs. The men were being followed by a group of children yesterday afternoon when they were arrested on Water street. When arraigned they claimed they had been imbibing in a couple of cans of "canned heat."

Two boys from Hamilton were found in the entrance of the Nova Scotia apartments this morning at 4.35 by one of the constables while on his beat. When they failed to give a proper explanation of why they were there he placed them under arrest. They appeared this morning charged with vagrancy. A plea of not guilty was entered and both were remanded until to-morrow morning.

BACK FROM DEPOT OWNERS' MEETING

Local Tire Dealers' Report Very Successful Meeting at Kitchener.

Peterborough Dominion Tire Depot proprietors have just returned from Kitchener.

On October 2nd and 3rd, Kitchener was the mecca for all the Dominion Tire Depot Owners of Ontario and Quebec. The magnet was the Depot Owners' Convention at the Dominion Tire Factory. And what a Convention it was! "Wonderful," they all say, "the most interesting and enjoyable event of its kind I ever attended."

The Convention was planned as a sort of post-graduate course in tire care and repair for the sole benefit of Dominion Tire Depot Owners, who say with a sigh that it is too bad education wasn't made so painless in the days when he was learnin' the three R's.

The program included a complete tour of the wonderful tire factory. It was a great opportunity for the men who sell Dominion tires to see how they are made. Then there were exhibits of the latest vulcanizing and repair machinery and accessories, extensive lectures and practical demonstrations by the experts in charge, educational moving pictures of rubber growing, sales talks and entertainments.

The Convention was brought to a close by a big banquet at which addresses by prominent citizens were delivered. The Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, painted a rosy picture of "Canada of the future" while Mr. J. O. Linteau delivered a most instructive address on "Merchandising conditions in the automobile trade." Mr. W. A. Eden, president of the Dominion Rubber Co., brought the Convention to a close with a brief outline of all the Convention meant and a few words of good cheer for the coming year.

Peterborough dealers have returned full of enthusiasm. They feel that as a result of their visit to Kitchener they are better equipped than ever to serve the motorists of this city.

ENDED AUTUMN COLD QUICK, PLEASANT WAY

Many Here Who Try Hospital Method in Own Homes Get Almost Instant Relief

Doctors realizing the need to "play safe in dealing with a cold during this changeable weather" are now advising home use of a pleasant hospital method that has given surprisingly quick results not only in extreme hospital cases but in hundreds of homes in Peterborough and Lindsay.

Miss Edith Black, for example, contracted a severe cold which she neglected at first. Soon her eyes were red, her nose was stopped up and congestion caused her to cough so hard the doctor was called. He advised prompt treatment with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a hospital certified remedy composed of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients which are absorbed by the system and quickly drive out cold congestion from the nose, throat and bronchial tubes.

Within an hour she began to feel more like herself again. That night she was able to sleep without coughing or having to breathe through her mouth. The pleasant treatment was continued and in another day or so, the doctor reports, there was no sign left of the cold.

Note: Other cases reported daily—all certified by attending physician.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral now and you, too, will feel like a different person to-morrow. At all druggists—65c and twice as much in $1.00 hospital size.

All they have to do is gather names of members for the Seckatary Hawkins Club and drop these names in the box at The Examiner booth, just inside the door of the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition. Whoever gets the biggest list wins the wrist watch, and the next three in order will be given a Seckatary Hawkins adventure book each.

Don't forget, the lists must be handed in at the Fair. When one list is full, hand it in and get another blank sheet.

CONTEST CLOSES SATURDAY AT 10.30 P.M.

LARGER BODIES FOR VICTORY SIX

Closed Models Offered With Additional Length and Height.

Longer and roomier bodies affording greater vision in all closed models of the Victory Six line have been announced by Dodge Brothers. The new type bodies now in the hands of all dealers are available in the sedan, sport sedan, coupe and coupe-brougham. In designing the changes, engineers have retained the Victory Six roadability featured by its low centre of gravity and sweeping, graceful appearance.

Mechanical changes of the improved Victory Six models include an engine temperature indicator on the dash board, grouped under the glass panel with gas gauge, oil pressure indicator, speedometer and ammeter, and the location of the starting button on the dash board within easy reach of the driver.

Maximum vision for the driver and occupants of the front seat has been effected by an increase of 76 square inches in the area of the windshield. The height and length of the sedan models and coupe-brougham have been increased to the greatest head and leg room for all passengers.

Doors of the sedans have been widened approximately three inches, and are built higher. Glass area of each front door window has been increased by 80 square inches. In each rear door window, the glass area has been increased 52 square inches.

Improved interior appointments of all bodies have been matched with additional attractive color combinations and trimmings. No change in prices will be made.

BOLT DISPUTE UNSETTLED

Robert Cleugh Says Company Claims Costs From Him.

BAILIFF PLANS SALE.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 15.— Now that the eight bolts which were ordered by His Honor Judge Huycke in division court here have been put in their proper places, it was expected that the affair between Robert Cleugh, Seymour farmer, and the Louden Machinery Company of Guelph would be terminated, but apparently this it not the case. The bolts have been put in and Mr. Cleugh has tendered a cheque in payment, but he claims that the cheque was not accepted. These circumstances were brought to the attention of The Examiner on Saturday afternoon when Mr. Cleugh called to tell his side of the story. The bailiff's man is still on guard on the road in front of the Cleugh farm and Mrs. Cleugh claims that he is at a loss as to what to do. A sale is scheduled to take place on the eighteenth of this month for non-payment of the account of the Louden Machinery Company. Mr. Cleugh has the cheque ready for payment but claims that it will not be accepted as the bailiff claims more money than the amount of the order. This Mr. Cleugh says he will not pay. It was not his interpretation of the order of Judge Huycke.

Mr. Cleugh gave the original amount of the order to the Louden Company as two hundred dollars. It has since grown to much larger proportions, some of which, but not all, he is prepared to pay. The order was given in 1926 and it was expected that the goods would be hot galvinized but when they arrived they were painted white over ordinary metal. Only a few pieces were galvanized as expected. Mr. Cleugh refused the shipment at the railway station and the goods lay there for approximately six weeks. At the end of that time they were changed. When they were taken to the farm and erection began, it was found that there were some twenty bolts too short. The company was notified and others were sent. These Mr. Cleugh agreed to put in, but they came during his busy season and he did not do the work at once. Then the company sent a man and he did not complete the job. In spite of the court order, they tried to make a seizure before the terms had been carried to completion. Not till the present month, Mr. Cleugh claims, was the work completed and the differences of opinion as to who is to pay the costs, is keeping the bailiff's man on the road in front of the farm. This is the second time he has had a dispute with the company.

Just what action would come of the entire affair, Mr. Cleugh did not know, but he was firmly convinced, he said, that he was in the right and was prepared to take the matter to a higher court if necessary to have certain costs of the affair assessed to some person or persons other than himself.

GRAIN YIELD LIGHT IN CAVAN DISTRICT

Number of Farmers Completing Threshing For Season— Potato Crop Good.

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAVAN, Oct. 15.—Mr. David White is making his second trip in threshing in Cavan Centre Earlier the farmers just threshed a little for feed, but now a number are completing their grain threshing. It is a much shorter job than in other years, only taking from half a day to a day and a half to complete, where in the ordinary season it would take more than twice that time.

The yield of grain is light and the threshing very dirty. The wet cold weather seemed to help weeds to thrive while the growth of the grain was retarded. Nothing yielded real well.

Early in the summer there were bright prospects for the farmers, but the continued rains changed everything. The alsike is not yet threshed but very little is expected from it.

The fall wheat was badly winter killed and what came through was badly sprouted during the prolonged harvest rains. Very little of the wheat will grade No. 1.

Peas were a fair crop.

Barley is one of the best crops but there is not much of an acreage of it. Oats are fair, going about twenty five or thirty bushels to the acre.

Barley and buckwheat, the mixture which was sowed this year for a late crop is not yet threshed.

Pastures are good for this time of year and cows have kept up their flow of milk well.

Roots are good. Potatoes are yielding well, but rot is prevalent on heavy and low land.

A number of farmers are employing someone who owns a potato digger and this speeds up the work of garnering in the potato crop. About six to ten pickers are required to pick after one.

Winter apples are scarce, fall apples are a fairly good crop.

Red clover is mostly all cut but not all drawn in.

Farmers are busy raising potatoes and mangels, pickling apples, attending threshing and between jobs keeping the plow going. A great deal of ploughing is done already.

Farmers are an optimistic bunch and when a crop is poor. They immediately prepare for the next one hoping for better luck another year.

Karl von Linnaeus, a great botanist of the 18th century, originated the modern system of classifying plants and animals.

She was Bothered with a Sore Back

"Was bothered with a Sore Back and Lumbago," writes Mrs. J. P. LeBlanc, 2 McDonald Avenue, Cornwall, Ont. "If I was lying down I could not get up again. I could not do my work. I used one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they did my back good. I can do my own work now. They are very good pills and I would advise everyone to have them in the house."

Every woman should use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are certainly the finest Kidney Tonic in the world.

Toronto Prices Move Up As Buying Gathers Force

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Prices continued to move higher on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, stimulated by the accumulation of buying orders over the weekend. Massey-Harris was the feature of listed section, advancing to 52½, a new high level for all time. At noon it was selling at 51½, a net gain of 1%. Buying was very heavy. Cockshutt, unchanged at 32 was a close second in activity. On heavy trading Page Hersey reached 110 but at the noon hour was back at Saturday's price, 106. International Nickel was easier today and at noon was down one at 147. The high point for the day was 149. Hayes' Wheel was up at 40 and Brazilian was unchanged at 61. With sales totalling 10,650 shares, Walkers continued to occupy the spotlight on the unlisted section, and sold up to 72¼ from a low of 70. The noon price was 71¼, a net gain of 1% for the day.

Favorable Crop Reports Cause Decline In Wheat

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.— (Canadian Press).—Favorable crop advices from Australia and Argentina, together with Liverpool reports of a pause in demand, led to early downtourns today in wheat values here. The decrease of world shipments of of wheat for the week failed to act as a counter balance. Opening unchanged to ⅝ off, wheat prices later underwent a setback all around. Corn, oats and provisions were like wise easier, with corn starting unchanged to one cent down and subsequently holding near to the initial figures.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

Underground operations are reported to have been temporarily suspended on the North Country Mines, four miles from Amos and adjacent to the Jay Copper Mines. It is unofficially stated that arrangements are being made towards further financing which may take the form of a re-organization. As the company is capitalised at 1,000,000 shares it would be comparitively easy to increase this to 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 shares. Work done to date consists of a shaft sunk to 150 feet in depth together with considerable lateral work.

Public interest has turned to the tin stocks now that it has been announced that Manitoba may become a producer of this metal. Various reports have appeared in the press regarding this commodity, its scarcity and the present sources of supply. The Financial News Bureau now presents the results obtained from a broad survey of the world's present tin producers.

Production is steadily progressing in the Federated Malay States and improved methods have now enabled the operating companies to treat low grade ores profitably which otherwise could not be mined. The Dutch East Indies comes next to Malaya as a producer and these isles account for approximately 23 per cent. of the output of the world. There has been nevertheless a very drastic decline in output from this source during the present year. As compared with last year the output here dropped about 8% to 22,367 tons for the first eight months of the present year. Ore reserves will last but ten or twelve years at the present rate of production and this decline is looked upon as the first stages of the mines' exhaustion.

The production in Nigeria is increasing and experts predict still further expansion. Bolivia is producing less, however, and no relief is in sight save for, of course, the probability of the companies finding more ore.

Shares of the tin companies have been bouyant recently on European stock exchanges due to the fact that all producing mines are now making a handsome profit owing to the metal's prices. This is about 48 cents per pound. World production for the first eight months of this year was 103,217 tons, against 90,359 tons for the corresponding period of 1927, while the total world's consumption advanced from 9,206 tons for a like period of this year. The visible stocks of tin do not amount to more than seven week's supply so that it is practically a hand-to mouth business.

The result of this survey is to show that the need for new tin fields is urgent the world over in view of increased demand for the metal and prospects of still further greater demand due to the supplies of the metal consumed in the American canning, building and motor car industries.

Surface work is being carried out on the properties of the Notre Dame Mines, according to a report submitted by engineer Ed. Bregent. Two interesting veins were uncovered on the Montbray property showing copper, gold and silver with showings of quartz and feldspar. Drilling has now been started on this group and rock was struck at a depth of 20 feet.

Something Regarding International Nickel Company's Physical Assets

The report of the Royal Nickel Commission in 1917 stated that International Nickel Company had at the Frood mine 45,000,000 tons of ore averaging 2.05% nickel and 1.45% copper. Based on 25 cents nickel per pound and 15 cents copper per pound the average value per ton at that time would be $16.10 Here was an indicated total value 11 years ago of approximately $725,000,000. As the Frood mine ore assets have been held in reserve, this volume of ore remains in tact.

Up to 1927 the Frood mine had a shaft down 1,100 feet and comparatively little lateral work had been done. The above estimate of physicaly assets were estimated from diamond drill cores.

It was only comparatively recently however, that drilling was carried down to below 3,000 feet, which resulted in the location of an ore body up to 70 to 90 feet, core assays revealing a copper content of above 20%, nickel content 2½% and relatively high values in platinum, paladdium, gold and silver. It was the marvellous drill showings that induced the management to sink the Frood shaft through to below 3,000 feet, which is now completed and lateral work has been under way for some time. This is the big story in Internation Nickel. Its present high earning-power may be mighty strong factor but it is secondary.

In the first place International Nickel owned the entire block of claims, including the Frood and Frood Extension mines. Surface showings were all on the Frood, with the result that International Nickel gave up the Frood Extension section which was later purchased by Mond Nickel Co. Mond Nickel Co. did some diamond drilling to blow 3,000 feet and made the big discovery, which is now proved to be common to both. The Frood ore body dips into the Frood Extension at depth. Frood mine is protected, however, as its holdings surround.

It has been estimated that International Nickel can count on an additional 55,000,000 tons between 1,100 and 3,300 feet depth at the Frood, and probably Mond can count on about the same tonnage from the Frood Extension. The full extent of the enrichment at depth has yet to be proven, however, by actual underground work, Frood Extension shaft is down 3,350 feet and lateral work has been under way for some little time.

Let it be assumed, for sake of argument, that International Nickel will get only 30,000,000 tons of ore from below, 1,100 feet at the Frood and that copper content will average only 10% and nickel 2½%. Leaving precious metal content out of the question (and this is an important factor) on such a basis average values per ton would be $42.50 per ton, making a total indicated value of $1,275,000,000 and giving the Frood mine from the surface down to 3,300 feet an aggregate value of $2,000,000,000. This may be regarded as a very conservative estimate.

In addition to the Frood, International has ore resources in several mines including the Creighton, est source of supply, Greann Hill which has been the company's greatmine and the Copper Cliff mines. International Nickel owns all told 18,000 acres in the field.

WOULD ABOLISH TRAVEL TROUBLE

Need For Passports in Empire Is Opposed.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—A campaign for the abolition of the requirements of the British Government that British-born travelers going from one part of the British Empire to another should possess passports, will be conducted by the Canadian Steamship and Tourist Agents' Association, the association decided recently. Members of the association are confident that, in this move, they have the sympathy of the travelling public, who have to abide by "this unnecessary trouble." The will endeavor to bring to bear upon the British Government through the Department of External Affairs—sufficiently strong evidence to have this class of passport eliminated.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR

Many imagine Satan desires his followers to be outwardly of bad repute, such as the murderer, the bandit, the drunkard, the licentious, the harlot, etc., but not so, he is looking for respectable followers, and he gets them too. So we find amongst the followers of Satan, some who are looked up to in society, some who love salutations on the market place and on the streets, some who seek the best seats in assemblies, some who make donations to worthy or unworthy institutions, some who have their names on some church roll book, some who with grave or smiling face sing songs of grace, some who for a pretence make long prayers, some who outwardly are like whited sepulchres, but inwardly are full of rottenness. "There is a way that seemeth to be right upto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death," Proverbs 14:12.

Wedding Bells

CHAMBERS—FELL

A quiet, pretty wedding was solemnized in Detroit, the bride travelling in a smart coat of brown broadcloth with long cuffs and Paquin collar of beaver.

Many handsome and useful gifts from a large circle of friends were received by the young people.

CRAIGHEAD—ALLISON.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday afternoon at 1.30, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Allison, in the presence of the immediate families, when their elder daughter, Mabel Lexa, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Reginald S. Craighead, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Craighead, Campbellford. Rev. J. E. Todd officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked very pretty in a dress of biege lace over peach crepe. She carried a bouquet of butterfly roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Elva Nugent played the wedding march and during the signing of the register Miss Freda Allison sang very sweetly "At Dawning."

After a ouffet luncheon, Mr. Craighead and his bride left amid showers of confetti on their honeymoon to Ottawa and Montreal. The bride travelled in a tailored gown of midnight blue cloth, with fox fur.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Craighead will reside near Campbellford.

mnized by Rev. J. H. Dudgeon at the parsonage of St. James' United Church, at a quarter to three o'clock this afternoon, when Verna Kathryn, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fell, 235 Princess street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to James Henry Chambers of Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Chambers of 270 Reid street, Peterborough.

Witnesses to the signing of the register were Miss Gladys Chambers and Mr. Eldridge White of Bailieboro.

The bride wore a lovely gown of dark beige transparent velvet, made with rounded neckline and long sleeves. Graceful half capes fell from each shoulder and the left side of the skirt was draped in an uneven length to the hem. Sunburst tucking made an effective trimming. A hat of the same soft shade of velvet had a rim of gilt tulle, edged with gilt lace, a side trimming of coq feathers and band of gold sequins.

Brown kid slippers with suede insets were worn, and matching silk hose. The bride also wore a string of pearls and the gift of the bridegroom, a gold wrist watch, and carried an arm bouquet of ophelia roses and lily of the valley.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. Chambers and his bride left for Toronto, en route to their home

FAIR FORMALLY OPENED TO-DAY

all bore nicknames—mine was 'Bunty'.

"We were a lumber and timber town. Ludgate's mill on the north shore of Little Lake, a bit west of the present entrance to the liftlock, and the sense of calamity when it burned. Dickson's where the Quaker Oats dam now replaces the old Dickson dam; Hilliard's, Snyder's, and Scott's at intervals in the next four miles. There was a movement of men in the fall to the shanties in the spring to the river drives of logs and square timber. Nearly all in the picturesque costume of the French Canadian, they stirred you with their cheery songs as in long strings of wagons, they and the supplies started on the journey to the north.

"Beauvais hotel on the bank of the river, facing the east end of Charlotte street, was their rendezvous. We had Roger's, Munroe and Dawson's, Martin's and Hilliard's Grist and flour mills and the Auburn Woollen Mills.

"In the earlier years, there was little cash in circulation, store business with farmers being by barter, exchanging merchandise for butter, eggs, poultry or upon yearly credit, as the farmers had little to sell in exchange for cash, except a year after harvest, when they drew in their grain. The wagons or sleighs carrying the grain arrived at all hours in the night and early morning and were drawn up in long queues awaiting their turns to unload at flour mills and at grain warehouses.

"When the rush of deliveries was on, the whole day would be consumed before the last of them were unloaded. Then there was the return journey, often over fall roads deep in mud. All our roads, judged by modern standards, were impossible, and sometimes for weeks in the spring when the frost was coming out, impassable. But we knew no better, and with fine courage and little complaint, we carried on. We were only emerging from pioneer conditions, and were not over nice in judging the only available facilities. I remember my father, working in the woods north of Buckhorn, walking into town, twenty-three miles, and on his arrival, holding in his hand the lamp needed to light the dentist extracting the tooth which had occasioned the long journey.

"Our only railway, the Midland, was a line thirty miles south to Port Hope, and half the way there the branch line from Millbrook to Lindsay. The journey to Toronto was a great undertaking—one day to go, one day to do your business and the third to return. It was after I grew into manhood that George Cox became president of the company. This was occasioned through the road being unable to meet its obligations, incident to its extension from Lindsay to Beaverton and Woodville. To protect its position, the Bank of Montreal insisted on a change of administration. I remember the evening when the citizen body, accompanied by a brass band, met the incoming train to which was attached a car from Toronto, heralding the first time passengers leaving Peterborough in the morning for Toronto, could return home the same evening.

"When I was a small boy, we burned tallow candles for lighting in our homes. We did more—we made them A tin mould was used, which provided for six candles at one pouring of tallow. Kerosene was available for lamps but too expensive for people of limited means.

Present-Day Conditions

"May I tie these days of simple thing to present day conditions by an illustration from personal experience. In company with some associates, I visited the Prairie Provinces in the Fall of 1921. Hospitable friends in Winnipeg entertained us at dinner the evening we arrived. After dinner, a senior of them said, 'Flavelle, the deflation in value of agricultural products, the general slowing down of business, the burden of undischarged debts have developed in us, a blue funk. If you can say anything cheerful, this would be a good time to let us have it'."

Sir Joseph then quoted his answer, in which he compared pioneer days with present times on the Prairies to show that the annual production of agricultural products exceeds by many times, the actual amount paid by the government, soon after Confederation, for the greater portion of the three Prairie Provinces.

Canada's Progress

Canada's progress before and after the war, and the manifold reasons for optimism were strikingly illustrated by statistics which attracted and held the interest of the gathering as statistics seldom do. Referring on to the Made-in-Canada Exhibition, Sir Joseph said:

"I bring to this Made-in-Canada Annual Exhibition in Peterborough, these made-in-Canada developments, and tender them as exhibits of the cumulative productive power of all our people during the fourteen year period, in five of which we played an honorable part with hundreds of thousands of the cream of our young manhood removed from production, in the Great War from all the provinces of this broad Dominion. I pray that they may awaken in us deep gratitude, and with it an added sense of responsibility of the part we should play in preserving a sense of moral and spiritual worth, through a line of temptation incident to marked material enlargement.

"It is still true that a man's life consisteth not in the abundance he possesseth. We should not forget there is no real profit to the country and no real betterment to enterprise because of stock exchange speculations or gambles turn out profitably to the gambler. There must be in every community a body of men who love to do business for the sake of business and who do it well and keep on doing it well. It is these men who are worth while.

"I desire to associate myself with men from every province of the Dominion, who think of Canada as a whole and who, planning for the whole, believe they are planning wisely for the respective parts. I am unable to believe that national standards and ideals can be maintained if our thinking is chiefly sectional or vocational. I do not believe that the men were wrong who planned the Dominion and who conceived the part a United Canada would play in the future of the North American continent.

"Canada as it is, and as it will continue to be, will have problems peculiar to the provinces on the Atlantic seaboard, problems peculiar to Quebec and Ontario and to the Pacific provinces. These problems ill necessarily be worked out by those immediately associated with them, but the outcome concerns us all and we should all help when joint action is needed. To play the game separately should, and I believe in the long run will end in disappointment and defeat.

"In racial, sectarian, and economic differences the need is not for a specific remedy, for this cannot be found. The right course will emerge if enough of us are tolerant and patient. Give and it shall be given to you in good measure."

Vote of Thanks.

John I. Allen moved the vote of thanks to the speaker and to the Canadian Singers, in masterly manner. Then, with the singing of "O Canada" over, Sir Joseph stood and said: "It is my duty to declared this Made-in-Canada Fair officially open, which I now do."

Canadian Products Are Well Displayed

Exhibits at Fair Good

Great Variety of Produce of Canada's Factories Shown in Booths.

WELL DECORATED.

Demonstrations in Some of the Booths Attract Large Crowds Last Night.

More exhibits, and better exhibits than ever are to be found in the Armouries this week for the annual Produced-in-Canada Fair. So many are there that they have even taken up a large part of the room devoted to women, leaving only a small space for the audience for the lectures to be given every afternoon and evening this week.

The goods displayed are, of course, made in Canada, and many of them are made in Peterborough. There are many booths containing the produce of factories located in other Ontario cities, while the reputation of the fair as a good place to exhibit has spread even as far as Alberta, whose coal is shown in one of the main booths.

Canadian General Electric Co.

Directly facing the main entrance is a block of booths that has an initial member in the blue and yellow enclosure of the Canadian General Electric Company, with its exhibit of Hotpoint heaters, irons and toasters and range.

W. Gordon Hall is the uptown agent for the range, which has an automatic control. There are also Mazda lamps, porcelains from the local plant, "Tungar" rectifiers, and fractional and heavy duty motors. Two Radiolas, in console and table style, are included in this exhibit.

The Book of Knowledge

Next door is an attractive arrangement of the Book of Knowledge, with E. Machin of Toronto in charge. A very taking display of the "Children's Encyclopedia" has been contrived here, in a booth whose walls are hung with pictures emblematic of the contents of the well-known "book," with colored plates illustrative of its beauties, and with big electric flash signs. The coats of arms of the various provinces are used as a border in effective fashion.

Miss Florence Benjamin.

Miss Florence M. Benjamin of Toronto, song composer, who was here last season with her composition, "Down Sweetheart Lane With You," has a lovely little booth this year where her latest song, "Sailing Through Skies of Blue," is featured. In its pale cerulean cover, it blends admirably with the two-tone effect in blue that has been used for the decoration of this attractive centre. Florida blue and a light navy have been used in the papering and paneling of the walls, while a lighted floor flamp, rug and piano with vases of roses, add to the pretty atmosphere. Miss Benjamin sings her own compositions.

Barrie's, Limited

A cosy touch on a chilly afternoon or night has been contrived in the enclosure used by Barrie's, Limited, where warm furs are displayed in a very advantageous manner. Two black bruins, "couchant" (as the makers of heraldic emblems would phrase it), guard the front of the booth, which is hung with dozens of small animal skins, and has hangings of ruby velvet. Fox scarfs are displayed on the floor and there are several handsome coat models for women. One is a grey squirrel, while other models are developed in grey and brown caracul, and there is a lovely pure white coney coat with white fox collar and cuffs. The lining is opened to display two gorgeous big blue velvet butterflies applied to its spotless white surface.

Canada Starch

At the next corner is the exhibit of the Canada Starch Company, where everything that can be made from corn is on view, displayed in a most attractive style. Oxford blue and yellow paper has been used to decorate this booth and the packaged and tinned goods on view give an idea of what can be made from this amiable vegetable. There are samples of Mazola oil, corn syrup, corn starch, and molasses, and in glass containers there is the original corn itself and some of its derivatives, in starch, gluten feed and corn sugar, which is a pure white, fine, powdery substance with a very sweet taste that lingers momentarily.

Miller-Powell Co.

In a double booth in this section the Miller-Powell Company has its display of electric ranges, white enamel electric refrigerators and electric washers. Three of the latter are developed respectively in soft, pleasing colors of grey, cream, and blue-grey, while the water which churns energetically and constantly in one of the models is a dark, sea green. This section is very effective with its walls of black, white ceiling, and

KILLED IN NEW YORK.

Norman L. Sarginson young Canadian advertising man, who accidentally crashed to his death from the sixth floor of a New York apartment house while attempting to work his way along an outside ledge to rescue Constance Ford an actress, who fainted and was locked in a bathroom. Investigation showed that there had been a party, attended by several theatrical people, following which the tragedy occurred. Norman Sarginson was born and educated in Peterborough. His parents now live in Toronto.

NO DISCOMFORT TO PASSENGERS

Deny They Suffered From Air Sickness—Not Told of Danger.

NEVER WORRIED.

LAKEHURST, N.J., Oct. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—The passengers aboard the Graf Zeppelin started on their air voyage of 111 hours with the same or less flurry than do steamer patrons, and so the trip continued. Confined to small quarters, their days aloft were spent in much the same fashion as they would have been aboard a liner, with simple entertainments in luxurious surrounding.

Not once from the time of their departure were the passengers so worried about the storms encountered that a "little drink" didn't fix them up, Dr. Hugo Eckener said.

In the squall that struck the craft on Friday and caused the damage that brought a request for a ship convoy, the passengers were held in ignorance of any real danger. Dr. Eckener said that if the repairs had not been made quickly the fabric from both sides of the damaged find would have been ripped off by the wind with the probable result that the Zeppelin would have been out of control.

The passengers denied they suffered fraim air sickness at any time during the trip.

INVESTIGATE DEATH.

Police Seek To Find Cause of Death of George Baird in Toronto.

TORONTO, Oct. 16 (Canadian Press).—Police are investigating the death of George Baird, aged 45, to find out whether he was the victim of foul play or the effects of drinking. He had been drinking all day yesterday with two men, they were informed, and in the evening his body was found on the street. His compaions, who were still at the scene of the party, were notified and picked the body up, but disappeared before the police arrived.

Fresh Raspberries Grow In East City

If James Edwards of 68 James street, has many raspberry bushes of the kind which bore the twigs he gave The Examiner to-day, he is assured of plenty of fresh fruit until the snow comes. The small branch brought to The Examiner office had on it five ripe berries, as sweet as any ever picked in July, several more in various stages of ripeness, some just emerging from the flower stage, one flower, and one bud.

FIRST CONCERT OF FAIR SERIES GREAT SUCCESS

Fine Entertainment Provided in Legion Hall Last Night.

WELL PRESENTED.

Lengthy Program of Great Variety Much Appreciated and Many Encores Demanded.

(By Jeanette.)

The opening concert at the Canadian Legion Hall last night was a splendid example of what can be expected in this type of entertainment during the week. If the following programs live up to the achievement of last night, patrons may be assured of an excellent evening's enjoyment of an unsually varied type. Just a glance at the line-up shows the menu provided here.

Gymnastic exercises by boys from the famous Bowmanville school, an old-time concert, vocal solos by Signor Carlo Lamberti, Madam Scott Hanningan and Miss Marie Thomson, choral selections by the Canadian Singers and special dancing numbers from the local Y.W.C.A., provide a fine entertainment for old and young alike. As an additional musical treat, the Symphony Orchestra, under direction of R. Gliddon, played some beautiful music last night, at the opening of the program and during intermissions. Their bright, tuneful music was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

The program, which is under the direction of E. Verne Morphet, with door assistants in C. D. Cook, J. A. Dewart, Mark Bredin and W. H. Dickin, is given on an elongated stage arranged for the purpose. "Curly" Noyes is in charge of the stage management. Boy Scouts act as oplite and attentive ushers.

Every item on the program was heartily applauded by the audience and encores were numerous throughout the evening.

Boys Show Prowess.

The opening demonstration of athletic prowess was given by twenty-nine boys from the Bowmanville Boys' School, under direction of their coach, J. D. Cunningham. These boys, who came to the city two years ago, are expert gymnasts and their work was watched with much interest. In their gym trunks and shorts, they did a series of tumbling, handspringing and pyramid building that was clever in the extreme, although their style was cramped to a certain extent by the small space used, as compared with the customary gymnasium.

A handspring over eleven crouching forms was the stunt of twelve-year old Harold Ussher and a good deal of ability was shown in the demonstration of rope and lariat throwing. The building of pyramids, including "The Human Span" and "The Squash," was much applauded, the entertainment concluding with a Charleston dance by one of the youthful visitors.

"Ye Old Tyme Concert" was the laugh producer of the evening and there was plenty of mirth and fun in its presentation. To the home of two elderly people, Grandfather (A. Jobe of Bridgenorth) and Grandmother (Mrs. C. Telford of Bridgenorth)

Soldier Returns To Place Of Enlistment To Find His Name On War Memorial

CHESLEY, Ont., Oct. 16.—(Canadian Press).—His name engraved on Chesley war memorial as one of those who gave their lives in the Great War, Joost Wilhelm Van Os, aged thirty three, a native of Holland, walked into the village a few days ago and asked his old employers for a job. He was penniless and had walked from Toronto.

Ever since 1916, the young Hollander's friends here have believed that he lost his life in battle for the country of his adoption. Meanwhile Van Os has been wandering about the country, wholly unconscious that he was being honored as one of the heroic dead. About five weeks ago in San Francisco he met another former Chesley man who told him his friends believed him dead.

Van Os was wounded and taken prisoner in the battle of the Somme in September, 1916, but after three months in a German prison camp he escaped and made his way to England, from where, after a lengthy sojourn in a Hospital, he returned to Canada in 1923.

GREAT STRIDES ARE REVIEWED

Too Many Messages Sent To Dirigible

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 16 (Canadian Press). — Through great volumes of messages from aerial hand-shakers that swamped her radio and seriously hampered her in obtaining essential weather data, the Graf Zeppelin was obliged to grope her way across the stormy Atlantic, Dr. H. Brandenburg, a passenger, declared on her arrival. Radio greetings, except from the heads of governments, should be avoided, he declared.

ALD. McINTYRE NEW CHAIRMAN

Will Head Board of Health Until End of Year, Succeeding Ald. Ackerman.

MILK REPORT GOOD.

Alderman Malcolm McIntyre was elected chairman of the Board of Health this morning to take the place of Alderman Ackerman, who resigned some few weeks ago from the Board. Alderman McIntyre is familiar with the work of the Board of Health, as he was chairman of that body in 1925.

The report from the Queen Mary Hospital showed that on the first of September there were three patients in the hospital, two with diphtheria and one with chickenpox. During the month seven diphtheria cases entered, seven patients were let out and one died, leaving two in the hospital on October 1st.

The milk report submitted by Dr. Waite showed that all samples were first grade.

Seven landowners applied to the Board to have sanitary conveniences installed in their homes by the city payment plan, and three others were authorized and sent on to the Council.

Dr. T. W. H. Young and Alderman McIntyre were appointed delegates to the meeting of the Ontario Hospital Association in Toronto this week.

Those present were Mayor Denne, J. J. Turner, Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., and Alderman McIntyre.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 16—(Canadian Press). — King Mihai of Rumania will be seven years old on October 25 and his mother, Princess Helen, has decided that he must go to school like any other little boy of his age.

But the Princess is anxious that Mihai shall not be pampered and spoiled by private tutors, so she has created an entirely new and separate school, at which every province in Rumania will be represented.

In this way Mihai will 'rub elbows' with all classes of Rumanian children, the poorest and humblest as well as the wealthiest and most aristocratic.

GREAT STRIDES MADE BY CANADA IN FAIR ADDRESS

Sir Joseph Flavelle Gives Many Illustrations of Changes Since 1914.

MORE MONEY INVESTED.

Canadian Capital Has Replaced Outside Funds in Many Industries.

Provoking many expressions of gratification at the progress of Canada as a manufacturing and Agricultural nation, Peterborough's Produced-in-Canada Fair, which opened yesterday moved Sir Joseph Flavelle to review, by means of most convincing statistics, the period of advancement which has dated from the close of the Great war in 1918, in his address before the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs previous to the formal opening of the fair in the Armories on Monday. Sir Joseph drew some interesting comparisons. An extract from his address reads:

"Permit a further illustration of contrasting conditions covering two periods of later date. The increase in widely distributed liquid wealth in Canada since the opening of the war in 1914 is impressive. Savings bank deposits have increased during these fourteen years $850,000,000 and the number of individual depositors in the chartered banks now approximates four million persons. During the same period we brought back from England, tens of millions in value of Canadian securities which had been sold to British investors prior to the war.

"We have replaced with our own money the British and Continental moneys which had been previously available for lending on mortgages in Canada. Canadian corporations and individuals have increased their investments in securities of foreign countries by $1,200,000,000. Life insurance carried by Canadians increased between 1900 and 1925, $4,450,000,000—a most laudable and prudent investment of savings. Canadian Government and municipal bonds owned by Canadian investors, have increased since 1914 by $2,600,000,000. Included in these are $1,900,000,000 of Federal Government Bonds representing eighty per cent. of our national debt.

Great Expansion

"Comparing 1910 and 1925, the nearest figures available to the outbreak of war and the present period, we increased the capital invested in industry by $2,550,000,000. The value of manufactured products from these plants in 1936 exceeded three billion dollars. All parts of the country must take cognisance of the value of these manufacturing activities which have become an integral part of our national life. We must not have uninformed or prejudiced disagreement between the agricultural and industrial interests of the country. It is the duty of both east and west to share commonly in pride and responsibility for

C.M.A. PARTY PAYS VISITS TO FACTORIES

Toronto Delegates To Fair Luncheon Inspect Peterborough Industries.

DINNER AT GOLF CLUB.

Growth of Association Reviewed By Visitors in Short Talks.

Following luncheon at the Peterborough Armouries yesterday and inspection of the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition in the afternoon the official party from Toronto, made up of officials and members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, was taken on a tour of a number of Peterborough industries which had been arranged previously by the Executive of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Peterborough branch.

The Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, was the first place visited, where E. G. Patterson, the works manager, devoted considerable time to personally conducting the party through the most interesting sections of the mammoth plant. New methods of the manufacture of electric dynamos, from the small variety to the very largest, were explained in a most interesting fashion. It was evident to the party that the expansion program recently announced by the Canadian General officials was well under way.

The Western Clock Company's plant was next visited, where O. A. DeGraw, sales manager, in the absence of Mr. Vernor, conducted the party through the fine modern plant, explaining the various processes of manufacture. The party expressed considerable interest in the assembly room, particularly, and in sections of the plant which have to do with the testing of alarm clocks and other time pieces. The machinery is of the most modern. All watches and alarm clocks are wound up by machinery of special design and run for twenty-four hours prior to shipping.

Lift Lock Visited.

The Lift Lock was then visited, where a number of the delegates expressed surprise on receiving the information that Peterborough is connected with the Atlantic sea-board and with Georgian Bay by the Trent System, and that boats of fairly sizeable proportions have been known to make the round trip from New York through the Trent to Lake Huron, the Mississippi River and the Gulf of Mexico.

The party then proceeded to the Quaker Oats Company, where arrangements had been made for a conducted tour of the premises. The cereal department, bag, flour and other most interesting sections were visited, including the unusual puffed wheat and rice department, where the cereals are "shot" in the final process of manufacture.

None of the party happened to be suffering from shell-shock though some expressed a fear of nervous disorders were they to continue long in the vicinity of the "shooting."

George A. MacDonald, general manager of the Quaker Oats Company, accompanied the party during part of the tour of the plant, and with Mr. Patterson and Mr. DeGraw joined the Executive and Toronto delegation at dinner at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, 6.30 p.m.

Progress Reviewed.

Following dinner, J. M. MacIntosh, secretary of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and Mr. Craick, editor, "Industrial Canada," published by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, briefly reviewed the early history of the C. M. A., serving, as it does, industrialists throughout Canada, and enumerated a number of the many services rendered its very large membership.

The Toronto delegation expressed sincere appreciation to Chairman Matthews and members of the C.M.A., Peterborough, for the entertainment provided for them during their visit to Peterborough, and departed for Toronto by motor at 8 p.m.

Peterborough manufacturers, in addition to those already mentioned, who attended the informal dinner in honor of the Toronto delegation, included: R. M. Glover, Mr. Sweetman, Brinton-Peterboro Carpet Co., and W. C. Ackerman, vice-chairman; J. R. Marshall, treasurer; Robert Abbott, secretary, and W. L. Ferguson, past chairman, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Peterborough Branch. Mayor Denne was also an honored guest.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Six thousand pounds of molten metal poured over four laborers when a cable supporting a ladle at the Pencoyd Iron Works of the American Bridge Company parted early to-day. Joseph Krocki, 25, and Frank Zukowski, 3, were burned so seriously that they are expected to die. Peter Olszewski, 48, and Anthony Januslem, 50, were in serious condition.

OPENING PARADE IS HAPPY EVENT

Large Crowd Sees Jolly Procession of Men and Boys.

PLENTY OF NOISE.

The opening parade of Kiwanis Fair Week was indeed a happy event. It lacked the gorgeousness of a circus parade and the martial splendor of a military parade, but more than made up for these in jollity, and was much enjoyed by the large crowd which turned out.

Of course, it started with a band. The regimental band of the Peterborough Rangers, led by Lieut. W. H. Peryer, discoursed stirring march music at the head of the procession, proceeded only by the standard bearers.

Then came a regular forest of flags. Every Union Jack, Red Ensign, Blue Ensign, or other Empire flag to be found in the Legion Hall was there, borne by a member of the Legion, led by President James Abraham, who acted as marshal of the whole procession.

An interesting section of the parade was composed of Boy Scouts. The Millbrook troop was out in full force, while the Peterborough boys were not left behind. A good stunt was used by the Second Peterborough (Armour) Troop to show its identity. Armbands, each bearing one letter of the troop's name, were worn by twelve boys, six in each rang, so that the spectators were able to read the name.

The next section of the parade really took the eye. The boys of the Bowmanville Boys' Training School, marching smartly, all dressed alike in white gym. suits, were a bright-looking bunch. Composed of boys whose activity is so great that it cannot be curbed in ordinary home surroundings, these lads, who later took part in the program in the Legion Hall, stepped smartly along, apparently paying no attention to the cool breezes which blew about bare arms and legs and scantily covered bodies.

Brightly clad in flowing red coats with blue linings, the Harmonica Band came next, with Bandmaster Stan Thompson in the lead. The uproar created by the school boys marching in the rear made it hard for those on the sidewalks to hear the strains of the sweet instruments, but when they were right opposite a lively tune could be heard, well played, showing painstaking practice under Mr. Thompson's leadership.

By far the largest section of the parade, and the noisiest, was composed of the boys of the public schools. Some good-hearted person or firm had provided most of the boys with those toy balloons which have whistles attached, and the boys were making good use of them. Those who had no balloons, or who had lost or broken them, talked or rather shouted, whistled and laughed, and made a merry uproar. The effect of Cadet training was noticed in the fact that they marched in fours, fairly regular, and deployed neatly into single file to pass through the turnstiles into the hall where every corner was filled with happy youth.

Apply for Re-entry of Case

Withdrawal of Appeal By Counsel Last Week Not Ordered.

WON'T BE BAMBOOZLED.

Mr. Preston Will Take Matter To Other Courts if Refused Re-entry.

TORONTO, Oct. 16 (Canadian Press).—Application is being made today at Osgoode Hall to have the appeal of W. T. R. Preston and F. W. Wilson from the verdict of the trial jury at Cobourg in the libel action brought by Sir Arthur Currie replaced on the list. Last week the appeal was withdrawn. Mr. Preston told the Canadian Press to-day that neither he nor Mr. Wilson either knew of or sanctioned the withdrawal. They gave no instructions for discontinuance.

"We do not know what the outcome of the proceedings will be," said Mr. Preston, "but this is not the only court. We intend to fight the thing right through to the bitter end and we are not going to be bamboozled out of it."

No action had been taken up to noon to-day at Osgoode Hall. No application or notice of application had been filed on behalf of Mr. Preston. Solicitors for Sir Arthur Currie stated that they had not been served with notice of any proceedings.

Sir Arthur Currie, Commander of the Canadian Corps in the Great War, sued Mr. Preston and Mr. Wilson for $50,000 damages for alleged libelous statements contained in an article written by Mr. Preston and published in The Port Hope Guide, a newspaper owned by Mr. Wilson.

After a trial of ten days, during which numerous witnesses were examined concerning Sir Arthur's conduct of his command, particularly during the advance of the Canadian troops on Mons immediately before the signing of the Armistice, a verdict was found for Sir Arthur with damages of $500.

NEW CANADIANS LEARN ENGLISH

Several Register For Special Course Arranged at Vocational School.

ENROLMENT GOOD.

An interesting addition to the night classes in the Vocational section of the Collegiate Institute is a class in English for new Canadians. Several recent immigrants from European countries have signed up for this course, the first being a young man but six months out from Lithuania. This should prove a most helpful class according to Principal H. R. H. Kenner, who looks for a good enrolment by the end of the week.

In addition to the interest in learning the language of their adopted country, said Mr. Kenner to-day, the newcomers to Canada par osrdlshrdlushrdlushrdlushrdlu are making good use of other parts of the school, signing up for courses in industrial and household subjects.

There was a good attendance last night at the Collegiate, when all the teachers of the vocational section were on duty and a considerable number of pupils registered.

Berlin Feared Giant Dirigible Lost

Celebrate Arrival of Ship

Populace Entertained Grave Apprehension That Zeppelin Would Never Reach Destination.

DIFFICULTY IN LANDING.

Passengers Forced To Remain Aboard As Ballast Owing To Wind.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—(A.P.)—Jubilation, pride and satisfaction reigns supreme throughout Germany as the news of the safe arrival of the Graf Zeppelin was broadcast.

Thousands now admit, as the tension of the past 24 hours is relieved, that they entertained grave apprehension lest the great German airship might never reach its destination.

Despite Dr. Eckeners admonition days before the start not to worry in case the airship failed to arrive on schedule, in case hours elapsed without a report of her position, Germans in all walks of life grew uneasy, and, if pressed, admitted that they feared the worst.

No Faint Hearted.

Two groups, however, refused to grow faint hearted, one was composed of the populace of Friedrichshafen, who never speak otherwise than of "our zeppelin." They know of what stuff Eckener, Flemming, Lehmann, Von Schiller, Witemann and the others of the crew are made. To them the officers and navigators are fellow townsmen, in many cases personal friends, whose careers are known to every school boy and whose records abound in instances of resourcefulness which carried them out of tight places.

So great was their faith in the Count Bradenstein-Zeppelin's arrival that any suggestion even of possible mishap seemed to the people of Friedrichshafen like a personal affront. Practically in every Friedrichshafen home there was spread out during the last four days a map of the Atlantic, and the elders vied with the school children in charting the Zeppelin's course, figuring distances and time to prove to any doubter that the airship was going exactly right and on time.

Another group consisted of Germany's seasoned and experienced airship constructors and commanders, such as Ludwig Duerr, who designed the LZ-127, Professor Johann Schuette, whose dirigibles were much used during the war, Captain Walter Burns, general secretary of the Aero

SUDDEN ILLNESS IS MYSTERIOUS

Immigrant Boy Taken Violently Ill While Working at Threshing.

CAUSE UNKNOWN.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 16.—Local physicians who attended Jack Phillips yesterday are still uncertain as to what was the cause of the violent illness which overtook the young man while working with the threshing gang at Garnet Hay's farm, Meyersburg, yesterday morning. In the morning one doctor examined the youth and in the afternoon, he was accompanied by a second medical man. Thinking that perhaps the boy had eaten something of a poisonous nature, they removed the contents of his stomach but no trace of any suspicious matter was found.

It appears that Phillips came to this country from England about three months ago. For some time he has been employed on the Hopps Farm near Meyersburg. This morning it was arranged to have him take the place of Alfred Bertrand on the threshing gang at the Hay farm. Phillips with three other men was engaged in the loft supplying grain to the machine. About ten-thirty the youth became violently ill and had to be carried outside. Medical assistance was summoned and the boy removed to the house. In the afternoon two doctors examined him. Apparently they thought poison to be the cause and questioned the lad as to what, if anything, he had eaten in the morning. Phillips said that he had eaten his breakfast with Joe Hopps, which was the usual custom, and had come to the Hay farm by walking along the bank of a creek. It was known that there grew along the creek, a kind of poisonous berry, and some fear was entertained that the boy, ignorant of what he was doing, had plucked and eaten some of the fruit, but this the sick youth denied. He had not known of the berries but he had not eaten anything since leaving the house.

Yesterday afternoon he was removed to the Hopps farm and is under medical observation. It is thought probable that the illness may necessitate his removal to hospital. The matter was reported to the Campbellford police, but so far they have not considered an investigation necessary.

Seven Receive Prison Terms Totalling Fifty-Seven Years In Day's Session

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 16.—(Canadian Press).—One man was sentenced to life imprisonment and seven others received penitentiary terms totalling fifty-seven years in the court of King's bench yesterday. Mr. Justice Wilson imposed the sentences.

Fred Trewing convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of William Cowie, received the life sentence. He had previously been sentenced to hang for Cowie's death but a court of appeal granted him a new trial and the jury returned the manslaughter verdict.

Both the accused and the victim were fellow employees in a downtown building. The men had a disagreement over a two dollar debt and it ended in Trewing shooting Cowie.

Halkki Laitenen, a Finlander, who was found guilty of manslaughter for killing a compatriot during a brawl in a blind pig, was sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary.

Armand Forget, Pacifique Vezina and H. Vezina, who broke into Quebec Liquor Commission Stores and stole a quantity of liquor, were sentenced to ten years each in the penitentiary.

Charles Brown, alias Albert Stern, alias Abner Stern, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for the theft of $13,000 through the operation of a "bucket shop".

Albert Laliberte, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter in connection with the death of a policeman in an automobile accident received two years.

Henri Taigue, who was also convicted of manslaughter, received a sentence of the same length. Taigue borrowed an automobile and went for a joy-ride, during which an accident occurred and two persons lost their lives.

BANDITS WOUND GUARDS OF MAIL

Get Away With Registered Letters Being Transferred By Car.

IN BUFFALO STREETS.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 15 (Canadian Press).—Three bandits who held up a taxi cab in which registered mail was being transferred between railroad stations last night, were at large today. They shot and wounded three guards and a policeman and fled in an automobile with several sacks of mail. The value of their loot was undetermined, but the police did not believe it was very large.

An intensive search was started throughout Western New York, and a special watch set on the border to keep the bandits from escaping into Canada.

One of the guards, Ward McCartney, 32, of Elkhart, Ind., a mail clerk, received three bullets in his body. Vincent Connors, a motor cycle patrolman, was shot five times. Francis E. Lieber and Charles Kavanaugh, two other guards, were each shot once.

PROMOTION EXAMINATIONS SHOULD FINISH BEFORE JUNE 28

Resolution Passed at Centre Hastings Teachers' Institute Convention.

ADDRESSES GIVEN.

MARMORA, Oct. 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—The morning session of Centre Hastings Teachers' Institute convention was opened on Friday with prayer by Rev. A. B. Caldwell, rector of the parish. The report of Auditors Darling and Todd showed one hundred and thirty-two dollars as being on hand. The resolutions committee besides submitting regular resolutions, caused a resolution to be passed to the effect that the promotion examinations should finish not later than June 28.

Miss L. Connor ably demonstrated to the Institute, the teaching of an extension table to a class of Senior First scholars, in which all teachers attending and particularly those teaching that work could not help but derive a great deal of benefit. The address of the convention was forthcoming from Mr. A. Macdonald, M.A., of Peterborough, who spoke on "Human nature and children's stories." Mr. Macdonald described the causes of insanity, nervous breakdowns, etc. His ways and means of dealing with the character of the individual child were ably pictured. He scored in a very emphatic manner the giving of home-work. Taking for her theme, "Composition in Third Classes," Miss Elsie Williams of Marmora Public School staff furnished a helpful talk on the ways and means of developing written composition, of correcting mistakes, and of developing oral composition. A warm discussion ensued when Inspector McGuire introduced the matter of a detailed time course of study. If put into effect, it would mean that there would be a uniform time for the teaching of the various subjects in all schools of the inspectorate. Eventually a large majority favored the idea. It is understood that the scheme will be tried out experimentally in a few schools first.

The afternoon session was brief. Inspector McGuire dealt with "Standards in Arithmetic," referring to the new manual for the teaching of that subject. The session concluded with a splendid description of her overseas trip to Western Europe, by Miss Grace Houston. Names of the executive committee for 1929 are not yet to hand, but the principal officers are as follows: Honorary President, Mr. A. W. McGuire, B.A., I.P.S.; President, Mr. A. Todd; Vice President, Mr. E. C. Prentice; Secretary Treasurer, Mr. S. H. Connor; Delegates to O.E.A., Miss Freida Matthews and Mr. S. H. Connor.

Next year the convention will be held at Madoc.

INSTITUTE MEETING HELD AT MARMORA

MARMORA, Oct. 16 (Examiner Correspondence)—The monthly meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. M. E. Doupe on Wednesday evening, with program arranged by Mrs. F. R. Wells and Mrs. C. Jones. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the attendance was a little smaller than usual, but an interesting meeting was nevertheless held. The roll call was "Hallowe'en references."

Two very apt readings were given by Mrs. W. F. Bowen, and a car contest resulted in the hostess being winner. It was reported that approximately fifty dollars was made at the booth run at the recent fair.

Plans for the rummage sale to be held on November 17, in the Town Hall, were discussed. This yearly event has become quite popular and helps the Women's Institute in their praiseworthy support of the village library. Lunch was served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. Doupe.

The November meeting is being held at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) D. L. Curtis, and being near to Thanksgiving Day an appropriate roll call has been chosen, "What I am most thankful for." The program committee for this meeting will be Mrs. C. Gerdenier and Mrs. W. Holland.

MURREL GUILTY JURY DECLARES

Is Sentenced To Hang After Trial Lasting Only Six Hours.

HARLTON CASE CALLED.

LONDON, Ont., October 16. — William Murrell, whose brother Sydney went to death on the scaffold here in April, 1924, for the murder of Russell Campbell in the Home Bank robbery at Melbourne on April 11, 1921, was adjudged guilty of the same murder at the Autumn Assizes last night. He was sentenced by Mr. Justice Logie to be hanged on December 17.

The trial of Murrell yesterday is without precedent in London in the matter of despatch. Hardly three hours after the work of selecting a jury had been completed, all of the evidence for both Crown and defence was before the jurors and in the next thirty or forty minutes, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, special prosecutor, and J. M. Donahue for the defence and Mr. Justice Logie had all addressed the jury.

Jury Out Less Than Two Hours.

The Court adjourned from 6 to 8 o'clock while the jury retired to consider the verdict, but long before that intermission was up the jurors, according to the report presented by their foreman, W. E. Stephenson, of London, had concluded that Murrell was guilty, but deserving of mercy.

Mr. Justice Logie before pronouncing the death sentence informed the jurymen that their recommendation will be transmitted to the Secretary of Sate, who will consider whether clemency should be allowed, as was done in the case of another member of the gang, Slim Williams. The Judge cautioned Murrell not to hope for too much from the recommendation, and advised him to seek pardon at the court of heaven and to prepare for his death.

Murrell heard the sentence without evident emotion and as he left the Court to return to the cells, he smiled at his mother and sisters who sat behind him. They also smiled wholeheartedly at him masking their concern, but as he disappeared down the tunneled stairway, the girls sobbed bitterly.

Trial Speeded Through.

The speed with which the Murrell trial was put through was scarcely less notable than that with which Mr. Justice Logie, at the opening of the Court, disposed of motions and ordered the defence in the case of Edward Harlton to stand ready for the trial on Monday next.

These men, with a background of technical knowledge and personal experience, were able to follow the Graf Zeppelin's course dispassionately. They never grew excited, for the reason, that they have infinite faith in the dirigible as a means of transoceanic locomotion and because they personally know Dr. Eckener and his men as intrepid and competent navigators.

Forced To Remain Aboard.

NAVAL AIR STATION, Lakehurst, N.J., Oct. 16.—(A.P.)—The Graf Zeppelin which arrived here from Germany late yesterday, was brought to earth in the gathering dusk and with its crew of 40 and its 20 passengers was walked by 500 sailors toward the United States Navy hangar.

The Zeppelin was pulled half way to the hangar doors when a 12 mile wind caused a tempary suspension of operations. Officers believed it would be necessary to moor the craft to the high mast. Meanwhile, the passengers and crew were forced to remain aboard as ballast.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

WARSAW UNITED CHURCH.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, October 16. — The Warsaw United Church held its anniversary services on Sunday, October 14. The church looked pretty with an arch of maple boughs from the aisles on both sides of the church, over the choir and pulpit. There were decorations of plants, autumn flowers, and grain. Rev. S. A. Kemp preached. The choir sang a harvest home anthem, "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come." Mrs. Munroe sang the solo, and Mrs. Ivy joined her in the duet. After the sermon Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Payne sang "Drifting."

Mr. Kemp's text was from Genesis 32, 24 and 28: "And Jacob was left alone." "Thy name shall no more be called Jacob, but Israel, for as a prince thou has power with God, and has prevailed." Some of the points made by Mr. Kemp were that Jacob had paid a big price for his sin in deceiving his father. A very large price is always paid for sin, and we may be sure 'your sin will find you out.' Now he was coming home and had to meet the brother whom he had cheated. He had had a miserable time, and now he was alone and afraid. We need to be alone to become acquainted with ourselves, with our surroundings and with God. He had to face facts, not an easy thing to do and to be honest with himself. He had to wrestle with himself and with the stranger, but he won Most games are played for ourselves, but in the game of life we play the game for others. Love in the game of life does good for others. Often a sacrifice is made for another, and it turns out well for us, but that is not the aim. A little thing, a smile, a kind word, a warm handshake, may cause great happiness. Jacob's struggle was worthwhile. His name was changed from Jacob the Imposter to Israel the Friend of God.

Personals.

Mrs. Ivy is visiting friends near Warsaw.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS.

Magistrate Mikel, of Belleville, does not seem to have read what Attorney-General Price said recently in regard to drunken drivers.

According to Belleville papers, three motorists pleading guilty to being intoxicated while in charge of a car have been given suspended sentence, apparently because they had not been involved in an accident or caused any property damage.

The doctrine that driving a car while under the influence of liquor is not a very serious offence as long as you are lucky enough not to hit anybody is too dangerous to be generally subscribed to, and surely gets well away from the spirit of the legislation that prescribes a jail sentence for such conduct.

The drunken driver, whether he has been fortunate enough to escape an accident or not, deserves no leniency at the hands of any court in this Province.

With traffic conditions as they are, the man who tries to drive while under the influence of liquor is a menace, and his rashness merits a jail sentence.

That undoubtedly is the purport of the law, and in showing leniency to offenders as he has done on more than one occasion, Magistrate Mikel is helping to defeat the aim of the Legislature in adopting this particular legislation.

MORALS AND MANNERS.

It is denied by the Women's Christian Temperance Union that at the convention last week a resolution was passed calling upon clergymen to refrain from smoking in public, the report of which had caused much rustling in ecclesiastical dovecotes.

Officials of the organization explain that while the matter was discussed no such motion was passed.

The denial will perhaps check the criticism aroused by the first reports.

Clergymen were inclined to resent what was apparently an attempt to censor their conduct, and some of them expressed their opinion inunequivocal fashion.

One reverend gentleman described the resolution as on a par with the attempt to prevent the sending of cigarettes to Canada's soldiers during the war.

Such criticism, although its cause has been removed by the official explanation, will do no harm if it inspires a desire on the part of some members of the W.C.T.U. to learn the difference between morals and manners.

The idea that smoking is a sin is a fallacy that sometimes leads to unwise action and ill-considered utterances, and that perhaps may be irradicated by the storm aroused in this particular case.

THE BIG EXHIBITION.

The Kiwanis Produced-in-Canada Exhibition, off to a flying start by reason of Sir Joseph Flavelle's opening speech and a splendid attendance last night, deserves and undoubtedly will have a most successful week.

Organized by a community organization in aid of community enterprises and designed to keep alive an interest in Canadian products, this year's Exhibition is on a much larger scale than ever.

A re-arrangement of the floor space in the Armouries has made it possible to provide accommodation for a larger number of exhibits, and the result is a most interesting display of all kinds of Canadian products, a display that every citizen of Peterborough and the district should see and study as a demonstration of what this country is doing industrially.

The Exhibition, of course, is rich in entertainment features.

There is fun for young and old, and in fact, something for everybody.

Not only the main display in the Armouries but the other departments housed elsewhere should be liberally patronized during the week.

THE GRAF ZEPPELIN'S EXPLOIT.

The Graf Zeppelin, the great German dirigible named in honor of Count Zeppelin, the inventor of such airships, has added a new page to the history of aerial navigation by successfully accomplishing the flight from Berlin, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. Y., thus completing the first commercial air liner voyage.

While the huge airship was diverted from her course to avoid storms and thus the elapsed time was greater than was anticipated, the safe passage of the Graf Zeppelin was a great achievement that marks the beginning of what will eventually be a regular air service between the old and the new worlds.

So far as air navigation over the Atlantic is concerned, lighter-than-air craft will undoubtedly be depended upon as offering surer and safer service, and the voyage of the Graf Zeppelin may be regarded as the beginning of a new era in transportation.

While it may be some time before "the Atlantic crossing by air will occasion no more comment than the present system of using vast liners," as one paper puts it, that condition is rapidly being developed.

Naturally the rates will drop in proportion to the competition offered by various companies.

The first customers to pay their way across the Atlantic on the Graf Zeppelin cheerfully paid out $3,000 each for the honor and offers of double fares were made at the last moment.

DISTORTING CANADIAN LIFE.

Judging by the published descriptions of the "educational" film of Canada which was shown in Toronto on Friday, it is high time the Canadian authorities sought some redress in matters of this kind. For years Canada has suffered from the portrayal of the Dominion as a land of perpetual ice and snow, whose people's chief occupations are fur trading and fighting King Winter. Newspaper protests have been made against this unfairness in many commercial films.

Now comes a film, put out in the name of education, which carries such distorted views that a vigorous protest should be made. Even Miss Hochheimer of the New York Board of Education, who accompanied the film in its Toronto showing, admitted she came with "fear and trembling" to a city which knows the truth. Snowdrifts are the characteristic decoration, the "forest primeval" dominates the landscape, and Mounted Police are shown as guarding the "wilds of Canada."

"Cold and heavy snow make difficult railway extension in Canada," says a caption. Canadians know all too well that railway extension has been remarkably easy. Not a sign of a city street or the comfortable homes of Canadian cities is given. This country may as well be in the class of Siberia or Tibet. The pulp industry is properly illustrated, as it should be, as United States newspapers mostly come from the softwood of Canadian forests.

The Globe hopes it will not be understood as attempting to deny the existence of the Canadian winter, of the snowdrifts or the Mounted Police. These are facts of Canadian life, but only a few of the facts. An educational film which seeks to diffuse truth should not pick out the crude and the undeveloped features of a country, its rigorous features and picturesque elements, to the entire neglect of its signs of progress and advancement. Because Kipling made a picturesque phrase about "Our Lady of the Snows" he gave this country a setback in the estimation of millions of people. Canada is proud of its healthful climate and its frontier life, but it has other phases which compare with the accomplishments of any other land, and it rightly resents a one-sided and ignorant presentation such as has just been made.—Toronto Globe.

DO WE WANT SETTLERS?

In a letter to the Times-Journal, Mrs. T. W. Dykes, of Crinan, an outstanding member of the U.F.O. in Elgin and in the Province, uses an argument proving her a true disciple of the J. J. Morrison school.

She roundly condemns the plans of Lord Lovat and Sir Edgar Jones to train and bring to Canada large numbers of men to take up agricultural work. Such a policy, she says—and the same words were used by J. J. Morrison at Dutton less than two years ago—means increased production and, therefore, lower prices for Canadian foodstuffs.

She cites the analogy that if a large number of bricklayers, carpenters and plumbers, or even of doctors, dentists and oculists, were to come here in a body, the trade union leaders, or the heads of the professions concerned, would protest to Ottawa in the most vigorous terms.

Apparently, to the U.F.O. mind the majority of the people of Canada, including the most capable thinkers and statesmen, are on the wrong track when they say that Canada needs more people. If more people came here, infers the U.F.O. mind, it is going to be disastrous for the country. Every new settler who comes and takes up land to farm is a menace to those who have been here for some time. Keep them out!

Not many people will accept that line of argument seriously. Unless Canada has a bigger population it will not only stagnate but fall behind. It will be "turkey" for the gigantic and ever-growing country to the south of us.

It would have been a fortunate thing for Canada if the United States had followed the policy advocated by the Morrisonites. If the United States had kept out farmers and bricklayers and carpenters and plumbers, and all the rest of them, it would have been an insignificant country to-day, and Canada would have been very much greater than it is.

If, theoretically, every newcomer depreciates wages and prices, every newcomer, theoretically, also raises them again by making demands upon the products of the country for the necessities of life.

The addition of two thousand people to Toronto in a month, which is nothing out of the way in the immigrant season, means the absorption of the entire products of a number of farms. And if the number of farms do not increase in at least the same ratio as the number of immigrants, then, according to Mrs. Dykes' own argument, the cost of living is going to be raised all round.

No doubt the farmers would be pleased, but the tenor of Mrs. Dykes' letter suggests that she sympathizes with the lot of the urban workers and would depreciate an increase in their cost of living.

Another point taken by Mrs. Dykes looks pertinent on the face of it, but is made in the absence of intimate knowledge of the circumstances.

She asks: "If the Duke of Sutherland and the Marquis of Bute have 500,000 acres and 117,000 acres of land respectively, why don't Lord Lovat and Sir Edgar Jones train men to farm on these unoccupied lands?"

The reason is that nearly the whole of the land referred to is no use for farming.

When Mr. Lloyd George went on the stump about fifteen years ago and made ferocious attacks on the dukes as land owners, the Duke of Sutherland, the very gentleman cited by Mrs. Dykes as a horrible example, offered the whole of his unoccupied land to Mr. Lloyd George at something like a dollar an acre, if he could get men to accept it for farming.

Mr. Lloyd George would have been forced to accept this offer if he could have made anything of it. But the fact was—and people would do well to bear this in mind when they read about some of the huge estates owned by a limited number of Britishers—that almost the whole of the Duke's land was barren, rocky territory, excellent for game, but so poor as agricultural land that no man could make a living upon it.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Kiwanis Exhibition makes a reality out of the circus slogan, "Bigger, greater and grander than ever."

A great show in aid of a worthy cause, the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition should establish a new record from an attendance viewpoint as well.

Sir Joseph Flavelle's address started the big Exhibition off on a proper note.

Well, at least the controversy between the Globe and the Postmaster-General is not being broadcast.

Now that Hon. J. A. Robb admits that Canada is on Easy Street as regards financing, it should be possible to secure some action in regard to the Trent Canal.

The presidential campaign is rapidly drawing to a close, but Canadian radio enthusiasts have still plenty of verbosity to endure as they tune in to United States stations.

Judging by the price the passengers are paying on the initial voyage, it might more appropriately have been named the Graft Zeppelin.

Governor Al. Smith complains that his opponent is not making enough speeches. But perhaps the electors will view Mr. Hoover's silence as a virtue, not as a weakness.

Incendiarism was suspected after two fires had occurred on the Irish estate of Viscount Lascelles, above, the husband of Princess Mary. Portumna Castle was badly damaged, the fire sweeping the old castle, stables and a garage.

Dear Sir.—I have been informed that a notice appeared during the week of a change of the hour of Sunday services at the Indian River Baptist Church. May I say that this is an error, since we are still continuing our regular services every Sunday night. We expect to change from the evening sevice to that of the afternoon during the month of November, after Thanksgiving, but for the present, please make the correction, that the services are held at the usual hours. Sunday school in the morning, 9.45, at Indian River. Morning service at Warsaw at 11 o'clock, and evening service at Indian River at 7.30.

Thanking you for this correction.

Yours sincerely,

A. EIKINAAR,

Pastor of Baptist Church.

ABOUT SIDEWALKS.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

I notice that at long last the city fathers are taking steps to repair the sidewalks. Hitherto all attention has been devoted to the roadways, but someone has apparently realized that even in this advanced age there are some people who have to walk all the time and others who walk when their cars break down.

It would be a good idea for the contractors to endeavour to have the sidewalks slope towards the gutter and not towards the centre. (By the way, must sidewalks slope some way?) On a rainy day it is impossible to walk any distance without splashing in water gathered at the centre of the walk. Maybe people walk on the centre of the squares more than on the edges, and if this is the cause a sign might be put up reading contrariwise to those erected in parks: "Please step on the edge." If something isn't done soon, the council will have to build bridges.

A Thought

TO-DAY.

"To-day is your day and mine, the only day we have, the day in which we play our part. What our part may signify in the great whole we may not understand; but we are here to play it, and now is our time. This we know: it is a part of action, not of whining. It is a part of love, not of cynicism. It is for us to express love in terms of human helpfulness."—David Starr Jordan.

Choice cows are steady at $8.00 to $8.75. A distinct feeling against canners is shown, the best selling $4.00 to $4.50.

Heavy bulls unchanged at $8.00 tops. Light butcher bulls $6.00 to $6.50. Bologna are draggy, with lower tendency at $5.50 to $6.25.

Lambs hold firm at $12.00 on a good market. Fodder lambs selling at $11.00 to $11.25. Yearling sheep steady at $8.00 to $9.00.

Choice calves sell on a good market at $15.00 to $15.50, some fancy reached $16.00. A great number of poor veal is on the market. Grassers sell at $8.00 to $9.00.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 16 (Canadian Press).—There was some inquiry from foreign buyers for grain here yesterday and a moderate amount of business was done in wheat and a few odd loads of Canadian western No. 4 barley were sold. The trade in cash grain in the local market was inactive, but values were firm.

A fair trade was done in Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour, and values were steady.

Owing to the recent weakness in the cash situation at Winnipeg and the somewhat limited demand for standard grades of rolled oats a weaker feeling developed in the local market and prices were reduced fifteen cents per bag.

The undertone to the market for all lines of millfeed was firm, under a good demand.

The demand for all grades of fresh and storage eggs was good and values were firmly maintained. The receipts were 280 cases.

Prices for imported beans were well maintained under a fair demand. Broken lots of choice white handpicked were quoted at $4.40 to $4.60 per bushel ex-store.

The trade in butter continued extremely dull, but values were unchanged. The receipts were 498 packages.

Owing to the higher prices paid for western cheese at the country boards last week a stronger feeling prevailed in the local market for these grades, and prices were advanced one quarter cent per pound. The receipts were 5,251 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 16 (Canadian Press).—Speculators who had anticipated a big increase of the United States wheat visible supply became active buyers of wheat yesterday at the last. The buying, which was done to collect profits on wheat sales made before the visible supply figures were announced brought about a lively upturn in prices, although the market until then had been showing a general downward trend nearly the entire day.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at ⅛ cent net decline to ⅜ cents advance, with corn unchanged to ⅜ cent up; oats ⅛ cent to ½ cent off, and provisions varying from 10 cents setback to a rise of 5 cents.

Wheat price upturns due to late profit-taking on the part of bear traders who in advance had correctly gauged the United States visible supply figures were emphasized by corn market strength resulting from 2,083,000 bushels decrease of the corn visible supply. The late advance in wheat was especially notable, inasmuch as 7,063,000 bushels increase of the domestic wheat visible supply total announced yesterday made the United States total stock of wheat in sight 123,230,000 bushels. This is the largest total ever known, and contrasted sharply with 85,481,000 bushels, the total at the corresponding time in 1927.

Previous to the late rally, wheat values were being pulled down by favorable crop advices from Australia and Argentina, and by slowness of export demand yesterday for wheat from North American. Besides beneficial rains in domestic winter wheat there were in progress. Southern hemisphere dispatches confirmed denials of frost in Argentina, and said good rains had fallen in Australia, but that cutting would not be general some time yet. On the other hand, the amount of wheat on ocean passage was considerably less than either last week, or a year ago.

Corn finished with a display of firmness on account of 2,000,000 bush-

Monuments to Success

WHEN Rome ruled the world, the victories of Marcus Aurelius, best loved of her emperors, were commemorated in a great column, which after seventeen centuries still stands, a physical monument to the memory of a great man.

You can build in Canada another kind of structure just as lasting—not a monument to the past, but a pledge of success in the future for yourself and your children . . . a structure of enduring financial independence.

You can build this by systematic saving through the co-operation of The Canadian Bank of Commerce.

FIRST CONCERT GREAT SUCCESS

come a crowd of neighbors on the occasion of the old man's birthday. They entertain him, and incidentally themselves and the audience, in divers ways, and depart to the sound of much enthusiastic applause, while the elderly host subsides after much excitement. Od-fashioned costumes add to the interest of this production, with old-time dancing and old-time music.

A Square Dance.

A square dance is the first item on the program for Grandfather"s entertainment, with an energetic "caller off" in Bert Jones. They "swing them at the corners" and "all chas-say" with vim and vigor. Then Miss Marie Wilson and Bert Jones do a step dance with zestful skill. Grandma (Mrs. Telford) sings "Love's Old Sweet Song" and its encore, in rich, sweet contralto tones, and Sandy McDonald brings down the house with his Irish jig and his "peg leg" dance, the latter one of the choice bits on the program.

"Turkey in the Straw" is Grandpa's choice for an instrumental number that is played by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Blade, H. McConkey, Senior, and Orville McConkey and Doreen McConkey, in contributions by violins, autoharp and mandolin. The scene ends with another square dance.

Fred Jopling acts as chairman for the visit of the neighbors, and those taking part in the entertainment include Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McConkey, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Blade, Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Austin, Mrs. C. Telford, the Misses Marion, Doreen and Beatrice McConkey, Jean Blade, Marie Wilson, and Messrs. Andrew Jobe, Sandy McDonald, Clifford McIlmoyle, Orville McConkey, Bert Jones, Fred Jopling, and Roland Windover. Walter Fitzgerald was in charge of this merry production.

The Visiting Singers

Signor Carlo Lamberti and Madam Scott Hannigan, Italian tenor and coloratura sopranto, of Toronto, were heard in some beautiful vocal numbers that brought much applause from their hearers. The two splendid voices rendered solo and duo numbers that were a delight to the ear. Signor Lamberti has a sweet, true tenor with the Italian richness of vocalization in its colorful tones, and Madam Hannigan possesses a birdlike soprano voice that is clear, high and ringing. Signor Lamberti sang "O Sole Mio" with dramatic emphasis and expression, with an encore in Canio's famous song from "I Pagliacci," while Madam Hannigan's solo number was the sweet favorite, "Love's a Merchant." In duet, the two fine voices were heartily applauded for their rendition of the well-known "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore," and the encore "Out of the Dusk to You." Accompaniment were played by G. F. Liddle.

Something quite out of the ordinary to local audiences was the singing of Miss Marie Thomson of Edinburgh. With the soft burr of the Scotswoman on her tongue, the fragile, delicate beauty of a softly-restrained voice of much charm and sweetness and the plaintive charm of the far isles of the sea in her selections, her appearance in a quaint crimson gown was greeted with enthusiasm, and her presentation of oddly fascinating melodies was heard with sympathetic appreciation of their frail and dainty allure.

Miss Thomson sang songs of the Hebrides, those far islands off the coast of Scotland, sincerely, sweetly, charmingly, with accompaniments beautifully played by Miss Jean Buchanan. The first number was a "Clydeside Love Lilt," with the chorus in Gaelic, and a history stretching back over a century of use, a pauseless, soft thing of melodic, quiet sweetness, followed by one of the "Waulking" (shrinking of the cloth) songs, entitled "In Hebrid Seas." This is sung by the women as they sit around the table and pass the moist cloth from hand to hand until it is dry and well shrunk. Then came "The Fairy Queen," "The Bens of Jura," and "The Road to the Isles," the latter's swinging, captivating lilt ending in a bit of delicate echoing music.

Y.W.C.A. Girls Dance

Special dancing numbers by members of the Y.W.C.A. dancing classes, under personal direction of Miss Caroline Littlefield were then presented by groups of daintily-clad, agile dancers who went through graceful evolutions that evoked much applause from the watchers. In interpretive and character numbers, gowned in misty chiffons and in bright national costumes, they danced in swift, bright fashion, affording a lovely interlude to the musical program.

The first number, "Songs of the Sea," in soft greens and browns, was danced by M. Kingsbury, P. Dawson, S. Yeates, J. Doris, N. Scully, B. Belleghem, T. Dixon, L. Farthing; B. Willis, V. McInroy, J. McLean, and V. Grady.

In the old French Polka, with flowered, panniered skirts and laced black jackets, those taking part were E. Ecobichon, W. Roberts, S. Keown L. Groombridge, P. Froggatt, E. Robson, M. Adamson, M. Jackson, H. Ephgrave, J. Lush, J. Thirnbeck, and L. Kingdon.

The Trepak number, gowned in Russian peasant style of bright reds, oranges, and greens, was danced by H. Bradley, M. Dunlop, G. Johnson, H. Lang, J. Cole, H. Cole, M. Mayneord, O. Gillespie.

For the lovely "Blue Danube" interpretive number, dressed in misty blues, the dancers were Viola Harvey, Adele Milburn, Verda Gamble, M. Vance, B. Huffman, E. Armstrong, G. Cunningham, E. Stacey, M. Wilson, J. Fairweather, I. Davids, I. Terrace, K. Lang, and Z. Nixon.

The "Carol of Spring" with rose gowns and rose garlands, was danced by B. Willis, T. Dixon, V. Grady, L. Farthing, V. McInnis, and V. Gamble.

The Canadian Singers.

The final number on the program, and one of the most interesting, was the appearance of the Canadian Singers, a sextet of youthful Canadians who gave their entire program in French. As the late Fred Jacob said of these singers: "This organization is an unusual one."

It has an atmosphere all its own, and every item blends in perfectly. The setting, with a great deal of fleur-de-lis drapery, was specially prepared by Arthur Lismer. The ladies, in their quaint, colorful gowns of Wattwau and Fragonard type, seventeenth century, dignified and lovely, with jewelled caps on carefully arranged coiffures, sit at their ease in high-backed chairs and sing their charming madrigals from large, velvet-backed books of song. Thus they create an impression of old-world, other-time languid ease and charm, and they sing their delicate numbers with graceful, light, melodic tone. In bubbling undertones that melt together as bird songs do, and in vivacious, spirited bursts of sweet tone, they give the effect of a vocal orchestra of soft::r-blended instruments.

The Singers, who are accompanied on the piano by their companion, Mrs. L. A. Hamilton, are Betty Gemmill, Florence Glenn, Margery Baldwin, Margaret Stephen, Doreen Hilary, and Joy Denton Kennedy. Miss Glenn gives three vocal numbers in the most charming manner, her sweet, light soprano suiting admirably the nature of the dainty bits of song.

The program, as has been said, was in French. One wished for an English madrigal from these Canadian Singers, but their French-Canadian Folk Songs were lovely in the extreme, showing their origin in the chansons and bergettes of Old France. Smooth, suave, sentimental, delicate, softly emphasized and sweetly toned, it needed only a bit of warm firelight to make this picture appear like a dream of Fair Women singing long-forgotten music in an ancient, quiet way.

In chorus, they sang "L'Amour de Moi," a love song, and "Ce Mois de Mai" ("This Month of May"), with a vivacious, lively bit of mischievous melody in "So Mon Papa Savait" ("If My Papa Should Know"), "Le Papelion" ("The Moth and the Flame"), and "Je Ne Suis Pas Si Vilain" ("I Am Not So Homely"). Miss Glenn's solos were "Ma Fille, Veux tu un Bouquet?" the song of a mother who asks her daughter if she wishes a nosegay, when the poor child pines for a lover, also a fairylike lullaby in "Sainte Marguerite" and a bit of funny whimsicality in "Le Veux Mari" ("The Old Husband").

ANOTHER UNSOLICITED TRIBUTE FOR ALL-BRAN

Good news for sufferers from constipation

Mrs. Kiell sat down and wrote us a letter when she had proved ALL-BRAN a safe "sure-cure" for constipation. Read her voluntary tribute:

April 4, 1927

"I have been using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN for quite some time and I want to tell you how much I appreciate it. I have found it a sure-cure for constipation, and know it is a remarkable regulator for the stomach. After using it, my family and I certainly will not be without it. I have even gone so far as to send some of it to my mother in Poland, Europe."

Gratefully yours,
MRS. ANNA KIELL.
(Address on request.)

Perhaps you know what a terrible affliction constipation is. Blighting wherever it thrives. Ruining health. Marring beauty. Causing headaches, back pains, foul breath, loss of sleep—indeed, leading to more than forty serious diseases.

But did you know it can be easily relieved by a pleasant cereal food? Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring relief. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Serve with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Use in cooking. At grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

decorations of silver flowers and foliage.

Miss M. L. McCarthy

Miss Mamie L. McCarthy, artist, has an attractive corner where black is used as a background for paintings in oil and water colors. There are two portraits on view here, one a water-color painting of the artist's mothers, also a large number of water-color sketches. Several of the old mills of the district have been reproduced in natural tints and in sepia, a sketch of the Purdy Mill being very effective with its soft water reflection of leaning trees. The Hopwood cottage at Chemong, sketches of Jackson Park and of Keene, the gardens of L. D. V. Magie and of F. D. Kerr, K.C., are also on view. Demonstrations of differing types of painting by pupils of Miss McCarthy are going on here all week, in oil, water-color and china painting, while Miss McCarthy is doing lightning sketches in charcoal from living models. Pupils taking part in the demonstrations during the week include the Misses Dorothy and Barbara Foster, Marcelle McNulty, Violet Davidson, Viola Harvey, Edna Stinson, Loretta Murray, Lillian Campbell, Pearl Carruthers, also Clare Sullivan.

J. A. McNabb, Limited

In the section just opposite is the display by the J. A. McNabb Company, Limited, purveyors of ladies' wearing apparel. Very effectively arranged with cream hangings, warm floor rug and autumn foliage decorations is the exhibit, which includes two of the trig brown "Shagmoor" coats, with their fur trimmings, and several charming gowns. There is a lovely evening dress of gold, the top developed in metallic cloth and the whole skirt contrived of ruffles of gold lace. Another top of metallic material is superimposed on a skirt of transparent black velvet, with uneven hemlines. The use of white lace ruffles appears again on the skirt of a green taffeta frock for party wear and black lace over green is used for the upper portion of a black taffeta gown.

Alberta Coal.

A very active contrast in colors is afforded by the use of pure white as a setting for a display of dead black Alberta coal. Sponsored by the Coal Operators of Alberta, this exhibit shows the product of western fuel fields, with the slogan, "Canadian Coal for Canadians." In bins of small model one sees coal of graduated sizes and a pile of the black fuel is displayed in one corner.

Quaker Oats.

Very appetizing is the sight and sound of the frying pancakes in the Quaker Oats Company's booth, where the jovial "Aunt Jemima" flour provides material for sizzling cakes, turned by the hand of an expert chef, with two white-clad assistants. With syrup, the hot cakes are a delicate tidbit and are made in full view of the consumer. Ranged around the white and green booth are packages of Quaker goods and a sliding platform also brings them into view in rotation, with muffets, cake flour, rolled oats and pancake flour displayed to splendid advantage.

Department of Health.

An interesting exhibit, especially to the children, for whom a portion of the demonstration has been designed, is that of the Department of Health of Ontario, on view in a large double section, with E. H. Jones of Toronto in charge, and Dr. N. H. Sutton as an active assistant in off hours. Here, decorations have been carried out in patriotic red, white and blue. There is plenty of splendidly-worded descriptive literature on hand, for distribution and there is also a particularly effective miniature model in cardboard, electrically lighted, of class rooms, showing the work of the school nurse and school physician. Little paper children sit up primly and read, with apparent great inner gratification, health rules placed on a miniature blackboard, and other children in other rooms submit with much amiability to intimate mouth and throat inspections by energetic attendants. "Brush 'em up, brush 'em down," says a peppy poster on the wall, having reference to tooth cleansing. There is a Deliniscope, an interesting machine with a yawning black mouth through which one looks at rotating slides of interesting type and there is a moving picture machine devoted mainly to a demonstration of oral hygiene.

J. B. Collins.

Giving the human touch to the Fair, which is one of its most attractive attributes is another of the hand workers of the week, the old Potter, J. B. Collins, of Toronto, eighty-eigth years old, turning his wheel by foot power only, working in the wet clay with careful fingers, shaping the little pots that come from the lump of terro-cotta Egyptian clay. With his "rib," the small piece of wood which is used to shape the malleable substance, and his piece of wire, he turns the swift, soundless wheel.

Bowmanville Boys' School

Of all the booths, perhaps there is none more illustrative of the versatility of those whom it represents than that of the Bowmanville Boys' Training School, in which, by the way, the Peterborough Kiwanis club has a great interest. The booth, situated at the east end of the row of concessions along the north side of the armories is in charge of Dr. G. E. Reaman, superintendent of the school, and E. P. Bradt, B.S.A., and is identical to that placed in the Ontario Government Building, Canadian National Exhibition, earlier in the season.

The electrical, horticultural, motor mechanical, metal working and wood-working departments are all represented as well as the several branches of agriculture carried on at the farm. The feature most apt to catch the attention is the working model of a complete motor car ignition and lighting system, complete from spark plugs to tail light. It was prepared by the boys of the motor mechanics department.

Radio Demonstrations

The Johnston Nash Motor Sales, while not exhibiting their cars, have a beautiful line of Koister and Atwater Kent radios that won many an admiring glance on opening night. The radio booth, located next door to the Boys school concession, is nicely set off by a French grey and blue color scheme, lending a pleasant background for the several console and table models of the two lines of radios. The owners express themselves as bein gwell pleased with the fair and with the courtesy of the management.

Pure Gold Products

An enlarged packet of Pure Gold Raspberry Jelly powder forms the point of perspective to which purple and Gold streamers are lined, in the booth of the Pure Gold Manufacturing company of Toronto which has arranged an interesting display of its puddings, quick desserts, spices and extracts. These commodities, put up in packages or bottled form, are thus placed ready for sale by machinery, being weighed, packed and sealed without touch of human hand.

E-A-S-Y.

That sign, in large silver letters announces to the visitor that here is the booth of the Easy Vacuum Electric washers company—and a most interesting one. An obliging attendant is there to explain the many features of the washers shown which include one combination that washes, spin rinses and drys without any effort on the part of the user. Yet another machine has a tank with a window that passerby may see how the machine actually works.

Richard Hall, Limited

Richard Hall, Limited, hold a large concession on the north side of the armouries, and in it this firm has placed a most complete display of women's hosiery and lingerie, Puritan made, in their own factory. A revolving wheel displays the various shades in hosiery.

The booth is particularly bright and neatly appointed and is attracting much favorable comment.

Maple Leaf Milling Company

Stacked high on three sides of the booth, Maple Leaf Milling Company's produce calls attention to the fact that the famous Cream of the West and Monarch flours are manufactured right in Peterborough, along with a complete line of scratch feed and seed, for poultry. It is a display that commends itself to the visitor at the Made-In-Canada Fair.

Paper Work an Art

With a demonstrator constantly showing her visitors the many fine points of the paper-cutting art, the Interlake Tissue Mills Company has a booth on the north side that is among the most educational as well as beautiful in the building. The crepe paper, manufactured at Merritton, Ontario, can be made into dainty artificial flowers, costumes, etc., and a happy display of all these is located in the booth. French dolls, fancy costumes for the masquarade, asters and gladiola appear as if grown by nature. Many fine ideas may be obtained at the paper booth.

Viceroy Cigarettes

The popular Viceroy cirgarette, which has perhaps enjoyed a more rapid "rise to fame" than any other line of cigarette within the past few years, is advertised to the smoking public in most capable manner through the medium of a booth on the north side and near the west end of the building.

An attractive color scheme makes it bright and cheery, while the regal pomp of the Viceroy figure is in evidence on much of the advertising matter.

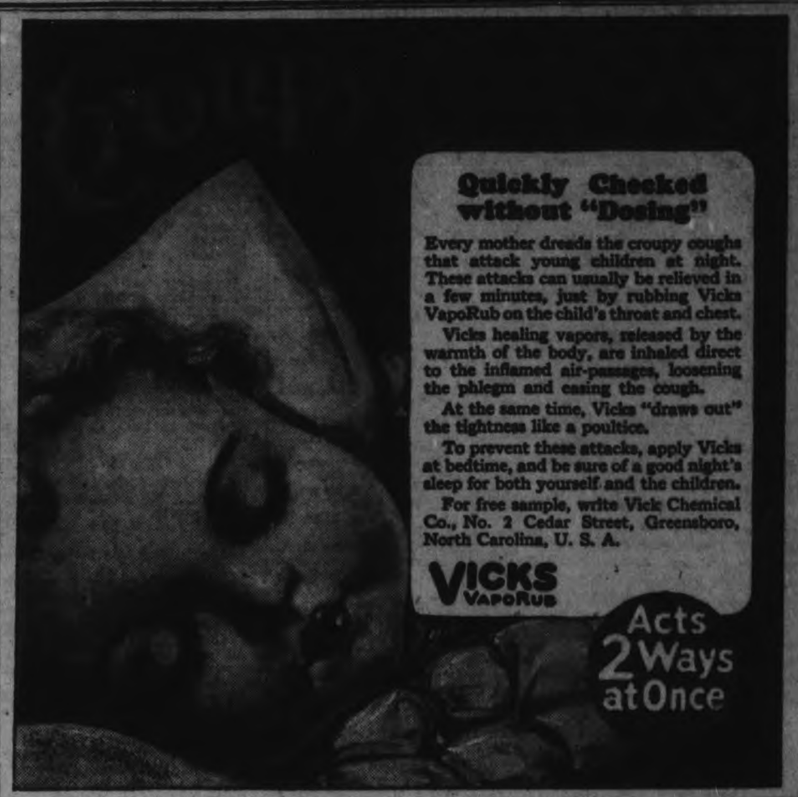
Seasonable Suggestions

In keeping with the season of approaching cold, Adam Hall's, Limited, have arranged a display of Quebec Tropic ranges and heaters in varying styles and sizes that will commend them to the home maker. Three sizes of both the heaters and ranges are there, while further information regarding the Quebec lines is available from the attendant. The stoves are economical in fuel consumption and are suited to either coal or wood. Goodfellow and Welch, of 379 Water street, handle this Made-in-Peterborough product.

Peterborough Floral Company

The Peterborough Floral Company, always progressive, has a concession that has been so appointed as to show, to best advantage the many beautiful designs of floral wreaths and cut flowers that may be obtained from their greenhouses on Water street.

Much of the display is artificial but the genuine counterpart is always available. The booth, with careful attention to lighting, has been made worthy of high commendation.



Around the City

The Harrier Club of the Y.M.C.A. will hold a luncheon and get-together meeting at the "Y" at six o'clock this evening. Doug. Loomis will soon get the boys under way in preparation for the fall races.

NEW MEANEST THIEF

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—There's champion pole sitters, weiner eaters and coffee quafers, but the undisputed "meanest thief" title goes to Dave Weiner. Weiner, with $250 in his pockets, was caught by Detective J. Stanley after he had snatched a battered purse, containing 51 cents, from an 81-year-old woman.

GIVES ADDRESS ON MISSION WORK

Rev. J. G. Waller Speaks Before Congregation of Lakefield Anglican Church.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—Rev. J. G. Waller, the senior missionary of the Canadian Church in Japan, delivered a very stirring address in St. John's Church on Thursday evening.

Dr. Waller went to Japan in 1890 and of course the passing years has seen many great changes; since the war, for instance, the status of Japan has been raised to one of the five great powers, viz., Great Britain, France, United States, Japan and Italy.

Japan is a very great factor in the Asiatic world, and if Japan became a Christian nation, the four hundred millions of Chinese and India's millions would follow suit. Japan has developed along Western lines rapidly, and in its post-office system is far ahead of our Canadian system; the railways are in some respects better than ours, and the schools have a higher attendance, strictly enforced by the police.

Nearly all the villages and all the towns and cities of Japan are lighted by electricity. What the real advance in Christianity is, it is hard to tell; for it is not the sort of thing that can be judged by outward appearances.

Mr. Waller received a very bad impression of Canada, which is now the wealthiest country in the world in proportion to its population. There are too many motor cars, and too few babies.

The object of religion is to get nearer to God, the source of all power, wealth and all goodness. In Japan there is at least less opposition to Christianity; annually, in old Japan for over 250 years a cross was laid on a floor and each person had to go across it, stamp on it, and curse our Lord. Nowadays the cross is popular and is seen on all our churches, and is worn by hundreds and thousands of young Japanese girls. There is a great trend toward Christianity and the church. When the speaker first went to Japan they did not know one day of the week from another; now, every child knows Sunday. Parents are not enthusiastic over baptism for their children as a general thing, and regard it as a hindrance to the marriage of their daughters. This, of course, is confined to non-Christian parents.

Japan is, like Canada, cursed with sectarianism; unity now is the trend of the Christian world. Eight years ago the Pan-Anglican Congress put out a basis for unity which was received coldly in England, as A with no enthusiasm in America, but there has been a great change since that time. Canada and United States are new countries and for over one hundred years immigrants have poured in from Europe—Germans, Swedes, Italians and Belgians, they went into colonies with their own languages, customs and religions. In the course of time their children went to public school and learned the language and customs of their adopted country and in thirty years all that was left was the family name and the family religion, and gradually the names change to English. The Japanese are loyal to their country to the last drop of blood. Prior to the war the Greek Orthodox Church of Russia had very strong missions in Japan, but Soviet Russia has closed the churches and there is no longer any aid to the mission, and some of their people come to the Anglican missions.

The greatest hindrance to Christian work in Japan is materialism, just as it is in Canada; but in spite of that, great advance has been made. There are ten dioceses and two native Japanese Bishops supported entirely by Japanese Christians. These are in Tokio and Osaku. The Canadian diocese of mid-Japan, established in 1912, has not received the support one could wish; for while at the beginning there were eight white clergy now there is only the Bishop and four white priests and sixteen Japanese clergy. There are great opportunities for work and not sufficient men. The crop which drew St. Paul to Macedonia should draw Christians to Japan from Canada; the nearest Christian country. It is a matter of satisfaction to Dr. Waller that his son, who was ordained to the priesthood last June in London, will go to Japan next September and carry on the work.

Christianity is love for Christ and imitation of Christ, and in that our endeavors should be for others in proportion to His Spirit in us. The greatest benefit of missions to-day is in the reflex action on the church at home. St. Paul was never welcomed in his missionary journeys, but he never doubted the call, and all our fine civilization and the church we have to-day is built on the foundation of Christianity he brought to Western Europe. The spirit of Japan calls, and we can help with prayers, money, and service.

In Japan, in Dr. Waller's district, there is urgent need of three more churches; the sites are bought and have been paid for by native Christions. Let us make a resolve to follow Christ's command to help the cause of carrying the Word of God to other countries. There never was a man or woman sorry for helping God's cause; it is a treasure laid up for eternal life.

Rev. W. J. Creighton, who introduced Dr. Waller, recalled the fact that they were ordained priests on the same day, thirty-eight years ago, in St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, and Dr. Waller, with his bride, left about a week later for Japan, the first missionary sent out by the Canadian Church, as a church, to Japan. Two other Canadians went through English societies. The church has obligations in the Far West, in Ontario and in the foreign field. The Canadian Church has a diocese in Japan and in China, and a district in India. The need is great and the call very insistent, and we cannot afford to ignore it.

PIE FOR ALL

LONDON, Oct. 16.— The village of Denby Dale recently undertook a big job. A huge pie, 15 feet by 4 feet thick was made. It contained beef, mutton, kidney and potatoes. It was sold and the proceeds went to an infirmary.

Scientists have under observation 19-year-old twin girls at Oshawa (Ontario), who were reared apart to determine whether heredity or environment plays the greater part in moulding the individual.

CARS DAMAGED; PASSENGERS HURT

When a C.P.R. freight train sideswiped the C.N.R. International Limited at Aldershot the sides of steel passenger coaches were badly torn and 16 passengers were injured, one fatally. The photographs show above one of the coaches hit. The damage to the steel car observed in the photograph illustrates the severity of the crash. The other picture shows one of the injured being taken from the train en route to a hospital.

Every Man Past 40 Should Make This Test

For Amazing and Lasting Relief From Middle-Age Ailments That Cause Daily Annoyance and Sap Vital Force

No longer need men near or past the prime of life put up with those painful and often embarrassing conditions brought on by overworked, sluggish Kidneys, Bladder Weakness and Prostrate Gland Trouble, with their distressing symptoms of Lameness, Pains in back and down through groins, scanty but frequent urination, 'Getting-up-Nights', Nervous Irritability and lack of force—because a ten day test of Dr. Southworth's URATABS will convince the most skeptical of the value of this special treatment for their particular case.

Amazing testimony of Physicians and users gives convincing proof of the power of URATABS to restore Health and Strength to a weakened inflamed or irritated Bladder and Urinary Tract. A multitude of alarming symptoms seem to quickly disappear—and you see and feel a truly genuine improvement often within two or three days. "No more Backaches, no more pain, no more embarrassment or Getting-up-nights. I now sleep soundly, and get up in the morning full of 'pep', thanks to Uratabs."

els decrease of the corn visible supply, leaving the total only 3,313,000 bushels, against 19,270,000 bushels last year.

Meanwhile the seaboard estimated 150,000 bushels of corn had been brought yesterday for export. Early weakness of the corn market resulted from increasing movement of new corn, about twenty-five cars of new corn having reached Chicago yesterday. Scattered selling eased down the oats market.

Higher quotations on hogs helped to steady the provision list.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Oct. 16 (Canadian Press).—Hogs, 35,000; market closed active and fully steady; shippers took 8,000; estimated holdover, 7,000. Butchers, medium to choice, 250 to 350 pounds, $9.25 to $10.35; 130 to 160 pounds, $9.50 to $10.35; 160 to 200 pounds, $9.25 to $10.355; 130 to 160 pounds, $8.85 to $10.10; packing sows $8.05 to $9.50; pigs, medium to choice, 90 to 130 pounds, $8.50 to $9.75.

Cattle, 27,000; calves, 3,000; all grades, dull and weaker; slaughter classes, steers, good and choice, 1,300 to 1,500 pounds, $14.00 to $17.75; 1,100 to 1,300 pounds, $14.00 to $17.75; 950 to 1,100 pounds, $14.25 to $17.75; fed yearlings, good and choice, 850 pounds down, $13.75 to $17.00; cows, good and choice, $8.75 to $11.75; low cutters and cutter, $5.25 to $7.00; Bulls, good and choice beef, $9.50 to $10.75; cutter to medium, $6.75 to $9.25. Vealers, milk fed, good and choice, $14.50 to $16.50; cull and common, $8.50 to $13.00; stocker and feeder steers, good and choice, all weights, $11.75 to $13.00.

Sheep, 30,000; lambs, active and strong; sheep about steady; increased supply of westerns; feeding lambs firm, choice light weights, medium, $12.25 to $12.75; cull and common, $8.00 to $12.25; ewes, medium to choice, 150 pounds down, $4.25 to $6.75; cull and common, $1.75 to $5.00; feeder lambs, good and choice, $12.50 to $13.50.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

Steadiness prevails in the local butter market, and, with very little butter going through yesterday, the volume of business was light. Sales on spot were mostly confined to meeting order for immediate requirements or between houses. In a jobbing way prices for finest creamery solids were unchanged from last week, asking prices ranging from 39c to 39¼c. per pound.

The trade is not looking for any marked improvement in market conditions for a few days yet. "Over the counter" demand is moderate for the season of the year and incoming supplies are not exceptionally heavy.

The demand for all grades of fresh eggs continues good and prices were firm on the resumption of the market yesterday. In many sections of the wholesale trade quotations to shippers for strictly fresh extras and firsts for delivery this week are swinging upward to new high levels for the present movement owing to growing scarcity of these grades. Quotations to the retail trade carry a firmer undertone than a week ago and dealers are not looking for any easiness in this market just yet. Storage eggs are finding their way into consumption a little more freely.

Lacking any noteworthy feature, trading in cheese on the Monday market was dull with very little change in prices reported by operatives. Ontario cheese boards at week end sales fluctuated within a range of from 21½c to 21¾c. per pound.

There was evidence that sellers in some markets were not desirous of releasing cheese at too low a figure. Locally, nominal quotations were little changed, the curb market reporting a spread of from 21½c. to 22c. per lb. for No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and Government-graded, delivered.

Teeth so very white YET... they are only as Healthy as the Gums

SEEMINGLY safe with teeth so white, 4 out of 5 after forty, and thousands younger, find themselves victims of the disease of neglect—Pyorrhea.

This grim foe of health ignores the teeth and attacks the gums.

So take this precaution: See your dentist every six months and use the dentifrice that does far more than keep teeth clean.

Every morning and every night, brush your teeth with Forhan's for the Gums.

As a dentifrice alone, you would prefer it. Without the use of harsh abrasives it restores teeth to natural whiteness and protects them against acids which cause decay.

And in addition, if used regularly and in time, it helps gums to resist Pyorrhea by keeping them sound and healthy.

Get a tube of Forhan's. Use this dentifrice morning and night. Teach your children this good habit which will protect their health in years to come. Also massage your gums daily with Forhan's, following directions in booklet that comes with tube. Two sizes—35c and 60c.

Your fuel dollars buy more heat when you spend them for

Ford Coke

Product of the Ford Motor Company

ARE you dividing your fuel dollars three ways? Part for heat, part for ashes, part for soot and smoke? When you buy Ford Coke you cut out the soot and smoke and get heat instead.

Ford Coke is made by the Ford Motor Company from coal mined in Ford-owned mines. Materials that will not produce heat in your furnace are removed in the Ford coke-ovens. So you don't have to pay for their weight. Those are the materials that turn into smoke.

You'll find the quality of Ford Coke not only high but also uniform. You don't get a "good lot" one time and another "not so good" the next. That kind of variation cannot be permitted in Ford Coke. For it's used in the Ford industries. You benefit from their strict requirements.

An investment in Ford Coke buys more economical heat and sure satisfaction. Telephone your order.

DURHAM COUNTY SQUADRON OF 3RD DRAGOONS ATTENDS CHURCH

Officers and Men of 'B' Squadron Addressed By Chaplain.

FITTING SERMON.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 15.—The officers and men of "B" Squadron, Prince of Wales' Dragoons, under command of Major Sloan, and Captain Mason of Peterborough; Sergeant Major J. Payne, of Pontypool; and Sergeant J. W. Byam, of Peterborough, and headed by the Peterborough Collegiate bugle band, paraded to Saint Thomas' church on Sunday morning and attended divine worship, Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, rector of All Saints' church, Peterborough, and Chaplain of the Regiment, being the special preacher for the occasion.

The church was beautifully decorated with fall flowers, fruits, vegetables, and sheaves of grain, the annual Harvest Thanksgiving service being held on Sunday evening, the special thank-offering being devoted to the missionary appropriation of the church.

The combined choirs of Saint Thomas' church, and Christ Church, Bailieboro, led in the musical part of the services both at morning and evening worship. The anthem in the morning, sung during the offertory, was, "Who Shall Ascend into the Hill of the Lord?" with solo by Mrs. Waterman, of Bailieboro, and obligato by the male voices of the choir.

Rev. Mr. Paterson chose his text from Nehemiah 9:5, "Stand up and bless the Lord," and in his opening remarks made reference to the obligation of expressing in the life the joy and thanksgiving of the harvest, when the ingathering has taken place.

"My special note of thanksgiving this morning is for the loyalty of the men of my own regiment who are here in uniform, thus making acknowledment that God is over all, and in His hands are our destinies. Wearing a uniform does not make a man more than he is without it; some thing of the life of a soldier glorifies the man, but I think not. The natural snobbishness that finds a place in everyday life vanishes when we are in uniform; the artificial is swept away, and we become broader in outlook, and of a more generous spirit, as men live together the community life. It is a releasing life, and makes things visible in the large."

"A man is not a different man, even though he is distinguished and set apart by his uniform; neither is he a different man because he wears a different kind of uniform. To be an officer is to be a gentleman, and this applies to every man in our Canadian forces. It is not the accident of rank that matters, it is always the man under the uniform who is going to hold the honor."

"The opposite is also true—a man is not less of a man because he wears a uniform; character and personality will always be shown, and the real man will come out when the restraining influence of home, parents, or wife, is taken away. Wealth, rank, social position will not stand if there is not behind all this the character to bear them up. We have a glorious opportunity to show the real man, and not stoop to any of the unworthy or disreputable actions often associated with army life."

"It is not a small thing for a man to give generous obedience to his senior officer, but he is greater to himself for so doing; he does honor to himself always when he carries reputably the honor of his regiment, and when he stands at attention, as we shall do presently, and sing "God Save the King," putting central for a moment the king, who is the centre of our nation."

In his concluding remarks Mr. Paterson spoke especially of the fine example set by the King and by the Prince of Wales, who refuse in the face of social custom to desecrate holy things, and particularly the Lord's Day; and mentioned also Sir Douglas Haig as an 'officer, a gentleman and a Christian,' adding the injunction, 'that we also be big enough to kneel in the presence of Almighty God, and give Him a central place in our daily living."

The large congregation was much pleased to have the rector, Rev Canon Allan, present and taking part in the service. Before the recessional hymn Mr. Allen especially welcomed the men of "B" Squadron, "whom I should like to shake individually by the hand; and also my personal friend, Rev. Mr. Paterson, who has given us such an inspiring sermon this morning. I should like you to feel that, as guests of Saint Thomas' church, you are warmly welcomed to this service."

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

A Story of Revenged Love., by Ruby M. Ayres

CHAPTER VII.

THE STORY THUS FAR:

GILES CHITTENHAM, on his way back to England from the United States to help wind up the affairs of his young half brother, RODNEY, who has recently killed himself for love of the notorious flirt, JULIE FARROW, joins his friend, HARRY LOMBARD, in Switzerland. There, on a lake steamer, he meets Julie Farrow and BIM LENNOX, a straight forward boyish sort of girl, loyal friend of Julie. Chittenham decides to make Julie fall in love with him and then spurn her, to avenge Rodney. He joins her in a drive through the St. Bernard pass. They are marooned at the inn at the top of the pass by a blizzard, and while there he tells Julie he loves her.

It was late the following day when they reached Montreux. After all, they had been forced to telephone a message to both Bim Lennox and Lombard.

"We must. Bim will be frantic." So Julie had agreed when Chittenham suggested it. "She'll know I'm all right with you," she had added with a confident smile.

They had to leave Charon at the top of the St. Bernard and make the descent with an experienced driver, for the road was deep with snow and a bitter wind was still blowing, swirling the loose flakes into a blinding swirl.

The drive down was a silent one. Chittenham and Julie sat together, hardly speaking, each occupied in thought. Once when Chittenham glanced at Julie's rapt face a sudden pang of compunction touched his heart. She looked so utterly happy, and it was in vain that he told himself it was only because she had added yet another conquest to her already long list, and that it had nothing whatever to do with him personally.

He tried hard to believe that she was a woman incapable of love. Vanity was her chief emotion. He wondered what she was thinking as she sat so still beside him, her eyes fixed on the bleak, snow-clad landscape through which they were slowly descending, a little half smile curving her lips. She was priding herself on what she considered to be his subjugation, no doubt; laughing to herself at what she imagined to be his easy capitulation. Chittenham frowned and moved restlessly.

It seemed an eternity ago since yesterday evening when he had first held her in his arms. He wished he could forget the softness of her hair against his face and the warm pressure of her lips. No woman had ever before stirred his pulses so strangely; no woman's arms about his neck had ever made him feel that the world would be well lost if only he could so hold her forever. But she had only been playing, even as he had! Today they were coming down from the Olympian heights, and no doubt she would be just as relieved as he was that the little game was finished.

For Chittenham meant it to finish as soon as they reached Montreux. He told himself that he would never willingly see her again, and that once he was away from her he would soon forget the clasp of her arms and her kisses.

She turned her head suddenly, almost as if she read his thoughts.

"What are you thinking?" she asked.

"I was wondering what you were thinking," he answered with an effort.

"I was thinking how happy I am," she said. "It's all like a dream, or like a beautiful fairy story with a happy ending."

Chittenham's lips moved, but the words he wanted to say would not form themselves. She was still playing with him, of course. Well, if she wished to keep up the game to the very end, she might do so. He half turned and looked back at the mountain heights behind them.

"We've come down very quickly," he said.

"Yes." She put her hand into his. "But it's possible to be just as happy down on earth as it is up on the heights," she answered.

She moved a little closer to him, and he could feel that her hand in his was trembling.

"I wonder what Bim will say?" she said with a little laugh.

"Bim!" Chittenham had forgotten Bim—but he remembered her now, with her straight honest eyes and queer personality; he remembered Lombard too, and Sadie, and all the world to which they were returning and which would presently come pressing around them with insistent, every-day demands.

"Yes—I mean when she hears about us," Julie said.

Chittenham moistened his dry lips. "About—us?"

"Yes, when she knows that we have fallen in love with one another."

It was clever of her to get that shy note into her voice—clever of her to manage to look so young and untried! Chittenham wondered if she had said to Rodney any of the things—sweet, insincere things which she had said to him during the past few hours.

It rose to his lips to say cynically that Bim would hardly be surprised; that no doubt she had heard of other men who had fallen in love with Julie just as suddenly and foolishly, but he kept them back.

She did not seem to notice his silence, and presently, glancing down at her, he saw that she had fallen asleep. Her face in the big upstanding collar of a coat which he had borrowed for her from someone at the hotel looked like a sleeping flower. Her lips were a little parted, and still wore that sweet half smile as if at some happy, remembered secret.

Chittenham looked at her—at the thick dark lashes resting on her flushed cheek, and longed to gather her close into his arms and kiss her as he had done last night. He looked away from her with a little cold feeling round his heart.

Why were such women allowed to be. What right had they to wander through the world bringing trouble and tragedy to every man who crossed their paths? Chittenham knew that he himself was not to be allowed to escape unscathed. He knew that there would be moments when he would long to see her again, long to be with her; moments none the less tragic to bear because he knew she was utterly worthless. The woman who had sent Rodney to his death. . . . Well, he had paid back part of the debt, if not in full. He had paid back part of the debt if he caused her one sleepless night, or one tear!

Julie slept with her cheek against his arm all the way back to Montreux. When they reached the valley the air felt mild, and it seemed strange to see the green fields and the thick foliage of the trees, after the wild mountain slopes and falling snow. When they were close to the town Chittenham gently roused her.

"We are nearly home."

She opened her eyes and sat up with a start.

"Why—why—" Then she laughed. "Isn't it funny not to see the snow?" she said breathlessly.

"Yes. We're back in the world again. Last night up there we almost seemed to be out of it."

She flushed, meeting his eyes.

"I wonder if Bim will have been anxious."

"Why should she? I telephoned down last night. You forget that we are not still living in the Dark Ages."

"Oh, of course!" She sat up and unfastened the big heavy coat. "I believe I'm almost sorry to be back," she said wistfully.

Chittenham made no answer, and they turned into the street to which Julie directed the driver.

"I'm not going to stay now," Chittenham said when the car stopped. "I'll come round later on—after dinner, if I may."

"Of course!" Her eyes were so happy! He wished she would not look so happy, it made him feel mean—as if he had pretended to give a child a beautiful gift, knowing that when she opened the box she would find only a stone.

"I'll look much prettier when you see me again," she said.

She squeezed his hand and turned away.

"Au revoir—till tonight, then."

Chittenham went on to the hotel where he had arranged to meet Lombard. Somehow he felt uncomfortable at the thought of Lombard's interested eyes and amused questioning. He went straight to his room and bathed and changed his clothes.

He would have to keep his word to Julie, of course, and go round that evening. He would have to explain—if she insisted on an explanation. But probably she was too worldly wise! Probably she would be just as relieved at the end of the episode as he would be.

It was nearly dinner-time when he was dressed, and he was about to go in search of his friend when Lombard tapped at the door.

"Come in."

Lombard came in and shut the door.

"So you're back! Why didn't you let me know?"

"I wanted a bath, and now I want a meal."

"It's ready."

Lombard fidgeted about the room.

"So you got snowed up," he said.

"Yes. Quite an experience. Miss Farrow lost her bet; it was impossible for any woman to drive down that pass this morning," Chittenham answered lightly. "But she says she will try it again when the weather clears."

"Was it very bad up there?"

"Rotten. Cold as Hades—if Hades is cold. I'm never quite clear on the point."

"Miss Lennox seemed rather upset when your message came through."

Chittenham laughed.

"Because we were unchaperoned?"

"No."

"Why, then? Was Miss Lennox afraid that Miss Farrow would add my scalp to her collection?"

"No, the other way about. She said you were a dangerous man, and that she hoped you would not upset Julie."

"Rot! I rather fancy Julie, as you call her, would take a great deal of upsetting."

But it hurt to remember the look of happiness on her face: it hurt to remember the clasp of her arms round his neck. He frowned and took a cigarette from his case.

"Well, let's go and feed."

"In a minute. There's something I want to tell you, Chittenham."

"Go ahead. What is it? Have you been getting into a mess while I was up on high?"

"No. It's only I made a silly mistake yesterday about Miss Farrow. Can't think how I did it."

Chittenham looked up sharply.

"A mistake! What do you mean?"

Lombard flushed, and his eyes grew a little anxious.

"I made a damned silly mistake. Quite unintentional, of course. But the fact is—well, she's not the girl Rodney knew, after all—she's not the Julie Farrow he was so mad about. It came out last night when I was talking to Miss Lennox—they've got the same name—Julie Farrow both of them—they're cousins, you see, but this one isn't the one Rodney was so mad about. She's in London at this moment; the one here is her cousin."
